When a train which had left Ottawa reached the bridge over a tributary to the Gatineau and just beyond Hull, the engineer noticed a small child on the track. Before he could stop his train the engine had passed over the child. When the train stopped the engineer descended from his cab to look for the youngster's body, when he found that the little one had lain down flat on the trestle work of the bridge where there was just room for the outer edge of the engine to pass over his body without hurting him. In this way he escaped uninjured. He was taken out by the engineer and sent safely home. He did not seem much frightened when taken from his perilous position under the train.

HOPE TO EVOLVE A PERFECT RACE

Man at Present a Mere Caricature Says British Doctor—Baby Swam When Seven Years Old

Some most interesting discussions took place at a conference of the British Medical Association at Brighton. Particularly attractive was the debate on the possibility of producing a perfect race.

Dr. Harry Campbell, of London, declared that it was theoretically possible to breed a race of super-men, to convert man—at present a mere caricature of the ideal— into a being perfect in form and supreme in moral and intellectual endowment. What, above all, was needed, he added, was that the public standard should be educated in the fundamental principles of evolution. The great truths of science had not yet been incorporated into our religious and ethical codes. We still prayed to be delivered from plague, pestilence, and famine as though they were visitations of Divine wrath, whereas they were in a large measure under our control.

Sir James Barr ventured the opinion that what was wanted was a race which would be more or less immune from disease, and which would possess a strong inherent power of recovery when affected.

The merits and dangers of sea-bathing formed another interesting subject for discussion. Dr. W. J. Tyson, of Folkestone, said it acted as a tonic, and had a strengthening effect when wisely carried out, but there were certain rules which ought to be observed. There was one rule never to be forgotten—always leave the water before the reaction stage was reached. The length of time in the water should be from five to fifteen minutes. For non-swimmers the five minutes should not be exceeded. Slow dressing, he said, was as bad as slow bathing, and a rough towel to create friction should be used.

Dr. Kennedy, of Bath, discussed the age at which it would be advisable for children to have sea baths, and added, amidst laughter, "I bathed a child in the sea before he was one year old, and the remarkable fact about it is that the baby swam. I am quite prepared for the laugh, but the first moment I put the infant into the sea it struck out, and actually swam, but it never tried it afterwards. As a rule when you put young children into the sea it is a great shock. I have seen little children practically paralysed, although they have been in the sea but a very short time."

Giving his views on crime and its punishment, Dr. Scott, formerly governor of Halloway Gaol, said the view had sometimes been enunciated that crime was a disease inherited or acquired, and that criminals should be pitied and not blamed, put under kind treatment, and not punished.

There was certainly an analogy between crime and disease, but it was difficult for most of them to think that the accomplished criminal should be pitied and not blamed, and be treated better than many honest and law-abiding people could afford to treat themselves.

Education, it was thought, would affect crime, but its results had been that if we had fewer offences against the person with violence, we had a larger number of clever and ingenious frauds.

Professor Benjamin Moore (Liverpool) said crime was a good thing "because it brings us to understand social problems. Perfect laws would show that we are no longer progressive. Old crimes are disappearing and new crimes are arising, and I trust new crimes always will arise."

A GOVERNOR'S FALL

Herded Swine Where He Once Virtually Ruled

From statements made when he was under the influence of drink, an extraordinary story of a man's downfall has come to light in Russia. The governor of a province hired a swineherd for his farm at Mintopelsk. The man had not long been at work when his fellow servants told their master that the new employe made the most extraordinary statements when he was in a drunken condition, and used to say that he was really governor of the Don Cossacks province.

The swineherd was summoned before his master, who is said to have found to his great surprise that the man's story had a foundation of truth. The guardian of the pigs had, eight years before, been governor of the province, but had been sent to prison for embezzlement.

After his term of imprisonment had come to an end he had led a vagabond's life until, impelled by a desire to return to the scene of his former exploits, he had returned to the province, where he accepted the job as swineherd on the farm of the new governor.

Count's Kindly Action

Count and Countess Antoine de la Rochefoucauld, who moved into a new house in Paris, gave their old residence as a house for eight poor married couples with large families for the remainder of the lease.

The eight families entered the house to the music of a band, and were given champagne at the count's expense.

Why a Scientist Should Be Humane

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

I FOUND him, the doctor who is a human being as well as a physician. He came bustling into my sick room the other day, and all at once the air was full of sunshine and hope and health and courage.

He pulled up the shades to look at the view; he drew a violet out of the bouquet on the bedroom table and sniffed at it as if he really loved the smell of violets; he picked up the valentine a little boy I know had sent me, and smiled at the beautiful lady entirely surrounded in garlands of hearts—and then he began to talk to me about my case.

He didn't call it my case—he called it me; and before I knew what I was doing I had told him not only how very ill I was and in how much pain, but I had told him how my heart ached and how my courage failed, and how it seemed almost too steep for human feet to climb.

And the doctor listened to what I said. He listened with his brain and with his heart as well as with his ears; and when that half-hour of talk with him was through I was half cured already.

If there were more doctors like him left, there would be less need of new cults that do away with doctors entirely.

Some Old Fashioned Ideas.

It's such a matter of "science" now—is medicine. All science and theory and germs.

The modern doctor will tell you that there are no such things as you and your mother and your grandmother have seen a thousand times with your own perfectly good eyes.

He will tell you that anise-seed tea will not cure the baby's colic—it's an old woman's remedy, he says.

And you know it will cure it, because you've tried it a dozen times.

He tells you that it won't help your sore throat to put a nice, comfortable strip of flannel around it when you go to bed.

Now you know it will help it, you don't know why—and you don't care why. All you know is that it does, and so you listen to what he says and look confused and guilty and very stupid.

And he goes away and makes a speech at his medical dinner about old wives' superstitions, and is very witty and clever indeed—at your expense; and the minute he's gone you get a perfectly good piece of flannel and pin it comfortably around your throat and stop the tickling cough.

A man can't play the Mumbo Jumbo game very long with any one who smiles at the thought of his name. My little girl was ill not long ago; they sent me a specialist to take a specimen of her blood. The child is a clever, emotional, imaginative little thing, who lives in fairyland most of the time, with princesses and knights and snow-white palfreys, and all the rest of it.

A Typical Experience.

When the specialist arrived in the sick room he turned out to be a tall, cadaverous creature, with a face like the skull and cross-bones man—sallow, dark, saturnine.

He gave three stealthy, cat-like paces and was at the bedside.

"I have come for the blood," he said; and my little daughter's face went as white as snow.

Now that man shall never do one other particle of work in his special line for me or for any of mine. I don't believe that any one who is as big a fool as that can possibly know enough to make a correct analysis—do you?

I'm glad I've been ill and alone in a strange city, for I've found him again—the man I thought was lost forever, the doctor who's a human being as well as a man.

Here's looking at you, doctor! Every time I see the violet smile in the spring sunshine I shall think of you with love and gratitude.

Sayings of Wise Men

Words are an amazing barrier to the reception of truth.—Sydney Smith.

Every real and searching effort at self-improvement is of itself a lesson of profound humility.—Gladstone.

We are ashamed at the sight of a monkey—somehow as we are shy of poor relations.—Charles Lamb.

The encouragement of habits of thrift and foresight, and of a spirit of independence and self-help—qualities which conduce in the highest degree to the welfare of the nation—is an object which must always have the deepest sympathy of the Queen and myself.—King Edward VII.

Take not too short a time to make a world-wide bargain in.—Shakespeare.

The silence often of pure innocence persuades, when speaking fails.—Shakespeare.

Who lives to nature rarely can be poor; who lives to fancy never can be rich.—Edward Young.

Prudence, frugality, and good management are excellent artists for mending bad times; they often find but little room in any dwelling, but would furnish a more effectual remedy for the evils of life than any reform bill that ever passed the houses of Parliament.—Samuel L. Drew.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

CHILDREN'S socks and stockings need continual darning and renewal. Their treatment is mainly "wear and tear," not always of the "fair" kind.

Worsted stockings should not be darned with new worsted. The latter should be shrunken first, or it will pull into holes, and destroy the shape of the stockings or socks. To shrink, tie the skeins loosely with cotton, soak in very hot water for 10 minutes, then rinse in cold water and dry.

Black stockings will not stain the skin if boiled for a few minutes in milk before being first used. Black yarn should be treated in the same way before being knitted.

Knitted stockings, when the feet are worn out, should be cut off above the heel, the stitches picked up and a new foot knitted.

Cashmere stockings, too, can be refooted, if you have two pairs that have "gone." Cut the stocking to be refooted half through, above the heel, from the back, leaving only an instep tongue to the toes. This cuts the old bottom off. From the leg of the second pair, cut a piece exactly the size and shape of the old foot piece (laid flat), and machine, or backstitch, neatly on. Allow an extra inch for the heel, and oversew.

Black stockings will keep their color perfectly, and not go "rusty," if a little vinegar is used in the rinsing water.

Silk stockings should be washed in warm, not boiling, water. Make a lather, but do not rub soap into them; let them soak in this for an hour, rinse in cold water quickly, wring them out, roll in a cloth and then after pulling into shape, pass a cool iron over them.

Darning is made easier, and the work more lasting, if a piece of white mosquito net is first tacked over the hole or thin place. Darn through the net, taking every other hole, basket pattern. Use a finer darning-needle than usual.

For children especially—but men's socks could be treated in the same way—it is most economical to darn the heels and knees before first using, and to wash them once as directed above.

PARAFFIN oil as an illuminant we know, but it has many other excellent uses. It cleans tiles beautifully. Tiled passages, if cleaned with the oil and silver sand, shine like polished marble.

Finger-marks on painted doors and the like, if rubbed with a flannel dipped in paraffin come off at once. Garden peas soaked in paraffin are made proof against birds and mice. Mixed with an equal quantity of salad-oil, paraffin makes the best machine-oil. It is an excellent disinfectant for drains and sinks. It has virtues as a hair-grower, if you don't mind the odor.

Delicate-colored handkerchiefs should be washed, without soaking, in warm water to which paraffin oil has been added. It will soften hard boots, and make them quite pliable. Two or three drops added to the blacking will enable you to polish damp boots without trouble. It is the best cleaner for a smoked lamp chimney and, used with pads of soft newspaper, it is easily first as a window-cleaner.

Kitchen cloths and towels, which so soon get a bad color, need not do so if a tablespoonful of paraffin oil is added to the water in the copper.

"NATURALNESS" A NEEDED ASSET

NORMA PHILLIPS

"Movie Girl" Tells Secret of Her Success.

By ELEANOR AMES

NORMA PHILLIPS says meeting multi-millionaires and world famous men is neither difficult nor awe inspiring. And she ought to know, for in her career as a "Movie Girl" she has met many real celebrities and public personages.

"They are just folks," says Miss Phillips, "and want to be treated like folks. If there is any secret in my success in getting interviews with such men as Mr. Carnegie and the late Mayor Gaynor in New York and scores of others equally important, it is my realization of this fact.

"I have never permitted myself to think they were other than human beings, whose ability or fortunate environs have made them important, but has not robbed them of their human attributes.

"Also I always have splendid belief in myself. I neither presume nor cringe. When I was assigned to meet and get one of the biggest men in America to pose with me before the reel-camera, I set my wits to work to puzzle out the best way to approach him.

"I decided that first of all I must believe it was the best thing in the world for him to do, that there were no good reasons why he should not grant my request, and there were dozens of perfectly sane reasons why he should. Next I worked out these arguments and made them fast in my mind.

"Then I decided that this man, with his exalted position in the business and social world, and with his millions of money and his multiple interests, was constantly annoyed by two kinds of interviewers, the ones who were blustering and offensive, and the ones who were fawning sycophants. Therefore the man or woman who went to him and asked him to do a favor just as if he were just John Jones or Bill Smith should by the law of averages be refreshing enough to command attention.

"I put my theory into practice. It won the day. I have never had it fail. I act as if the great and mighty were plain and honorable citizens like myself. I approach them in a purely business-like way. I talk on impersonal subjects if there is time for conversation and it becomes necessary for me to keep the man's attention occupied.

"Perhaps this rule might not be applicable to all cases, but I think it is worth trying. I have always maintained that lots of girls lose good business chances through fear.

"Fear may work two ways. It may make a sweet and modest girl act brazen and bold, and it may make a thoroughly competent one simper and act like a lack-wit.

"What would I say was the most important attribute for business success? Why, common sense, I think. By that I mean more than the phrase is generally supposed to mean. I mean business poise and self-composure.

"No woman can expect to have any real success who depends upon the subtle arts of her sex to make a good impression on a business man. If you are looking for a job in an office don't lay in a supply of coquetry. If a man wants to flirt he can have plenty of chances without hiring a flirtatious typewriter. That is, if he is the right kind of a man for you to work for.

"As I said before, the really big folks are the most like-other folks, and like to be treated as such, with no nonsense, no cringing, no attitude of fear at being in the presence of the mighty. Be earnest and sincere and courteous and friendly and business-like.

"I have delightful memories of the 'big' men I have met. Most of them are so simple and plain and sort of every-day in their attitude toward me that they have been perfectly natural, and have shown a side of their natures which I don't believe many persons have the opportunity of knowing. And I have yet to meet a famous man who hasn't a well developed sense of humor, and who doesn't know how to laugh at the right time, in spite of fame and millions."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the New Novel, "Diane of the Green Van," Awarded a Prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. Mc[illegible]

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

The First Gray Hair.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

"MOTHER," said I, "did you mind our first gray hair?"

"Yes," said mother instantly. "Of course I did, Peter. Who wouldn't? You see, son, it's like climbing a hill, this game of life. Climbing, you look ahead and think what a marvelously beautiful view you will have when you reach the top; how the sunset over the valley will glow and fade in utter peace, and how the purple night will veil the valley in misty loveliness. You reach the top, but you can't linger. Something warns you that you must turn and go down again, for, though the night is coming and the purple mist will beautifully veil the valley, you may lose your way.

"The gray hair, son, seems like the first warning of night—the first hint that the rest of the journey must be down a hill. And going down the hill there is not quite so much ahead as when you were climbing. The sunset you were aiming for as you ascended, becomes as you turn wearily back, the valley of the shadow."

"Let's not be sad, mother," said I, energetically, for I could not bear to think of mother travelling toward the valley of the shadow, "tell me why women mind that first gray hair so much more than men?"

"Do they?" asked mother quietly.

"Don't they?" I countered.

"I don't think so," said mother. "They merely let a certain mental hysteria get the better of them and rush for the dye pot. Touch a woman's vanity and her scruples vanish. The dye pot gives them away."

"It isn't the simple act of coloring one's hair that I protest against," said I thoughtfully, "but—well it is a form of hypocrisy, isn't it?"

"It's sailing under false pretences, of course," admitted mother. "And no one is deluded but the pitiful deluder herself. And really, Peter, there is something deeper at stake than the mere act. Doesn't it argue a certain moral delinquency that a woman will stoop to such petty deception for such a slight return?"

"But the return isn't always slight. Look at the wonderful semblance of youth some women attain——"

"Even that is slight return for the hypocrisy it engenders," insisted mother. "And they irrevocably sacrifice the beauty and dignity and compensations of age by fostering the wrong mental attitude. They're neither young nor old. They have the semblance of the one without its vitality, the life marks of the other without the peace and resignation which ought to make old age happy and beautiful.

"These young-old women with dyed hair are really not happy, Peter. They laugh and smirk and revel in flattery, but in the seclusion of their own rooms they grow old and very tired, and wonder what is the use of it all. Innocent as the application of a little hair coloring may seem, persistent hypocrisy of that sort prints ineradicable marks upon a woman's character. It must. For she's learning, slowly but surely, to be a hypocrite. Did you ever know a man who dyed his hair?"

"Once," said I reluctantly. "It was when I was away one summer. He had his barber patch and mend him up every morning, and at 60 he looked 50."

"What was he like?" asked mother curiously.

"He was an old crook," I said with some warmth, "and that most odious of beings—a male flirt with a smirk and a titter for every pretty woman he saw."

"He had a feminine factor in his mind," said mother, "colossal vanity. Women never count the cost of enhanced beauty. They'll pay the heaviest prices in the world with a smile and deem themselves the gainer. But they pay in black hours, Peter, blacker hours than the one in which you spy your first gray hair and let it stay."

"It's all a sense of values," I ventured, "and Mother Nature will teach them right if you'll only let her."

"A sense of values," nodded mother, "and a sense of responsibility."

Ready for Emergency.

"I believe the Count intends to propose to Miss Specie."

"He seems to be badly smitten."

"Yes, and he has taken out an accident insurance policy."

Profitable.

"I think I will start a theatre and run it on the matrimonial plan."

"What is that?"

Too Many for Demand.

"I see eggs are 50 cents a dozen," said Wijjit.

"Who wants a dozen?" demanded Fijjit. "Three are enough for any man's breakfast."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

"Manners" Betray Even The "Rough Diamond"

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

LORD CHESTERFIELD advises you that the manner of a vulgar man has freedom without ease, and the manner of a gentleman has ease without freedom.

You may not be of those fortunate ones to the manner born, but good breeding is both hereditary and inherited, both from within and from without.

Just as well-mannered youths confide too freely and boast too vainly, so ill-mannered maturity and middle age may appear with a polish which it has not.

Superficial things often deceive, and as rashness is only one of the many errors of those under 25, and timidity one of the many of past 45, so good breeding is the cantilever span between the two.

Unctuous and melodiously modulated words, silk top hats, white carnations in buttonholes, professorships, wealth, a New England ancestry and a Chesterfieldian good manners.

You and I know many who fit this description, just as we know uncouth, rough diamonds, whose motives are misunderstood and who are, nevertheless, perfect gentlemen.

Real Breeding Shows.

Personal, daily contact will disclose the real breeding in a man. Fine airs and social position are no criteria. Formalities of compliment and the soft, suave, bland smile are often false cloaks.

Unbecoming forwardness proceeds more often from ignorance and unhappily placed parents and homes than from intrinsic ill-breeding. Uplifters and Puritans usually do not distinguish between the man taught at home, who "butts in" in a coarse way, from the gentleman who is master of ceremonies and toastmaster at social functions.

Dryden knew whereof he spoke when he said inherent good breeding will show quickly in the most outwardly unpolished, in their candor and honesty of tone among the best company of both sexes.

Manners are the shadows of virtues, they are the indications of coming events. The inward thought, the purity of the soul, stamps its impress upon the outward habits.

An ill-bred man or woman is supersensitive, unconsciously envious and captious. Trivial, worthless experiences impel him, despite his white carnation and smooth manners, to impetuous crusading after some one's scalp.

Hypocrites Are Many.

He is forever suspicious that he has been insulted or slighted. He thinks all attacks, all conversation is meant for him.

If two people enjoy themselves, or happen to laugh, he has a pathological delusion that he is sneered at.

Testiness, a curling lip, a turned up nose, a "scrappy" disposition, which he justifies as a "true fighting spirit," to resist wrongs and general self-assertion fit this unhappy, disappointed fellow's nature.

The polished, well dressed man, who smiles and smiles and affects great softness of manner, an unruffled evenness of temper, a studied modulation and enunciation of his words, who is slow and deliberate in his sentences, is to be suspected.

He is a refined snake in the grass. No honest, natural man can maintain this pose. Such a Beau Brummel manner bespeaks a measure of mental discipline, manner are often far removed from craft and ambition, which no true man can submit to.

The most successful hypocrites and sinners, those who reach the highest positions in their chosen spheres, are most often of this description.

They assume, though they have it not, the oily innocence of the dove. They are the crafty, cunning, designing [illegible] who pretend to be the personification of purity, the leaders of their walks, with the outward perfections of Lord Chesterfield.

Answers to Health Questions

C. Y. B., Philadelphia, Pa.—I am the remaining one of twins. I drink lots of coffee. I get very hysterical at times and supersensitive also. Is there any anti-nervous serum?

Stop coffee and drink two glasses of hot milk at the times you were accustomed to drink coffee. Do not go without food over two hours at a time. Avoid all fried pabulum, but eat raw eggs, whipped cream, ham, sweets fruits, candies and fresh vegetables in abundance. Eat twice as much and sleep twice as much as formerly.

R. H., Philadelphia.—What is good for loss of sleep? Depression? Oppression?

Evidently you need a complete physical change. You should have first of all a revolutionary change of your habits. At night your bedroom, your night habits of retiring, eating, drinking and the like should be absolutely the reverse of what you are doing at present.

Take a cold wet pack at night, eat some fruit, such as an orange, some figs and an apple, before you retire. Drink lots of buttermilk, learn to dance, to exercise, to take cold washes, to eat oatmeal, fruits, oils, lots of water, and have your muscles massaged.

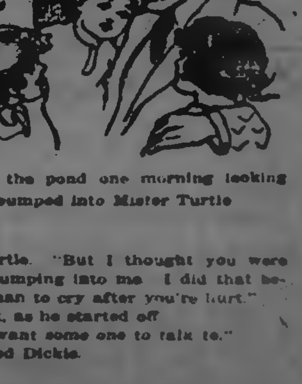
Points on Gardening

Birds are beginning to prove very troublesome in the garden. They are very partial to nipping off the flower-buds of crocuses just as they are peering through the soil, also to picking off the growth buds of the gooseberry and the leaves of carnations. To safeguard the crocuses and carnations from injury, insert a few pieces of sticks about six inches long among and around the plants, and wind some black cotton freely around these about four inches from the ground. The birds cannot see the cotton, and when they alight and it touches their wings they usually become alarmed and beat a speedy retreat.

The same remedy may, indeed be applied to gooseberry bushes with good results. If, however, the bushes be moss-grown, it is a good plan to mix up a composition of lime, flour of sulphur and water to the consistency of milk, and then spray it freely over the bushes. The birds will then not touch the buds, and the liquor will thoroughly cleanse the bark from moss or eggs of insects.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH



DICKIE DUCK was swimming around the pond one morning looking for something to do, when he almost bumped into Mister Turtle.

"Ouch!" went Mister Turtle.

"I didn't touch you," said Dickie.

"I know you didn't," replied Mister Turtle. "But I thought you were going to. I said 'Ouch!' to keep you from bumping into me. I did that because it is easier to yell before you're hurt than to cry after you're hurt."

"That's a good idea," replied Dickie Duck, as he started off.

"Don't hurry," began Mister Turtle. "I want some one to talk to."

"What do you want to talk about?" asked Dickie.

"About an hour," replied Mister Turtle.

"I didn't ask you how long you wanted to talk. I wanted to ask you what you wish me to talk about," said the Duck.

"Why have you such a broad mouth?" asked Mister Turtle.

"That is to help me pull up the tender blades of grass at the bottom of the pond," said Dick.

"I have always wanted to know why you have such a broad mouth, while a chicken has such a sharp one. My mouth is sharp like a chicken's," Mister Turtle said.

Dickie moved up closer so that he might have a better look at Mister Turtle's mouth. Then he remarked:

"I think it is very interesting to study mouths. I never thought of it until now. I shall have to look at the mouths of birds, cows, fishes, frogs and——"

"Don't forget that fishes breathe under water and can't live in air, and that frogs can breathe on land and in water, too."

"How observing you are," said Dickie.

"We found something to talk about," replied Mister Turtle as he rolled off the log.

LONG LIVED LEGEND OF DEMON BARBER

Sweeny Todd's Fictitious Deeds in Fleet Street—Historic House Pulled Down

It is more than likely that the gruesome story of Sweeny Todd, the horrible barber of Fleet street, will cling to the famous London thoroughfare long after every one of the supposed scenes of his atrocities has been completely cleared away.

The actual building in which Sweeney Todd was supposed to have carried on his murderous trade was recently demolished, and once again the legend—for legend it is from beginning to end—was revived.

The house referred to was 185 Fleet street, next door to the famous old church of St. Dunstan-in-the-West. Here Sweeney Todd, as the legend has it, was wont to pose to the unsuspecting world as a harmless and even useful, necessary barber.

His barber's chair was supposed to have been fixed over a trapdoor, and no sooner had the customer taken his seat and lain back confidently for the "clean shave" guaranteed by Sweeney Todd, than the trapdoor would fall, the customer would disappear beneath the floor, and down below the work of darkness would be completed with a blow on the head.

Sweeney Todd was not a man—so the legend would have us believe—who wasted anything. He would not only take great care of any money or jewels on the persons of his victims, but even their bodies were made to serve the ends of his demon machinations. What was more likely, in such a creature, than that the flesh should be served up next door as pies!

Such was the legend. The truth as searched out not many years ago showed that Sweeney Todd should really be classed with Mrs. Harris—there was no such a person. No barber was ever known in Fleet street who treated his customers with such [illegible] courtesy, and with all despatch though of a different kind from that meted out by the "demon barber."

So completely had this story got hold of the public that even Charles Dickens makes use of it in "Martin Chuzzlewit." And when, in some excavations on the spot, a pile of human bones was dug up, it seemed that the seal of complete proof was set upon the story of the barber's butcheries. Nobody seemed to see that the bones were, of course, those of persons long buried and forgotten in the churchyard of St. Dunstan.

By some curious means this legend grew out of a true story from Paris. In this there was a barber, and there was a pie-maker, but it is not supposed that they joined forces in the manner suggested by the Sweeney Todd story. An ingenious writer was responsible for bringing the story over the Channel and fixing it—apparently for ever—on Fleet street. A play was even written round the story.

A Royal Jewel Squabble

The jewels which the Duchess of Cumberland wears at state occasions recall a memorable Royal squabble which took place over them, in the course of which Queen Victoria, on one of the few occasions in her reign, made a mistake. When William IV. died these jewels were in England, having been brought over in the reign of George II. The pearls alone were valued at over a million dollars. The young Queen Victoria wanted them badly, and Prince Albert did his best to retain them. A commission of judges, however, in 1857 found against the Queen, and the jewels had to be returned to Hanover, much to the chagrin of Queen Victoria and her Consort. The Duchess of Cumberland is the mother of the young man who married the German Emperor's daughter.

The office of Grand Vizier of Turkey is becoming as undesirable now as it was 400 years ago under the Sultan Selim, the grim. It was regarded then as a high road to execution, and "mayest thou be Selim's vizier!" was a common phrase for "drop you dead!"

Upon one occasion Selim consulted his viziers as to what should be done concerning his troubles with the Mameluk, ruler of Egypt. His secretary, Mohammed, advised war, and Selim was so pleased that he made him Grand Vizier on the spot. But it required a dose of the bastinado to persuade Mohammed to take on the doubtful honor.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worms, and when put in a bottle of [illegible]. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, [illegible], hypochondria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints [illegible].

J. M. BARRIE'S CLIMB UP FORTUNE'S LADDER

Scottish Novelist's Early Life Told in His First Novel

J. M. Barrie's baronetcy is said to be the first conferred on a man of letters since Sir Walter Scott. Literary and journalistic knights are plentiful enough, but that a writer [illegible] baronetcy is a rare enough event to be sensational. Barrie is the most modest of men, and [illegible] whom one would suspect of having made any effort himself to gain the decoration. Ralph Connor tells how he was once invited to a reception at [illegible], Edinburgh, which was given by the young people of the church in honor of the rising novelist. Coming in late the Canadian met Henry Drummond. "Have you seen Barrie?" asked Drummond. "No, I should like to see him," was the reply. "Well," said Drummond, smiling, "look round till you find a hole, look down in the hole and you will see Barrie." Ralph Connor found Barrie later in a quiet corner, evidently looking for a hole, and somewhat distressed at not finding it.

It was in 1887, when The British Weekly was still a new and struggling journal, that it began to publish some extraordinarily clever stuff written by a man who called himself "Gavin Ogilvy."

Sometimes it would be an appreciation of a Scottish preacher or professor. Another week it would be a column that it would be impossible to classify under any literary category. Anything or nothing would serve as an adequate subject.

To those who followed "Gavin Ogilvy" week by week as he let himself go with all the high spirit of youth, it was good news to learn that he was about to write a serial novel dealing with the journalistic life. "When a Man's Single" was the story. When the memoir of Sir James Matthew Barrie, baronet, comes to be written, the biographer will find ample material in this book. Barrie himself is largely a composite of two of its characters—Rob Angus, the lad who leaves a Thrums sawmill to take a reporter's job on The Silchester Daily Mirror, and afterwards challenges fate as a free-lance in London, and J. Noble Simms, the practiced London journalist, whose experience helps the raw countryman over many of the difficult places.

Silchester stands, of course, for Nottingham where J. M. Barrie found employment for two years on the staff of a daily paper after leaving Edinburgh University. But it is when Rob Angus takes the plunge into London that the main interest of "When a Man's Single" begins. Did Barrie himself, one wonders, know the lonely struggles of the novice—the acceptances and rejections, the ups and downs, the hopes and fears—that he describes so graphically in this story. It is at this point that we make the acquaintance of J. Noble Simms. At once we recognize in him a near kinsman to "Gavin Ogilvy." Before Angus meets Simms he hears an account of him from a fellow-Scotsman, Rorrison. "You see this pipe here? He saw me mending it with sealing wax one day, and two days afterwards there was an article about it in the Scalping Knife. When I went off for my holidays last summer, I asked him to look in here occasionally and water my flowers. He forgot to do it, but wrote an article on 'Rorrison's Flowerpots.' He has had my umbrella in the Scalping Knife. When I play on his piano I put scraps of paper on the notes to guide me, and he made three guineas out of that. Once I challenged him to write an article on [illegible] sticking to the [illegible] of my window, and it was one of the best things he ever did."

"He must read a great deal," remarks Bob.

"He hardly ever opens a book," replies Rorrison; "indeed, when he wants to consult a book of reference, I believe he goes down to Booksellers' Row and does all the reading required at a bookstall. I never saw him reading a newspaper. I don't think he was ever in the British Museum. I calculated once that he must have made at least fifty pounds out of me in the Scalping Knife, and then he went and wrote an article about that."

The presumption that a mass of autobiographical material is contained in this book is confirmed when one finds Sir William Robertson Nicoll saying of Barrie as he first knew him: "You never caught him reading; he did not buy papers, and yet in some mysterious manner he knew everything."

The will of Michael Kiely, who died in Jersey City possessed of considerable personal property and real estate, most of which he left to neighbors in that city, is being contested by Mr. James Kiely, of Bandon, Ireland, who claims relationship.

Mirrors at Road Crossings

Mirrors at road crossings for the use of warning automobiles are commencing to be used in England, and the results are very good. They are put in places where the crossings are specially dangerous, and the use of large mirrors allows the driver to see the reflection of cars which are coming in other directions. Another use for mirrors is upon heavy-power wagons, where the driver cannot hear the signals of automobiles back of him so as to have him take the right-hand side of the road to allow them to pass, for the noise of the power wagon often prevents the horn from being heard.

Railway But no Roads

The medical arrangements required by the Insurance Act have drawn attention to the inaccessibility of many Scottish villages. To the Roxburghshire railway colony of Riccarton a special interest attaches. No roads lead to this well known junction; and a special train, which starts at 10.15 a.m. conveys worshippers to [illegible] Sunday morning. Free [illegible] supplied to railway employes and their families. To meet the medical requirements of the community, the railway directors permit Hawick doctors to travel to Riccarton on engines or in guards' vans and first class compartments, as they may find most convenient. Among other privileges peculiar to the district, goods are carried to the grocery store at half the usual rates.

BIG FEES PAID TO PATTI

Famous Vocalist Was First Singer to Insure Her Voice

From time to time we hear of fancy fees being paid to famous singers, but no singer has earned the money that was paid to Patti when in her prime. During one year alone she made the huge sum of $350,000. At one time it was a common experience for her to make five thousand dollars inside two or three hours.

In 1870 she was paid $48,000 for sixteen appearances at Covent Garden and when she went on her American tour she received as much as $6,000 a night at New Orleans. Curiously enough no opera star has been paid such a big fee as Patti not to sing. During one season at Covent Garden in addition to the $400 she received at each performance, she was paid a retainer of $60,000 not to sing elsewhere during the particular period. Madame Patti originated the practice of insuring the voice, and she insured hers for $40,000 against total loss of voice, or $5,000 a performance. On only two occasions did she draw the latter sum owing to her inability to appear as a result of indisposition.

The most popular song in her repertoire was "Home, Sweet Home," which she rendered as no singer has ever done. With regard to this song she related an incident concerning a chef she engaged. One afternoon when he could not be found Madame Patti happened to go into the large concert hall, which she had built at her palatial residence in Wales. "There I found him," she stated, "sitting in white cap and apron before the grand piano, doing his very best to play 'Home, Sweet Home!' His confusion and apologies were too much for me and instead of the indignant speech which I felt on the tip of my tongue, I had to smile, and I had a piano sent to his room, so that while at Craig-y-Nos he might not lack an opportunity for future practice."

Cleaning Carved Furniture

To clean deeply carved furniture, use a soft sponge, squeeze as dry as possible out of tepid water, to which a little turpentine has been added, and go over the carving. It will take up all dust. Rub dry with a soft cloth, and you will be delighted with the result.

Housekeeping Pointers

Eau de cologne will remove candle grease.

Use the ironing fire for preparing stocks for soups or baking puddings.

To take machine oil out of white materials dip the spot into cold water while it is fresh.

Never allow a cooking utensil to stand and dry it before washing. Put cold water in it immediately.

To make an excellent dressing for linoleum take equal parts of linseed oil and vinegar and mix them thoroughly together.

Ices and ice cream will freeze more quickly if a dipper of water is poured over the ice and salt just before the turning process begins.

To renew the lustre of morocco, or any other leather, apply the white of an egg with a sponge.

Use a clothespin to screw a small hook into hard wood. It will make it much easier than if the fingers are used.

Window blinds which have become dull and dusty with age may be considerably freshened by means of a coating of linseed oil. An old brush may be used with which to apply it, the blind being first scoured with soapsuds and then dried before the oil is laid on.

Unused silver will keep bright if laid away in a box of flour.

Varnished wall paper should be washed with a whitewash brush and warm soapy lather. Squeeze the brush lightly after it has been dipped in the lather, and work from the ceiling downward, finishing one patch all the way down before starting upon the next.

Judge Hayes Sworn In.

Guelph, April 22.—Messrs. L. M. Hayes, K.C., of Peterborough, and Anson Spotton, of Harriston, are now senior judge and junior judge, respectively of the County of Wellington. They took the necessary oath of office before Judge Chadwick.

Mr. Burnham Objects.

Ottawa, April 22.—Vigorous objections have been taken by J. H. Burnham, M.P., to the Edwards Lumber Co Bill, now before the House. The Bill is most injurious to Hydro Electric System. Mr. Burnham is being sustained in his position by the Hydro Commission.

Made in Germany.

During the past week a big pile of open wicker crates have been piled in the alleyway between the Snowden House and Simcoe street. These crates, made of hardwood sticks come from Germany and inclose, packed in straw, porcelain ware for the local Quaker Oats Co. These packages were purchased by Jones' livery, who used the straw for bedding and the wood for fuel.

Lindsay Turf Club.

Lindsay Post: As was announced in Saturday's issue of the Post, the members of the Lindsay Driving Club met on Saturday afternoon, when Mr. John Carew was appointed president, Mr. Jas. B. Begg, Sec.-treas., and Mr M. J. Ashmore, district representative The directors were appointed as follows: Messrs. Joe. Hickson, (Manvers), B. L. McLean and Jno. A. Williamson.

This City One Degree Worse

At the last council session at Lindsay, Constable Short reported that the street lights were turned out at a very early hour in the morning. He did not know how they were burning —whether on solar or standard time. They were turned out, however, at 4.30 o'clock. The difference between Lindsay and Peterborough is that we pay for Hydro lamps and never attempt to light many of them.

Madoc Man Beaten Up.

Madoc, Ont., April 22.—Lying covered with blood and in an unconscious condition, George Knight a farmer from Springbrook, about 15 miles west of Madoc, was found in a lonely shed. He said that he was accosted by three men and at the point of a revolver forced to accompany them in a buggy. He was driven into a shed and beaten into unconsciousness. He had a roll of money, but the robbers overlooked it, and took but one dollar.

A Lindsay Bigamy Case.

Lindsay Warder: A bigamist from Eldon appeared this morning before County Magistrate F. D. Moore, K. C., to answer to the crime of taking to himself another woman while the first still lived. Magistrate Moore, after informing the prisoner that he was charged with being a bigamist, read the bond which was framed to bind father and son in two sureties of $500 each to appear in Lindsay before the County Magistrate on the 24th day of April.

Fish of One, Flesh of Another.

Now Mr. Chester Taylor asks permission to erect a residence with a nine inch wall. As Mr. Taylor is not an Alderman he may have his own trouble. It will be remembered that a taxpayer on Water street, in front of Victoria Park, a few years ago, asked permission to rebuild the rear portion of his residence with a nine inch wall, and was refused. Within a block of the turned down man, a local Alderman was allowed to build his complete house with a nine inch wall. The Alderman's house was also within the fire limits. If you don't believe this, ask ex-Ald. Graham.

Canada's Biggest Cricket Score.

Yesterday morning a Times representative was talking over revival of in Peterborough, to Mr. Wm. Hartley the veteran cricketer, of Aylmer St. Mr. Hartley showed our scribe an old cricket in Peterboro, Wm. Hartley, ago, when he made the biggest cricket batting score ever made in Canada. The game was played at Port Hope. For the local team, the late Mr. John Hammond, father of Dr. Hammond, the late Mr. Rackham father of Mr. Gerald Rackham, Mr. R. B. Rogers, D.L.S., Mr. Thomas Rutherford, Mr. Jas. Montgomery of this city, Messrs. Max, Myles and William Hamilton, the late Mr. W. A. Stratton helped Peterborough to victory. In this match Mr. Hartley scored 168 runs and not out. The combined Peterborough players, augmented by two T.C.S. boys who played for Peterborough as two of the local team missed the train, made 203 runs, winning by 28 runs.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbes has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret in healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr of eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day — over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years— he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

FORMER BABY TALK BREAKS THE PAST SILENCE OF YEARS

Spo-Pe Indian Of Mystery Led To Converse by a Woman.

Washington, April 22.—Spo-Pe, the Indian man of mystery, an inmate of the criminal division of the Government Hospital for the Insane at Washington, has broken a silence of more than thirty-two years.

Spo-Pe's self-imposed disuse of his talking apparatus has continued ever since the first day of his incarceration at Fort Wayne, near Detroit in 1882. Adjudged of unsound mind at the fort, he was sent to the Government Hospital in 1882. His silence was accepted by the army examiners as a convincing symptom of melancholia.

The crime of which Spo-Pe was originally imprisoned was the murder of a fur trader, an act of reprisal against the white race for the killing of his mother in one of the hostile interchanges between the United States troops and the Blackfoot Indians in 1879.

PREVIOUS ATTEMPTS FAILED.

It remained for Mrs. Malcolm Clark, one of a party of members of the Blackfoot tribe, herself and a half breed, to reawaken Spo-Pe's slumbering vocal organs.

Times without number during his incarceration efforts have been made to persuade Spo-Pe to talk. Not a syllable, not even a grunt, has the aged warrior volunteered.

But when Mr, and Mrs. Clark, in company with James Perrin and Charles W. Buck, paid a visit to the hospital this week they explained to the superintendent that they had understood that there was an Indian among the inmates.

Mrs. Clark had Spo-Pe pointed out to her. With her husband she addressed him in the stilted, but eloquent Indian tongue. Spo-Pe gave no indication that he understood. Then Mrs. Clark said to her friends, "Step back let me whisper to him."

TOLD HER HIS NAME.

She sat down beside the solemn red man and began a musical form of baby talk, "the language of little people" as the Indians call it. She crooned and crooned to the grey headed man until finally the stolid heart seemed to melt.

"What is your name?" she said, still in the infant dialect.

"Spo-Pe," came from the lips of the stoic. And for the first time since he entered the hospital Spo-Pe had broken his silence.

Finding that his tongue would really perform its office Spo-Pe's first question was:

"Where is Three Bears?"

Three Bears was a brother of the Indian, who had died in 1899.

Since the breaking of the thirty-two year silence Spo-Pe has expressed a willingness to discourse, but as the Blackfoot language is not universally known in the Government hospital he finds considerable difficulty in obtaining companionship.

Despite his solemn, stolid, silent mien Spo-Pe had endeared himself to the physicians and nurses at the hospital. He has always been tractable and has done what he has been told to do without objection or rebellion.

GROOM IS 81, BRIDE ONLY 78

A Romance (?) of Old Age Is Pulled Off at Clyde by Marriage of Couple Long Past Allotted Age Of Man.

Clyde, N.Y., April 22.— The home of William Williams, in Waterloo St., on the south side of the river, this village, 78 years old. The ceremony wedding this afternoon, when Allen Dunn, of Marion, 81 years old, was married to Mrs. Sarah Carver, of this village, 78 years old. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. S. Pratt, pastor of the Clyde Methodist Episcopal Church, the ring service being used. The bride was attended by Mrs. Daniel Gibson, 78 years old, while her husband, Daniel Gibson, 88 years old, was best man. Those who witnessed the ceremony were relatives of the bride.

The advanced age of the contracting parties added a touch of romance to the occasion. Both the groom and the best man were soldiers in the Civil war. The bride has lived in Clyde for some time, and has many friends here. After the ceremony all sat down to a wedding dinner. Those present from out of town were Miss Grace Williams, of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Carver of Syracuse, and Mr. Cooper, of Lyons.

STEP FATHER STABS MOTHER, GIRL CHASES

Little Elma Miller Happy When Told Her Mother Will Not Die.

New Orleans, April 22.—Little 10-year-old Elma Millet, center of the trouble which led her stepfather, Mr. Frank Memonie, to stab her mother in the right side of the neck Wednesday evening, wept from joy Thursday in her parents' home, 737 Mandeville street, when informed that her mother's injury was not serious and she would soon be back home with her. Memonie, whom the little girl followed from the house after the cutting in a futile effort to catch him, thus far has eluded the police.

Both the child's brother, Paul, aged 12, and her sister, Lillian, aged 11, have tried to console the little girl since her mother was carried to the Charity Hospital, but she has cried continuously for her protector.

"I never want to live with that man again," said the mother Thursday "I am afraid of him now since, I found out what he would do. Since our marriage he has continually quarrelled with me about my children. I am their mother and will let no one hurt them. My daughter works and also my son, but he has been out of employment lately. This can't be helped. They contribute to their support, and my husband has no right quarrelling about their presence in the house."

When his wife told him that she no longer wished to be near him, he is said to have pulled out a long bladed dirk and plunged it into her throat.

Memonie has been working on the banana wharf. Upon quarrelling with his wife Monday he went to the home of his mother, Mrs. J. Lamaze, St. Phillip and Dauphine streets, to live. The police have been unable to find where he went after stabbing his wife.

ate reports, however, from Con-ar Agent Carothers indicate grow- turbulence and the development anti-American feeling in the north Mexico and particularly in the ghborhood of Chihuahua, where ny Americans have elected to re-in in charge of their own business erests and in disregard of preced- warnings from the U.S. Consular ers, relying upon the supposed d will of the Constitutionalists.

A danger spot has developed rapid- at Fort Bliss, where, owing to the ersion of a large proportion of the erican garrison to other border ts, the 5,000 Mexican internees, posed of the federal soldiers and ir wives who fled from Ojinaga o months ago, are within a barbed e enclosure, insufficiently guarded. The status of these internes is like- to be changed very soon to that prisoners of war, and it is the in-tion of the War Department to e them to a point sufficiently dis-t from the border to ensure their e keeping, as soon as the necessary ds are forthcoming.

Plans of campaign are being ar-ged on the lines of the immedi-e establishment of a sufficient pro-tion along the entire northern border States. Following that will develop the details of the original plan of a campaign against Mexico City by land via the railroad lines from El Paso, south through Chihuahua, which has been so often traversed by the contending Mexican factions within the last three years.

This is dependent upon a decision by the Administration that a state of actual war exists which is supposed to be forecast by the re-establishment of the embargo on the exportation of arms across the line into Mexico.

LIBERALS FRAME OWN AMENDMENT

After Weeks of Quarrelling and Quibbling They Get Together in Print

Ottawa, April 23.—The Liberals have at last screwed their courage to the sticking point. Official announcement was made this morning that the Liberals had finally decided to move an amendment to the budget, and that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would make the motion. The text of the amendment was not made public, but it was stated that the amendment is very short.

Take Vote Late To-day.

The vote will likely be very late to-day. Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, will wind up the debate for the Conservatives and his speech is looked forward to with more than ordinary interest. The only other speakers of the day will be Dr. Clark, of Red Deer, Mr. H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver, who will reply to the Apostle of Free Trade, and Mr. Geo. Boivin, who closes for the Liberals.

ny Prison Reforms Advocated in Report by Royal Commission

Ottawa, April 23.—Hon. C. J. Do-rty, Minister of Justice, issued yes-day the report of the Royal Com-ssion appointed by the Government t year to investigate certain char-s of a serious character relating to e administration of Kingston Peni-tiary, and to make recommenda-ons for the care of criminals.

The Commission found that in cer-n of its departments conditions in e Kingston Penitentiary were de-rable, were "a twentieth century production of the unceasing toil of e galley slave," and a "crime a-inst humanity." The report deals a comprehensive manner with the whole question of prison economy, and nearly a score of recommendations are made for more humane and Christian treatment of prisoners.

Appoint Commission.

The following are among the recommendations of the Commission:

That control of the penitentiary be placed in the hands of a permanent commission of three members.

That under such commission the warden of each prison be given full authority to employ and dismiss keepers, guards, etc., in addition to the powers he now enjoys.

That a Parole Board of not less than three members be appointed for each penitentiary, to sit once a month and to hear and consider applications for parole, and make recommendations on the same to the Minister of Justice.

That an arrangement be entered into with the Provinces of the Dominion to take over the custody of first offenders and prisoners under 26 years of age.

DESPONDENT MAN CUT HIS THROAT

Is Now in Hospital Where His Condition is Regarded as Serious.

Toronto, April 23.—Presumably despondent because he could not obtain employment and owed several weeks board, Edward Clark, aged 23 years attempted to commit suicide this morning by cutting his throat with a razor in his room at 444 Parliament street. He is in the general hospital where his condition is regared as very serious.

Mr. J. A. Hobson the landlord, heard a choking sound in Clark's room and going in to investigate found the young man standing in front of a mirror, in the act of drawing the razor across his throat. Mr. Hubson was too late to stop Clark from cutting himself, although he stopped him from receating the performance.

"Let me be I want to die" groaned Clark, when the landlord took away the razor. Mr. Hubson called to his wife to telephone for the police ambulance, while he attempted to stem the flow of blood from the gash which was four inches in length

Clark's mother lives at Markham and several brothers and sisters reside in various parts of Toronto. He is single.

L. M. Haynes, K.C. of Peterboro, and Anson Spitton, of Harriston, were sworn in at Guelph as senior and junior judges ol Wellington county.

CRITICISM OF LATEST WHITE PAPER MILITARY CHIEF CONTROL POLICE

London, April 23.—Discussing the white paper on Ulster, The Daily Graphic remarks that a new fact of considerable importance is revealed. It is the confession that the police of Belfast had received instructions to take orders from the general officer in command of troops.

"This," says The Graphic, "is a significant reversal of common law, that the civilian and not the military authorities are responsible for the maintenance of peace.

Does Not Explain Much.

"The paper does not disclose verbal instructions given Sir Arthur Paget, by Col. Seely, nor does it explain how it happened that a battle squadron was ordered to Irish waters by Mr. Churchill, and the orders countermanded by Mr. Asquith. The Daily News remarks that no responsible person suggested that the calling out of the militia during a railway strike was a plot for the suppression of Trade unionism.

Merely Precautionary?

"Clearly, no one is entitled to suggest that to send troops to Ulster in answer to threats, such as those which the Orange leaders have been reiterating, was anything in view of the imminence of the passing of Home Rule, but an ordinary precautionary measure such as any Government with due sense of its responsibility for the maintenance of order, was bound sooner or later to take."

Rather More Provocative.

The Daily Mail says the white paper shows that Gen. Paget was directed to take measures which the Cabinet committee described as precautionary, but which he himself regarded as provocative of an effusion of blood.

Only From Ignorance.

"General Paget's judgment was right and the Ministers were wrong. Whether they masked their real intentions after the manner of politicians, or whether they sincerely believed their plans could be carried without bloodshed, only they know. But if, the latter, it would only have been from their complete ignorance of Ulster and the feelings of Ulstermen."

Toronto, April 23.—Allan Newsome pleaded not guilty to a charge of criminal negligence, in the police court to-day and elected to be tried by a jury He was allowed out on $2,000 bail. Newsome was driving a horse and waggon, which knocked William Jones off his bicycle at the corner of King and Jarvis street, about two weeks ago. Jones is still in the Hospital in a serious condition.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY PROFESSORS THREATENED TO QUIT

Major Leonard's Desire to Have Three Military Members on the Board is Cause.

Kingston, April 23. It is reported that Major R. W. Leonard will not make any further concessions in regard to his military training offer to Queen's University. He insists upon the board containing three members, three military and three academic.

Queen's had been holding out for a majority of academic members on the board. It is said that Major Leonard wants to have some control of the scheme for two or three years, in order to get it on a good basis. Atthe meeting of the university trustees on the 29th, it is expected that Major Leonard's offer will be accepted Two or three of the professors at the university became so hot over the military proposition that they threatened to resign if itwere accepted.

FEDERALS RETREAT SOUTH OF BORDER

Eagle Pass Texas. April 23.—After destroying the main fortifications at Piedras Negras, the Federal garrison yesterday retreated southward burning the railroad bridges behind them. General Gaurjardo, the Federal commander, is withdrawing to Saltillo, where he will join the forces under General Joquin Maas.

Piedras Negras during the night was almost deserted and without police or fire protection. Most of the inhabitants have crossed to the American side and Egal Pass is crowded with refugees. Preparations are being made to establish a camp to care for them.

BURNS $220 TO HIDE HIS ROBBERY

Thought Numbers on the Bills Might Be Clues.

New Orleans, April 23.—Isaac Davis, a negro, employed as elevator tender by the Singer Sewing Machine Company, 1011 Canal Street, burned $220 in currency which he stole from his employers Saturday afternoon, in an effort to remain out of jail. When arrested Monday by Assistant Chief of Detectives Dan Mouney he confessed having burned the currency and said he spent $40 in coin which he took at the same time. A charge of grand larceny was registered against.

The negro remained in the building occupied by the machine company Saturday until all other employes had gone. He then took the key to the safe from a drawer and opened the safe, taking all the money. Thinking the currency numbered and easily detected, he set it afire and kept the coin. The confession was made to Mr. Mouney and an Item reporter.

Anti-American Feeling Grows on the Border With Spirit of Lawlessness Rampant--The 5,000 Mexican Refugees on American Side, Insufficiently Guarded, to be Converted Into Prisoners of War--Big Land Campaign Neccessary to Subdue Whole Republic

Washington, April 23.—After issuing a statement declaring the intention of the United States to enforce reparation, "when-ever and wherever the dignity of the United States is flouted." President Wilson bent all the energies of the Administration to-day to the planning of operations in Mexico. The President's statement issued after a Cabinet conference, in reply to the message received from the Constitutionalist Chief, Carranza declared that "we are now dealing only with those whom Huerta commands and those who come to his support."

From dawn to-day the wearied chiefs of the War and Navy Departments, Secretary of State Bryan and other Cabinet officials, hurried from conference to conference. At the White House Cabinet officials, with Councellor Robert Lansing, of the State Department, aided the President in formulating his reply to Carranza.

Army Chiefs Confer

At the War Department Secretary Garrison, General Wotherspoon, Chief of Staff, Major General Leonard Wood who has been designated to command the army in its Mexican operations, and General E. W. Weaver, chief of the coast artillery, held several conferences discussing operations. Orders from the War Department directed Fort Sam Houston to stop all importations of arms directed to the Huerta forces across the border in Piedras Negras. This led to a report that the embargo on arms had been re-established at the northern border against both Federalists and constitutionalists. Some officials said it was very probable that no arms would be allowed to cross the border, although the department hesitates to issue a blanket order until the exact attitude of the constitutionalists towards the United States can be demonstrated.

ULSTER DEBATE NEXT TUESDAY

Prime Minister and Mr. Church ill in Turn Stand Fire of Questions

London, April 23.—The Prime Minister had to stand up against another discharge of questions from the benches opposite to-day. Members trooped in eagerly to witness the exchange. The atmosphere was as charged with electricity as has been the case every question time this week.

Mr. Fred Hall opened fire.

"Will the Prime Minister undertake," he asked, "that no further operations to overcome Ulster shall be made without affording Parliament an opportunity of expressing an opinion on the use of the army and navy for such purposes?"

"I am afraid I can add nothing to what I have already said," was the Premier's reply, drawing irate growls from the Opposition.

Direct Fire at Churchill.

Mr. Winston Churchill next received the enemy's fire when in reply to a question by Captain Fabre, he said no steps had been taken to ascertain the feelings of the lower deck regarding serving in Ulster.

"Has the right hon. gentleman any more private telegrams?" sarcastically asked Sir Kinlock Cooke.

CONSPIRATORS SENT TO PRISON

Bird Gets Two Years at Kingston and Campbell 90 Days in Jail.

Toronto, April 23.—"I have only been here two months," pleaded Geo. Bird in the police court to-day as he broke into tears when Magistrate Denison sentenced him to two years in the Penitentiary.

Bird, who is a young Englishman, pleaded guilty to conspiring with William Campbell, a room-mate, to steal $3,520 from Burns & Sheppard, horse dealers, by whom Bird was employed. He said the money had been stolen from him, but he had mailed it to Campbell, and it was recovered at the post office.

Campbell was sentenced to 90 days in jail. "He did not occupy a position of trust," explained his Worship.

SIXTY-FIVE DEATHS REPORTED FROM COLORADO STRIKE ZONE

Forty-five Shot on Both Sides in Battle Between Strikers and State Troops. Score Die in Mine

Trinidad, Colo., April 23.—Virtual guerilla warfare between striking coal miners on one side, and members of the State Militia on the other, which has rolled up a heavy toll of death and an enormous property loss in the Trinidad district of the Colorado coal fields, since last Monday, brought about a situation which seemed to-day to promise further loss of life.

With the information that the entire quota of State troops was on the way to relieve the beleaguered troopers, now fighting against more than 1,000 determined men who are struggling for what they declare is a principle, came also the information that reinforcements has been received by the striking miners.

Urgent Call For Help.

"If you have any help you can send, rush to Rous immediately. The strikers have big bunch and are coming this way." This message was received at the Trinidad offices of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co. early to-day from Supt. Deek.

Another large body of armed men still is besieging the wrecked mining camp of the Southwestern Fuel Co. at Empire, according to a telphone from H. G. King early to-day just before the wires went down.

These in Mine Called Dead.

The fate of J. W. Siple, President of the company, who, with twenty to thirty others, including several women and children, were reported entombed in the mine stope, was unknown. A report from Aguilar to Major Hamrock, stated that the entombed were dead as the air had been cut off since yesterday. There was desultory firing this forenoon at Ludlow.

SALT HAS ITS USE IN EVERY ROOM

In a Hundred Ways It is Valuable Other Than For Culinary Purposes

Salt is a universal household remedy. For instance, you may economise and use salt instead of tooth powder and have whiter and better preserved teeth than if you used the "very best" dentifrice. Try it and see what a nice, clean taste it leaves in the mouth.

Salt baths are most invigorating. Delicate women often suffer from colds, sometimes with serious results. These may be avoided if the throat, chest and arms are vigorously rubbed with a coarse towel wrung out of strong brine. The rubbing must be so vigorous that the skin is in a perfect glow.

Some women prefer the dry salt towels; these are prepared by letting towels lie in a strong salt solution until thoroughly saturated and then drying them. Several of these may be prepared at a time, which will greatly add to one's convenience if boarding or traveling. Sea-salt is better for these, but, if not easily procured, use rock salt—or, none other being at hand, common coarse salt will answer admirably.

A lotion that should find a place on every toilet table is a bottle of salt and water, a tablespoonful of salt to a quart of boiled water. This is most useful for bathing weak and inflamed eyes, for gargling the throat night and morning and for cleansing the mouth after being out in the dust and dirt. If used faithfully, at the first sign of an approaching cold, it will nearly always break it up. Many doctors advise the use of the nasal douch with this solution warmed.

The housewife, more than any other, should never "forget to remember" the use of salt. All green vegetables are the better for being cleaned in salted water; cereals should be boiled with a pinch of salt; roast meats are basted with salted water.

If a spoonful of salt is spread upon freshly spilled wine, the linen will show no stain when laundered.

Salt will set all light-colored, delicate fabrics if they are dipped into brine; it will also set the color of black stockings.

Salt, moistened with lemon juice, will remove iron rust, if laid in the sun or held over the steam of a boiling kettle. If one application does not suffice keep on until the stain disappears.

FRENCH BUGLER HERO

Taken Prisoner He Blew the Charge Which Led to an Arab Rout

It has been ascertained that the oldest member of the French Legion of Honor is a bugler named Rolland, who lives at Lacalm, a village in the mountains of Aveyron, at an altitude of more than 3,000 feet.

He received his decoration in August, 1846, for heroic conduct in Africa during the skirmish of Sidi Brahim. The French soldiers had exhausted their ammunition, and with his last shot he fired his ramrod, which he had placed in the barrel of his musket, at the advancing Arabs. He stood his ground, and was run down by the Arab horsemen, who took him, wounded and a prisoner, to their leader, the Emir Abd-el-Kader.

The Emir was squatting on a rich carpet under an olive tree. On seeing the prisoner with his bugle he pointed to the small cluster of French troops that were opposing the Arabs, and he asked him if he knew the tune that the Christians blew to order a cessation of the combat. The bugler said that it was the "Retraite."

"Then take your bugle," said the Emir, "and blow the retreat."

Rolland pretended to obey, but, instead of the retreat, he blew the charge with all his might, and the Arab camp was carried. Considering the age of Rolland, who is now ninety-four, it has been proposed to promote him from the rank of Knight to that of Officer of the Legion.

Insect Pets

A certain well known actress makes pets of huge spiders, and delights in feeding them, attending to their comfort, and generally mothering them and making them as happy as spiders can ever hope to be.

A French comtesse, who is well known for her beauty and her eccentricities, wore as a neck ornament a beautiful scarabaeus beetle. It was tethered too a ring by a very slender gold chain, which allowed the insect to run about on the lady's shoulder. As that shoulder was always bare when the lady wore her beetle, it may be taken for granted that the comtess had lost—if ever she had it—the feminine horror of anything creepy-crawly.

SKELETON FACTORY

One in Paris Has Almost Monopoly of Strange Trade

aking skeletons for a living does seem to be a business that would very much, and yet there are a ber of places where skeletons are le. In making skeletons it does mean that they are made artificy by some composition resembling , but that they are "made" by reving flesh and ligaments, drying the es, whitening them and assembling m, fastening them together with der wires in place of the ligants, which, of course, will not ren solid like bone, but disintegrate. these places skeletons of almost rything, from a common tadpole human being, are made. There places where artificial skeletons made for various purposes, such theatrical productions and the like, this is done along with other k where all sorts of things, from tation ivory paper cutters to mas pillars, are made.

The real skeleton factory deals in hing except the genuine skeletons, they not only sell these and fill ers for them to all sorts of medi men and institutions and schools, they are also willing to "rent m" for any period.

The biggest share of the skeleton is carried on in France, the bigt "factory" being located in Paris. re there is a complete equipment stock for furnishing skeletons of rything, even extinct animals, letons of fishes and men or elents and rabbits and everything to that has enough of a skeleton to together. So great is the business this place that it has branches in don and Berlin, and it gets out al catalogues, and sends them dcast, showing lists and cuts of r choice lots of skeletons.

Most of the human bones employed the French manufacture belonged life, to criminals or to unknown sons whose bodies were unclaimed r death in hospitals or almshouses. Most being at hand in the dissecting room the remains were removed to the factory.

The proprietor of this factory practically monopolizes this industry. The preparation of the skeletons takes many months from first to last, and is a very expensive process. There must be a thorough chemical treatment of the bones in the first place, to insure their hanging together and remaining in an unaltered state.

The preparation of skeletons is really far more important than one would think, as it provides thousands of medical students and others with the means of making a proper study of the construction of the human frame, and helps in the constant work of medical and surgical advance.

WHEN LACE IS DIRTY

Some Hints as to Washing, Stiffening and Pressing it

Every woman knows the fascination of good lace, and the more delicate and gossamerlike that morsel of fragility may be the more admiration it receives. But real lace or very fine good lace which may not be real requires great care.

A jar of soapy water—rain water, if possible—is prepared, and in this the lace should be steeped. The jar is vigorously shaken up and down until the lace is clean. Careful rinsing to remove any soap follows and next must come the stiffening process. Starch is unthought of. The substitute is gum-water. A quarter of a pound of gum arabic, melted in one quart of boiling water and strained makes gum-water, and the average proportion used is a tablespoonful to a gill of water.

With white lace a little blue should be added to the gum-water. Dip twice to enable it to stiffen. If gum-water is not to hand, rice-water or sugar-water may be used. For tinting lace that has lost its color through washing, an infusion of tea, coffee, or hay mixed with the gum-water may be used.

After the washing and stiffening follows the pressing. A glass bottle covered with flannel is a good, old-fashioned method. The lace is wound carefully round and round the bottle and left to dry. When dry it appears to have been ironed. Elaborate patterns may be pinned carefully on a piece of flannel, wrong side up, and a heated iron used carefully over every part.

The pinning out is quite a business. The selvedge edge must be placed near the edge of the board and the pins must lie parallel with the edge of the lace. If there are points they must be pinned separately and to the right length.

A lace collar is pinned out to dry with pins around the neckband and in every point. The ironing process starts with the centre and ends with the points.

A Blind Bowler

August Steneck, a blind youth, made a score of 174 in a bowling tournament at New York. Steneck and eight other sightless persons played 198 games in the tournament scoring an average of above 100 each. Rarely did the ball go down the gutter. When pins were left standing after the first ball was sent down the alleys, the bowlers were aided by shouted directions as to the location of the remaining pins.

CHILDREN'S SLEEP

Symptoms of Sickness Shown in the Manner of Resting

Much information as to the health of a child may be gained by careful watching of its attitude, movements and expression during sleep. The child who sleeps best with the mouth wide open and the head thrown back is most likely suffering from enlarged tonsils, which impede its breathing; if it can only sleep when the bedclothes have all been kicked off, rickets should be watched for; while lung or heart affections are shown at an early stage by the tendency to sleep high up on the pillow, so that the head and shoulders are raised. In cases of pain in any part of the head it will be found to be carried to the affected spot during sleep, so that breathing, headache, or earache may be diagnosed, while a curious sign of irritation in the stomach or bowels is the constant rubbing of the nose. Restless sleep, broken and uneasy, is a common symptom of serious illness, but any extreme torpor and drowsiness should also be suspected, as these frequently precede feverish ailments, such as scarlatina and measles. Convulsive attacks are nearly always preceded by the tight clasping of the hands, with the thumbs folded into the palms, and the stiffening or curling up of the toes.

SIMPLE TEA-TESTING

Dr. Alberta Read Did Away With Elaborate Methods

Dr. E. Alberta Read, a graduate of Cornell, and who is the possessor of four degrees, is official tea-tester at the bureau of chemistry in Washington. Laboratories, containing delicate instruments and acids for testing, to say nothing of the salaries of the chemists, used to be maintained to detect adulteration. Suddenly somebody with the voice of authority waked to the fact that these antiquated methods were too cumbersome and the bureau of chemistry was asked to find a short cut to tea-testing.

Dr. Read was the first to find it, and her only tools were such as can be found in any kitchen. "The tea test is quite simple," she said. "It consists of a fine sieve and the tea sifted through it. Then with a spatula or knife blade the particles are pressed on to a piece of white paper and the foreign matter is easily discoverable with the naked eye."

She took down a portfolio from one of the cabinets. "These are the traces of tea adulteration," she said, pointing to telltale blue spots. "It took me several weeks to work this out," she remarked, "but the process has the advantage of being cheap, easily manipulated and quickly done."

Cream For Puddings

When cream is only slightly sour it may be made delicious to serve with puddings, etc., in the following way: Put it into a basin with the juice of a lemon and a teaspoonful of sugar, and whip until quite stiff. This treatment makes it excellent, and increases the quantity at the same time.

Not the Tragedy She Thought It Was.

Things are not always what they seem, as a wealthy old lady recently discovered in Paris. While passing along the Rue Cardinal Lemoine she saw a crowd gathered round an omnibus. Elbowing her way through to the front, she was horrified to see two legs protruding from between the wheels of the vehicle. The rest of the dreadful story was too obvious. With a piercing scream the lady fell fainting into the arms of some of the other spectators. The commotion caused by madame's fainting fit took the interest of the crowd away from the man beneath the bus, who, in his turn, dropped his spanner and crawled out to see what the counter-attraction was. When the old lady recovered she would not believe that what she had seen was only the driver tightening a nut under the omnibus. "They are hiding the truth from me," she muttered as she continued her walk.

A GREAT FORTRESS

On a Ridge of Hills 800 Feet Above the Sea

The Tchataldja lines, the last line of defences before Constantinople with the exception of its ancient Byzantine walls, are about 20 miles distant from Constantinople. Here the peninsula on which Constantinople stands is narrowed to a width of only 16 miles by a deep inlet of the Sea of Marmora on the south, and the fresh water of Lake of Derkas on the north. A series of works was begun here in 1829, when a Russian army threatened Constantinople, and was completed in 1877, when the Russians again menaced the capital. They run across the isthmus, and as both flanks rest on the sea they cannot be turned. The forts are built on a ridge of hills some 800 feet above sea level, with a small stream running across their entire front. The garrison in times of peace is about 2,400.

A Miser's Revenge

An old miser, who died in Wales, fell out with his relatives over a trifle several years ago, and he thereupon changed nearly all his money into bank-notes. Each bank-note he tore into two, burning one portion and retaining the other. When his relatives came to examine his effects after his death they found, to their chagrin, valueless halves of the bank-notes and a letter which contained the paragraph:

"All my money I leave to my dear relatives to be equally divided between them. I am sure they will not quarrel about it."

The miser had destroyed the halves of the bank-notes bearing the numbers.

Headgear of Old

In ancient days in England women wore gigantic head-dresses, all of which completely hid their hair, excepting in their own homes, when the elaborate coiffur beneath was revealed. But with the Norman conquest came in the fashion of wearing two long braids. And in the time of Richard II. the mysteries of the head-dress were further revealed and gold and silver wire nets for containing the hair were shown. These had long been used but hidden from view. During the same period were worn the jewelled cauls, a style so ancient as to have been mentioned in the Bible. So costly was millinery in some of these early forms that head-dresses were often mentioned in wills as special bequests—rather a hard state of affairs to imagine in this day of fleeting fashions!

DAY-TIME FROCKS ARE OF TWO TYPES DRAPED AND PLAIN

Straight-lined frocks with perfectly plain skirts, or having a circular tunic or two about the hips are quite as modish as the draped models. Although the skirt shows a certain tendency to become a trifle wider at the bottom, it is still scant. Blouses show variations of the drop and kimono shoulder and of the vest; this vest offers the most plausible way of introducing as a bit of contrast a figured silk or tapestry. On many of the summer frocks the vest, collar and often the cuffs are of white organdy or sheer white voile.

No. 8195 is a rather dressy frock of dove-gray eponge, with a gathered tucker of net; girdle, collar and cuffs of purple taffetas. The bodice is a kimono with a draped elbow sleeve, gathered vest and Medici collar that may be wired high in the back if desired; the skirt is a two-gored model with a double tunic. This dress may be copied in size 36, with 4½ yards of 42-inch eponge.

A draped Japanese collar, extending into a vest, adds an unusual touch to the frock of champagne voile piped with black, shown in No. 8189. The vest and collar are of white voile and the girdle is black taffeta. 4½ yards of 36-inch material are required to make this dress in size 36.

THE SUMMER FROCK FORBIDS THE LEAST ATOM OF UNNECESSARY WEIGHT

This perhaps is one of the most admirable features of the new summer outfit; coats are short and light of weight, skirts are long with the exception of walking skirts, which may be as much as six inches from the ground with propriety, and blouses are being fashioned of the sheerest possible fabrics. Lace is trying hard to break into vogue; many of the French houses display quantities of it on their models and it is predicted that with the fancy for flouncings, which seems to be growing, lace will again be very popular. At the moment shadow laces are favored for blouses combined with chiffon and in the case of afternoon and evening frocks it is used for the bodice, combined with the material of the frock or a chiffon cloth that matches perfectly.

The afternoon gown of satin shown in No. 8205, illustrates well the effectiveness of the lace bodice; it is cut kimono, has a full-length sleeve with a gathered cuff. To copy this design in size 36, 5¾ yards of 36-inch material is needed. Charmeuse, which is used in this instance, is still a leader among silks; it averages 38 to 40 inches in width and is priced from $2.00 a yard and up. Maize-colored cotton voile is used for the young girl's dress shown in No. 8287; the inset vest is of white organdy with a line of crystal buttons down the front. For a girl of sixteen, 3⅝ yards of 42-inch voile is required for this dress; it may be purchased for 45 cents a yard and up.

No. 8205—sizes 34 to 44.
No. 8287—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

France Provides for a German Who Fought in Morocco

A German who was for years a member of the French Foreign Legion, and who lost the sight of both eyes when fighting in Morocco, has been provided for for the rest of his life by the French Government, in somewhat peculiar circumstances.

When the man, whose name is Haberthur, received his wound in Morocco he was sent back to France and was decorated with the Legion of Honor. A bullet had passed across his face blinding both eyes. His case became known in Germany, and an effort was made to induce him to leave France and to return to his own country, to be used in an agitation against the French Foreign Legion.

Haberthur was offered a sum of $10,000 if he consented. As he was very poor and blind, this offer was very tempting. But he declined the offer. As a reward, the French Government gave him a concession for a tobacco store, which will ensure him an easy livelihood for the rest of his days.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

The weather, like the Mexican trouble, seems to be out of joint

Mr. Wilson may call it what he likes, but if Mexico had a navy, it would be war,

The merchant who would offer straw hats with fur earflaps on them could make his fortune just now.

Some grocers and butchers are so unreasonable as to expect their bills to be paid at this time of the year when gasoline and new tires must be bought.

New York city seems to have got back to 16th century conditions, where any man who tried to rule a city needed to wear a mail skirt.

No fewer than 26,674 teachers of England have declared for woman suffrage, but the figures are less impressive when we read that 45,123 of the same profession have declared against it.

HOT SHOT

The New York World takes a pretty stiff shot at our "$4 a week officials," as it calls them, The term is based on an experience of Lieutenant Governor O'Hara, of Illinois. This official disguised as a workingman, applied for a job in a corset factory in Connecticut. After working for three days, he was discharged. Mrs. O'Hara fared better. She got a job in a knitting mill at $5 a week, worked a full week, was not discharged and received three offers of marriage. Whereupon the World philosophizes in this fashion:

"Mrs. O'Hara did very well. Her pay was not bad for a learner, and if she had been seriously woraing for a living she would probably have been rapidly promoted, unless she accepted one of her suitors, a fate which, manufacturers complain, awaits their brightest girls.

"But why should Mr. O'Hara be surprised at his own ill success? He is not a worker. He is a statesman. The country is alive with statesmen who would be dear at $4 a week in any productive occupation. They effervesce in Washington. They find the referendum and recall states on Eden of perpetual eloquence and agitation. In Albany we have legislators who if hired at actual value, would have to be paid off in dozens for lack of smaller fractional coinage.

"Mr. O'Hara's attempt to discover his true economic value was beneath the dignity of a statesman—besides 'eing ill-advised. He should not have revealed the fatal secret of officialdom."

Good-bye to Rheumatism!

Your aching joints, your stiff, sore muscles, those sleepless nights and suffering days—good-bye forever—your day is gone.

Sufferer, cheer up, and read the good news below.

"A man met me a month ago, and said, 'don't stay crippled, quit complaining, limber up.' My answer was, 'I'm rheumatic, I can't do it.' He looked me over in a pitying sort of way and told me to go to the nearest drug store for Nerviline and Ferrozone. The combination had cured him. I was convinced of his sincerity and followed his instructions. I rubbed on Nerviline three times every day—rubbed it right into my aching joints. The pain quickly lessened, and I became more limber and active. To draw the virus of the disease from my blood I took two Ferrozone Tablets with every meal. I am well to-day, not an ache, not a pain and no sign of stiffness at all."

What Nerviline can do in a case like this it can do for you too. For nearly forty years Nerviline has been ly forty years' Nerviline has been recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica and Lame Back. It is the only remedy that never disappoints.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir.—I am sending you herewith a map of the Province of Ontario showing the number of students who attend the University of Toronto from each county. You will observe that from the city of Toronto there comes a little more than one-third of the students from the whole Province, which I think is not an excessive proportion in view of the size of the City and also of the fact that many people come from other parts of the Province to the city in order to give their children an education, some of them only to remain temporarily.

I am also sending you a printed copy of a statement that was presented to members of the Legislative Assembly giving a comparison of some leading Universities of the United States with the University of Toronto. This comparison I think tells its own story.

Yours Sincerely,
Robt. A. Falconer.
President

The above letter was received by us as well as the map referred to therein. The map may be seen at The Times Office.

SUBMARINE CRUISER MARKS A NEW EPOCH

Huge War Vessel For Use Both Above and Below Surface—Carries Mines and Torpedoes

Russia's navy will soon boast of the most powerful, epoch-making submarine cruiser of the world. The "terror of the seas" will be virtually a submerged cruiser, or torpedo Dreadnought. Her displacement submerged will be 5,400 tons, and while maneuvring under water she will be capable of planting or picking up mines and stationary torpedoes. Her length will be 400 feet and her maximum beam 34 feet. The surface speed specified is 26 knots and submerged it is said she will develop at least 14 knots. She is designed to carry more than 300 tons of liquid fuel.

This vessel will combine to a great extent the power and radius of action of a torpedo boat destroyer with the "sneaking" ability of a submarine. She has been well termed a "submarine cruiser." Her torpedo equipment will consist of 36 launching tubes, and she will readily carry 60 long 18-inch Whitehead torpedoes. The specifications call for 16 launching tubes in each broadside, with two bow and two stern launching tubes. Such a vessel after proceeding under water into the midst of a fleet could produce untold havoc, and even though she might be destroyed herself the sacrifice might decimate, possibly annihilate, an enemy's squadron or fleet.

The mine planting equipment will provide for the carrying of 120 naval defence mines. To protect herself in this work the submarine cruiser will have a battery of five 4.7-inch rapid fire guns, which would prove very effective in repelling an attack by surface torpedo boats or destroyers. They will be useful during the interval in which the cruiser is preparing for a plunge. In surface condition the displacement will be 4,500 tons, which means that about one thousand tons of water ballast must be taken into the vessel to prepare her for her sub surface work. The designers believe that the vessel will be able to perform this work in three minutes minutes but during those three minutes the cruiser's guns might be greatly needed.

A revolving turret forward and a conning tower midships, both of which telescope, are two unusual features of this remarkable craft. When telescoped they can be housed within the curved armored superstructures.

The naval defence mines, which will be launched through the bottom of the vessel may be placed while the craft is submerged. The largest submarines now under construction, except this one of Russia's have about eight hundred tons displacement submerged.

KEEPS RIGHT TIME FOR WHOLE WORLD

Greenwich Observatory Has Wonderful Instruments Which do Important Work for all Countries

The British Post Office has a plan by which every person in Great Britain can for $10 a year have his clocks set at Greenwich time every morning. The Observatory at Greenwich is the standard observatory of the world, to which all the rest must in some way or other refer. It is, in fact, the timekeeper of the civilized world.

There are many varieties of observation at Greenwich general observations of the moon and planets, as well as the wind and weather, but the main business of the Observatory is to preserve absolute accuracy of time, that it may not get out of joint.

The time we mark by our clocks must be checked by the periodical observations of the [illegible] and the [illegible] and it is to these observations that the staff in the Time Department at Greenwich specially devote their energies. There is much to be learned by the layman who pays a visit to the Observatory.

First of all there is the mean time standard clock which is electrically connected with the mean solar clock, but even these two are not sufficient check on one another, and the mean time standard clock is regularly compared with the standard sidereal [illegible] And if there are any errors in this wonderful instrument, they are discovered by the examination of the fixed stars, which are known as "clock stars."

The sidereal clock is a wonderful affair; it stands in the basement, keeping its inexorable time, which is regulated by the passage of the fixed stars over a filament taken from a spider's cobweb, and laid on the glass of a telescope. The interval between the two successive passages of such a star over the meridian is a sidereal day. These observations are made by what is perhaps the most useful instrument in the institution.

It is a domed chamber, and is supported on trunnions, and is movable so that it can be made to sweep the entire heavens. It looks very like a curious, old-fashioned cannon and is intended to record the apparent passages of the fixed stars over the cobweb strands, which look more like great bars of iron than frail fly-catching filaments, as you look at them through the instrument.

Then there is the famous time-ball, which is supposed to be the infallible guide of the punctual. It is set on a high tower, and was only wrong on one day late in 1878, and then only half a second.

Practically all the countries of Mid and East Europe, and all round the Empire from Egypt to Canada, and Spain, and France, Belgium, Japan, and Iceland set their clocks and watches by standard time from Greenwich, which is the central point of the universe in so far as it fixes the time of the world.

The ships of the world sail by the time "made" at Greenwich Observatory, the world's factories work by it, schools are opened and closed by it, markets are regulated by it, trains are run by it, and all the affairs of the world are controlled by it.

NEW KIND OF DUCK

Carries Young on Its Back and Has Red Eyes

A brand new species of wild duck, brilliantly colored, which carries its young on its back, and the young of which are regularly fed by the male bird while the female bird is sitting on a second setting of eggs, was discovered near Lacombe, Alberta, by Senator Peter Talbot.

"The birds were found on a slough near my farm," said Senator Talbot in discussing his find. "The male bird is apparently able to form its body and wings into a kind of boat, and the young always ride around on the back of the parents in this fashion. Even when the parent bird goes under a wire fence and the younger ones are scraped off, they always manage to scramble back on the backs of their parents, and make no effort to shift for themselves, the male bird feeding them constantly."

The color of the new species is remarkable. Except for a dark streak running from the bill back across the head, the head is pure white, while the eye is big and of a bright red color. The neck and breasts of the are bronze in color, while the back is a light grey.

"No one in the vicinity has ever seen ducks of that kind before," said Senator Talbot, "and we cannot find that this particular species ever invaded the Province before."

SAFETY FOR MINERS

Falling Barometer Shows When Explosions May Occur

Look out for mine explosions when the barometer begins to drop! This is the new word that has gone out among the coal managers all over the world. The weather bureaus have heard it, too, and are beginning to furnish barometer predictions for mines.

The barometer tells the sea captain of the approach of a storm well in advance of trouble; but the warning is not given so far ahead in the case of the mines. The weather bureau, however, can predict the coming of low pressure as a "low" moves across the country.

Methane is a dangerous gas in mines, developing most seriously in the old workings of coal mines; and it has been established that when the barometer drops, meaning that the pressure of air is decreasing, the amount of methane increases. The gas has less pressure of air to hold it back, and comes stealing out of nooks and crannies. Extra precautions can usually be taken when warning is given in time

Egg Sandwiches

The following is a delicious filling for sandwiches: Mix together the yolk of an egg, hard boiled, with an equal quantity of butter, about one tablespoonful of cream, just a little shrimp or bloater paste, with lemon juice to taste. Spread some thick slices of bread and butter with a liberal layer of the filling, sprinkle it with a little chopped mustard and cress. Lay on this a few slices of chicken, or any kind of game, cut thinly and press a piece of bread and butter on top.

FORETOLD A CHANGE

Canadian Soldier Saw That Mounted Riflemen Would be Supreme

Some thirty-six years ago, Col. G. T. Denison, Toronto's police magistrate wrote a book, "A History of Cavalry," and entered it in a competition inaugurated by the Russian War Department, by authority of Emperor Alexander II., for the best history of cavalry. There were three prizes and Colonel Denison, in competition with the world, won the first prize—5,000 roubles. There never had been before and there never has been since any such complete work on the subject. And, furthermore, a principle which he advocated—a principle revolutionizing the cavalry service—and which he claimed would be the basis of future military mounted operations—has proven sound and has been universally adopted.

With the perfection of firearms, Col Denison foresaw a coming change in cavalry tactics. He prophesied that cavalry would be armed with firearms, that the sword and the lance would fall into disuse, that cavalry would not be used to beat down an enemy by shock, but would be in effect mounted infantry. This contention—regarded as mistaken or absurd by most military authorities when Colonel Denison's book first appeared—has been proven sound by modern war.

In the Boer War and the Russo-Japanese War, the mounted rifles won the day. The sword and lance were nowhere. The rifle was supreme.

Yet nearly forty years ago Colonel Denison had foretold what the professional soldiers of Europe failed to see clearly. He said: "In the next great war whichever nation employs mounted rifles extensively will be found winning decisive campaigns by the wise adoption of a necessary reform."

WHAT THE TONGUE TELLS

The latest "scientific" whim, a substitute for palmistry, hailing from Germany, is the pastime of reading character and telling fortunes by the tongue.

A sensitive, quivering tongue denotes the artistic temperament. A tongue of a brilliant carmine hue denotes long life; a pale, pink tongue, delicacy and weakness of character.

The man with a short tongue usually is of a secretive nature, and likely to succeed in life either as a lawyer or as a detective; but, although he may acquire money by economy and cunning, he has not the largeness of mind necessary to the amassing of a great fortune.

Long tongues suggest generosity and openhandedness. But the man with a long, broad tongue is apt to be a dangerous gossip; just as the man with a short, broad tongue is addicted to craft, and even deceptiveness.

Very thin, pointed tongues may be found in people of all temperaments, and are indications of failure. The man with such a tongue, it is said, will never make a success of life.

JOT DOWN YOUR IDEAS

They Are Worth Money and May Quickly Slip the Mind

You've had ideas, of course? Brilliant ones, maybe? What's become of them? You will remember them, with a gnash of the teeth, when you read that the idea you let slip went on to someone else—someone who pursued it, developed it, and cashed it! You will look into the shop windows and see the idea that came to you—but which you didn't keep—making money for someone else!

Next time, make a record—and make it at once! Wherever you are—and ideas come anywhere, at any time—make a record of that fleeting thought. Smart men have an idea book, that nothing shall escape them. They build on ideas; it is their valuable raw material.

Track the great inventions, and what were they in origin? Just ideas! Think of the safety-pin. A pin with a covered point, that's all. But a fortune for the maker.

The pneumatic tire. Dunlop watched his boy at play, and suddenly the great idea came to him.

The screw bottle-stopper. Another brilliant idea.

Boots will wear down at the heel. Hence the boot protector—a new idea, and a fortune.

The perforations in the stampsheets. Just an idea!

Many a workman who has slipped his "idea" into the idea-box in the works has his own house to-day, and draws a royalty larger than his wages, because he had an idea and did not let it go until he had cashed it!

There's always a market for ideas.

Trooper and Financier

Trooper Thos. Duffy, of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, St. Johns, Que., expert sign writer, champion fancy handwriter of the Dominion, is a man of purpose.

When he found that he could not get his land grant without proving that he was a soldier he re-enlisted, and after getting his grant watched the price go up from $100 to $1,200. At the latter point he sold and took a holiday on his profit.

When the Prince of Wales was at the Quebec Tercentenary, Pte. Duffy was his groom, and the new King rode Pte. Duffy's big black horse, Bill Bailey.

Lepers in Canada

There are in Canada, according to official reports to Dr. Montizambert, director-general of public health, twenty-five lepers. In the lazaretto at Tracadie, N.B., there are 21 patients, 11 males and 10 females. Of the total number, 17 are French Canadians, two are English, one Icelander and one Russian. The second lazaretto is at Darcy Island in British Columbia. There are in it four leprous Chinamen.

Lady's Lost Finger

A singular flying accident occurred on Lake Windermere. A party from Bolton were attracted by a hydroplane, and one young lady arranged to go for a flight across the lake. She took her seat behind the pilot and after the hydroplane had travelled about 100 yards from the shore, she leaned from her seat and waved joyously to her friends. Suddenly she felt a sharp twinge of pain, and on looking at her left hand was horrified to find that one of the fingers was missing, having been cut off by the propeller.

What One Shepherd Did for a Scattered Flock

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

FATHER DORNEY is dead. Did any of you happen to know Father Dorney? No! Well, it's missin' one of the treats of your life ye were, and it's I that's tellin' you.

Father Dorney wasn't a rich man—I don't suppose he had a thousand dollars in cash to his name.

He wasn't a particularly brilliant man; nobody is going to get his sermons bound in limp leather and have them illustrated for a gift book.

He never was celebrated for preaching sermons that made the money clink into the collection box like a fall of golden rain.

He had a good, plain, serviceable education of his own—but he was no great sage and no deep philosopher.

He was good—that's all—just plain good—and true and honest and generous and full of common sense.

He lived and had his parish in the poorest part of Chicago—right near the main entrance to the stock yards.

The people in his church were all poor people—plain, hard-working poor people—with boys learning the packing business and girls working down town and good, others staying at home looking after the house while father did his day shift or his night shift, as the case might be, at the big plant.

And there wasn't a saloon within a wide area of the territory surrounding Father Dorney's church.

Father Dorney wouldn't have one there. And what Father Dorney wouldn't have—he didn't have—he nor the people he loved and cared for.

And yet he had hundreds of friends among the decent saloon men of Chicago.

Had No Vague Theories.

He'd go into a saloon any time of the day or night and take any boy from his parish out with him; and after he'd had a word with the man who kept the saloon, that boy never was allowed inside that door again—at least till he came of age and Father Dorney let the saloon keeper off from his promise.

He didn't try to "reform" this one and to "uplift" that one generically.

He never expounded vague theories on the betterment of the race—of the rise of the fallen—he just took care of his own people and took care of them right.

When little Mary Sullivan ran away from home with the gambler man from St. Louis—it was Father Dorney who traced her down—and brought her home and dared any member of his congregation to say a word against the girl either to him or behind his back.

When Danny Doherty's boy got into trouble somewhere over on the North side, it was Father Dorney who went to the man who was going to prosecute him and told him a few plain truths about the man's own son—and got him to give Dan's lad another chance.

And Dan's lad took the chance—and made good at it, too. Did you lay a sprig of heliotrope on the Father's grave today, lad, you that are a man now with a decent family of your own—all because the old priest who lies so quiet there in his low grave got up at midnight and went out and found you when you had made up your mind to end it all in the lake?

Always Ready to Help.

And when there was a strike and times were hard and the rent was due, who came among you with a laugh and a story and a God bless you, but Father Dorney with his Irish tongue and his quick wit and his great heart?

What road was ever too long or too dark or too cold or too rough—for Father Dorney to travel when one of his people was in trouble and needed him?

Some one asked him once why he kept the night bell in his room.

"Why don't you let some of the young priests answer the night calls?" said the one who inquired. "You're getting old for such work as that."

Father Dorney smiled indulgently.

"Dear, dear," he said, "sure, the day calls are all right for the young priests to answer, but when a man comes here after midnight—it's in real trouble he is—and it's an old head he needs to help him out of it!"

I'll never believe you are dead, Father Dorney. I'll never believe it.

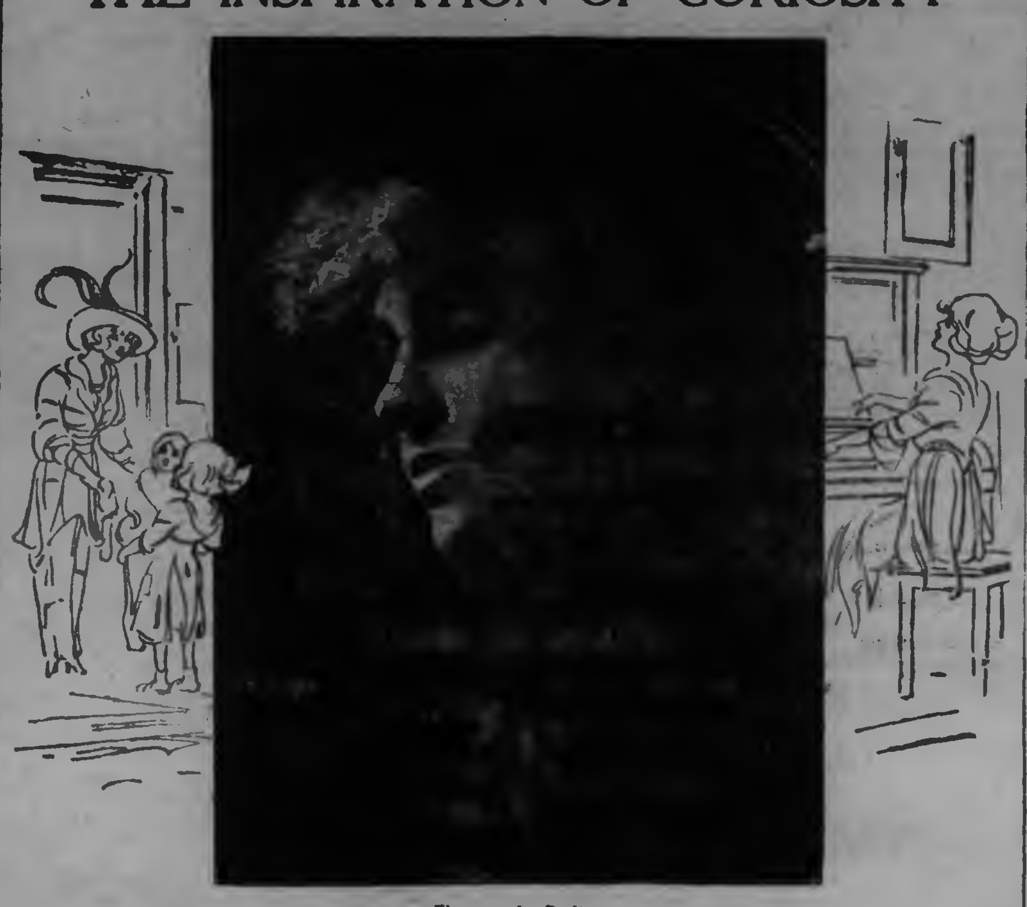
It's asleep you are, with your hands folded over your kind heart—asleep—sh—be careful—don't waken him, he's tired—and he needs the rest.

THE INSPIRATION OF CURIOSITY



Florence La Badie

How "Wanting to Know" Aids Natural Growth

By ELEANOR AMES

"IF it is true that love makes the world go round, then it is surely curiosity that keeps it spinning," says Florence La Badie, whom many persons call "Mary," because of the wonderful interpretation of the character she gave in the film play, "The Star of Bethlehem."

Florence La Badie could succeed in a dozen different walks of life.

She could be a successful executive, a genuine business woman, for she has keen financial judgment and understands human nature.

She writes poems that are considered by literary critics to have the elements of real poetry, and she draws well enough to have had her pictures not only accepted for publication but liberally paid for.

But her chief genius is curiosity—the desire to find out, to get at the reason why, to know the genesis of things.

"I have always had the most profound admiration for the boy who 'wanted to see the wheels go round' in his grandfather's watch," says she. "I wish I knew what ever became of him. He should have turned out to be a very interesting character unless some well-meaning but pitifully misguided person discouraged his curiosity. That always strikes me as one of the real tragedies of life, the discouragement of perfectly righteous curiosity.

"It makes me unhappy to think of the stunted geniuses from such discouragement. Wanting to know is the most natural and normal desire. It is the fundamental attribute of life. The moment our curiosity dies, that moment we cease to grow, either mentally or spiritually.

"What has been the inspiration of all the discoveries and inventions of this world but the underlying curiosity, the desire to know?

"The child should be encouraged to ask questions. When I hear petulant mothers—I know they are often overworked and tired—scold their little ones for asking why is this and that, I feel like trying to make them understand how necessary it is for the future of the child that he is given the chance to ask and be answered.

"And speaking of children, aren't they the most fascinating studies? I believe that I have learned more of the real art of acting from them than from any other source. They are so exquisitely natural. Some of the best sketches I have ever made have been pictures of kiddies I have met on the streets, little mothers of the tenements, little grand ladies of the avenue.

"Pope says 'The proper study of mankind is man.' He surely knew what he was talking about. I feel willing to wager he was a questioning child. He had the genius for finding out. He had a beautiful curiosity.

"Humanity is the only study I know of which is never ending in its possibilities. The more one studies the less one really knows about human nature. They say it is the same the world over, but who knows, after all, what 'the same' means?

"Did you ever know any two persons who saw the same object exactly in the same way? I never did. Perhaps human nature is the same, but the human viewpoint differs with each individual.

"A very lovely looking young woman with the features of a marble statue and a form which might make Venus envious, came to me not long ago and said she was entirely discouraged. She said that everything she tried in the way of business went wrong. 'Sometimes I hate myself, the world and every one in it,' she said. Then I knew what was the trouble. It wasn't the business that went wrong. It was the girl herself. Here is my own secret for getting along with comfort and happiness. It is simple and easily remembered. It is just this. LOVE HUMANITY."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why "Rouge" Is Allowable If It Is Rightly Made.

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG.

BEFORE all the roses of the world come My Lady's Scarlet Cheeks. These are nature's finest flowers. Rarely, indeed, are they between thorns.

The damask cheek may not always be interwoven with the tissue. The vermilion glow may be the hand grenade of rouge. Still it lacks the sting of real thorns.

A certain fashionable youth, more famed for his red nose than his wit, once approached a lady who was highly rouged.

"Madame," said he, "you blush, no doubt, from modesty."

"Pardon me, sir," replied the lady, "I blush from reflection."

This is a true story. It illustrates the wit as well as frankness of a brilliant woman. She had a pallor that sat but ill upon her. She reflected sensibly about it and dusted a little brick dust upon the buccal hills.

From every blush which kindles in a fair cheek, there spurt ten thousand little loves and graces. A very revel of roses plays in such a face.

"The rising blushes, which her cheek o'er-spread,
Are opening roses in the lily's bed."

As aspens show the light and shade, the healthy cheek dances beneath its rainbow colors.

Youth is full of blushes and scarlet fires. The very tingling in a sweet maid's heart makes crimson mantles surge across her beautiful features.

Like "Clean Dirt."

Neck and brow becomes ruddy and ruby red in innocence, but with progressing months and years, ripe and bold from experience, blushes wane, red cheeks fade, pallor takes the place of cherry bloom.

Then comes the melancholy, pale days of discontent, the sallow nights of white, uncolored flesh—unless the cheeks are chided with artifice and skill.

Is a girl ever justified to bedeck her lips and cheeks with rouge. If so, when? What sort of rouge shall she use?

There are as many quibbles against rouge as there are objections to clean dirt. While it is true, as a general principle, that a myriad of popular poisons sold to girls as rouge work much injury, there is a lot of exaggeration and hysterical untruths mixed in with the anti-rouge crusade.

Disapproval of rouge rests upon the first principle. Once begun, even the employment of a harmless rouge chases the color permanently from the cheeks. The glow of health, the stirring carnation made by wind, weather and fresh air, are soon eclipsed by the chemist's cunning concoctions.

The Harmless Kind.

Let it, however, be said for the nonce that rouge itself, if made of saffron flowers, harmless vegetable substances, or even dried animal tissues, do the cheeks and lips no more harm than so much sterilized, germ-free dirt and dust.

Mark you, rouge is always inadvisable if ruddy health, good crimson blood, restful sleep and an outdoor life can take its place.

These lacking, a little dash of the artist's vegetable colors is much the same as brick dust, coal particles, or the dirt of busy toil.

"What's female beauty, but an air divine,
Through which the mind's all-gentle graces shine?
They, like the sun, irradiate all between
The body charms, because the soul is seen."

D. O'C., Wynoate, Pa.—I am very nervous and had a breakdown two years ago. My eyes make me dizzy and almost closed. Is there any relief for this?

Yes, there is. Change your habits, your work and your house if possible. Row, walk, dance, play ball, golf or tennis, or work in a garden or on a farm for a time. If you can find employment at the seashore so much the better.

[illegible] the [illegible] of improvement in mental states such as yours is a gain of 20 pounds in flesh.

Fatty meats, greasy pabulum of all sorts, six to 10 eggs a day, oils, fats, pastries and two-hour feedings will make you add avoirdupois to your girth. Then you will be robust again.

S. C.—What is a remedy for gasoline poisoning?

Immediately after it has been taken give lots of whites of eggs, milk, and mustard water while you are waiting for the doctor. Keep the victim away from the fire.

New Gowns Reveal Hip Lines

By Madge Marvel

HIPS are in style. They are actually encouraged. Not to have them is to be frightfully old-fashioned. The plump woman's hour of triumph is at hand.

It is no longer a crime to have comfortable curves and give the impression of being well fed members of society instead of famine sufferers. By the latest dictates of Fashion, revised edition, one may, nay, one must, forsake the skeleton class and wear the "female form divine" of which poets once sung.

Every one of the new clothes shows such a perceptible widening at the hips that the fat women have ceased to worry and the thin women are telling their dressmakers to be "sure to get my hips full enough."

Of course, there is the same feeling against real obesity as there has ever been, and the same distinction is made between the relative beauty of curves and billows. There is an unbridgable gap between pleasing and proper plumpness and mountainous flesh. The former is demanded by the styles of the moment. There is no possible affinity between the latter and the styles of any time.

All this change in feminine figures has brought about a change in the spring stays. They are no longer the straight affairs into which we have fitted our sometimes rebellious frames.

There is a slight outward curve of the front steels.

The straight front is gone.

With it has disappeared all long and uncomfortable boning. The bones of the corset are the least of it. Not that the new stays are shorter, but the boning is both less and shorter. Below the boning there is carefully woven and well fitted material held by lacings and inset with elastic gussets, which hold the figure just as firmly as the less comfortable bones, and give a grace and freedom that was never before possible.

And all the new corsets end at the waistline, or begin there, whichever way you look at them.

They are delightfully light and pliable and attractive. There is a lot of talk about the "Grecian this or that" in the corset shops, for we are acknowledging Greece as the prime inspiration of the strange medley which makes up the recent styles.

The brassiere is quite as important as the corset and its rightful complement, for where the corset stops the brassiere begins.

But the brassiere is not the boned and uncompromising support we once knew. It is the most alluring little arrangement of lace and batiste or lace and crepe de chine, or lace alone, or, if it really wants to be a strong garment, it is woven of the most delightful webbing, elastic yet firm, supporting and yet yielding, and with such stays and supports is the "corsetless" figure made.

By Ann Marie Lloyd

IT has been stated with authority that there are 60 ways of cooking eggs.

Fancy the changes to be rung on the matutinal menu if one cook was in possession of the complete secret of the possibilities of the egg! Eggs every morning for over a year and a half and never a repetition! And yet, boiled, poached, fried, scrambled or in omelet—and the average cook has run short of ideas.

Of all the ordinary egg concoctions—or rather of those which are familiar to the ordinary palate—for properly prepared it can never be an ordinary dish—Spanish omelet is most delicious. It has also the merit of being suitable for almost any meal, the breakfast, luncheon, light dinner or chafing dish supper.

It is a dish which requires the peculiar knack of the born cook, rather than long experience or much knowledge. Here is the recipe of a famous chef, whose omelets quite surpass classification as mere food, so wonderful are they as works of culinary art.

Spanish Omelet.

One tablespoonful chopped onion cooked in two tablespoonfuls of butter until it is straw-colored. Add half a tablespoonful chopped green pepper, two cups sliced or one cup canned tomatoes, three or four sliced mushrooms, a dash of pepper and a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Cook 10 or 15 minutes till the tomato is smooth.

Beat four eggs and four tablespoonfuls of hot or cold water until you can take up a spoonful of the mixture.

Heat two tablespoonfuls of butter in an omelet pan, pour in the eggs and shake gently to and fro so as to allow the uncooked egg to run on to the bottom of the pan.

When creamy throughout, sprinkle slightly with salt and pepper, put part of the tomato mixture on to the half of the omelet that is farthest away from the handle of the pan, fold the other half over the tomato and turn out on a hot platter. The remainder of the tomato may be poured over the completed omelet. This, like every other omelet, should be served the instant it is cooked. Waiting for delinquent eaters is fatal to omelets.

Poached Egg in Tomato.

Cut out a piece from the stem end of a tomato and remove the pulp and set in a ramekin dish.

Drop the egg in the excavation, dash with salt and pepper, being most careful to keep the egg intact, and set the dish in a pan of hot water, cover with buttered paper and bake in a moderate oven till the egg is firm.

Eggs a la Caracas.

One-half a pound of shaved dried beef mixed with a cup of solid canned tomato. The beef should be slightly freshed before using.

Two tablespoonfuls grated cheese, a teaspoonful of onion juice, salt and pepper.

Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a pan, blend and let the cheese, tomato and beef cook until it is thick.

Add four well beaten eggs and cook all just long enough to set the eggs.

Seasonable Tonics for the Hair

By Maggie Teyte

AN excellent tonic for those who have need for oil in their hair is a mixture of two ounces of cocoanut oil and three drachms of tincture of nux vomica, mixed with an ounce and a half of bay rum.

Two favored ingredients in most of the hair tonics are cantharides and quinine.

I have had many offered me. One of the best that I know of is made as follows:

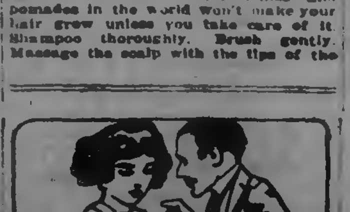
Two and a half ounces of cantharides. The same amount of bay rum. (Most hair specialists specify bay rum.) Half an ounce of glycerine. Two drachms of ammonia and 25 drops oil of rosemary. Add to it 10 ounces of distilled water.

For those who prefer quinine tonics, here is one which I can recommend.

Six ounces of bay rum. An ounce of glycerine. Twenty grains of quinine sulphate. Two drachms of cantharides. The same quantity each of alcohol and jaborandi. Dissolve the quinine in the alcohol, mix all the ingredients well and add enough elderflower water to make a pint.

And remember all the tonics and pomades in the world won't make your hair grow unless you take care of it. Shampoo thoroughly. Brush gently. Massage the scalp with the tips of the fingers, using the rotary motion from the forehead back to the nape of the neck. Stop burning it with hot irons. Never go to bed till it has been brushed and braided.

Since the curls in front of the ears are worn plastered to the cheek, there will be need for bandoline to keep them in place. Gum arabic dissolved in rose water and quince seeds are the old standbys. The latter are moistened in warm water.



What Is Marriage?

He—My love for you is my life. Will you accept it?

She—Do you want me to commit murder?

Would Try Again.

"I suppose that if I were to die," said Mrs. Gobang, "you would marry again."

"Yes, I guess so," said Gobang. "A man often goes on the principle that there will be better luck next time."

Tolerably Safe.

"How did it happen that you never married?"

"Well, I never had the nerve to propose to a girl except when I was drunk and none of them would accept me then."

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE ELBERT SMITH

WILLIE LEGHORN was chasing grasshoppers one afternoon, when he came to the edge of the duck pond.

The ducks were swimming around, enjoying themselves, and at last Dickie Duck came to the bank and said to Willie:

"I am tired of swimming. I wish I had something to do."

"Did you ever try to fly?" asked Willie.

"No, I don't think I ever did," replied Dickie, thoughtfully.

"Come on, then, and I will teach you to fly," said Willie Leghorn.

"I don't think I should like to fly," said Dickie Duck. "I belong on the ground or in the water."

"Oh! come on!" Willie urged.

Dickie and Willie went up the bank until they came to a tree that was bent so that Willie could walk up it.

"Come on," he said to Dickie encouragingly.

Dickie waddled up the tree, looking down at the ground every little while. When they reached a limb of the tree Willie flew to the ground and shouted to Dickie:

"Go ahead, now, fly down!" And with that Dickie Duck jumped off the limb and hit the ground with a big "Bang!"

He lay there for a long time, for he was stunned. Finally he woke up, but Willie had gone.

"I don't think that was a very nice thing for Willie Leghorn to do," he said to himself. "I guess I'll have to get him in swimming."

Dickie went back to the pond, but didn't tell what Willie had done to him, but the next day he hunted for Willie.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Miss Laurie: Having seen that you would answer questions for young girls, we have decided to write. Kindly answer the following:

1—What is good to remove moles?

2—Do you consider girls of 14 and 15 too young to have boy friends?

3—Are they too young to write to them?

4—Now we are going to ask you a question that I suppose has troubled maidens since the beginning. Is it safe to marry a man whom you respect and like, but know for a fact you could never love? JACK AND JILL.

WHAT is good to remove moles? Dear me, I haven't the faintest idea. There's a beauty specialist: write to her and she'll tell you all about it. Or maybe your family doctor would know.

Are girls of 14 and 15 too young to have boy friends? A girl of any age is not too young to have boy friends—if they are friends and not silly imitations of sweethearts.

A nice, attractive girl ought to have a dozen brothers in the neighborhood. And if there's one sweetheart among them when she is no more than 14 her mother ought to take serious account of the fact and contrive to safeguard her until she is old enough to have some sense of her own.

Of course, they are too young to write to them, as a regular thing. If you have anything to say to a boy you know and you can't see him to say it, write him a letter, if you must, and be done with it; but, of course, it would be nonsense to begin a "correspondence" with any one at any such age.

What in the world do you little sisters think you know about whether you love a man or only "respect" him?

Nobody in the world can tell you whether you like a man well enough to marry him but you and the man.

Some women could marry a saint from heaven and make a fiend out of him in six months, and some women would love the very arch-fiend himself as long as they lived, if they once imagined themselves in love with him at all.

Don't be so serious, Jack and Jill. There are lots of funny things in this world, and sometimes the very funniest thing of all—is yourself.

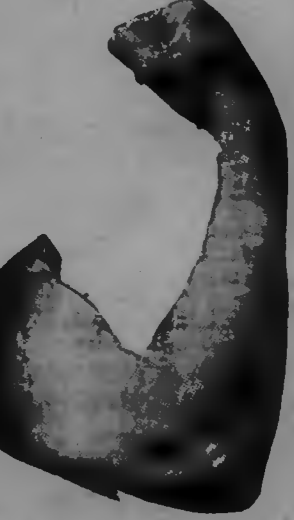
ATHLETICS DEMAND PLIABLE MUSCLES

For Quick Movements, Rapid Recovery and Freedom From Strain, Soft, Firm Limbs Are Needed

It is not the man with hard, knotty muscles who stars in athletics. Hard muscles mean muscle-bound arms and legs and to be muscle bound means lack of speed and elasticity, and speed and elasticity mean athletic superiority. Hundreds of young fellows are hopeful of some day becoming star ball players. These fellows, whose baseball life and usefulness depend upon the condition of their legs and arms, do not have bulging muscles. Their arms and legs are covered with long, elastic, pliable tendons that writhe like snakes as the players hurry through the thousand and one steps of training and playing.

Illustrated here are the arms of a blacksmith and a ball player. Note the difference. The man of the forge shows a bunch of iron muscle. The player's arm is as round as that of a girl.



Rube Benton's arm

Years spent in swinging a hammer gave the blacksmith his powerful looking biceps. For his work just such an arm is needed. But he could not do the work of the ball player. He is like a weight lifter or the man who works on a moving van—powerful as a Hercules, but unable to use his great strength to advantage save in his own line.

Take the player. His long, snake like muscles allow him to throw the ball with terrific speed, to jump about sharp, recover himself from an awkward position, and throw without strain. His muscles are not seen but they are there, tough as hickory with the spring of split bamboo. Such muscles will do the maximum amount of work with the minimum of fatigue.

Hard, knotty and mighty arm of a blacksmith

The trainer of boxers, sprinters, jumpers, football or baseball players seeks to develop such muscles. The pitching arm shown belongs to Rube Benton. He has the biggest arm of the Cincinnati pitchers. His muscles are soft and spongy, and the powerful searching fingers of Trainer "Doc" Hoskins sink deep into the flesh as he massages the pitching wing of the Red hurler. They would scarcely make an impression on the arm of the blacksmith.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

FAKE MONEY IN ITALY

Of all the so-called "Great Powers," Italy has the most unstable and most unsatisfactory currency. Not alone is the exchange subject to fluctuations, but there is a great mass of counterfeit and worthless money floating about the country for the undoing of the unwary. In the first place, the engraving on the paper money is of inferior quality, and hence easy of imitation; secondly, there are so many worthless or doubted coins in circulation that the temptation to add to their number is not easily resisted.

The paper money is allowed to remain in circulation until disgracefully dirty and nearly obliterated, and therefore difficult of recognition as counterfeit or genuine. To add to the confusion, French silver is generally accepted, while the coins of Switzerland, Belgium, and Greece, although officially recognised, are, as a rule, refused in commerce. Numerous Papal and Roumanian coins are still in circulation, although valueless and accepted only by unwary foreigners, whom the Italians regard as fair prey.

In addition, none of the large number of one-lira pieces coined before 1863 can be passed, although intrinsically of equal value with those of later date, since the period arbitrarily fixed for their redemption has passed and the government refuses to accept them further.

The Italians possess a mania for mutilating and perforating the five and ten centesimo copper coins; but, owing to their small denomination, this usually acts as no bar to their acceptance.

LOWER MEAT BILLS

Cheaper Cuts Give Excellent Satisfaction When Properly Prepared

Do you know, Madame, that a 1,600-lb. steer "dresses" only to 800 pounds And that out of these eight hundred pounds only 200 pounds of meats can be classed as choice cuts?

Do you know that so many people insist upon having the choice cuts always that the butcher has had to keep increasing the price of them to offset the loss which he must sustain from the great surplus of cheaper stuff that often has to be thrown away as refuse?

And yet all the cheaper cuts need is proper treatment to make them tender, nutritious and fine flavored.

Here are some high-class "cheap dishes" as prepared by M. Leperruque, a $10,000 per year Parisian chef:

Chuck Pot Roast

This dish will give good satisfaction if the recipe is followed with care.

Have your butcher cut a chunk of a shoulder and remove the bone. Do not have this too small, as a pot roast should always be of size. Fry it in beef or pork drippings in a deep earthen, iron or granite pan. When brown add to a four-pound pot roast two tablespoons of flour, let it cook three minutes, add three pints of water, two bay leaves, a large onion in which are stuck four cloves, a pinch of pepper corn and three tablespoons of catsup. Let cook gently for one hour and a half, set aside and then skim all fat which arises. Slice meat and serve with gravy strained.

ONLY A LITTLE WORK IS REQUIRED TO MAKE UNDRESSED MEAT TASTE LIKE OVERDRESSED MEAT
"JOHN'LL NEVER GUESS THAT IT ONLY COST 8 CENTS"

Sliced Chuck Meat, Minute Saute

Ask your butcher to give whatever quantity you deem necessary for your wants of lean chuck as near the short-rib part as possible.

Slice it across the grain of the tissue very thin; have some onion also sliced very thin, some sliced cooked potatoes, chopped parsley, salt and pepper and proceed as follows:

In a shallow skillet have drippings very hot, drop in the sliced meat, fry very quickly, add the onions, potatoes, salt, pepper and parsley. Drain well and add a little cider vinegar to give it a tart taste.

Flank A'l'Enfer

The flank steak has never been accorded proper recognition. Of course, the secret of satisfaction depends on its preparation.

The steak must be freed from all sinews and fat and sliced crossways a half an inch thick. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, baste with a little olive oil and set to boil over a very hot fire, turning only once and keeping it very rare. Serve hot with some fresh butter, a little chopped parsley and a tiny bit of lemon juice.

LEPROSY AND FISH

Noted Surgeon's Death Recalls Theories of Disease

Sir Jonathan Hutchinson, the fam surgeon, who died at Haslemere, land, at the age of eighty-four, voted much time to the study of origin of leprosy. He formed theory that the disease was due to eating of diseased or imperfectly fish, and to confirm his view he set at the age of seventy for a long in India and Robben Island, C Colony. His writings did much secure better conditions for sufferers.

In bygone times, he once used to call leprosy "fish-eaters' but he latterly preferred the tion, "fish-eaters' tuberculosis."

Leprosy, he said again, advan in inland districts of Europe with advent of Christianity, and the obs vance of fish fasts, and it disappear when Protestantism threw these fa into disuse. This contention brou him into conflict with the heads the Roman Catholic Church.

Sir Jonathan, who lived in Has mere for fifty years, was the found of the educational museum there, superintendence of which he as one of his recreations.

A HIGH OFFICE

Famous Duchess of Marlborough Was First Mistress of the Robes

Mistress of the Robes is the highest dignity to which any woman in the British Empire can aspire. But she must be British-born, and should be the daughter of a peer, though this latter qualification has sometimes been dispensed with.

The Mistress of the Robes is the head of the entire household and court of the Queen consort, having full authority over the latter's ladies in waiting and maids of honor, lords in waiting, etc. It is she who arranges the "waits"—that is to say the terms of attendance of the various ladies of the Queen—and the latter's Lord Chamberlain, Vice Chamberlain, Treasurer, private secretary, and equerries, are also under her orders.

She has all sorts of prerogatives and perquisites, the latter including the robes of State worn by the Queen at the coronation. On that occasion only she bears the Queen's train, but at all other court functions and official ceremonies, stands either immediately by the Queen's side or else walks right behind her. The salary is merely nominal, amounting to about $2.00) a year; and, of course, the mistress of the robes has certain of the royal carriages and royal servants always at her disposal.

So far as can be ascertained the office, as now constituted, dates from the reign of Queen Anne, when it was held by Sarah, first Duchess of Marlborough, who, as every reader of English history knows, exercised the most extraordinary despotism, not to say terrorism, over that monarch. In those days the badge of office was a golden key, and when Queen Anne at last plucked up sufficient courage to emancipate herself from the tyranny of the Duchess and to dismiss her from the post there was a difficulty about recovering the key. The Duchess absolutely refused to surrender it, and at length her husband, the victor of Blenheim, was ordered to secure its restitution. It is on record that when he notified her of the commands which he had received and of the necessity of complying therewith, she in a more than usually violent outburst of temper flung the key at his head.

Bull Moose in Yard

To find a young bull moose in his yard in the busy section of St. John, N. B., was the experience of Captain John McMulkin. It was kept captive a few hours in a barn and then released and made for the outskirts.

Aged Woman's Heroism

An aged Welsh woman named Grace Jones, aged seventy-three, living near Llanberis, awoke about midnight to find her bedroom full of smoke. She called to the only other occupant of the house, a young quarryman who lodged with her, and, getting no answer, went to the door of his bedroom. She opened the door and saw her lodger unconscious in bed and the room on fire.

She then dashed into the burning bedroom and hauled the heavy man off the bed, down the stairs, and into the street, where her cries aroused the neighbors. She was badly burned.

Feminine Colonels

A picturesque custom prevalent in continental Europe is the investing of the feminine members of Royal families with the title of Honorary Colonel. There are numbers of grandes dames who are proud to ride at the head of their troops before the commanders-in-chief.

One of the most enthusiastic of these soldier-women is the Empress of Germany. Whenever there is to be a grand review she is to be found leading her men, while the Emperor, as her Commander-in-Chief, reviews his gallant army. The Czarina of Russia shares with the beautiful Crown Princess of Roumania, Commander of the 4th Regiment of Hussars, the reputation of being the best-looking soldier in Europe. Both the Czarina and the Crown Princess Marie are very fair, and present a striking appearance in their brilliant uniforms.

The question whether cider is or is not an intoxicant was raised at Accrington Police Court when Mrs. Amelia Shorrock, of the Borough Café, was fined $100 and costs for selling cider without a license to an excise officer. Mrs. Shorrock's lawyer urged that very many people regarded themselves as being perfectly at liberty to sell cider without restriction, and said teetotalers often asked for it in the belief that it was a temperance drink.

The word "cider" at present does not indicate to the general public any standardized quality of the liquor supposed to be made mainly from apples. Cider can be made, and often is, highly intoxicating, the percentage of alcohol depending, as in other liquors, largely upon its manufacture. On the other hand, there are vast quantities of crude unpalatable liquor, also called cider, which is about as intoxicating as spring water, but much less beneficial.

The Trent Canal

In connection with the recent investigation The Times is informed that much correspondence of a private nature was seized with political bearings of an amusing and highly instructive character.

New Sewers.

The sewer construction will be commenced on Monday. At a meeting of the Board of Works it was decided to add to the list, McDonnel street, from Cross to Park, Belmont to Walton on Hunter street.

Rev. Christopher Lord Resigns.

Rev. Christopher Lord, former Incumbent of the Church of England at Apsley was a guest at the Munro House yesterday. Mr. Lord informed a Times representative that he has resigned as Rector at Apsley, He wil travel in the West before taking o clerical harness again.

Shipping Lumber Jacks.

Yesterday Mr. Ted Cavanagh, the local labor contractor, shipped thirty two men to the Peterborough Lumber Company's camps at Eel's Creek and Cavendish. On Tuesday night he sent ten men, for the same company, to Lakefield, en route to the shanties in Cavendish.

Horse Died Suddenly.

Mr. L. E. Stevens, the Lindsay confectioner, lost one of his delivery horses yesterday morning. The anim collapsed suddenly. The horse was not travelling at a very rapid pace when he went staggering headlong to the sidewalk. It is thought the animal burst a blood vessel whilst striving to see across Kent Street.

Trent Canal Notes.

Hastings Star: The local canal fleet is rapidly rounding into shape for work, and No. 7 dredge has been busy for nearly a week, just above the concrete landing pier, digging a wider channel and deepening the water front. No. 1 drill is being put into shape by Dan McKinnon and crew and will be ready for work this week as also will likely No. 8 drtdge.

He Chose Sausage.

Last Wednesday a married man entered Marvin's meat store asked 'What kind of meat have you today." Mr. Marvin replied: "The best steak we have ever had, sir," "Here you are sir; as smooth as velvet and as tender as a woman's heart." "The husband looked up and said: "I'll take sausage."

Local Cheese Board.

Next week and the week following will see the majority of the cheese factories in this vicinity re-opening for the 1914 season. Although it is a trifle premature to state whether the output of cheese will be up to the standard or not, some gentlemen who are closely allied with the business claim that the May production will not be very heavy.

An Explanation.

Exception has been taken by a prominent member of the local English colony to an article that appeared in yesterday's issue regarding a remark made by an Englishman about the 57th Regiment. The item was only intended as a joke, but seems to have been taken seriously by our correspondent. No offense was meant.

Peterborough's Biggest Bridge Party

Yesterday afternoon the largest bridge party ever held in this city was in evidence in the Armouries' Band Room. Some 170 of the leading society ladies of Peterborough gathered there. All went merry as a marriage bell w thout a sound of revelry. The prizes were silver bonbon dishes and tea strainers. The guests were received by Mesdames Hayes and J. Mills.

St. George's Society.

President Walter Stocker, of the St. George's Society, is in receipt of a telegram of greetings from the Society in London, England, also from the societies in Ottawa and Hamilton Yesterday was St. George's Day, but the local society did not hold a celebration, as fitting recognition of the day was made, by holding of the servile at St. John's church on Monday evening.

Street Watering Contracts.

The successful tenders for the street watering of the city, as let by the Boadc of Works are:

Western district—J. McNeill, $659.

North-Western District — Justus Blodgett, $629.29.

Northern District—Alex. O'Brien $595.

Eastern District—J. P. Francis, $510.

Other tenders received were Albert Valois, East City, $610; Adam Cox, East City, $500.

A Matter of Assessment.

Hastings Star: There was a special meeting of the council last Friday night to take up the tannery assessment question, it was decided to instruct the assessor to assess the tannery property as though there were no by-law as to fixed assessment. A great many are of the opinion that the tannery assessment would be something near the capitalization of the company but they must remember that machinery is not taxable when used in a manufacturing plant and that the land and buildings are the only property assessable.

Low Water Creates Havoc.

Yesterday Mr. Dave Johnston, who lives near Crawford's Grove, told a Times representative that the present low water in the Otonabee is playing havoc with wild fowl and fish. The bass and maskinonge are debarred from going to their usual spawning places. Trappers along the river set traps for muskrats and hundreds of wild ducks are being caught in the traps. The trapper is "between the devil and the deep sea." It is illegal to kill wild fowl now. On the other hand the S.P.C.A. might summons a man if he let a duck go with a leg broken by a trap. The ducks go into the department of the interior! A few days ago, Mr. Johnston found a magnificent specimen of the genus crane, caught in one of his traps. The crane's leg was broken and later on its neck.

NEW LIFE.

After one suffers for months from acid dyspepsia, sour stomach and the finds the remedy is in getting the right kind of food, it is somethin to speak about

An Eastern lady and her young son had such an experience and she wants others to know how to get relief. She writes:

"For about fifteen months my little boy and myself had suffered with sour stomach. We were unable to retain much of anything we ate.

"After suffering in this way for so long I decided to consult a specialist in stomach diseases. Instead of prescribing drugs, he put us both o Grape-Nuts and we began to improve immediately.

"It was the key to a new life. I found we had been eating too much heavy food which we could not digest. In a few weeks after commencing Grape-Nuts, I was able to do my housework. I wake in the morning with a clear head and feel rested and have no sour stomach. My boy sleeps well and wakes with a laugh.

"We have regained our lost weight and continue to eat Grape-Nuts for both the morning and evening meals. We are well and happy and owe it to Grape-Nuts."

ENVOY TO NORWAY MIXED IN MUDDLE

New Minister Hires Secretary, Then Learns Position Has Been Filled

Christiania, Norway, April 23.—Mr. Albert Schmedeman, United States Minister to Norway, is facing an unexpected and decidedly undesirable problem in "diplomacy" in King Haakon's capital. The problem is Minister Schmedeman's private secretary, Halvard Askeland, former assistant librarian of the Minneapolis Public Library.

SECRETARY APPOINTED

After Mr. Schmedeman had been in Christiania several weeks he was surprised one day to learn the Government had appointed a secretary of legation for the Norwegian post. He made hurried inquiries at Washington and learned to his dismay that the Government does not grant an allowance to foreign ministers for salaries of private secretaries.

A cablegram was rushed to Minneapolis imploring Mr. Askeland not to come. A letter explaining the situation would follow. This cable came too late. Mr. Askeland and his family were already on the Atlantic on their way to Norway.

Mr. Askeland arrived in Christiania ignorant of what was in store for him. Before meeting his supposed chief he gave interviews to the newspapers in which he detailed what he thought would be his duties as Minister Schmedeman's secretary. Then he sought the American legation.

GETS COLD RECEPTION

He met a cold reception from Minister Schmedeman. The American diplomat told him the Government had appointed a secretary of legation and that "there is nothing for a private secretary to do."

Askeland left the legation in a huff. He sought the aid of friends, who made a plea in his behalf. Meanwhile the winter social season was opened with the annual "slotsball" (King's ball) at the palace. Askeland's temper rose to a high pitch when Minister Schmedeman failed to send him an invitation. He obtained a card from friends and went to the ball.

USTLE MEXICAN WAR PREPARATIONS AND THE FIRST AMERICAN ARMY CORPS MOVES

shington Headquarters Bustling With Activity---Major General Wood in Charge of Expeditionary Force Keeps Eye on Events

ashington, April 24.—The War artment bustled with activity to- following the first actual move- t of the army in the Mexican is, the departure of the Fifth Bri- e of the first division from Gal- on by transport from Vera Cruz. ajor-Gen. Leonard Wood, desig- ed to take command of the troops the field, was in charge of the ernment, and he received reports ly stating that the Brigade had shipped and would leave later the day.

Anxiously Watch Border.

eantime, the department was bus- with conditions on the Texas bor- r, despite the friendly attitude as ned by General Villa in his state- nt yesterday, citizens of the towns g the border were apprehensive, the department received several plications for additional border ards. Gen. Wood and his aides efully scanned all information as the concentration of constitution- t forces in the neighborhood of arez, where Villa is located.

Expect Vera Cruz Attack.

Officials of the Navy and War De- rtments busied themselves with ns for further operations in the ighborhood of Vera Cruz. With the th Brigade, under General Funston the Mexican seaport, there will be ncentrated a force sufficient to hold city or to begin offensive opera- ns. Gen. Maas, the Huerta com- nder, who left Vera Cruz, was re- rted as concentrating all his avail- le forces at Soledad, 36 miles a- y on the railroad line to Mexico ty. Reports from Admiral Bad- r, however, said that the forces w in Vera Cruz should be able to hstand any attack. Meantime no ans for any movements on the nor- rn border were perfected. It gen- ally was understood that no offen- e operations would be undertaken o the territory controlled by the nstitutionalists at this time.

The Real Secret Of Rejuvenating the Face.

She holds the true secret of facial rejuvenation who has learned how to remove the dead skin particles as fast as they appear. It's a secret anyone may possess. The aged, faded or discolored surface skin may be gradually absorbed, in an entire safe and rational manner, by the nightly application of ordinary mercolized wax. Within a week or two the underlying skin, youthful and beautiful to behold, has taken the place of the discarded cuticle. So little of the old skin is absorbed each day there's no inconvenience at all, and no one suspects you are putting anything on your face. The mercolized wax, procurable at any drugstore (an ounce is sufficient) is applied like cold cream. In the morning it is washed off with soap and water. It's the best thing known for freckles, blackheads, pimples, moth patches, liver spots and fine surface wrinkles.

For the deeper wrinkles, an excellent recipe is: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolve in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution produces quick and wonderful results.

Toronto, April 24.—On behalf of the Government members of the Legislature Captain Machin, member for Kenora, to-day presented Hon. THE INSULT TO THE KING

"The First Authority in the World the Pope. We Are Loyal to the King, But the Pope Comes First."---Archbishop Langevin

The Pope's claim to temporal sovereignty was recognized at the "All-Western Catholic Banquet," at Winnipeg, on April 16th. The usual toast to the King was ignored. So it was at the banquet of the Ottawa College students last month, which was attended by Mr. Justice Anglin, Mr. Kyte M.P., and at least one of the federal deputy ministers. At Ottawa no protest was made, says the Sentinel, but out West a different conception of loyalty prevailed, and Sir D. C. Cameron, the Lieutenant-Governor, A. J. Taylor, the President of the Sons of England, and other prominent men, refused to be parties to the insult to the Empire through its official head.

The despatches in the daily press suggest that the trouble was a matter of precedence. It was nothing of the kind. There never was any intention of drinking the King's health or honoring the Empire. The toast list, printed on the front page of the North-West Review, on April 4th, twelve days before the banquet, shows that the affront to the King was deliberate. Here is the toast list as published in the English-speaking organ of the Roman hierarchy:

TOAST LIST

"THE POPE"—His Grace, Archbishop Langevin, of St. Boniface.

"CANADA"—The Honorable Chas. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice.

"OUR CLUB"—Alfred J. Kenshall, president of the Catholic Club.

"MISSION OF THE CATHOLIC LAITY" — His Lordship, Bishop Michael Fallon.

"OUR PROVINCE" —The Honorable Joseph Bernier, Provincial Secretary of Manitoba.

"WINNIPEG, THE METROPOLIS OF THE WEST" — His Worship, Mayor T. R. Deacon.

"OUR SISTER PROVINCE"—The Honorable W. F. A. Turgeon, Attorney-General of Saskatchewan.

"EDUCATION"— J. F. Power, Inspector of Separate Schools for Ontario.

"THE LADIES" — P. J. Healy.

Sir Rodmond Roblin, to his credit, did not attend. Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice of Canada, though a pronounced Roman Catholic, also had the good grace to stay away, and he sent a message of regret saying that "under ordinary circumstances" he would have been most happy to attend. But Hon. Joseph Bernier, who went into the Roblin Cabinet to advance the interests of his race and creed, and Hon, W. F. A. Turgeon, Attorney-General of Saskatchewan, the man mainly responsible for the tyrannical law compelling people to pay their taxes to sectarian schools, were very much in evidence. Mr. Bernier even went so far as to say, "I see no reason why the toast list should be changed."

It is pleasing to learn that the loyalists succeeded in having the national anthem sung at the opening of the banquet. But a principle was at stake and the fact that the toast to the King not only did not come before the toast of the Pope, but that it was omitted WITH THE CONSENT OF ALL PRESENT, cannot be glossed over. Even that ardent imperialist Bishop Fallon, was a party to the affront and allowed himself to be outdone in loyalty by Hon. C. J. Doherty.

It is a wonder that Protestants should make such a to-do over this assertion of Rome's temporal power policy. If Protestants were not ignorant about Rome's political activities in Canada, they would not be surprised by the incident, and they would know that the banquet really was a jubilation over Rome's conquest of Manitoba—and that they were invited to join at the feast.

But Archbishop Langevin should not jubilate too soon. The votes are not counted yet.

BAD WATER IS WORST FOE OF UNCLE SAMUEL

New York, April 24.—Bad water will be the army's worst foe in Mexico if war is declared according to Col. M. L. Maus, Chief Surgeon of the first army division, which has headquarters on Governor's Island. The water supply and sanitation system of Mexico, he explained, were so far behind modern methods that if an army should be sent into Mexico City an entirely new system would have to be provided.

ARMY RESENTS POLITICAL PLOTS

Has No Desire to Have Anything to Do With Happenings in Ulster

London, April 24.—Backbench members are likely to get a good show in the next six weeks debate initiated by Mr. Austen Chamberlain demanding a judicial inquiry into recent Ulster happenings. Neither side seems to think this debate will produce real results, seeing that a vote will certainly follow strict party lines. Unionist papers offer little comment to-day on the prospect of the debate.

Major-General Sir Alfred Turner, writing in the Times from long official experience in Ireland, says that both sides are credited unduly with plots to use the army as a stalking horse, the one to enforce the other to prevent decrees of parliament.

The army wishes to have nothing to do with politics and resents bitterly attempts of either side to drag it into the arena of so-called statesmanship.

It has alone emerged from this sorry affair with credit, truth and honor. What the public have the right to expect is that private members on both sides will combine to put pressure on the front benches to settle the Irish question at once and for all by federalization, excluding Ulster altogether from the operations of Home Rule.

If the present abortion of the bill, which pleases nobody, must be placed on the statute book, matters have gone too far to secure peace any other way.

A VERY LARGE DEPUTATION FROM NORTHERN ONTARIO ADVOCATED NEW RAILWAY LINE

THREE CHILDREN DEAD IN FIRE, MOTHER DYING

Holland, Mich., April 24.—Fire, which to-day destroyed the home of John Cloegsma in this city resulted in the death of three of Cloegsma's four children and the probable fatal injury of the mother, who was severely burned. The children ranged in age from one to four years. The children were suffocated. The father was burned about the head and arms and barely had time to escape. The origin of the fire has not been determined.

More Than a Hundred Prominent Men From New Ontario Waited Upon Members of Ontario Cabinet To-day and Went Away Well Satisfied

Toronto, April 24.—Mr. Charles McCrea, Conservative member for Sudbury, followed by over a hundred stalwarts from Northern Ontario, waited upon Hon. Mr. Hearst, Hon. Mr. Lucas, Hon. Mr. Duff, and Hon. Dr. Preston at the Parliament Buildings to-day. The delegation was composed of the leading men of Sudbury and the section of the north country which feels that the building of the line from Elk Lake to Sudbury via Gowganda is of vital importance.

They all spoke briefly and laid before the members of the Government reasons why the road should be built without loss of time. They were not, however, at all arbitrary in their mode of approach. They asked the Government to make a thorough investigation first of the country through which it was proposed to project the line. Then, if they saw fit and believed that the work was justified from a business and common sense point of view, it was urged that the road should be built.

A Rich District.

The mineral, timber and agricultural wealth of the country through which the line would pass was enlarged upon by the different speakers. Mr. Stull said that there would be a supply of ore there from two mines alone which would amount to 1,000 tons a day; pulp wood was to be found in large quantities; the mineral wealth of West Shining Tree was enormous while the Upper Sturgeon and the Wahnapitae valleys were laden with a wealth of pulp wood and other timber.

Mr. McCrea said the Government should investigate.

Mr. Hearst's Reply.

Hon. Mr. Hearst assured the delegation that the Government appreciated the fair way in which the request had been presented. Referring to a remark of one of the speakers that the T. & N.O. Commission had promised in 1907 to build the line, the Minister said it was the first he had heard of it. Further he felt sure that if the T. & N.O. had given such a promise they had adequate reasons for not fulfilling it. The Government could not promise to build the road. They were now carrying on a full investigation and had three survey parties in the field. The resources of the Government, however, were limited and the "Boy Wonder" (Hon. Mr. Lucas, Provincial Treasurer), had asked when the demand from the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines on the treasury was to cease. The Government had to be sure that there was a reasonable chance of the road paying its way in the future before they could proceed with its construction. If it did not pay it meant an added burden on the whole Province. Mr. Hearst pointed out that the Government had made an appropriation of $275,000 to proceed with the work this year if the reports justified it.

A VERY CRAFTILY-WORDED AMENDMENT FAILS IN RESULT

Has Not United Rapidly Drifting Factions of the Liberal Party--Compromise Laurier Hope

Ottawa, April 24.—The Liberal fiscal policy announced by Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday has not been received with much enthusiasm by the party at Ottawa. It was frankly and candidly a compromise, and it is hard to enthuse over a compromise. The Liberal amendment was an ingenious attempt to frame a policy which would meet the views of the two factions in the party. The trouble with the amendment is that it is too ingeniously worded, and no one has been found in Ottawa brave enough to attempt to interprit it.

Dr. Clark, of Red Deer, in his speech last night, declared that it was a move towards free trade, but this is denied by the protectionist wing. That it was framed with a view to different interpretations east and west is one opinion.

As for the Conservatives they refuse to take the latest Liberal fiscal policy very seriously. Free wheat and free agricultural implements are questions on which there is a straight issue. The third plank reads as follows:

"Without doing injustice to any class steps should be taken to alleviate the high cost of living by considerate removal of taxation." This third plank is treated as somewhat of a joke, especially in view of Sir Wilfrid's announcement only four months ago at Hamilton in favor of free food.

It is pointed out that this third plank does not even favor reduced taxation by a lowering of the tariff. The use of the word "considerate" is regarded as politically clever, and has been interpreted to "considerable" "consideration," and "moderate." The whole craftily-worded amendment is a clever attempt to keep together two factions of a political party which on fiscal questions are rapidly drifting apart.

TRENT CANAL POWER

Ottawa, April 24.—Directing the attention of the Government to the statement reported to have been made to the Ontario Provincial Legislature yesterday by Hon. Adam Beck, to the effect that the Dominion had handed over the Province all the waterpowers developed by the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, Hon. Mr. Graham in Parliament this afternoon, asked for facts.

"I am not able to give any definite information at the moment," replied Premier Borden. "So far as I am aware, no definite arrangement has been made, but I will look the matter up."

TO ARRANGE FOR SOCIETIE'S DAY

To-night at 8 o'clock, in the S.O.E. hall, on Hunter street, kindly loaned for the occasion, a meeting will be held by representatives of the various Fraternal Societies of this city to organize a "Societies Day" for Peterborough. It is to be hoped that several representatives from all the local fraternal organizations will be present. The idea is to arrange for holding a "Societies Day" in this city. The meeting is to be informal. Committees will probably be struck to arrange for the day designated. The subject of getting united efforts of the Board of Trade and City Council towards hiring some bright man to visit towns and cities within a radius of say 100 miles and call upon the fraternal organizations in such places with a view towards getting excursions run to Peterborough. This is a move that would probably appeal to local merchants and the citizens in general. It will likely, to-night, be discussed whether it is advisable to have conjoint action towards promulgating an idea of the various fraternal societies celebrating some Sunday during the coming summer, whereby such societies may march, towards a designated spot and there separate and attend the various churches as may be settled in detail later.

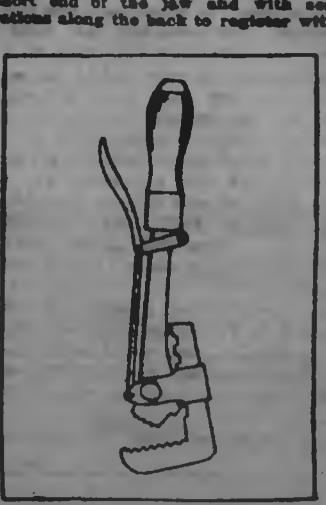
NEW KIND OF WRENCH

Head Fits Over Serrations That Prevent Its Slipping

A wrench that is said to have unusual strength and gripping power is a new invention. A movable jaw is pivoted on the one. The jaw is L-shaped, with teeth along The jaw is L-shaped, with teeth along its short end and with recesses in the long end. The head of the wrench is also formed with teeth facing the short end of the jaw and with serrations along the back to register with the recesses in the long portion of the jaw. A rod leads down to the handle, and by means of this rod the jaw is tightened around the pipe or nut or whatever it is the wrench is used on. Once this grip is secured the locking means along the back prevent the jaw from working loose until it is freed by means of the connecting rod.



CANNOT WORK LOOSE.

COST OF LONG LIVING

In Seventy Years a Man Consumes a Mountain of Food

Have you any idea of the amount of food you will have eaten if you attain the age of seventy-five—providing, of course, that you are of average height, weight, and appetite?

Fifty-four tons of solid food, and fifty-three tons of liquid—about 1,300 times your own weight! That is the take-your-breath-away answer.

The tons of bread you have consumed would equal in size a small family hotel, and a ton and a quarter would be the equivalent weight of butter.

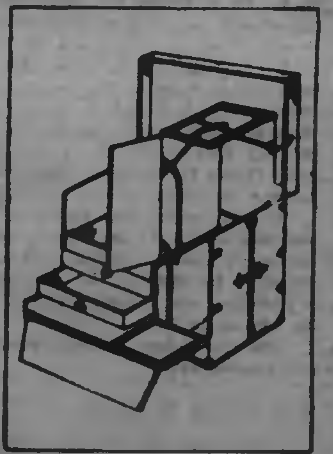
If you had been a lover of bacon and were to stretch it out in single slices, four miles would be the length. Five tons of fish, and 12,000 eggs stand to your credit, whilst a normal cheese eater easily consumes 400 pounds.

The vegetables you have consumed would fill a train three miles long, and to that train-load you could add 10,000 pounds of sugar, and 1,500 pounds of salt

A COMPACT TRUNK

Can be Opened up to Provide all the Comforts of Home

Since the wardrobe trunk was first invented there have been many variations, and one of the latest is that shown in the picture. This is not like the usual wardrobe trunk—tall and vertical in position. It is substantially square in shape, but when opened up it forms a regular dresser and has a compartment that rises to twice its normal height and provides a wardrobe in which garments can be kept unfolded and can be slid in and out on hangers as in regular wardrobes and the tall trunks. Furthermore, this trunk forms a dresser, with an assortment of drawers, in which a man can keep his clothing as he packed it. Traveling with one of these trunks, one need not have any other article of furniture in a room but a bed and a chair. He can hang a mirror in the trunk lid.



NO OTHER DRESSER NEEDED.

Frowsy Kings

It has been suggested that, for the sake of historical accuracy, the impersonator of Charles II. at the Versailles fete should have been shabbily dressed, as that monarch was by no means particular about his clothes. Too much precision in making-up for masquerades would, however, upset some of the participants. To impersonate Louis XVI. with accuracy it would be necessary to abstain from washing, a little cold cream applied with a handkerchief being the only tribute he paid to cleanliness. In St. Simon's detailed account of the king's day, from the passing of his periwig through the closed bedcurtains in the morning to the ceremonial placing of the nightshirt over his shoulders when he retired, there is no mention of any ablutions.—London Chronicle.

Our Sermon for the week

Pastor Bond Street Congregational Church, Toronto

"UNDER-RATED PEOPLE"

Text: "Seeing I am a poor man and lightly esteemed."—1 Sam. xviii:23.

I hold a brief for the under-rated, for those whom the world has not sized up properly, and who therefore do not earn as much as they should, whose advice is not listened to as it ought to be, and who, consequently, cannot do the good they might otherwise accomplish.

There is always a reason for the discounting of talents. I divide all possible causes into three classes: Causes which the under-rated ones themselves can cure, causes for which the outside world is to blame, and causes for which no one in particular is to blame, but which will in time disappear. The great majority of under-rated people may seek the reason for their discounted position in the first group.

Some over-rate their own under-ratedness. When David complained that he was a poor man and lightly esteemed, he did not realize how many heads were at that very moment turned his way. Men do not, in after life, get marks as they did at school. People do not run alongside of the meritorious man every day and say, "Good boy." Preachers need not expect a whole congregation to walk up to the chancel after service and say, "Doctor, that was a fine sermon." The only consolation the lonely parson has is that silence bids content, and that when folks don't like the sermon they will be more apt to say something by way of comment than when they are satisfied. Many men under-value their place in life and wish some other form of success. Thirty British army officers were floating down the St. Lawrence one dark night, on their way to the greatest British victory in the new world. The general quoted a stanza of Gray's "Elegy," just published in England, adding, "I would rather be the author of those lines than to take Quebec to-morrow." And yet the eyes of a nation were on Wolfe, and Canada is his monument forever. So Carlyle envied the stonemason work of his father, and sighed as he declared: "A noble craft is that of a mason. A good building will outlast a book." He did not foresee that his books would be likely to survive even the sturdy walls of Scotland's rock-hewn castles.

Do not under-rate your influence. Jowett said: "To have carried out some one purpose during thirty years, to have contributed sensibly to the happiness of others, to have kept a family together, to have added somethink real, if not very great, to the stock of human knowledge; to have been a good teacher; whoever obtains any of these aims cannot be said to have lived in vain; as the world goes, he may fairly claim to be called a successful man."

Some are under-rated by the world on account of their timidity. They are altogether too modest. They cannot, like Leonardo da Vinci, write some duke to offer their services, advertising the wares of their accomplishments with confidence. There is a happy medium between a shrinking timidity and a brazen conceit. Two kinds of shop keepers there are who need not hope to succeed—those who carry all their goods in their show windows, and those who have none on display. A good sign for a well-filled window is, "We have more goods inside." But if you had all the silks of Paris in a Yonge street store it would profit you nothing unless you let the public know about them. "Boldness," said Francis Bacon, "is the first and last requisite of success in statesmanship." Be sure you can do one thing well, young man, and then modestly but boldly offer it to the world.

Others are not fairly rated because they have not found their right place in life. The world judges us by our trade. If you are apt in your calling, be it ever so humble, you will be appropriately rewarded. But if you are a failure as a doctor, the community will write you down as a ninny, forgetting to add as postscript that you would have excelled as a lawyer. Neither will the world take out its jack-knife to whittle into adjustment round men who happen to be in square holes. They will merely smile at the ludicrous sight and pass on.

Many men are under-rated because they try to serve the world too soon. Native ability is lost through lack of training. Young men want to get out into the strife of life. They may even be prompted by a religious motive. They hurry to help save a world. A man must be self-centred if he would have the circumference of his influence to touch others. A certain kind of selfishness must precede altruism. The Master served himself and his family before He gave His brief but potent three years' service to humanity at large. Suppose George A. Cox had given away his first thousand dollars, he would have lost the leverage to lift enterprises which enabled him to give away millions. Had Dr. Grenfell contributed all his evenings in early life in his zeal to save men, he could not have developed the talents which he now so freely bestows upon the poor fisher folk of Labrador. The steam in the boiler cries, "Let me out so I can escape; I want to run something." The iron rivets answer, "Not yet, not yet. Wait until you concentrate and gather irresistible force; then you will run a locomotive at sixty miles an hour. Gather the steam of your enthusiasm in a boiler of power. Wait! Do not spend all your evenings now for others. Serve yourself first, and then you shall acquire something wherewith to bless the world.

Next, the difficulty with some people is that they fail to get into step with great movements. They have ability, but not adaptability. They cannot adjust themselves to the occasion. Braddock was one of England's greatest soldiers, but he insisted on fighting savages in the wilderness with the same military precision and manoeuvring with which he had fought Frenchmen on the open plain. No guerilla warfare for him! No Washingtonian suggestions for his troops! So he lost, not only his army, but his life! Some preachers cannot adapt themselves to their community. They cannot popularize their material. Carlyle did not get into step with the advancing hosts of reform, so he said in 1860: "I never thought that the rights of a negro were worth discussing, anyway." His heart did not develop with his head.

Some hide their ability in their tactlessness. I know an elderly man who is a fine penman and a good linguist, but he is constantly on the ragged side of starvation. He no sooner lands a position than he starts in to get himself disliked by his fellows. He imagines that he can curry favor by reporting the delinquencies of other employes to the chief. A man gave him a day's work and an overcoat, but he lingered to pester his benefactor by trying to sell him a book and solicit funds for a charity. That man has been discounted on account of his bothering remarks and his boorish habits.

Slovenliness is another cause of real merit being sold below par. Samuel Johnston's great gifts shone forth at last in spite of the gluttony and unkemptness which had handicapped him for years. Horace Greeley never stepped out to discuss with sagacity the questions of the campaign without a titter from the crowd on account of his grotesque attire.

Alas! many are under-rated because they are careless about their reputation—not their reputation as artist, or merchant, or preacher, but their reputation as men or women. Reputation is what men are saying or thinking about us; not to our faces, but behind our backs. Reputation is the verdict [illegible] the [illegible] is rendering [illegible] dence [illegible] to [illegible] careless [illegible] standard [illegible] will the world endure the libertine or the drunkard in high places. Grover Cleveland was a great president, but I doubt whether he could be elected to-day with the same blemish which he admitted having in 1884. I yield to none in my admiration for Sir John A. Macdonald, but can you believe we would suffer his habits to-day, as our fathers did fifty years ago?

But this whimsical old world sometimes fails to appreciate her servants. Not always does a man get what his merit deserves. Men judge by outward appearances and sometimes most unjustly. We dare not declare that every man gets his exact dues. Many a pearl is still in the unfathomed caves of ocean. It was not to the credit of the voters of South Waterloo that they rejected the scholarly James Young for an ignorant German blacksmith. No question before the electorate was big enough to justify that mistake. Blaine was set aside for the much smaller-calibred Harrison. The great Henry Clay was beaten by the negative James Polk. Henry Ward Beecher said that the world over-estimated the silent man. "There is great cunning in judicious silence," he said, "but the frank man is rarely taken at his full value."

The frank man in the ministry often learns to his sorrow that it does not always pay in dollars to have positive opinions or to be frank in stating his position. Dr. Rainsford, who preached so fearlessly at Convocation Hall the other week, wrote some years ago: "It is not easy to be a clergyman and speak your mind. If I were to leave St. George's to-day I very much doubt whether I should have a call to many churches, certainly not to many influential ones. St. George's would not have called me only they were so hard up."

The last group of causes of the under-rating of men embraces the legitimate wariness of the world. Yonder is a young fellow with the gifts of a Cecil Rhodes in business or of a Bryan in eloquence, but the world does not know it yet. He must bide his time. That he is not given his rightful place to-day is nobody's fault. Be patient, young David! You will not long be lightly esteemed. You will at length get at least an approximate reward of merit. The world is not to be blamed for putting your stock at twenty-five cents on the dollar until it is clearly established that it is worth a hundred.

In the end, God's men win. Earth may not witness their triumphs, but somewhere, some day, they come to their own. The stone which the builders refused will become the head stone of the corner. "We esteemed him not," is changed into "He is the fairest among ten thousand." Some day the unrewarded conquerors of earth will receive their crowns. Men misunderstood, and misjudged, and under-rated will get their "Well done." But we need Heaven for such a vindication.

FINE CHECKS AND DARK PLAIDS FAVORED FOR TAILORED SUITS

Almost extinct is the old-fashioned, strictly tailored suit; it has been replaced by one showing easier lines; this may be suitably worn accompanied by one of the sheer lacey blouses that have become such general favorites for the past season or two, for an afternoon tea or a bridge party. The ever-young shepherd checks in black and white are being combined with plain cloth or serge in these suits and in a recent showing of French models quite a number of colored checks were noticed. It is a pleasing fad to pipe the lines with a bright green or scarlet; this introduces just enough contrast for conservative dressers and renders the dress or suit more becoming.

The suit shown in No. 7065-7420 has a coat of black cloth with skirt of black and white check; revers and vest are also of the check. Black bone buttons are used to trim and close the coat. This coat (7065) may be made in size 36, with 2¾ yards of 42-inch material; the skirt (7420) requires 3¼ yards of the same width.

A figured silk crêpe is used in the other gown, 8127-8148; it is two shades of blue with trimming bands and sash of plain blue satin. A chemisette of net and black velvet buttons complete the frock. To copy this dress in size 36 the blouse (8127) requires 2⅝ yards of 36-inch material and the skirt (8148) 4 yards of the same width.

No. 7065—sizes 34 to 48.
No. 7420—sizes 22 to 32.

BELTS AND SASHES STRONG FEATURES OF FROCKS AND SUITS

We may appear to follow Fashion slavishly, but there are times when we feel that we must express a bit of our own personality in our dress. The lines may be of the most approved mode; the color may be the latest shade; and the material the same that every one is wearing, but now and then an opportunity comes for us to add a touch of our own, without disarranging the scheme of things. The fad of belting and sashing our frocks and suits in various ways gives the artistic woman a wide field for this sort of thing. She may be able to tie a knot that is fascinating and impossible to copy, or she may be clever in combining colors. Some of the new crepes are charming for sash purposes and with the right kind of a frock, a touch of Chinese embroidery would be wonderfully artistic.

No. 8228 is a one-piece frock for a young girl; it is fashioned of moiréd taffetas and silk crepe in which there is a figure repeating the color of the moire; a cleverly knotted sash of the crepe gives an unusually graceful appearance to the youthful figure.

These moiréd taffetas range in width from 38 to 45 inches and may be purchased from $1.25 up; the silk crepes average about the same in width and may be purchased as low as 75 cents a yard.

This dress requires for a girl of 16 4½ yards of 36 inch material.

This suit requires for a boy of 4 1⅝ yards of 36 inch linen or cotton material.

No. 8228—sizes 14 to 18.
No. 8160—sizes 2 to 6.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

THE BLACK HAND

Famous Pianist Has Become a Nervous Wreck

Paderewski, the famous pianist, has become a nervous wreck owing to the numerous threats to kill him which have been made by the notorious Black Hand Society in America. He is one of the most heavily-insured men in the world. His right hand alone is insured for $50,000. On one occasion he split a fingernail badly and, in consequence, could not play for some days He got $5,000 from an insurance company.

Paderewski once listened to an ambitious girl's playing. "She must be very charitable," was his comment. "Surely she letteth not her left hand know what her right hand doeth."

On several occasions, after his recitals at Queen's Hall, London, the pianist was "mobbed" by admirers—chiefly ladies. The same thing happened in America. In Boston he had a tooth extracted. The fact became known, with the result that the dentist was besieged with the pianist's admirers, each anxious to secure the molar. A wealthy widow made the highest bid, and the prize now dangles as a charm set in gold—from her watch chain

OUR POINT OF VIEW

Eleven miners and three militiamen dead in Trinidad. Peace has its victories as well as wat.

But to enforce American customs wharf methods in the Vera Cruz custom house will be the height of barbarity !

A lion has just eaten a missionary in the Soudan. So it does happen outside the comic papers.

Mr. Taft has gone on record, as holding that "Mr. Roosevelt is a very emphatic man — one might almost say a positive man."

Several German as well as English cotton spinning firms have large cotton growing plantations in Mexico whereon they raise cotton and ship directly to their mills in Europe.

El Pais, of Mexico City, says: "In these solemn moments serenity is the only thing that can save us." Our Mexican neighbors discourse much of serenity but it would have poor resistance to a thirteen-inch shell.

Four Americans killed : More than in the battles of Manila bay and Santiago.

Apparently the chief resistance met by the marines at Vera Cruz was not from the regular troops, but by inhabitants firing from the windows and housesteps. The guerilla warfare is a national trait. During the Peninsular war in Spain the peasantry and the residents of besieged cities made the French marshals more trouble than did the Spanish soldiery.

THE TURKO-FRENCH BARGAIN

The best assurance of Turkey's renunciation of a warlike policy is the French Government's agreement to permit the issue of the long delayed loan. That Turkey had given satisfactory assurances to the European powers was indicated some days ago by Sir Edward Grey's statement in the House of Commons that the embargo on the lending of money to the Porte by British bankers had been withdrawn. Turkey has slowly given way before the weapons of finance. The net result of her resistance is the loss of six months' use of 9140,000,000. For the amount of the loan, its terms, and the Asiatic harbor and railroad concessions, were all arranged in October last.

The advance of the money would have been sanctioned then qut for Enver Pasha's dream of regaining Albania through a rising headed by Turkish officers, and his refusal to accept the decision of the powers that Greece should retain possession of all but two of the Aegean islands. Since the Albanian expedition proved a fiasco, and the recapture of Chios and Mytilene looked even more difficult, while Europe frowned and money grew scarcer, Enver and his colleagues have seen the futility of attempting a renewal of war, and promised, if they can only get the loan, to devote their energy to the reform of administration and the peaceful development of their country's natural resources.

What may prove the most valuaqle feature of the Turco-French bargain is the concession for a 600-mile railway that will run through Kurnistan and Armenia.

Lame Back Strengthened Stiffness Taken Right Out

Was Relieved in An Hour, and Cured in a Night

A lame back! Quite unnecessary. All you have to do is to rub on Nerviline. It's simply a wonder for backache—relieves after one rubbing. "Nothing possibly could cure an aching back faster than Nerviline," writes Mrs. Arthur Kobar, of Lower Chelsea, N.S. "I caught cold and was so prostrated with pain I could not bend over. We always have Nerviline at home, and I had the painful region rubbed thoroughly with this grand liniment. At once the pain departed. The lameness was rapidly reduced and in an hour I was able to be about my housework. I was rubbed again just before retiring, and awoke as usual in the morning without a sign of my back trouble."

There is no sort of muscular pain that Nerviline won't cure quickly. Thousands swear by it for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and lumbago. It sinks to the core of the pain—right through muscle, tissue and nerve— it penetrates where no oily, greasy liniment can go and invariably cures quickly. If you have an ache or a pain anywhere—use Nerviline—it will [illegible]. Family size bottle, very large 50c.; trial size 25c. at all dealers.

PENALTY OF GENIUS

Genius and ill-health, it would seem, often go hand in hand. At any rate, some of the greatest deeds that the world has seen performed have been accomplished by men physically infirm.

Darwin suffered so acutely from nervous exhaustion that he could only work for two hours a day at the most; Thackeray was frequently ill; Johnson nearly always in poor health; Dickens at the age of fifty-five was an old man with shattered nerves; whilst Sir Walter Scott, a subject to spasms, was a chronic invalid during the later years of his life, and died at the age of fifty-nine.

Milton, William Morris, and Charles Keane, the actor, all were slaves to gout, and Milton was further handicapped by being blind. The poet Keats died of consumption when still quite young. Elizabeth Barrett Browning was an invalid for the greater part of her life.

ANCIENT SURGERY

Bone-setting Practised in Egypt Six Thousand Years Ago

At a lecture delivered in London, Dr. F. M. Sandwith, consulting surgeon to the Khedive of Egypt, said that the first surgeon of whom he could find any record lived at the time of the fifth Egyptian dynasty, and must have been court doctor to the Pharaoh some 4,000 years before the Christian era.

The first surgical implements of which anything was known, said Dr. Sandwith, were splints found in the Nubian Desert. In one place a graveyard was found, and here were remains of bodies with fractured limbs that had been set with bark splints. One was a right thigh bone that had been broken, and was still held in position by a workmanlike splint and bandages.

All the knots were true reef knots, and the wrapping showed how the strips of palm fiber cloth were set just as a good surgeon would set them nowadays, so as to use the full strength of the fabric.

In other cases, bodies were found with compound fractures, where the broken ends of the bone had broken through the skin. Death seemed to have come very quickly after an accident of this kind, for no trace of healing of the bones was to be found

OLIVES AND OLIVE OIL

The Increased Use of These Would Mean Improved Health

If the taste for olives were generally cultivated and the use of highest grade olive oil made a part of the daily diet, the health of the people would be materially improved. It is as a delicacy, however, that the olive and its oil has become known and popular in Canada. Their use as regular articles of diet is confined to the comparatively few who have acquainted themselves with the history and many virtues of the olive and have themselves experienced untold satisfaction and benefit from the daily use of it and its products.

There is a reason for this lassitude. There are hundreds of varieties of olives grown in many districts, some of very inferior quality. Obsolete methods of handling that are anything but sanitary prevail in many sections, and the oil readily lends itself to adulteration by mixing with oil of the cottonseed, peanut, sesame, curracchee and many others.

Fancy Huckaback Towel

An unusually handsome towel can be made of heavy linen huck and coronation crochet insertion. Procure a huck towel of the size desired (the insertion is rather too heavy for the small guest towel with hemstitched ends). Cut one end off about an inch and a half above the hem. On the raw edge of the towel and on the raw edge of the piece cut off make the narrowest possible hems by hand. The coronation crochet to be used is that beautiful lace made by crocheting coronation braid into a design with heavy crochet cotton. Join the two pieces of the towel, after they are each hemmed, by whipping on to both small hems the strip of insertion. Only one end of the towel should be ornamented in this fashion, the hemstitching being sufficient for the other end.

Some Dress Allowances

Some idea of the enormous sum spent by society women in Chicago on personal adornment may be gathered from figures which were given at a convention of the Chicago Dressmakers' Club. According to these statistics, several of the leaders of society spend no less than $75,000 a year on dress, while one hundred of the women who form the "élite" of the city were said to have a yearly expenditure of $50,000 apiece. Ten thousand others spend the mere trifle of $5,000 per annum to deck themselves.

Over 940 acres each: Lord St. Germans (Blackheath), Mr. H. W. Forster (Lewisham), Mr. H. T. B. Barron (Plumstead), and Sir Spencer Maryon-Wilson (Hampstead and Charlton).

Over 480 acres: Duke of Westminster (Pimlico).

Over 220 acres each: Lord Dartmouth (St. Pancras and Lewisham), Prudential Assurance Company (various districts), Mercers' Company (various districts), and Magdalen College, Oxford (Wandsworth).

The total number of owners is given as 38,200, the number of individuals owning one house each as about 14,000, and of those owning five acres or more 700. The area held by railway companies and public authorities is about twenty-two square miles.

WIFE AND NO WIFE

English Lady's Marriage to a French Count Annulled

To put an end to an intolerable state of things, Sir Samuel Evans, President of the Divorce Division, in granting a decree of divorce, said he was departing from a rigid rule of law. Unless he granted a decree the lady was no wife in France, but, were she to marry again in England, she would be liable to prosecution for bigamy.

The case was that in which the Countess Kate de Montaigu sought the dissolution of her marriage on the ground of the desertion, from her husband, Count Réne de Montaigu, son of a French marquis.

Married in 1909, at the Rugby Registry Office, the Countess, an English woman, lived with her husband near Rugby. In 1911 he went away to Paris, and never returned to her. The Countess said that she and her husband intended to live in England, but since the proceedings were started she had discovered that her husband's father had obtained a decree of nullity of her marriage in France. Under French law, it was explained, when a Frenchman designedly went abroad to get married in order to evade the laws of his own country the marriage could be annulled under the heading of "clandestinity."

Sir Samuel Evans also said that the case raised an extraordinary state of affairs, and, having regard to all the circumstances, he would follow precedent in similar cases, and would grant the lady a divorce under the law of the land in which she was born.

WOMEN'S POOR WAGES

Sixty-four Cents for Fifty-five Hours' Work, Then Fined Twenty-four Cents

How urgent is the necessity for an increase in the staff of women inspectors in England, is shown in a report of the Women's Trade Union League, from which the following particulars are culled:

In a weaving mill a girl eighteen years of age, who earned 64 cents for a week's work of fifty-five hours, was fined 24 cents for bad work. For talking at their work eighteen girls were fined 48 cents each. In a collar factory workers were charged 10 cents for cotton which they can buy outside for 1 cent. They are fined 4 cents for leaving a needle in their work.

Factory girls who were working from nine till six were compelled to take home bundles. Sometimes they worked till ten and eleven o'clock. Girls leave the factory to work at night in the employer's private house. Women packers, who worked on the ground floor with the door open, sometimes hit their finger instead of the nails, they were so cold. Girls stand all day in damp places, partly in the open air, and have their hands in cold water all day. Their hands are so covered with sores and chilblains as to be almost useless.

Girls making medicated lozenges work in a room full of fumes. In one cafe the workers kept crockery on the cloak-room floor, which is swept four times a day. It is then carried into the dining-room, where there are no means of washing it. In rooms full of fumes girls have to eat lunch at the bench where they work.

The report pointed out that there has been no real increase in the staff of women inspectors since 1906, although the number of women workers has increased from about 1,500,000 to nearly 2,000,000.

REMARKABLE TWINS

Names Merely Transposed, Both Have Long Prison Records

The remarkable Stevenage twins, Ebenezer Albert Fox and Albert Ebenezer Fox, aged fifty-five, whose resemblance to each other has led to more than one complication, were charged at Enfield as suspected persons.

Evidence was given that both men were seen on a farm at Crews Hill. They had a gun and rabbit snares, and one of them (the farmer could not distinguish between them, owing to their similarity) demanded money while the other bolted.

Ebenezer Albert said he was occasionally employed by a magistrate and had been out shooting with the King. He would not be allowed to go out with the King if he were a dishonest man.

A detective was about to tell the story of the twin's career when the chairman said: "Now, we must be very clear about this. You are Albert Ebenezer, aren't you?" (pointing to one of the prisoners). "No," was the reply. "That is where you are mistaken. I am Ebenezer Albert."

The officer said that Ebenezer Albert had been convicted thirty-five times, including one term of ten years' penal servitude, and that Albert Ebenezer had been convicted sixty-five times, mostly for poaching and assaulting the police.

Ebenezer Albert declared that he had been wrongfully convicted for his brother.

"We will see there is no mistake this time," said the magistrate. "One month each."

LITTLE USED TITLES

His Majesty Inherited a Considerable Estate From John of Gaunt

Comparatively few people are aware that their Majesties are Duke and Duchess of Lancaster. The first Duke of Lancaster was King George's ancestor, John of Gaunt, and when his son and successor became King as Henry IV. the dukedom became merged in the Royal title and has so remained ever since. The net revenue derived by the King from the duchy is about $800,000 a year, but this revenue is not all derived from Lancashire. John of Gaunt's estates were spread about the country, and the King to-day has a direct interest in the Savoy district in the Strand, where John of Gaunt's town palace was.

Her Majesty is the Duchess of Lancaster

LONELY MAN'S END

Lost on the Alps, the Awful Solitude Drove Him to Suicide

One of the most pathetic tragedies in Alpine annals is that of the suicide of a Vienna coffee-house keeper named Kumpoecht, whose body was found in the Styrian Alps.

Kumpoecht and a friend named Werner climbed the Great Buchstein. During the descent bad weather set in, and they lost their way. Finally they got into a rocky gorge, where Kumpoecht broke down. Both spent the night in a small grotto. Kumpoecht was so exhausted next morning that Werner was forced to leave him, with nearly a week's provisions, promising to send a rescue party from the valley.

After ten hours' climbing Werner arrived at the foot of the mountain, but he was so weak and sick that he could not accompany the rescuers, who failed to find the grotto in the fog. Another party found Kumpoecht dead. Driven to despair by weakness and loneliness, he had committed suicide by cutting an artery and stabbing himself in the chest. His last will and some diary notes were found. "I must commit suicide. I can't stand it longer. Nobody comes to help. I cannot eat and cannot sleep. I see men in the valley, but nobody comes. How ungrateful are men! Good-bye! One minute more and all is over."

The Cost of Strikes

The latest available statistics show that during the past 12 years there were 1,319 labor strikes in Canada, involving 319,390 men. Nine millions working days were thus lost at a cost to the country of $12,000,000 figured at an average wage of $2 per day.

New Malines Best for the Home Worker

By MADGE MARVEL

"HOME milliners should understand the possibilities of maline," says Ora Cue, the milliner, who teaches thousands of women the art of hat making each year. "I class the appreciation of this most excellent fabric as one of the fundamentals of millinery success. It ranks in the front of the list of 'What Every Milliner Ought to Know,' if I may paraphrase the play. Now that there is such a reaction against the use of feathers, maline becomes the most useful of fabrics for hat trimming, as well as for the hats themselves.

"For example, there is the 'plantain tree.' Where could one find a more attractive trimming where some height is demanded?

How to Make Bows.

"To make this, take a strip of satin-covered lace wire, and over it fold strips of maline, one thickness for each strip, pasting it in place with the paste which comes for the purpose. Make the middle of the ornament secure with ropes of the maline wound round and round, and leave the ends to fasten it on the hat.

"Then there are the smart maline and moire bows which are used with such splendid effect at the back of hats. They are particularly good on the new high-crowned sailor hats which are so popular this season.

"To make one bow requires a yard and a half each of ribbon and maline. Fold the maline in the centre and lay the ribbon on the top. Run a double row of machine stitching on both selvages and between the stitching run aluminum wire. Tie the bow over in a centre knot and cut the ends of maline and ribbon to form a not too pronounced flare.

"The maline 'stick-up' has generally superseded the feather on many hats. In making, use four thicknesses, and stitch them together on the machine, and run a wire between the stitching. Then cut the ends of the maline into any design that pleases and use four or five in a cluster.

"Rabbit ears seem never to go out of style. They are the simplest of all ornaments to make. They should be made eight thicknesses, and in any size you wish. Stitch them in shape on a sewing machine and then turn them so the raw edges will be on the inside. Run a fine wire around them to keep them in shape.

Methods of Cleaning.

"Little bunches of maline fruit are a splendid means of using up bits of stuff left over after making the hat. They can be rolled into cherries or tiny apples or berries, and covered with two or three thicknesses of new and fresh maline, and held in place by winding silk thread around them. Clip off the surplus and fasten them on wire stems in the manner the natural fruit would grow, and where the stem is attached wind it with green rope silk such as is used for embroidery. Arrange these bunches of fruit with the proper foliage, and you will have for a few pennies' outlay what you would find on imported hats at a pretty cost.

"Now that everything in the hat world seems to have a lacquered appearance it may be useful for the home milliner to know how to shine up her black straw bonnet. Dissolve black sealing wax in spirits and when it is thoroughly mixed apply with a stiff brush.

"Perhaps the little girl's white leghorn hat is simply soiled, but otherwise suitable for wearing this year. In that case it may be cleaned in wood alcohol applied with a sponge.

"Another excellent way to clean leghorn hats is by covering the hat with a paste made of sulphur and lemon juice. Cover the hat with the paste and let it remain until it is dried. Then brush the powder off and the hat will be its original color. Iron it under a damp cloth with a heavy iron."

Words of Wise Men

From hand to mouth will never make a worthy man.—Gaelic Proverb.

He who has acquired wealth in time, unless he saves it in time will in time come to starvation.—Plautus.

A fool can no more see his folly than he can see his ears.—Thackeray.

There is no legitimacy on earth but in a government which is the choice of the nation.—Joseph Bonaparte.

Riches amassed in haste will diminish; but those collected by hand and little by little will multiply.—Goethe.

Frugality may be termed the daughter of Prudence, the sister of Temperance, and the parent of Liberty.—Dr. Johnson.

The natural law of human life is, of course, that in youth a man shall labor and lay by store for his old age, and when age comes, shall use what he has laid by, gradually slackening his toil, and allowing himself more frank use of his store, taking care always to leave himself as much as will suffice for him beyond any possible length of life.—Ruskin.

Sir Walter Scott regarded with reverence everything connected with antiquity. The influence of this poetic sentiment is discernible in his most trifling acts, in his tastes, his love of the arts, his social habits. Akin to the feelings of which we have been speaking was the truly chivalric sense of honor which stamped his whole conduct. We do not mean that Hotspur honor which is roused only by the drum and fife—though he says of himself, "I like the sound of a drum as well as Uncle Toby ever did"—but that honor which is deep-seated in the heart of every true gentleman, shrinking with sensitive delicacy from the least stain, or imputation of stain on his faith.—W. H. Prescott.

APRIL SHOWERS

NOT a downright torrent of rain, you know, but one of those sudden, fitful showers which sometimes seem to come out of a clear sky.

In this particular case the blue sky glimpses between those long lashes of hers gave, perhaps, no preparatory hint. Then came a microscopic lightning flash, followed by the low thunder of protest from him, and PRESTO the drops were plunging down.

You can't usually explain these things. Sometimes, if you have GREAT talent, you can manage them.

Mostly it's a question of knowing JUST what to do and how to do it when the rainbow appears. That's the delicate moment after all. With lovers or with stage artists there is a lot in the "make up." No wonder Cupid so often holds his breath in anxiety.

My Best Complexion "Musts"

By MAGGIE TEYTE

The noted prima donna.

WHAT'S the use of rubbing sweet-smelling unguents into the face while we let "raggedy" nerves eat up our vitality?

In the mean time we may seek beauty and nerve balm in tonic baths.

We can all have the soothing luxury of a sea-salt bath before we go to bed, and we can have the cool sponge bath in the morning with diluted alcohol. And here are baths which are not beyond the possibility o' most of us.

Boil half a pound of pine cones a half-hour and strain the infusion into the bedtime tub.

Mix together one ounce of tincture of camphor, two ounces of cologne and half an ounce of tincture of benzoin.

Add enough to the tub to make it milky and soft.

Boil two pounds of bran for 15 minutes in a cheese cloth bag and add to the bath.

If your poor, tired body aches with fatigue there is nothing better than a rub-down with a tonic made as follows:

Half a pint of alcohol.
Two ounces spirits of camphor.
Two ounces spirits of ammonia.
Five ounces of sea-salt.
Enough boiling water to make a quart.

Shake this until it is thoroughly mixed, always before using, and rub tired muscles before retiring.

LOVE the world if you would have expressive eyes. Fill your whole being with a belief in humanity and interest in the welfare of mankind.

Just as all unpleasant thoughts and emotions are indexed in the eyes, so are all lovely qualities.

The system must be in good condition if the eyes are to be beautiful. Clogged systems mean muddy eyes.

Use your eyes if you would have them grow in beauty. Use them for the purpose they are intended, to see with. Learn by seeing.

Don't expect to strain and abuse your eyes and have them beautiful. The delicacy of the eye is almost beyond comprehension. If we possessed any jewels so rare or ornaments so delicate we should have them compassed with insurance and care. Yet we brutally mistreat our eyes.

The only remedy for eyes I shall give is the bath in the eye cup with tepid water and a weak solution of boric acid, which will remove dust and allay inflammation.

Let the eyes alone, is a safe rule to follow, for incalculable damage may be done by rubbing them.

Rolling them gently from side to side, looking down, then up, will help in making them expressive.

When you are tired and your eyes feel strained, go into your room and lie down and tie a bit of black silk in a bandage to shut out all the light and relax and rest.

Relaxation is the best beauty secret we can learn.

It is the life-saver of youth.

It is the secret of efficiency.

Work while you work, and when you rest, rest all over.

And don't forget that the real beautifying of the eye must come from within.

It must spring from the soul itself. The eye has ever been known as the soul's window.

Cultivate the habit of looking for the best in the world. By observation we grow.

And another application of the fable, find out your best feature and make the most of it.

Even if the peacock couldn't sing, there is no record that he stopped preening his lovely feathers.

Pruning Rules for Rose Growers

By May Eldredge

ROSES that were planted last autumn or recently will require somewhat close pruning this spring. It may seem a great shame to cut the shoots back so severely, but experience has shown that it is a wise thing to do so. It relieves the plant of a great strain upon its resources until it can make plenty of new roots to collect food to support new growth. Therefore, cut all strong shoots of dwarf roses to about three buds, medium ones to two buds, and weak ones remove altogether. Treat standards similarly. Climbers require special treatment.

Established rose trees do not need such close pruning, unless it is desired to grow flowers of exhibition standard. In such an event the object should be to retain only the strongest and healthiest shoots and to shorten these to three or four buds ("eyes"), so as to ensure not more than one good young shoot from each pruned growth. For ordinary purposes, that is, securing plenty of flowers, less severe pruning is required. Hybrid perpetuals and hybrid teas, which are more or less strong growing, should have all weak and sickly, also old wornout wood cut clean away. The strongest shoots of last year's growth should then be pruned to six or eight buds, and the moderate ones to three or four buds.

Tea-scented roses, if fairly strong growing, treat similarly, but if weak growers shorten the strongest shoots to 12 buds, the medium ones to eight buds, and the weakest to four or six buds.

Strong-growing standards, such as Gloire de Dijon, should have their vigorous growths shortened to 12 buds, the weak ones removed altogether, and the rest cut back to three or four buds. Moderate growers should have their strongest shoots shortened to four buds, the medium ones to two buds, and the weakest cut away entirely.

Climbing roses of the rambler type will only need to have the soft, unripened tips of the last year's growth cut off, and all the shoots that bore flowers last season cut away entirely. Other climbers, like Gloire de Dijon and W. A. Richardson, should have all weak shoots removed, the strongest pruned to three or four feet, and the moderate ones to a couple of feet.

If We Could Buy Brains

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

I SAW them on a bill of fare the other day at a funny little restaurant—brains in any style. And I wished and I wished—wouldn't you?

If you could only go out into the market and buy brains in any style for yourself or for those you love, which style would you choose?

Almost any style to my mind but "scrambled," and from what I saw at the restaurant the scrambled ones seemed to be the favorite, too.

Scrambled brains—that's what the man has who sends you lamb chops when you ordered porterhouse steak. When he has done it one time too many and somebody complains about him and he loses his job, he goes out and joins a marching club of the unemployed. Or gets a soap box and stands up on it and tells people what a cruel world this is and what he's going to do to make it a better one.

Poor fellow, he wants every one with a job to be without a job because he is.

He hates every man in an automobile, and he'd like to burn down every bank in the country—not because he knows anything real against either the automobile or the bank, but because they don't belong to him. He can't get them, and therefore they are all wrong.

Scrambled brains! That's what's the matter with the woman who lets her own family go uncared for while she stands on platforms all over the country and tells people how to bring up their children.

Scrambled brains! That's the trouble with the girl who works for a living and who's always a few minutes late in the morning and a few minutes early in starting home.

She never can think what she did with her notebook, the girl with the scrambled brains, and she finds office work "dull" and teaching "stupid." She never fixes her mind on any one thing at any one time, and gets it done, decently and in order.

Scrambled brains, poor child, scrambled brains, and she thinks it's the fault of the man she works for or of the "system." Anything but scrambled. I'll take my brains if you please, good waiter. I wouldn't have a bossy brain—either.

My brain must be the kind that will obey orders. No moods and tenses for my brain, thank you. I'll let the geniuses get on with that sort of thing.

I want a brain that will work when I want it to work and not go and sulk in the corner somewhere and put a "not at home" sign on the door when it sees me coming after some work.

It's a terrible thing to be bossed by your brain. It's like having a clever, spoiled child in the house. Everything is all over the place and nobody can find anything.

The brain I'd order, if I could, would be obedient first of all—but not too obedient.

Not so obedient that it couldn't tell right from wrong—just because it wanted to please me.

No meek and "meachin" brain for me, so please you, good waiter.

No complaisant, credulous, too obedient brain for me or mine.

I want a brain that will say to me courageously: "You're doing wrong and you know it; you can fool yourself and you can fool everybody else in the world perhaps for a while—but you can't fool me."

Every great war that was ever fought was begun by some man who muddled his brain—by thinking that what he wanted to do was right because he wanted to do it.

Never a thief sneaked through life without first making himself believe that what was the other man's really ought to be his—because he wanted it to be.

I have talked with hundreds of thieves and murderers in every prison from one end of this country to the other, and I never saw one of them who had not persuaded himself that he was a long suffering and much injured human being.

No scrambled brains—no "bossy" brain—no "meachin" brain for mine.

Wouldn't it be glorious if we could only go somewhere and get them to order—really!

Secrets of Health

Your Eyesight Betrays Your Natural Vigor

By Dr. L. K. HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins)

DR. HIRSHBERG

DO you ever feel sleepy while reading? If you do, your eye muscles need attention. "Doctor," a patient writes, "I have headaches of a tight-like feeling on the top of my head. My eyes are all right. I can see perfectly."

The very individual who, with absolute assurance, felt so convinced of perfect vision, was not only cured of the headache by correct glasses, but she discovered to her amazement that she never knew what she had not seen.

The sense of sight is one of the most precious possessions of your body.

Why the ordinarily intelligent person should hazard an opinion as to his own capacity of vision is beyond me. Even doctors who are not specialists know little about eyesight. Psychologists have much to learn.

Indeed, it is the better part of wisdom to go to three or four different "best" eye specialists when you have the least trouble with your eyes.

In a large eye hospital the other day all of the older doctors were too busy preaching ethics, teaching the young idea how to shoot, and charging $10 for five minutes to save the eyesight of a year-old infant.

One of the young eye surgeons, with time, ambition and "the love of publicity," as his envious, arrived elders put it, sliced off the cornea or part of a pig's eye, planted over the blind, bulging eye of the youngster, and, lo! a miracle was performed. The child sees.

What several "best" eye doctors may do badly, some others, near "best," may do efficiently. Never give up until your eyes are nearly 100 per cent. perfect.

Oculists, however, are, even when too crowded with work, only in part to blame for uncorrected eye-muscle defects and disturbances of vision. Miss A—— K——, who should wear her lenses constantly, only does so as she wills it.

The muscles of the iris, the lens, and the six big ones which roll and turn and guide the eyeball as reins do a four-in-hand, often compensate for some minor troubles by straining themselves and thus holding the eyes in proper position.

This sort of eye strain deludes you into the impression that all is well with your vision. This produces "neuralgias," "headaches" and other aches and tremors.

The eyes, like a Swiss watch, must be overhauled every six months.

Answers to Health Questions

J. D. K., Homestead, Pa.—My left leg bends forward. Knock-kneed is the name. I am 20. Is it too late to be operated on? Will you do the operation. I am willing to pay you well.

A very simple operation by one of your surgeons can straighten this with perfect safety to you.

E. J. S., Burney, Ind.—My wife has a small goitre since she had typhoid at 16. We have one son 5 years old. What would you advise?

If your wife is in good health and the goitre is small, do nothing radical. If she is not so well, and the goitre is bothersome, if you have an operation in view, permit only the most skilful surgeons to operate upon her.

If it barely shows let it severely alone. Forget it.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

To keep cheese for some time, and prevent it becoming mouldy or dry, wrap it up in a cloth dampened with vinegar and keep it in a dish.

When making coffee sprinkle a little salt on the coffee before pouring on boiling water, and the flavor will be wonderfully improved.

To remove labels from bottles, wet the label with water and hold it over a flame for a second or two. The steam quickly penetrates the label and softens the gum or paste.

If flowers have come by post, they will freshen up wonderfully if their stems are placed in hot water for a little while before arranging them in vases.

Before eating an orange, soak it in hot water for half an hour. The skin will loosen and come off easily, and the orange will be as sweet as if freshly picked.

If, when making boiled starch, a piece of soap is left in, it will be found during the ironing process that not only will the iron slip along easily, but a beautiful glossy effect will be produced.

Boiled potatoes make an excellent substitute for soap when the hands have become blackened by contact with pots and pans. Rub a little potato well into the hands and wash in warm water.

The most difficult of all stains to take out are those made by coffee. With care, however, the stain can be removed from the most delicate silk or woollen fabrics. Rub the mark gently with a little pure glycerine, then rinse it in lukewarm water, lay a cloth over the damp part on the wrong side, and press with a cool iron until dry. Do not wet more of the material than is absolutely necessary.

CABINET SALARIES

Britain Pays Her Ministers Well and Provides Pensions

In Great Britain most of the Cabinet Ministers get twenty-five thousand dollars a year each. The Lord Chancellor gets fifty thousand. And the Attorney-General, with his salary and the fees incident to his office, gets nearer a hundred thousand than the the last-named figure. Most of them have good—and some of them very large—means. Lord Haldane is very rich, as are Lords Crewe and Beauchamp, and Mr. Harcourt, who, in addition, married an immensely rich wife, as did Mr. Asquith. Sir Edward Grey, Mr. Runciman, Mr. Hobhouse, and Mr. Pease are all rich men. Mr. Burns draws a salary of twenty-five thousand dollars a year, and is popularly supposed to live on less than a tenth of it. Recent investigations showed that Mr. Lloyd-George's private income, derived from his savings, was about four thousand dollars a year. Mr. Churchill's private means are small. He made a lot of money by his writings—his "Life" of his father brought him in fifty thousand dollars—but he is a free spender.

Not only are British Cabinet Ministers paid large salaries, but, when out of office, if they can conscientiously make a declaration that their private means do not admit of their living as befits a Cabinet Minister they can draw a pension equal to half the salary which they received in office. It should be added that the unavoidable official expenses of the senior British Cabinet Ministers are heavy. They have to do a lot of expensive political entertaining. For instance, on the King's birthday, and at the beginning of each session, they have to banquet their principal supporters in Parliament, and these banquets run into a lot of money.

A BACKWARD RACE

One of England's Oriental Colonies Far Behind Times

"Papua is a country of excellent possibilities," says Judge Murray, the Lieutenant-Governor. "The only disadvantage is the scanty population, which probably will not increase for some time. The natives are savages of the stone age, or what we were some thousands of years ago, and to suddenly come and 'biff' them into the twentieth century throws them out of gear, as it were, but we have done away with head hunting, cannibalism, etc. Labor troubles are less severe than formerly. I am against the introduction of other black labor to take the place of the Papuan, although I gave my approval to the introduction of a number of Japanese for instructional purposes in the rubber industry, but the Commonwealth Government would not allow it. There are eight thousand natives working for the planters, miners, and Government. This is four times the number employed six years ago. [illegible] profits have been made out of [illegible]ber."

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victims of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale [illegible], or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

The Golden Well

A meeting of "pilgrims" resorting to St. Winefride's Well was held at Holywell, Wales, and passed a resolution pr[illegible] against the proposed mining d[illegible] works which, it is said, [illegible] the flow of water to the [illegible] credited with miraculous [illegible] Winefride's Well, said [illegible] M.P., was the greatest asset England and Wales had. It was "a gold mine," and it would be a mistake to sacrifice an actual gold mine for a problematical lead mine.

A Royal Precedent

It is probable that the Prince of Wales is the first actual Heir-Apparent to serve with a volunteer force under canvas as a private. The only similar case is that of the Duke of Clarence at the beginning of the nineteenth century. At the time of the Napoleon scare the Duke joined the Teddington volunteers, and carried a musket in the ranks. But he was not then heir to the throne which he occupied eventually as William IV.

Gymnastic Burglar Captured

A gymnastic burglar was captured by the Glasgow police on four charges of breaking into shops and warehouses. A remarkable feature of all these burglaries was that the burglar entered the premises through the window or roof after having climbed a pipe. In one case it is known that he must have climbed a pipe to the sixth storey.

They had each other by the hair, and their extraordinary conduct attracted a big crowd. The fiscal said they fell out about sweethearts. "Shake hands and go away," said the magistrate. They did.

Comedy of Bogus Commissioner

The story of how a well-dressed man duped a countryside by playing the rôle of Land Commissioner was told at Galway, Ireland, when Thomas Parker was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment for obtaining food and lodging by false pretences. John Keating, a farmer, said that the accused called at his house, and said he was a Land Commissioner, and that he had come down to divide Barlepark. He said he would not give the witness more than six acres. The accused remained all night, and had his supper and breakfast. The witness went round with the prisoner on the following day to mark out his holdings. Others had similarly entertained the prisoner.

SLAUGHTER OF MOOSE

Ontario Hunters Were Convicted For Illegal Shooting

A brace of pot-hunters at Dane contributed one hundred dollars to the Ontario Game and Fisheries Department for less than one minute's so-called sport. Both men had hunting licenses, and were fortunate enough on the first day of their hunting to come upon a bull moose. Unfortunately for them the bull was accompanied by a cow and two calves, and just as fast as the hunters could pump lead into the bunch they did so. As nothing was said about the affair for nearly three months, they felt reasonably safe from prosecution. The bull carcase was sold for one hundred dollars to a party of hunters from Ohio, who shipped it home, and no doubt have told some tall stories since of their prowess in the wilds of northern Canada. But the story of the slaughter at last reached the Department of Game and Fisheries. An officer was at once placed on the trail, and finally rounded the hunters up and secured their conviction.W. CURE AT HOLYWELL

Blindness Cured After Nineteen Years in the Dark

A remarkable case of faith-healing attracted the attention of medical men in Burnley, Lancashire. A young Roman Catholic named Thomas Haney, after being almost totally blind for 19 years—the blindness following an attack of measles when he was in infancy—had the sight of his eyes restored after bathing in the famous St. Winefrede Well at Holywell, Flintshire.

Before his visit to Holywell, where the waters are supposed to have miraculous properties, Haney could only discern a faint glimmer of light. Now he can see people across the street, read small print, and make out the time on a clock face from a moderate distance.

He states that shortly after commencing to bathe in the well he felt the sight of his right eye returning. Gradually the sight gained in strength, and before he left Holywell he was able to play a game of billiards on a full-sized table.

According to legend St. Winefrede was beheaded because she refused to wed one of the petty tyrants of her time, and where her head fell there sprang forth a great flow of water possessing miraculous properties. A shrine was in after years established at the well.

Passing of the Top Hat

The medical papers of Great Britain join in the chorus of condemnation of the silk hat. The "Medical Press" says:—"The vogue of the stove-pipe is passing; laden with unhonored years, it is sinking steadily into oblivion. Safe motley shapelessness cover the massive crania of our most eminent surgeons, and their dreamy hues of brown and green make our hatracks quite attractive. The fashion is to be unconventional without reaching the bounds of the 'too utterly utter.' Each of us takes an interest in his brim and moulds his formless headgear with creative dints. We are passing fast away from the tyranny of the hard hat."

Home Without Furniture

When the question of renewing relief to a woman in the Holywell district of Wales came before the guardians, the relieving officer stated that the woman lived in a house which had not an article of furniture in it, not even a chair or a bed.

FEW RED-HAIRED MEMBERS

The red-haired men in the British House of Commons can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Captain Gilmour, the Scottish Whip, is included among them. Mr. Cecil Beck and the Hon. John Lyttelton are regarded by their fellow-members as being the same way inclined. "People with reddish hair," says Mr. William Llewellyn, A.R.A., the painter who did the State portrait of the Queen, "usually have very fine flesh color, though I think, as a rule, they are not as good-looking as darker people. The features of the latter are of better form. In Wales and Cornwall people are either red or black, and often both in one family." It may be pointed out that Charles Dickens seems to have had a prejudice against red-haired people. He gave Uriah Heep hair of that color.

The old civil war veteran, Jas. Shyne, formerly of West Ops, but lately an inmate of the House of Refuge at Lindsay, decided to return to his shack in Ops Wednesday. He made an early start leaving the House at five o'clock in the morning. County Constable Thornbury made a trip out to-day to see that he come back where proper care could be taken of him.

When A German Baron Gives Up.

Baron Beaumstader, of Montreal, is a guest at the Oriental. Girls, don't get excited, as the Baron is married! On Wednesday night, the Baron had a box at the Grand Opera House for Queen Zephra. Whilst others were throwing pennies to those taking part in the "Newsboys" chorus, the Baron dug down to his pocket and flung a handful of silver on the stage.

The Maple Leaf Band

Manager Clayton of the local movies, is certainly displaying good enterprise. The harpist now playing at the Royal is King Pin of his art, while the comedian at the Princess is clever. Last night the Maple Leaf band was engaged to play a number of selections in front of the Royal. This latest addition to Peterborough's musical organizations is rapidly coming to the front owing to their admirable playing.

The local Automobile Association have decided upon a scheme to advertise Peterborough throughout the Province during the summer. On all the main roads throughout Ontario, there will be posted a large number of conspicuous signs, bearing the inscription "This way to Peterborough" and other reminders to passing motorists that the City of Peterborough is not only on the map, but prepared to welcome tourists, or others who have a chance to visit the city.

Good English Postal Service.

Yesterday a Times scribe was talking with Mr. Fred Walker, of J. R. Bell's Hunter Street grocery, about post office methods. The Times man noted that a few weeks ago he wrote a well-known Toronto man, once editor of the Peterborough Review. Not knowing the latter's street address, the scribe had sent the letter simply addressed to "E.J. Toker, Esq, Toronto." The letter was returned, unopened, with a notation, "Not known here," Mr. Walker told our scribe how, 33 years ago a Mr. Albert Rayfield, who had previously worked for a Chicago firm was rooming with him. The Chicago firm sent a letter addressed to "Albert Rayfield, England, and the letter was delivered within 36 hours.

AMERICANS IN TAMPICO ARE DISMAYED AS FLEET LEAVES

Three of The United States Cruisers Clear for Action and Then Disappear

Tampico, April 24.—Great apprehension was caused here to-day, when after all the American residents in Tampico and vicinity had been advised to leave the country immediately, the scout cruiser Chester cleare for action and steamed down the river, the gunboat Dolphin also cleared for action, followed by, saluting the British cruiser Hermoine, as they passed. Then came the Des Moines with her gun crews standing ready at the guns.

The three vessels disappeared round the bend of the river and passed out to sea, where it was understood the Des Moines would remain off the port while the rest of the American vessels proceeded to Vera Cruz.

The disappearance of the protecting ships caused astonishment and dismay among the American residents who were unable to believe they were deliberately abandoned on what appeared to be on the eve of hostilities in the midst of a population known to cherish feelings of bitter hatred against Americans.

BIG UP SET ANCIENT GREEK SURGEON TOOLS NEAR SITE OF KOLOPHON

Instruments of Bronze and Stone Shows Some Remarkable Workmanship.

London, April 24.—A set of 37 very remarkable ancient Greek surgical instruments has been discovered near the site of Kolophon, in Iona, and has—after being for a considerable time in the possession of the late Mr. Alfred O. Van Lennep, Dutch vice consul at Smyrna—been brought to England. The instruments show a type of workmanship unequaled in any other extant specimens and generally reveal the very great progress in surgery which the ancients achieved. The date, though somewhat uncertain, is probably the first or second century A.D.; it is possible, however, that it may have been before the Christian era.

With two exceptions all the instruments are of bronze. The blades of the knives were originally of steel, but in each case this metal has been almost completely destroyed by oxidation. Among the collection is a large "beaker" made of purple glass and decorated.

Among the five pairs of forceps or grippers in the find is a large and beautifully made instrument, the handles of which are shaped to represent two dolphins. This is probably a pair of "polypus" forceps, used for removing growths. The "bite" of the teeth is strong and close. Another interesting pair of forceps is that used for extracting arrow and lance heads from wounds. This pair somewhat closely resembles modern "bone" forceps, and has artistically modeled handles anh blades which possesses strong teeth for gripping.

FORD DAY HERE WAS A BIG SUCCESS AGAINST RAIN

On Saturday was held, in spite of inclement weather, one of the most generally successful business propositions ever pulled off here. Great credit is due to Mr. Joseph Duffus, whose garage is on Simcoe street, for the success of Ford Day in this city.

About 125 Ford owners gathered here on Saturday at 1.30 o'clock, in the Oriental Hotel at a luncheon in observance of the day. For some distance in front of the Hunter street hostelry the trim Ford cars were lined, the fifty or more motors being the largest number ever gathered at one time in this city. Prominent business men of the city constituted the gathering and were very enjoyably entertained at the Oriental during the afternoon. Of the two hundred cars in the city a considerable percentage of them are Fords and a good deal of enthusiasm was evinced by the auto owners who sat down to the banquet. The occasion was a memorable one, and the fact that it is to be an annual one was welcomed by all present on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. C. I. Fox, manager of the Canadian factory of the Ford Motor Co., and representatives of that make of car within a radius of forty miles, including the popular local agent, were present, and the satisfaction of those who have purchased Fords created an extremely cordial atmosphere which predominated throughout the banquet. After luncheon the Ford owners, and agents drove about the city and took in sights. Ald. Duffus by this move has not only boomed the Ford cars, but boosted Peterborough.

ilway Bill to be Given Right of Way Thru Parliament—Balance of Session to be Given over to Forthcoming Legislation

ttawa, April 25.—It is semi-offi announced this morning that balance of the parliamentary ses will be mainly devoted to the legislation in aid of the Northern Railway. Nearly Government bill will be dis from the order paper if it to prolong the session be Victoria Day or the first of at latest. The bill to amend Railway Act, the shipping bill even the redistribution bill may side-tracked and the right of way to the bill respecting the Cana Northern, which it is said on authority will be introduced in House on Wednesday next.

journals throughout the announced this morning that proposals of the Government re the Canadian Northern are be submitted to the Conservative within the next ten days. The tement is a guarded one as to the in which the proposals will be public. As a matter of fact, the have been informally notified by representatives of the Govern that the legislation will be brought down next week, and probably on Wednesday.

As to the terms and conditions the government and the counsel for the company, little can be definitely ascertained, although there is reason to believe that the government is imposing rather severe terms upon the Canadian Northern. Not only the stock of the company, but the stock of many subsidiary companies will be vested in a holding company for the security of the government and unless certain payments are made within five years' time the absolute control and management of the entire Canadian Northern system will pass from Mackenzie and Mann to the federal government. Such, at least, is the general impression here. No doubt legislation along this line can be passed through the house, although it would not be surprising to see half a dozen Conservatives vote against the Government and as many Liberals vote with the Government or absent themselves when the roll is called.

UNIONISTS IN PRIVATE LIFE SHOW TEMPER

Extremists Go so Far as to Use Ostracism as Weapon

London, April 25.—Because the government remains master of the parliamentary situation and the opposition is making no headway in the house of commons, exacerbation of temper on the part of Unionists in private life is the newest development. The annual parliamentary golf contest will not, on that account, be held this year, and even the ordinary courtesies of social life are being intermitted. This, however, is not unprecedented. Similar action by the extreme Tories occurred in the days when John Bright and the rising Radical party fought for the extension of the franchise at the time when Gladstone proposed to disestablish the Church of England in Ireland, and later, during his advocacy of home rule, and again when Lloyd George and others protested against the Boer War.

Those exhibitions of petty temper, however, do not worry Liberals, comparatively few of whom are affected, chiefly in the southern counties, where the society element is almost entirely Conservative. The Liberal party derives its strength from the middle and working classes, who are little affected by that kind of ostracism. But like other forms of attempted persecution, it is not in the least likely to render the government of its supporters less insistent on carrying through their program and vindicating the efficiency of the Parliament Act.

Mr. Bryan denied the report that these prisoners had been executed, and stated that the Brazilian Consulate would be appealed to for their release.

ALMOST KILLED BY SHUNTED BOX CAR

George Arlington Fell Under Car at Crossing, But Wheels Didn't Touch Him.

Toronto, April 25.—The need of the waterfront viaduct was again shown on Saturday afternoon when a man was perhaps fatally injured by a train.

Crossing the tracks at the foot of Cherry street, George Arlington age 60, of 67 Hamilton street, an employe of the Imperial Oil Company, was knocked down by a shunted box car. By a lucky chance he fell between the rails and the car passed over him without his body coming in contact with the wheels.

He was picked up insensible and rushed in the police ambulance to St. Michael's Hospital, where, in addition to a fractured hip he was found to be suffering from internal injuries. His condition is serious.

RIVER ST. LAWRENCE NOW CLEAR OF ICE

Montreal, April 25.—The river is clear from the Atlantic to this port to-day. The last barriers at Lake St. Peter broke away last night, aided by the ice breaker "Lady Grey," and to-day the lightships Dollard and Shamrock left Sorel to put out the gas buoys for the summer. This is a three day job. The first ships from the ocean should be here within three or four days.

PROPRIETORS OF ALLEGED RESORTS EACH FINED $250

Buffalo, April 25.—Twenty alleged women of the Buffalo underworld indicted by the grand jury in connection with District Attorney Dudley's vice crusade, were arranged before Justice Bissell in Criminal Term of Supreme Court this morning on charges of selling liquor without licenses. Sixteen pleaded guilty and were fined $250 and sentenced to the penitentiary for one year each, but a stay of execution was granted for one year pending their good behavior.

The court pointed out if they could not pay the fine they would have to serve it out. He added that if they were detected even giving away liquor without a license they would be haled into court again on the old charge.

These women, alleged proprietors of resorts in the tenderloin districts were fined and paid the amount levied:

Bea Lawrence, Florence Howard, Rose Ball, Mollie Gillis, Sadie Merrill Sadie Knab, Blanche Mills, Rica Meyers, Bessie Fox, Helen Marks, Josephine Hall, Kate Arnold, Mabel B. Bierlein, Celia Bell, Laura Moore, Julia Smith, Fannie Webb and Nellie Gay.

The county treasurer was enriched by about $5,000. The Merrill woman along with the others said they were widows, She asserted she had a college education.

LOCAL FATERNAL SOCIETIES HELD A VERY ENCOURAGING MEETING

The S.O.E. hall, on Hunter street, was well filled on Saturday night with delegates from local fraternal societies, who met to discuss the advisability of holding a "Societies Day" in Peterborough during the coming summer. The chair was occupied by Mr. Dawson Kennedy, whilst Mr. Henry as temporary secretary.

Several suggestions were made as to the best way to handle the proposed idea. Another meeting will be held in two weeks in the S.O.E. hall, which is kindly loaned for that purpose. Among the suggestions offered was to hold a church parade on the evening of Sunday, June 21st. Should this suggestion be adopted the various societies may meet at a spot to be arranged for and then either march to several churches or go in a body to the Armouries for service. Mr. J. B. McWilliams offered a suggestion that the various local bodies meet on the day that the Governor General comes to the city, and extend invitations to fraternal bodies in other places to attend. It will be remembered that on the occasion of the late Queen Victoria's Jubilee that such action was taken with marked success.

Committees were struck to wait on the various lodges of the city and present the proposed idea of a "Societies Day."

PRESIDENT WILSON ACCEPTS OFFER OF MEDIATION IN MEXICO

Chili, Brazil and Argentina Offer to Help United States to Settle Differences With Mexico

Washington, D.C., April 25.—President Wilson announces that he has accepted the mediation of Chili, Argentina and Brazil in Mexican troubles.

Washington, April 25.—From reliable sources it was learned that Argentine, Brazilian and Chilian representatives in a conference with Secretary Bryan offerld the good offices of these nations to settle the deplorable conditions in Mexico.

The offer was rejected with the statement that the United States would like to accept, but inasmuch as the dignity and honor of the nation has been insulted by Gen. Huerta, only the elimination of Huerta as a factor in Mexico would be considered sufficient reparation.

BILL PROVIDING STATE AID FOR PROFESSIONAL STUDENTS IS VETOED

Albany, April 25.—The Blauvelt bill intended to make State scholarships at Cornell University available for students desiring special instructions in theology, law, medicine, dentistry or veterinary medicine, was vetoed yesterday by Governor Glynn. In his veto memorandum he explained that it was not the intention of the scholarship provision of the education law to make scholarships available for the usual professional courses, inasmuch as the tendency throughout the country has been to encourage students to complete a college course before beginning to study the professional courses.

Toronto, April 25.—There is a possibility that the general election which the Province has been expecting for this year may be postponed until 1915. Such is the nature of a rumor which has gained strength during the past week about the Parliament buildings.

Since the session has grown so protracted the idea of holding the election in the summer months has been pretty well abandoned, and now it is understood to be a case of the fall or next year. One thing that argues for postponement is the desire of rural members to get back to their farms.

As far as time allowance for holding of elections is concerned, the government would be warranted in waiting for another session to pass if they thought best.

BARONESS AND DOCTOR AGREE

London, April 25.—An amicable settlement was reached today in the counter suits between Dr. Ernest Villiers Appleby, formerly lecturer at the University of Minnesota, and Baroness May de Pallandt, an American. Dr. Appleby had claimed $30,000 for a pearl necklace which he had purchased for the baroness and for which she had promised to indemnify him. He today withdrew all his allegations and abandoned his claim.

The baroness, who had counterclaimed $29,000 she alleged was due to her from the doctor, also decided to withdraw.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT PRAISES MANLY ART OF SELF DEFENCE

Montreal, April 25.—An eulogy of the disciplinary effects of boxing was pronounced by the Duke of Connaught after an exhibition of sparring by the Griffintown Boys' Club last night.

"Boxing," the Duke told the boys, "teaches you not to lose your temper. A good smack in the face hurts and it is well to learn to take one with a grin. It seems a very small thing, but it is a very important thing that you should not take offence at anything."

Last night the Duke also opened an exhibition of boy scouts. The occasion was made noteworthy by the fact that Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Connaught, made her first public appearance since her serious illness. The Princess Patricia also accompanied the Governor-general.

DR. REAUME MAY SEEK NEW SEAT

Storm of Insurgency is Rising In His Old Constituency at Windsor

Windsor, Ont., April 25.—Political forecasters who profess to have expert knowledge of prevailing conditions, claim there is a storm brewing for Hon. Dr. Reaume, and figure that it will hit this district about the time of the next provincial election, which is expected in June.

The story goes that the clouds of insurgency are gathering again and beginning to look ominous. It is said that all signs indicate "a bad storm for the doctor."

There is a well-founded rumor that the minister of public works will be given a gentle hint to seek shelter in North Essex, leaving the new constituency of Windsor, Walkerville and Sandwich to party lieutenants, who feel they are entitled to promotion.

Walkerville Candidates.

There is a red-hot tip that W. R. Woollatt of Walkerville, president of the Conservative Association, will gallop through the nomination meeting and "breeze in" when it comes to the election. This is based on the assumption that he makes the entry for the new constituency.

There is another Walkerville candidate, Harold Hatcher, who is strongly backed.

Windsor Contingent.

The Windsor contingent is lining up behind Mayor Clay, Walter Boug and Gerald McHugh.

Of course Dr. Reaume has a number of loyal followers who will stick by him through thick and thin. The feeling is that if the doctor can land the nomination he is as good as elected, unless there is a three-cornered contest, in which case it would be anybody's fight.

The doctor has intimated that he desires to seek re-election for the new constitdency.

Bilingual Question.

There is a feeling among the French people that the Dr. has not been as aggressive as he might be on the bilingual question. He stood by Sir James Whitney and Hon. Dr. Pyne, defending the course of the Government all through. His attitude has not given satisfaction to those who say they are ready to place race above politics in the fight for bilingual schools.

The Liberals are waiting for a convenient time to call the convention. It is stated Severin Ducharme of Belle River, is willing to accept the nomination for North Essex.

SEASICK ANIMALS

Probably many people have not witnessed the performance of animals when on a sea journey. Most animals make poor sailors. Horses and tigers suffer most of all; they whine pitifully, and their eyes water continually. Elephants, too, suffer greatly, but they are very amenable to medical attention. When the elephant falls seasick, a bucket of fresh water, containing seven ounces of quinine and three and a half pints of whisky, is supplied.

Birds, however, delight in sea voyages. The Polar bear, too, enjoys a sea journey; he is described as very gay while on board ship. But most other animals greatly resent sea trips.

A Collier-composer

Among the residents of Bargoed, South Wales, is a man who has written and composed over 120 hymns and many songs. Yet he is only a working collier. Since he was twelve years of age David Jones has earned his livelihood in the mine, but he always had a passion for music.

Curiously enough his best work has been done when he has been in trouble. One hymn, entitled "Beautiful Home," which is sung in every household in South Wales, he wrote and composed after the death of one of his children.

Centenarian as Lodging-house Keeper

Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts of Bryskir, Carnarvonshire, Wales, celebrated her 100th birthday recently. She was born in the district, and has lived there all her life. So independent and hard working is she that she resents all idea of applying for an old age pension, and she still obtains her livelihood by catering for tourists and taking in lodgers.

... King Alfonso, total abstinence ... a matter of policy, or even of ...iple, but merely one of taste. ... finds all wines and spirits un-

... He, however, drinks enormous quantities of water, and at official banquets in other lands than his own he has suffered much from the difficulty in getting plain water to drink.

The Emperors of Austria, Russia, and Germany are none of them total abstainers, but have always been extremely abstemious in the matter of stimulants, and have, both by example and by precept, done much to encourage temperance among their people.

In Sweden the present king and his consort undoubtedly were influenced in becoming teetotalers by the Dowager Queen Sophia, who for more than 40 years has been the most powerful supporter and advocate of the temperance movement in Scandinavia.

King Edward's Work

No one contributed more to the cause of intemperance than King Edward. He was not a total abstainer, but he was very sparing in the matter of stimulants, and entertained an intense horror of drunkenness. It is mainly attributable to the social influence which he exercised upon English life, from the time of his marriage, in March, 1863, until his death in 1910, that inebriety has gone out of fashion, and that hard drinking is no longer countenanced. The old saying of "drunk as a lord," has no longer any meaning, thanks to King Edward.

Conditions were very different formerly. Temperance was not only discountenanced by the throne and by society during the whole of the eighteenth century and the first half of that which followed, but was actually penalized by the state. Thus Frederick the Great, one of the most enlightened and sensible sovereigns of his time, issued in 1779 a proclamation deploring "the increased consumption of coffee by my subjects, and the amount of money that goes out of the country in consequence thereof. Everybody is using coffee. This must no longer be. My subjects must and shall drink beer." The king actually forbade the importation of the coffee berry and anyone found selling coffee was imprisoned.

Early Temperance Societies

Yet it was in Germany that temperance organizations may be said to have had their birth. The first of these was the Order of St. Christopher, formed by Sigismund von Dietrichstein on January 12, 1517, the members of which were pledged to abstain from drinking toasts. This was followed by the so-called Order of Temperance, founded by the sovereign landgrave of Hesse in 1600. The members of this Order of Temperance solemnly vowed on the holy scriptures not to drink more than seven glasses of liquor at a time, and that not oftener than twice a day. The order in question, while it may have been one of temperance, was certainly not one of total abstinence.

A Kaiser's Strange Memorial

An extraordinary object is to be seen in Wurtemburg in a 12 foot petrified fish, which was erected as a memorial to William I., German Emperor and King of Prussia. This petrified fish dates from prehistoric times. It is twelve feet long without its head, which was not found. The diameter of its throat is six and a half feet.

SCALING A FISH

Fish should be cleaned as soon as possible after being caught, a curry comb being the very best article with which to remove scales. If fish is dipped in boiling water a minute they will scale much easier. Begin at the tail with sharp, upward strokes until every scale is removed. If the fish is to be boiled or broiled do not remove either tail or head. Handle fish as little as possible. Do not wash it in more than one water or much of the juice will be lost. Wipe clean with a cloth, with a pinch of salt. When all the blood and scales are wiped away wrap the fish in another clean cloth and set aside until time to use.

Many of the fresh water fish have a muddy taste. This can be removed by rubbing with dry salt and let them stand a few hours or over night or soak them in salted water for an hour, with the skin side of the fish up.

To freshen salt fish allow to soak in sour milk for four hours.

To Remove Iron Rust

To remove iron rust from white material, wet the goods with lemon juice, rub on salt and put out in the sun. If the first application fails, try it again.

Mix stove polish with equal parts of household ammonia and turpentine, and apply to the coal stove; rub off with a soft woollen cloth.

To prevent white fabrics, such as tulle or silk, choice lace or crepe shawls, from becoming yellow when packed away, sprinkle bits of white wax freely among the folds.

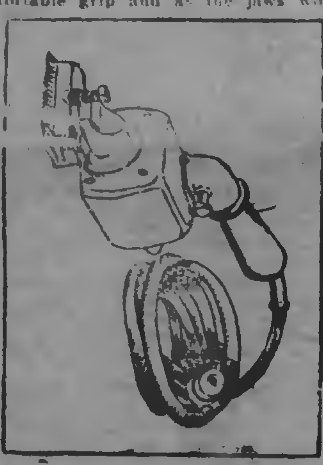
ELECTRIC CLIPPER

For Horses, Not Men, and Does Its Work Easily and Swiftly

One of the latest of electrical appliances is the electric horse clipper. The clipper has a long cord which is reinforced by a heavy string coil to keep it from twisting or breaking and no special wiring is necessary to use it. Just plug into a socket that has 110 volts and there you are. A thick handle affords a firm, comfortable grip and as the jaws work automatically all the user need do is guide the implement. The carbon brushes are accessible and easily replaced, adjusted or cleaned. The housing is dirt and dust proof, which prolongs the life of the motor contained within. Incidentally, this housing is of aluminum, which is strong enough for such a purpose, yet light enough to make easy handling. Furthermore, the motor is short and handy to clip the horse's feet.



ALL YOU DO IS GUIDE IT.

"Undesirables" in Japan

In an article in a Japanese periodical, Nogyo Lasah, M. Sawa'a Gentoku enumerated ten classes of young men who are useless for Japan. They are intensely interesting, as affording some indication of the ethical spirit of modern Japan. First in the list of "undesirables" come those youths who have received a complete education, and find themselves immediately able to cope with the difficulties of life. Second are those whose bodies are insufficiently developed and a prey to nervous disorders, owing to excessive intellectual labor. Third are the young men who have no education, and are stupid and narrow-minded. The fourth and fifth classes together comprise those who have not lived in the protection of family life and are thrown too early into the difficulties of the world.

Date Bars

One-half cup of granulated sugar three eggs, one and one-half cups of pastry flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half pound of dates three-quarters cup of chopped nuts. Cream yolks and sugar until light; add baking powder, nuts, dates to flour, beat in gradually, then add the stiffly beaten whites. Mix well, then bake in flat, ungreased, square layer pans. When cold remove from tin, cut into oblong bars about one-inch wide and three inches long. Sift confectioner's sugar over. If an extra rich cake is desired, cover the bars with chocolate frosting.

To Avoid Finger Marks

It is not generally known that wringing out a cloth in hot water and wiping the furniture, before putting on furniture cream, will result in a very high polish that will not finger-mark.

Paris Police Use Hand Cannon

The Paris police department is equipped with what is considered an effective weapon for use in dislodging criminals who barricaded themselves in houses and defy capture, which is a habit the Paris "Apaches" have developed quite extensively. The weapon is a hand cannon, designed particularly for throwing bombs, which, when they explode, will fill a building or room with suffocating gases sufficiently powerful to overcome the occupants. The cannon, which is used behind a portable shield, which completely protects the user from bullets, looks like a piece of iron pipe, and may be carried in the hands or slung over the shoulder like a rifle. It can also be used as a fire extinguisher, for throwing life lines into the upper windows of burning buildings, forcing doors ... by hurling heavy projectiles, and throwing grenades in war time.

A signalwoman was employed on a line between Morebath and Bampton, in England, for twenty-three years. At other English stations there are women who not only manage the signals, but issue tickets and do all the work in connection with the trains. More women probably are employed on the railways in Russia than in any other European country. There are computed to be between 20,000 and 30,000 women working on the Russian State railways. They act as gatekeepers, clerks, and telegraphers. Their salaries are small. Women attendants at the stations receive only about $21.25 a year, with free lodging and certain extras. Women clerks receive about $240 a year.

TAFFETA UNDOUBTEDLY THE MOST FAVORED FABRIC FOR THE PANNIERED FROCK

While moire is much favored, combined with another fabric such as gabardine, serge or poplin, taffeta leads when it comes to the pannier draped skirt. There is a quality to this silk which enables it to resist creasing and flattening; after sitting for hours at "bridge" or in a theatre, a touch is sufficient to bring the pannier back to its original puff. There are many quaint figures brought out in this silk; brocades on taffeta foundations, fine and closely placed stripes, and almost invisible plaids are among the most favored of the patterns.

A combination of plain and figured taffeta is shown in No. 8259; the foundation color is champagne and the figure is brought out in blue and medore. Champagne is one of the most popular shades and is being used for both afternoon and evening. This is an over-blouse design, and if preferred a blouse of lace may be worn instead of the plain taffeta. To copy this frock in size 36, 5⅝ yards of 42-inch material is needed. Taffeta averages 38 to 45 inches in width and is priced from $1.25 a yard and up.

The second figure shown here displays a suit of dark-blue gabardine. A modish feature of this suit is the belt and circular tunic section on the coat; the skirt is distinctive because of its straight lines and the box-plaits arranged on either side of the front and back. This suit may be made in size 36 with 3¼ yards (of 36-inch material) for the coat (8278) and 2¼ yards of the same width for the skirt (8197). Gabardine is priced from $2.50 per yard and up.

No. 8259—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8278—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 8197—sizes 22 to 30.

AN ATTRACTIVE RAGLAN MODEL FOR THE SEPARATE COAT

In separate coats as well as frocks and suits the raglan shoulder is an approved feature. There is also a tendency to belt them in slightly at the bottom or at a low waistline, allowing the bottom to flare in the new modish way. The coat shown in No. 8270 is developed in a brown tweed mixture and combined with a three-tiered skirt of the same material; this makes an unusually effective walking suit and both coat and skirt may be worn separately if desired.

If gabardine, serge or moire were used with this design, a suit dressy enough for almost any occasion would result.

This coat requires for size 36, 3¼ yards of 36-inch or 2¼ yards of 42-inch material; 4⅞ yards of the same widths will be needed for the skirt. A happy combination of moire and silk poplin was used in the afternoon frock shown in No. 8297, with an underblouse in one of Poiret's brightly colored silks; there is also a guimpe of cream colored net and a broad girdle of satin, as a finishing touch.

This dress may be copied in size 36 with 4⅞ yards of 36-inch or 4⅛ yards of 42-inch material. Both silk poplin and moire are wide, averaging 42 inches; in price they range from $1.50 to $4.00 a yard.

No. 8270—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 8002—sizes 22 to 32.

To Protect the Table

When something is needed to keep hot dishes from marking a polished table and asbestos is not readily available, try using thick blotting paper, cut the same size as the various doilies and placed under them.

Washing Paint

When paint becomes finger marked, rub the marks with a damp cloth on which a little paraffin has been poured, then polish with a clean duster. This is very good and does not injure the paint.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

The interest of Canada and the interests of Canadians in Mexico will be protected by the British navy. As usual.

The jingo element in the United States advocates the annexation of Mexico. Jingoes always go one step in advance of common sense.

Some consolation may be obtained by remembering that a good many flies and other pests suffer from a return of winter with the rest of us.

A call for sixty-five bachelors has reached Montreal from a village near Syracuse, where there are sixty-five widoes owning property. Railway timetables may be obtained at any hotel.

In giving a bit of advice to a negro business men's organization Booker Washington says: "Commerce, the dollar, draws no color line. The man who produces what somebody else wants will get the trade."

Of thirty men who applied for work at the Y.M.C.A. in St Thomas, Ont., not one would accept openings with farmers of the district. And probably any one of them would insist that starvation stares him in the face.

The other day a shipment of 76 tons of flour started on its way from Kansas City to Germany—going first by barge on the Missouri river to St. Louis thence by rail to Chicago thence by lake to Buffalo, then by rail to New York andthence by steamer to Hamburg. Another experiment is to be made by way of St. Louis and the Missouri river to New Orleans and thence to Europe.

GETTING ELECTRICITY

Very little more is known of atmospheric electricity than Benjamin Franklin discovered many years ago when he proved that the electricity of the air and of the labratory are one and the same. The report therefore, from Madrid that a Spanish scientist has succeeded in reaching out into the air with a special apparatus and bringing back electricity enough to light fifteen lamps and keep them lighted during a prolonged test, is of the greatest importance, if true.

"There is," says the Philadelphia Public Ledger, "an exhaustless reservoir of nitrogen in the air from which fertilizer for the fields has already been successfully drawn. Now, if the air can also produce electricity for light and power, the civilized nations will no longer fear a coal famine or the exhaustion of the oil fields. But it is possible that the Soaniard has done nothing more than tap the current sent abroad from some great wireless telegraph station instead of drawing on the natural supply."

This may be the case, hence it would not be wise to invest in any of the Spaniard's machines at present. Missouri must be "shown" that he can really draw electricity from the supply in the air before that State and the rest of the world will believe him.

Every Stiff Joint Limbered Rheumatism Cured

CURES NEURALGIA, BACKACHE, AND LUMBAGO

Rheumatism to-day is unnecessary. It is so well understood and so readily curable that every day we have reports of old chronics being freed of their tormenter.

"I can speak confidently of the Nerviline treatment, for the simple reason that it cured me," writes Albert B. Cornelius, from Kingston. "You can't imagine how stiff and lame and sore I was. Nights at a time I couldn't sleep well. I followed the Nerviline directions carefully—had it rubbed into the sore regions four or five times every day. Every rubbing helped to reduce the pain. The swelling went down. I got a fair measure of relief in a week. I also took two Ferrozone Tablets with my meals. They increased my appetite and spirits, purified my blood and toned up my system generally.

"I am as well to-day as a man could be—in perfect good health. I give Nerviline all the credit."

A large family size bottle of Nerviline costs only 50c. or the trial size 25c., and is useful in a hundred ills in the family. Whether it's toothache earache, headache, neuralgia, lame back or a cold, Nerviline will cure just as readily as it will cure rheumatism. For family use nothing equals Nerviline

On Trial For Robbing Estate of Mrs. Szabo

Twice Tried on Charges of Drowning Her in Greenwood Lake.

New York, April 26.— Burton W. Gibson, the New York Attorney, twice tried in Orange County on the charge of murdering his client, Mrs. Rosa Szabo, by strangulation in Greenwood Lake in July, 1912, was put on trial today before Judge Swann and a jury in the court of general sessions on indictments charging grand larceny and forgery in actions as executor of the dead woman's estate.

Gibson has been in the Tombs prison since his re-arrest on these charges on Oct. 27, after the disagreement of the second jury before which he was tried on the murder charge.

Two grand larceny indictments alleged thefts by Gibson of $2800 and $38,000 from Mrs. Szabo's estate.One indictment charges the forging of the signature of Mrs. Petronella Menzchick, Mrs. Szabo's mother, to a waiver of citation.

UNLUCKY DAYS

Many families look upon some particular day every year with dread, because on that day they seem to be persistently dogged by bad luck. Others have an unlucky month; whilst for other a leap year proves the harbinger of disaster.

[illegible] were firm in their belief in unlucky days: Julius Caesar was told to beware the Ides of March (March 15) and on this day he was brutally murdered by Brutus and other conspirators.

For Charles II. September 3rd was a day fraught with ill-omen. On that day he lost the battle of Dunbar, and again that of Worcester; but, singularly enough, September 3rd was the date of the death of his enemy, Cromwell after which day, it may be presumed, September 3rd no longer signalized the adverse workings of fate to the restored king.

From the Middle Ages the month of May has been shunned by brides, as it is proverbially unlucky for weddings. Curiously enough, however, if a man or woman is born on the 13th of May it is believed in many districts that it is lucky rather than otherwise for him or her to embark upon matrimony in that month.

There are many remarkable instances on record of a certain date being fraught with ill-luck for the members of a family. In one typical case May 11th was the day of ill-omen. On that day the father of the family was drowned at sea. On the 11th, some years after, the eldest son was killed in the Boer War. When the 11th came round again great money losses were sustained. Another year it signalized the breaking out of an epidemic of fever in the family; and yet another years the bread-winner of the family fell downstairs, breaking his leg, thus being incapacitated from work for several weeks. Small wonder that the members of the family without exception breathe a sigh of relief each year as the fatal date is left behind.

Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still.

'Tis years since last we met,
And we may not meet again;
I have struggled to forget,
But the struggle was in vain;
For her voice lives on the breeze
And her spirit comes at will:
In the midnight on the seas,
Her bright smile haunts me still.

At the first sweet dawn of light
When I gaze upon the deep,
Her form still greets my sight,
While the stars their vigils keep;
When I close my aching eyes
Sweet dreams my senses fill ;
And from sleep when I arise,
Her bright smiles haunt me still,
When I close my aching eyes
Sweet dreams my senses full:
And from my sleep when I arise
Her bright smile haunts me still.

I have sail'd 'neath alien skies,
I have trod the desert path,
I have seen the storm arise,
Like the giant in his wrath,
Ev'ry danger I have known
That a reckless life can fil:
Yet her presence is not flown,
Her bright smile haunts me still,
Ev'ry danger I have known
That a reckless life can fill;
Yet her presence is not flown,
Her bright smile haunts me still.

"Love Curls," Season's Fad, Losing Favor

By MAGGIE TEYTE

The Noted Prima Donna

MAGGIE TEYTE

MY DEAR, do you like the side-whiskers?"

I heard with some amazement one young woman ask the question of another as they promenaded the famous Peacock Alley of the Waldorf-Astoria in New York city.

"I'm not so awfully keen about them," replied the other in the most matter of fact tone. "Still, they suit some faces. They are not good on me. And where they are not good they are frightful. Besides every one will wear them and that will be the end of them."

It didn't take long to find the little "love curls" of the spring mode of hair dressing were the "side-whiskers" alluded to.

It didn't take much longer to find the truth of the other two assertions. Sometimes they are becoming. More often they are not. Any way they are deplorably overdone. A tiny curl may allure. A plastered quirl that covers the major portion of the cheek from ear almost to mouth disfigures.

Many Hair Innovations.

The style of hair dressing has changed distinctly. There have been many hair innovations besides the colored wigs. Some are charming, but there is no one way in which all women can wear their hair and have it universally becoming. The wise woman experiments well before she decides and when she has found the right way to "do" her hair, she remains faithful to its main features, for let the most ideal beauty be crowned with some hideous coiffure and her beauty would "vanish like the rose."

To begin with, the side curl was never worth half the trouble it is to arrange. It must be cut just the right length, and the smallest fraction of an inch will make a conspicuous difference with its charm.

Then it must be curled at the most exact angle, one which is at once coy and coquettish, interrogatory and impertinent, and securely transfixed with bandoline or some other gummy preparation.

And it is possible only for the decided brunette. A dark curl lying against a velvety cheek may fascinate. A blonde wisp of hair in the same arrangement becomes insipid and looks simply straggly and unkempt.

Modes Require Study.

The wise woman who has decided to follow fashion's mandate and disclose her ears and elevate her coiffure, will hie herself to the best of hairdressers and learn the art of making the most becoming twist.

She will have all she can do to beautify properly her ears for exhibition, for the ear is a prominent as well as useful feature.

It must be the right size, the right shape, the most delicately tinted, in order to be the lovely, attractive adjunct it ought to be.

As for the new hair modes, they require study. The arrangement of the hair should, first of all, conform to one's individual style.

Then it should be studied from all angles. The arrangement which is becoming in front, may be quite unbecoming from the side and impossible from the back view.

There is a revival of the French twist—but it is not the old twist we used to know. It is more suggestive than positive. It rolls easily in soft ripples and tucks the tresses away with no distinct manner of disappearance.

IF THEY SHOULD MEET

JUST suppose they should—just suppose that Miss 1914, very sure of herself, very confident of the final beauty of HER clothes, should come face to face with Miss 1860 and Miss 1870, for instance. Wouldn't it be awkward?

All awfully nice girls, you understand, and not wishing to hurt any one's feelings. Yet each would know that the others were so FUNNY!

It would be a big strain on their self-control—not to giggle, or to say a word about wondering how they ever STOOD it. And all three would have another consuming wonder as to each of the others—how they ever contrived comfortably to SIT DOWN!

Yet each (and this is the perennial miracle) knows that the supreme comfort is in being FASHIONABLE. Each knows that somehow, though in so many different ways, she is always charming as she IS.

What Is "Funny" About a Broken Heart?

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

I SAW such a funny headline in the newspaper this morning. "Afraid he'd carve her. Mrs. Somebody Something declares her husband used to threaten to cut her to pieces with the butcher knife, if she didn't have dinner ready on time."

Side splitting, isn't it? I laughed so hard it made me almost dizzy.

There were several other headlines of the same character in the same newspaper—every one of them humorous or supposed to be—and all of them about divorces.

The man who wrote the headlines seemed to think a divorce was the funniest thing in the world.

There was a funeral down the street this morning, the funeral of a little child.

The little white coffin was covered with a pall of lilies-of-the-valley, and when the carriage with the child's mother in it drove away the little dead boy's faithful dog looked through the bars of the garden gate and whined and cried almost like a human being.

I do hope my friend who wrote those headlines was there when that carriage drove away. He would have seen something exquisitely humorous about it, I'm sure—and treated us all to his point of view in the paper the next morning.

Think of it, a child dead, a jolly little fellow whom I saw playing in his mother's garden only two or three days ago—a cowboy he was with two pistols and a "lawiet"—that's the way he pronounced it. And the dog was a wolf part of the time, and sometimes he was a bear, and sometimes a lion, fierce and furious.

And the syringa bush was a lair. The little boy camped behind it and peered through the branches with his chubby face distorted in a fearsome frown.

Humor—in Broken Hearts!

The little boy's mother came to the window often to watch him play, and her sad little face lit up with wonderful radiance whenever she looked at him. She's a widow, they say, the mother of the little boy who died, and she loved her husband very dearly and was heart-broken when he died.

What a lot of fun the humorous headline writer could have about that! Why, that fellow could get all sorts of jokes out of the inscription the little widow had cut into the stone at the head of the low grave where the man she loves lies sleeping. And just think of the fun he could make of the way things looked to her in the little garden when she came home from the funeral.

I'll warrant she couldn't even look at the syringa bush without tears, and when the child's dog came and laid his shaggy head upon her knee—what a howling farce.

And the little stubby shoes, and the faded little cowboy suit he was so proud of—just a few short days ago—the little, little boy—why, there's a whole column of wit in that.

I do love a man with a sense of humor—don't you?

He brightens up the world so, for us all—even when he yanks the chair out from under you and cripples you for life or puts salt in the coffee, or pretends to be deaf and dumb, or does any of the rest of those charming little tricks of his which while away the time for his appreciative friends.

But, somehow, when I had finished reading all those funny headlines about the divorces, I went to the telephone and cancelled my subscription to the paper which printed the funny man's funny headlines.

A humorous divorce—what is there funny about a broken heart?

Maybe it is ridiculous for a woman to love a man and believe in him and trust him and leave her own friends and her own family and her own home and follow him smiling down to the very gates of death again and again—bringing up from the valley of the shadow with her his children in her arms.

Perhaps she is a sentimental fool to think that the man loved her and would be true to her and that they two will stand together against the whole world if they would have to, and be happy in poverty and in illness and in discouragement—just because they were together.

No woman ever went into the divorce court in her life with anything but a bleeding heart, and I have seen men go there, too, with faces as set in agony as if they had been going to their own execution.

I sat beside a woman in court the other day. She was there to fight for the rights of her children and herself. Her husband had fallen in love with a young girl—and turned her and her four children out like vagrant dogs to make their way in the world as best they could alone.

One Poor Bride's Case.

Oh, yes, he gave them money, a pension such as one gives an old and worn out servant, and he branded the children as worse than fatherless and the woman as worse than widowed.

The woman did everything in her power to get the man to let her live in outward amity with him for the sake of the children. But the man had promised the girl he was in love with that he would get rid of his wife and family, and so the woman had to fight for her children and for her own self-respect.

I was at that woman's wedding and helped to dress her for the ceremony. How happy she was, how gay, how light of heart!

How sorry she felt for all of us who had not yet found such a prince among men for ours, to have and to hold, as long as we both should live.

I remember the man, too—how handsome he was and how triumphant and how proud; he walked as one who treads on air.

"For better or for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health until death us do part."

How the old, old words rang through the room and thrilled us all.

And the other day I sat beside the bride—poor bride. Her wedding roses are faded in her cheek and no one in the world could say her eyes are like violets now. They have shed too many bitter, bitter tears.

And she and the man who promised to love and cherish each other until death did them part sat and looked into each other's eyes across the crowded room—enemies, bitter enemies, before the law.

The woman clutched my hand and held it close when her husband went on the stand to testify against her; and afterward she said to me, "I didn't cry or break down, did I?" And I answered her, "No, you dear, you were very brave." But, oh, her heart, how bitterly it must have wept.

I suppose my friend, the humorist of the headline, would have seen something deliciously amusing about the whole situation.

For my part, if I had a newspaper and any man wrote what he considered funny headlines about a divorce, I would discharge him then and there.

Men with that sort of sense of humor are dangerous. You never can tell what will seem funny to them.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

CONVERSATION was merry and the linen spotless. The silver bore the crest of nobility and the china was like eggshells. What matter that there was but bread and weak tea? It was served in proper style and with a pleasing hospitality."

Such was the description of a tea party contained in some old letters, the writer long since gone to her reward, the paper on which they were written yellow and brittle with age, the ink faded almost beyond deciphering.

"The linen spotless," will alone make the simplest fugal seem perfect. And yet in these days of roof drying and lack of the whitening aid of grass and sun beating down upon the linen spread thereon, linen has a discouraging way of getting spotted and stained and gray.

Bleaching it to spotlessness is a matter which involves more patience than skill.

Here is the rule of an Irish woman who in her youth spun wonderful linen. [illegible] soak the clothes for 24 hours in [illegible] in which borax has been dissolved in the proportion of a tablespoonful to each gallon. After they [illegible] soaked, wash them thoroughly [illegible] water, wring and place [illegible] cover with cold water. [illegible] gallons add a pound [illegible] a tablespoonful [illegible]—the same [illegible] ful [illegible] quantity [illegible] grad[illegible] [illegible] the pinafores of the little ones to the annoyance of careful house-mothers.

Yet if removed when the stains are fresh there is no reason why a berry stain should write worry wrinkles in housekeepers' brows.

Javelle water should be kept ready for just such emergencies. Used in moderation it will not injure the finest linen. It costs but a trifle to make, and it will usually remove almost any stain. To prepare javelle water, dissolve one part of chloride of lime in 10 parts of water. In a second vessel dissolve one part of washing soda in four parts of boiling water. When both are thoroughly dissolved, combine the two fluids and mix well. Let the mixture settle, then carefully pour off the clear water and throw away the sediment.

The chief thing to remember about the use of javelle water is to rinse the article which has been immersed in it three or four times in clear water until every particle of the javelle water has been soaked out of the fabric, else when the iron is applied it will be apt to leave a hole. If the fabric is particularly fine, it is a wise precaution to rinse, after having previously washed it in several clear waters, in a mixture of one part of hyposulphite of soda to 12 parts of water.

Lay the stain in the javelle water and leave till it disappears. Rinse immediately.

Never use this method on any article [illegible] dered with silk. It will [illegible] [illegible] move fruit [illegible] particu[illegible]

Secrets of Health

Grief Costs You Dearly In Vitality

By Dr. L. K. Hirshberg,

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins)

DR. HIRSHBERG

SORROW, like lies or fire, grows by what it feeds on. There are many good souls alive today who feel that their filial love, the respect for their dear departed, the regrets over past errors, and the remembrance of things gone by cannot be sincere without deep, dyed-in-the-wool, heart-tormenting sorrow.

Yet sorrow really is an obnoxious and unnecessary demon that preys upon its solitude. Nothing more diverts it from its sad visions of the other world than to call it at moments back to this.

The busy, serious, efficient person with high resolve and fine purpose has no time for tears. He bears both the torments and the sorrow that, to pay grief, must of poor patience borrow.

Disappointed joys are too many. It is the vile daily drop, drop, drop that wears the soul out like marble with petty cares.

Dismiss each unfulfilled wish, each unconquered task, each disappointed pleasure at once and forever. Prof. Elliot and many other young-old men, attribute with justice their long and healthful life to the fact that they never moped when thwarted by others.

When joys are poisoned, when hope is turned into despair, obstructions put in your way, and all sorts of unexpected obstacles block your ambition, your life's desire, your loves, your yearnings, calmly turn away into another path and raise a new plan and structure.

One fire burns out another's burning, one pain is lessened by another's anguish, one desperate grief cures with another's languish. Take then some new infection to the eye, and the rank poison of the old will die.

There is no sense, reason, justification, glory, health or beneficence in sorrow. Affliction is the old woman who lived in a shoe and had so many people she didn't know what to do. Each painful throe, each sigh of sorrow bears other sons, uglier than their brothers.

Happy feelings make healthful natures. Joy should displace everybody's sorrow. It is the mainspring of all forward movement. Without it stagnation and retrogression in strength, vitality, working power and the capacity to live follow.

The soul, secure in her existence, should smile at the drawn dagger and defy its point. The stars may fade away, all lovers, friends and dear ones go, the sun himself may dim with age, and nature sink in years, yet the human spirit should flourish happily as a green bay tree.

The wrecks of matter, the crush of worlds, the war of the elements should give a calm, helpful mood, not the anarchistic one of sorrow.

JOHNSON'S SPEED REALLY MARVELOUS

Accurate Test Showed His Ball Travels Faster Than the World's Fastest Train

Walter Johnson throws a baseball faster than the Twentieth Century Limited travels. If he could propel a ball along the course followed by the world's fastest train, the ball would travel from New York to Chicago ahead of the train—because the "Century" moves at an average of 120 2-3 feet per second and Johnson's fast ball hops along 122 feet per second.

The exact speed of Johnson's fast ball has always been a matter of discussion. He has been compared to Rusie, and old-time fans say the Hoosier demon had it on Johnson, but there was no way to prove this. Men who have seen Johnson at his best are willing to swear the ball goes so fast it cannot be seen with the naked eye. Often the plunk of the ball in the catcher's mitt precedes the batsman's futile swing.

The question came up in New York one day when Washington was playing in the metropolis, and to settle it the big Swede was taken to Bridgeport, Conn., in an automobile, and a mathematically accurate test of his speed was made in the trial room of one of the big arms factories. A device used to test the speed of bullets was used. The apparatus consists of a screen of fine wires set up in front of a steel-faced plate; the distance between the screen and the plate is five yards. An electric connection to a register gives the exact time consumed by the projectile traveling between the screen and plate. As the projectile passes through the screen it snaps one or more of the fine wires starting the timer, which registers until the projectile strikes the steel plate.

After Johnson warmed up he took his stand before the apparatus and pitched ball after ball. He had difficulty in locating the "plate"—the screen—at first. But he finally managed it, and the registering device commenced to ring off the astounding speed. He reached 122 feet per second and stopped. "Nap" Rucker, the Brooklyn southpaw, who was also in the party took a turn at the indicator and registered 113 feet per second. Nap expressed his firm belief that Johnson could reach 150 feet per second if conditions were favorable—in fact, he asserted that on the ball field Johnson does that well. But Walter seemed satisfied to have beaten the speed of the Twentieth Century.

The speed of a high power bullet from an automatic pistol that is supposed to go through steel plates and heavy planking is but 800 feet per second.

Safety in Sounds

The latest type of safe has no locks, keys, or key-holes. Instead, there is a tightly-stretched wire, which responds to its own musical note. The wire is connected with an electric battery inside the safe, and to open one must sound a tuning-fork, or a note on bugle, organ, or trumpet, in precisely the same way as the wire. When the note is sounded the sensitive wire vibrates, and turns on the current which operates the locking mechanism.

Three wires are used in some instances, necessitating, of course, three trumpet blasts in different keys before the mechanism will work.

The obvious danger to this apparatus is, of course, that one of the wires might get out of tune, in which case the safe would remain snugly locked until the right key was struck.

The Fish Harvest

Sixty-two varieties of fish, including great white flat fish, red shell fish, tiny freshwater crayfish, silvery salmon, dark-skinned eels, and yellow dried haddocks were ranged in the aisle of the Church of St. Magnus the Martyr, Billingsgate, E.C., at a harvest thanksgiving service.

Among those taking part in the annual swimming and diving competitions at the Bath Club there was no keener competitor than Princess Mary, who has been well named the "open-air Princess." For five years she has been a member of the Bath Club, to which the Prince of Wales also belongs.

The race in which the young Princess took part was that for the Ladies' Challenge Shield. In this the competitors have to swim fifty yards, by breast stroke, and to pass in floating, diving, and fancy swimming. The Princess went through the various tests very well, though she was not placed among the first three.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

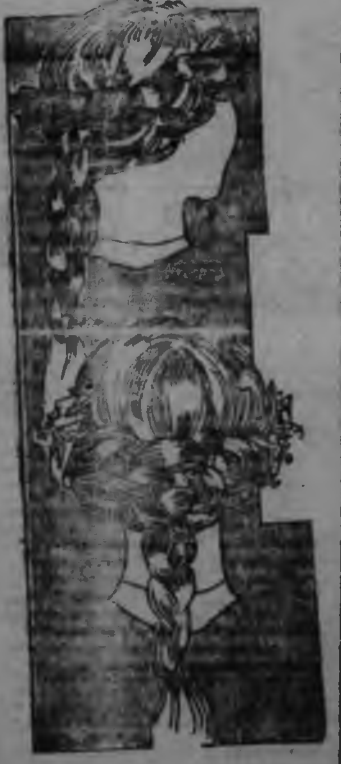
Interesting Find Made Near Banff of Famous Man's Initials

To carve one's initials on a tree trunk is a great and passionate desire of all school boys, and to this habit the world is perhaps indebted for the interesting discovery of initials on a fallen giant of the forest in the Canadian Rockies believed to be those of Sir George Simpson, at one time Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, and of his guide, James Roland. When Mr. John M. Gibbon was at Banff, B.C., endeavoring to locate records of David Thompson, who was the geographer in the early days of the West to the North West Trading Company, the great rival of the Hudson's Bay Company, he was referred to a Mr. James Brewster, a rancher, as a person well versed in local history, and he found the latter gentleman had made a discovery of great interest. He had been investigating Simpson Pass, hoping to discover some trace of Sir George Simpson's historic passage through the Rockies, and, halting to examine the under side of a large fallen tree trunk, found some carving which read: "G.S. I.R. 1841." It is evident that these initials are those of Sir George Simpson and his guide, James Roland. The year 1841 is that in which the famous explorer made his trip through the Rockies, choosing the pass which has been named after him.

Slab of Wood Bearing the Initials

The life of Sir George, the veteran king of fur traders, is one of the most picturesque in Canadian history. He went to the Canadian North West from Scotland in 1820, to take charge of the affairs of the Hudson's Bay Company. In 1841 he took up his tour of the world, leaving London on March 3rd of that year. With canoe and pack horse he crossed the continent, took ship from Fort Vancouver for Siberia, and reached London on his return journey in exactly 19 months and 26 days from his time of starting.



The picture shows some popular ways of doing young girls' hair, which can be modified to suit the individual style.

If you have long straight hair and a round face put your hair in three braids, one of which you let hang down and the other two wind about your head. This is a fine way to display a wonderful suit of hair. The simpler a young girl dresses her hair the better. You can wear it in the way that is most becoming if you only wear it over our ears and close to your head.

Sanol BLOOD SALT

No Indigestion [illegible] remedy is taken according to structions and there is no kno remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in taste and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will always superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 18 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for the salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous diseases.

HAD LIVED BEFORE

Woman Possessed Knowledge of Former Life

An extraordinary knowledge of former life is claimed to have been possessed by Mme. Laure Raynaud whose death has just occurred in Paris.

Mme. Raynaud, who was 45 years old, was a nurse in a private hospital in Passy. A few years ago she told a doctor that she knew she had died at the age of 19 many years before. She described the town and the house in which she had lived. It was a foreign town, although Mme. Raynaud had never been out of France.

The doctor thought the town might be Siena, in Italy, and from the mayor of that place procured a collection of photographs. In one of them she recognized a house and church exactly like those Mme. Raynaud described. She gave many details, among others that she died in 1840, and that her death was due to consumption.

Without telling her where she was going the doctor took her to Siena. The first day she arrived she walked straight to the house she had described, and from there to the church. There she went to the tombstone of a girl who died of consumption in 1840 at the age of 19, and fell on it in a fainting fit.

Mme. Raynaud refused to make any money out of her peculiar gift, and though she had a strange magnetism which enabled her to effect cures in certain nervous maladies, she always refused payment. Her death was due to cancer.

Germany's Population Grows

Germany will have 80,000,000 inhabitants in 1930, twice its population when the empire was founded in 1871, according to an estimate based on vital statistics for the empire for 1912. The non-Prussian states have come to the rescue with 2,000 more births than in 1911, offsetting the decrease of 8,042 in births in Prussia, on which such gloomy assumptions of German stagnation in population were based when the Prussian statistics were published last.

TO BE WELL-DRESSED

Smart Dressing on a Small Income Means Eternal Vigilance

"I spend much time in putting on my clothes. I also spend much time in taking them off," remarked a Parisienne when asked how she managed to look so smart on her small income. She went on to explain that every night she spent some little time in looking over the clothes she had worn during the day, as well as those she would wear in the morning. Frayed edges were repaired, loose buttons set on, all garments brushed and no spots or stains allowed to remain. She confessed that not a single garment was hung in her wardrobe until it was brushed and pressed, if this needed to be done, so that everything was certain to be immaculate when it was taken out for wear.

She explained also that she had a pair of trees for each pair of shoes and took great interest in her footgear. Once a week all the clothes in her wardrobe were overhauled, tailored skirts were brushed thoroughly, pressed and any creases removed by ironing with a damp silk cloth between the cloth and the iron.

Her more delicate gowns had a long, loose bag with loops sewed on and they were placed in this instead of being turned inside out and hung up. Creases and a rumpled appearance were prevented by this simple invention. Blouses, which had a long case for their storage, were laid with plenty of tissue paper between the sleeves being stuffed with this, and each coat and a separate hanger, which was covered with thin velveteen so that by no chance did the lining get soiled or torn.

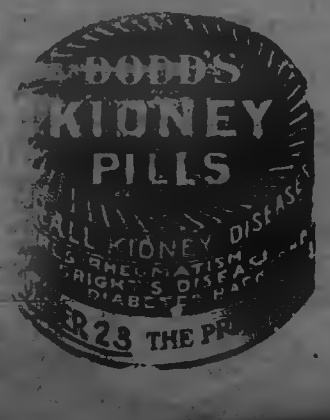
When a man is in perfect health he wakes up naturally when he has had enough sleep. What is enough sleep is entirely a matter of habit and of individuality. One man may have had enough when he has slept four hours.

The healthy man wakes up ready to get up, ready to leave his bed. This is because he is too full of vigor to lie idle. The man in perfect health must be active. But his awakening need not necessarily be sudden. Many men wake up gradually. Such an awakening is pleasant and is often accompanied by the greatest mental activity of the day. Poets have found themselves composing their most beautiful verses, musicians imagining the most loveliest of melodies when in that condition of perfect physical rest, with the mind refreshed by a night of sleep.

Nor has a healthy man any recollections of his night. He may have dreamed and he may have in his mind some hazy recollection of his dream, but this passes away like a breath from a polished steel surface.

Sleep is to the healthy man merely a reviving process for brain and body. It annihilates the poisons of fatigue that have accumulated during the day, the poisons that make him feel sleepy at night. And when he wakes up he jumps out of bed vibrating with energy for the work of another day.

It does not matter what time you go to bed so long as you have a regular hour and stick to it. The old saying that an hour of sleep before midnight is worth two after it is not true, but it has this much of truth in it: That the early hours of sleep are worth more than the later. The man who remains healthy goes to bed about the same hour every night and makes little difference whether this hour is 9 p.m. or 3 a.m.



TORTOISE SHELL

Important Industry Carried on in West Indian Waters

It is the haw-bill turtle of West Indian waters that furnishes the tortoise shell of commerce. This material is also called caret. The shells are worth from $5 to $20 a pound, according to thickness and markings; so it will be seen that quest of the turtle is rewarded with ample financial returns.

The boats wherein the tortoise-shell hunters operate are diminutive schooners about 30 feet long and 1- feet in beam. Each turtle-boat carries a number of smaller boats with two men to each boat.

A most essential feature of the equipment is the "water-glass," which is a sort of wooden box twelve inches long and ten inches square. In one end of this box there is fitted in such manner as to render it water-tight an ordinary window pane.

The net that forms so important a part of the equipment is conical in shape and about 6 feet in depth showing a six-by-eight-inch mesh. At the bottom there is a half-inch iron hoop weighted with lead. This net is attached to fifty or sixty fathoms of light rope.

The fishing ground being reached, a number of boats are sent out and they frequently scatter to a distance of a mile or more. In each of these small boats there lies at the bow an expert who "searches the bottom." He accomplishes this task by peering through the water-glass, which is immersed to a depth of three or more inches below the surface. With this glass it is said he can see to a depth of from six to twenty fathoms in the clear West Indian Waters.

When a turtle that seems desirable is seen the net is carefully lowered and dropped over the game. The turtle attempts to escape, but becomes entangled in the mesh and is soon landed in the boat.

Inasmuch as the turtle is sought merely for its shell, it is killed on board the larger vessel and this shell removed.

The most valuable of the shells are those called "lantern backs."

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS.

First Boat in Port This Year.

The steamer Geneva, Capt. Wilbert Harris, made the first trip of the season up the Otonabee on Saturday, docking at the street railway wharf. The Geneva carried some sixty passengers from lake and river points.

Had Willie Got Back?

Last Friday afternoon, at 4.30, a lady living on Water street, asked her maid "Is Willie back from school yet?" "Well, I haven't seen him Mrs. ——" the maid replied, "but I think he must be as I just saw the cat hiding in the coal bin!"

Same Trouble Here

Lindsay Post : Mayor Beal at last night's council session drew attention to the recklessness of certain automobilists who round the street corners in dare devil style. The members of the council were unanimous that something would have to be done towards enforcing the speed laws or a fatality would assuredly result.

Lindsay Bill For Street Cleaning.

Lindsay Warder: It is stated on the authority of a Lindsay official that the street cleaning of Monday last cost the town $21.00. Another party who has inside information told The Warder this morning that it will cost at least $10 per day to keep the paved streets in a presentable shape during the summer.

A Specific For Seasickness.

The Times was in receipt last Saturday, of a letter from a young lady living on Hunter Street, asking if we know of any preventative for seasickness. We regretted our inability to name any specific. We however, told her of one local business man, whose real name is not "Tightwad," who will never be seasick if he swallows a dime on the day he sails.

A Handsome Wild Duck.

Reverting to a story, first told in the Times, a few days ago about hundreds of wild ducks being caught, down the Otonabee by muskrat trappers, owing to the exceptionally low state of the water, on Saturday a man, living a few miles below Yankee Bonnet, showed a Times representative one of the most handsome Wood ducks, a plumed drake, ever captured in this part of the country.

A New Local Law Firm.

Mr. G. N. Gordon has arranged with Mr. C. R. Widdifield, son of his honor Judge C. H. Widdifield, Owen Sound, to join in the near future in the legal practice which Mr. Gordon has so successfully developed during years. The work connected with the position of City Solicitor and the demands of Mr. Gordon's regular business have necessitated his taking a partner.

Local Folks in Winnipeg.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Brownscombe left on Saturday afternoon for Winnipeg, where they were called to visit their son Ernie. The latter was taken ill several weeks ago with typhoid fever and to-day showed indications that were scarcely encouraging. Mr. Brownscombe is with the Bank of Ottawa, and graduated from the local branch.

A Coming Local Singer

Yesterday evening Master Sam, son of Mr. Frank Whitehouse, local agent for the Nordheimer piano company, gave a magnificently rendered soprano solo in St. Luke's church. This boy has got a splendid soprano voice of wide range and sweet tone. He has sang solos in several of the local churches, including St. Andrews. He sings a solo in Holy Trinity Church next Sunday.

Not Necessary Here

Mr. R.J. Kidd the well-known local insurance man, on Saturday received a letter from Mr. Russell T. Kelley, manager of the Hamilton Fire Insurance Co., in which the writer kindly offered his personal assistance should Peterborough, like Hamilton, have a civic "clean up" day. Fortunately owing to the present good work done by Sanitary Inspector Spence, Chief of Police, Thompson, and Fire Chief Howard, such a day does not seem necessary in this city.

When the Fireworks Started.

Yesterday morning a resident of Brock street got something of a shock. He is suffering from a cold and decided that a good stiff "horn" of whiskey before breakfast might do him good. He came down stairs before the rest of the family and found there was only one man's size of "horn" left. He thought the spiritus frumenti would do him more good if taken warm. On the stove stood a big enamelled coffee pot containing about a pint of Java. He heated the coffee and poured it into the whiskey. The victim of La Grippe took a hasty swallow. Then the fireworks started. His wife had, the night before, put washing soda into the coffee pot to cleanse it. The Brock street man remarked "Its hard luck that this is Sunday."

RIVAL TONGS ARE AGAIN NEAR CLASH

Disclosure of Rival "Republic" Club Causes Trouble.

New Orleans, April 25.—Chinatown is a-flutter and a special police detail from the central police station is on duty there. The excitement is said to be due to the fact that two rival tongs are again at each other's throat.

Exposures following a raid made Sunday night at 150 Elk place is said to have precipitated the trouble. The faction living on the uptown side of Tulane avenue discovered then for the first time the existence of a rival Chinese Republic Club and explanations are said to have been demanded and refused.

The original Chinese Republic club composed of a large membership of leading Chinese merchants, was organized several weeks ago with headquarters at 145 Elk place, formerly occupied by the Chinese Masons.

Late Sunday the establishment of Quong Wah Chong & Co., the new store at 150 Elk place was raided by government officers and police, who used axes in breaking down doors. Opium worth $300 was confiscated and several arrests made.

On a sign, written in English, was disclosed in a room on the ground floor, the following about which all the trouble is said to center: "Chinese Republic Club." This the occupants refused to explain.

Those arrested in the raid of Sunday night which was lead by Captain W.H. Rowe, special agent of the treasury department, were locked up in the parish prison to await trial before the United States courts. Monday early unsuccessful efforts on the part of their friends were made to obtain their release on bond.

The stand charged under the provisions of an act passed last January making it an offense to have opium in one's possession.

Jas. Leitch, an elderly workman at Rock Mills, Ont., shot himself.

Berlin Public Library Board will receive $10,000 from Andrew Carnegie.

Daniel George, undertaker and furniture dealer at Alvinston, cut his throat.

Cheneyville and Vicinity Infested by Pests.

Cheneyville, La., April 26.—Cheneyville and vicinity for several miles around are infested with buffalo gnats which have attacked the stock and caused heavy losses. Within the last 10 days between 50 and 60 head of cattle, mostly mules and horses, have been killed by the gnats.

The atmosphere is filled with the gnats. They attack the stock in large numbers, literally covering them and the effects of their bites cause blood-poison and other complications which cause the animals to die within a few hours after being affected.

3 WOMEN POISONED BY MIDNIGHT TEA

Workers in Kohlman Cotton Mill are Made Ill By Beverage.

New Orleans, April 25.— Police of the second precinct are investigating Wednesday a report that three young women employed at the Kohlman cotton mill, St. Thomas and Thalia streets, had been poisoned by tea drunk at the mill at midnight Tuesday. They are Mrs. Maggie McIntyre 1232 Constance street; Miss Lottie Conley, 1041 Tchoupitoulas street, and Miss Katie Horn, 504 Howard avenue. All have passed the danger point but are still sick.

Sergeant Calvin's attention to the matter was first called to it when he observed a touring car carrying the patients to their homes early Wednesday. William Eagesam superintendent of the cotton mill, told him the women had been accustomed to taking tea at this hour nightly.

It is believed the tea was made in a vessel the metal of which caused a harmful chemical change in the beverage.

James Wooiner, of Collingwood, fell from a train at Allandale and was killed.

Ingersoll voted a loan of $15,000 to a Detroit firm who will manufacture auto starters.

Two Collingwood hotelmen were heavily fined for selling over-proof unfermented wine.

THEORY RICH BOY SLEW FOR MONEY RIDICULED BY JEROME HIS LAW

Albany, April 26.—The theory robbery was the motive behind murder of Frank J. Chute, a chauffeur, was ridiculed yesterday William Travers Jerome after a conference with Malcolm Gifford, of Hudson, who is charged with slaying, and whom Jerome will fend.

"To think that a 17-year-old the son of wealthy parents, have been guilty of deliberately ing a stranger, and in the back the head at that, for the mere tance he might obtain from his ets is altogether absurd and able," said Mr. Jerome.

LSTER LOOKS FOR SERIOUS DEVELOPMENTS UPROAR IN COMMONS—AS PREMIER SPEAKS

r One Hundred Questions Fired at Mr. Asquith Fail to Pierce Armor of Reserve—All Referred to Ulster Plot

ndon, April 27.—"This grave and ous outrage," was the term used Premier Asquith to-day, in reply question in the House of Com- s as to the gun-running exploit the Ulster Volunteers, who, in g armed force, landed 40,000 and 500,000 cartridges at vari- points in Ulster on Friday. The der said:

he House may rest assured that Government will take, without y, proper steps to vindicate the erity of the law and to protect fficers and servants of the King His Majesty's subjects in the ex- e of their duties and in the en- ent of their legal rights."

e Premier spoke gravely, as gh foreshadowing the taking of which possibly will entail a ous sequel.

Replies Colorless Negatives.

r one hundred questions were to Mr. Asquith to-day in his capacity of Premier and Secre- of State for War. They all re- d to the Ulster situation, but replies given were mostly bare tives or colorless reiterations of already established relative to recent "precautionary disposition" he troops in Ireland.

remier Asquith declined to answer ral questions in regard to re- on the situation in Ulster or nnection with orders issued as a quence. He took the ground these reports and orders were dential.

Opposed Paget's Opinions.

to the despatch of troops to r in March, Mr. Asquith explain- hat the Government did not share ral Paget's apprehensions that movement would set the country blaze, and declared he thought was the Government's duty to safeguard its stores and arms. Altogether, during question time, the Opposition obtained from the Premier only a small amount of material for the two days' fight on the subject which begins in the House of Commons to-morrow.

Asquith to See His Majesty.

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, was a keen listener. The only interlude which raised a smile throughout the hour during which the Premier was catechised was when the Nationalists greeted the Ulster leader as "King Carson" and called out "Hats off to the King."

Immediately after he had finished replying to questions Premier Asquith proceeded in a motor car to Buckingham Palace to have an audience with the King.

Entrance of Leaders.

London, April 27.—Members looked grimly at each other in the Commons lobby to-day. In the House itself the atmosphere quivered with excitement. Loud cheers from a thronged Ministerial side greeted the Premier on his entering.

A minute later Winston Churchill strode in. He had a rousing cheer also, but amid the cheers there were unmistakable groans from the Unionist side. The Premier and the First Lord almost at once started replying to the one hundred and odd questions waiting for them.

Almost immediately too there was an angry interlude, Mr. Churchill was heckled as to movements of third battle squadron. He said the orders given were intended to avoid unnecessary irritation.

COLD WAVE IN WEST FROST MANY PLACES

Winnipeg, April 27.—A cold wave struck the Western Provinces last night, Humboldt, Sask., recording 17 degrees of frost and at most points in the three provinces the temperature went below the freezing point. Red Deer held the record for Alberta at 20 above, and at Dauphin, Man., it was 19 above. Winnipeg registered eight degrees of frost. Continued cold is predicted.

SIMPLE ALTERNATIVE TO FORCIBLE FEEDING

London, April 27.—It is understood that another attempt is to be made to put an end to the suffragettes, the organ of the militants. The plague of incendiarism all over the country has caused such an outcry that Home Secretary McKenna will be compelled to attempt another repressive move. The Bishop of Norwich, whom the militants selected as a special victim of their attentions, said in an interview on the question which they put to him in regard to forcible feeding of suffragette prisoners: It appears to me that the most obvious way to end forcible feed would be that the women should eat the food provided for them. The Bishop complains of the lack of courtesy of the women who interviewed him.

STATES MOVE ON MEXICO MEANS MASSACRE FOR SURE

Three Thousand Americans Scattered in Republic Look for Escape

Washington, April 27.—The first thought of the American forces now in Mexico is the relief of the American refugees. All other operations are being held up until steps can be taken to remove the larger part of the refugees to protected ports, where warships and chartered steamers are waiting to transport them to the United States.

This Government is like a handcuffed giant. The United States is unable to push military operations for fear vengeance will be wreaked by Huerta upon the Americans within Mexico. It is unable to send forces to the relief of the refugees for fear the murderous knife and bullet will be used before these forces could reach their destinations.

Asking Safe Conduct.

Representations are being made through the Brazilian and British representatives throughout Mexico that Mexicans in the custody of the United States will be given safe conduct to the interior. This being done in the hope that the Mexicans will relent and remove the obstacles thrown in the way of Americans leaving for the coast. So long as the lives of Americans in the interior are at stake, the United States will spare no pains, will even accept the humiliation of conducting indirect negotiations with Huerta, for the purpose of bringing these to a place of safety.

A SAD BEREAVEMENT

Particularly Distressing Trouble Of Ashburnham Family.

The sympathy of his many friends has been extended to Mr. McLaughlin Anderson of 580 Rogers Street, over the death of the eldest daughter Violet Emeline, born Dec. 8th, 1894, at Dandash Lake, Cardiff township, who passed away on April 26th inst, at Nicholl's Hospital, aged 19 years and 4 months.

A notice of her regretted demise was contained in yesterday's issue of the Times.

A sad feature is that another member of the family, aged only eight years, is seriously ill with lung trouble and no hope is extended for her recovery. It is only a comparatively short time since that Mrs. Anderson was taken from the family.

The funeral of Miss Violet Emeline will be held at 1.45 today, from the family residence. Rev. Robert Pogue officiating.

U. S. AGENTS, AT N. O. KEEP THEIR EYES OPEN

Watch Closely For Shipments of War Materials With Embargo Re-established.

New Orleans, April 27. — Customs inspectors, secret agents of the Department of Justice, officers of the revenue cutter service and all port authorities at New Orleans are now taking a second squint at every suspicious looking package of frieght destined for shipment southward by sea or rail in view of the re-establishment of the embargo against the shipment of munitions of war to the Constitutionalists forces in Mexico. Naturally there is equal vigilence with respect to shipments that may reach Huerta's forces since hostilities began at Vera Cruz.

From the moment orders are received here by Federal officials to enforce the embargo they will begin seizing anything that they suspect might ge war material destined for the Carranza forces.

Thursday no official notice of the embargo had been given them, but with a situation that practically amounts to war confronting them, all government officers concerned with the prevention o contraband of war getting away from this city to either side in Mexico are taking no chances and are keeping on the alert.

It is said that agents of the Carranza government have recently been active in this city in arranging for the purchase of arms and ammunition but as the embargo previously established against the Constitutionalists had been removed some months ago, practically no attention was paid to their operations here by government officers. Now, however, the sudden and acute developments in Mexico have doubtless stimulated these Mexican agents to hasten the getting out of the city of any war material they had purchased here or brought here for the North or East.

"I have received no instructions yet regarding the reestablishment of the embargo," said Special Agent F. C. Pendleton of the Department of Justice, in charge at New Orleans.

SIR EDWARD CARSON AS A MODERN NEHEMIAH OF ULSTER

Protestants, Like Jews of Old, Are Building a Wall—One Hand to Work Other to Hold Sword

Belfast, Ireland, April 27.—The most effective way in which to convey to readers an idea of the situation here, is to continue my simple narrative of what passes under my notice from day to day. At morning service this Easter Sunday in the May street Presbyterian church, I heard Rev. William Patterson, formerly pastor of Cooke's Church, Toronto, announce a request of the Belfast Presbytery, that the people set apart Tuesday, April 21, as a day of prayer for divine aid in the present crisis. Mr. Patterson asked his congregation to attend in the church between the hours of one and two o'clock in the afternoon, and between eight and nine o'clock in the evening of the day named and for the purpose mentioned. He added that April 21 was to be a day of prayer in England also.

March of the Volunteers.

This afternoon I attended a striving church parade of the West Belfast Regiment of Ulster Volunteers held in the Townsend Presbyterian church, a large and handsome stone edifice in the heart of the city. I found the streets in the neighborhood lined with men, women and children out to see their "defenders" march past. The volunteers arrived in detachments from their different company headquarters. Some wore only their ordinary Sunday clothes, others had belts and bandoliers, and some companies appeared in complete khaki uniforms. There was no band to stir the blood, but the stalwart Ulstermen and lads marched past in true military style, erect in bearing, and with a swing that reminded me of the Queen's Own, the Royal Grenadiers, or the 48th Highlanders in Toronto. There can be no doubt of the splendid physical and disciplinary effect of military drill upon the average young man.

A SHOWER OF ROSES FOR KING AND QUEEN

Paris, April 27.—The British Royal visit will certainly rank as the most successful of its kind on record. The important question of dress contributed considerably to this verdict Paris had an impression that the Queen dressed in dowdy fashion, and the people were therefore surprised to find her far more "chic" in appearance than Mme. Poincare.

One of the prettiest effects witnessed by your correspondent was while the procession was going through the Rue de la Paix on Wednesday. The working girls of two great dressmakers situated on opposite sides of the street threw rose petals from the topmost windows, filling the air with a fluttering pink shower.

MASS MEETING IN QUEEN'S PARK TO PROTEST AGAINST HOME RULE

Unionists of Toronto Will Hold a Grand Demonstration Saturday Afternoon, May Ninth

Toronto, April 27.—Saturday, May 9th, is the date on which the Unionists clubs have decided to hold their mass meeting in Queen's Park to protest against the forcing of Home Rule on Ulster.

The meeting will be held at two-thirty in the afternoon and speeches by prominent men will be made from the band stand.

Toronto Anti-Home Rulers will gather in the east and west end and will march to the park, meeting at the corner of Queen and University streets. The eastenders will gather at Riverdale Park and will proceed along Broadview avenue to Queen and along Queen to the avenue and so up to the Park. The members of the clubs living in the west and the northern part of the city will meet at the corner of Euclid avenue and College street and will go along Euclid to Queen and then east to the avenue.

MUSICAL EVENT OF THE SEASON

On Wednesday evening, the St. George's Choral Society will render in the Grand Opera House, Handel's great and favourite oratorio, "Judas Maccabaeus," the splendid manner in which this high-class musical organization handled "The Messiah" last year to a capacity house should bespeak for this occasion equally generous patronage. Months of earnest practice has been entailed in preparing this irresistibly pleasing instrumental and vocal work for presentation to Peterborough's citizens, and it is safe to say the performance will be startling in its revelation of what our local talent is capable of in this line. This exceptional musical offering is under the capable direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, organist and choir master of St. John's church, who won enviable laurels in his conduction of "The Messiah" last year. He will be acceptably supported by Mr. Rupert Gliddon, with his Conservatory orchestra—an instrumental aggregation of which Peterborough may well feel proud. The vocal numbers will be rendered by Miss Dorothy Allan, of this city, soprano; Miss Olive Casey of Toronto, soprano; Mr. Albert Downey, and Mr. Frank Oldfield, tenor and bass respectively, both of Toronto. "Judas Maccabaeus" is an exceedingly popular inspiration, and the preference given it is due to the remarkable breadth, simplicity, and clearness of its music. It was written avowedly for a popular occasion, and it is obvious, if we examine the style of the most favourite pieces, such as "Pious Orgies," "O Father," "Arm ye, Brave," "Disdainful of Danger," "Hail, Judea," "Sound an Alarm," "See the Conquering Hero Comes," "Sing Unto God," &c., that they are characterised by a simplicity of construction and breadth of effect which must have been purposely designed to render them easily appreciable to unlearned ears. The object of the whole offering to-morrow night is the encouragement of high-class musical training for Peterborough's young people, and as such should meet with capacity endorsation in the way of attendance at the Opera House.

DAYLIGHT SAVING GROWING POPULAR

The late King Edward himself practised daylight saving on lines similar to those proposed in the Parliamentary Bill. For many years at Sandringham he caused clocks to be advanced thirty minutes during the summer months, and in the last two years of his life he caused the same rule to be observed at Windsor and Balmoral, and said he was favorably disposed towards the Bill.

So far 285 members of the House of Commons have expressed their approval, including Liberals (Mr. Churchill, Mr. Lloyd George, and Mr. Birrell amongst them), Conservatives (Mr. Balfour, Lord Charles Beresford, and Mr. Austen Chamberlain), Labor members, and Nationalists. Fifty members of the House of Lords have also said "Aye!" including Lord Roberts, Lord Rosebery, the Duke of Devonshire, and the Bishop of London. Many railway companies support the Bill which Mr. William Willett is pushing vigorously while favoring resolutions have also been passed by four county councils, 655 city corporations and town and district councils, 78 chambers of commerce, and innumerable other important bodies.

Everybody now knows the scheme, or should. On the third Sunday in April it is proposed that standard time shall advance 60 minutes, and on the third Sunday in September recede 60 minutes. The little change would be done in the early hours, and we should know nothing about it—except that on every day between those dates we should move about in one extra hour of sunlight. This would mean a yearly gain of 154 hours of daylight, equivalent to 17 holidays of nine hours each. In artificial light alone Mr. Willett estimates that we should save at least $12,500,000 a year.

It is interesting to note, by the way that quite a number of members of European Royal Families bear tattooed designs. The Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, for instance, is most elaborately tattooed; likewise his cousin, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. The Queen of Greece and the King of Sweden are also tattooed. On his arm Prince George of Greece has a wonderful representation of a flying dragon in many colors. One of King George's arms bears a similar design, and Prince Francis of Teck has a curious picture of a frog leaping for a small beetle tattooed on his right forearm.

SPELLING REFORM

Authors Listen to an Appeal For Simpler Spelling

The Authors' Club of London discussed with considerable seriousness and occasional hilarity the subject of "Spelling Reform." The chairman, Professor Walter Rippmann, said authors and writers would welcome the proposal to determine what is good English speech, because a little reflection showed that a well-established standard alone would prevent the splitting up of English and restore the dialects to honor. He would not talk glibly about the "natural growth of language" in connection with spelling and standard speech without a careful study of linguistics, which showed in how limited a sense the expression was true. Being accustomed to the present look of the printed language, the first appearance of words in their own guise would distress the author, but his common sense would tell him that there was no intrinsic beauty in the printed word, and that those accustomed to words in a garb more fitting to the sounds would consider that spelling beautiful—with better reason. On the other hand, the author would recognise that the long hours now spent in our schools over the mechanical drudgery of learning to spell would be better employed in learning to speak clearly and in reading good literature; that, instead of the distaste for reading often engendered by our irrational spelling, the taste for good literature would be fostered; that the writer would come to think more of the sound of his words and make them more pleasing to the ear; that with a spelling that consistently represented the sounds it would become far easier to teach our language to our fellow subjects of alien race and the great obstacle would be removed to English as the language of international communication. Thus the adoption of a rational spelling would bring about a more intensive and a more extensive appreciation of our literature; there would be more time for its study in our schools, more care for its beauty in speech and writing, and a vast increase in the number of those who read English books. No man of letters could afford to remain indifferent to such an appeal, coming as it did not from a body of cranks and faddists, but from men and women whose ability and judgment none would dare to question.

TROUSERS FOR WOMEN

"The blossom cannot tell what becomes of the odor, and no man can tell what becomes of his example, that rolls away from him and goes beyond his ken on its perilous mission."—H. W. Beecher.

* * *

It is stated as an actual fact that the first pair of trousers have actually been worn by a woman in daylight and undisguised. The new costume was invented by a Parisian tailor, of course. It consists of a short coat, and a wrap-over skirt which fastens in front over the trousers. The latter are creased as a man's and turned up around the ankle. Its inventor claims that the costume is practical and convenient, and the trousers being made of the same material as the skirt are not nearly so conspicuous as are the silk stockings which are seen through the slit and slashed skirts and only the turned up ends of the trousers can be seen when the skirt is fastened. There is no doubt that something of the sort is bound to come before long. All women's dress is tending towards the elimination of the skirt. Nowadays with so many professional women, athletic women, women engaged in men's trades, it is inevitable that some form of practical dress will have to be devised to meet their requirements, and general simplification has been going on for some time past. Skirts of [illegible] fulness, plain coats, the disappearance of the petticoat, and so on all show the trend of ideas, while for some time past in Alpine sports, in riding, in mountain climbing and in other occupations where there is risk to life and limb the skirt has been altogether dispensed with and no one has seemed to be greatly [illegible] or shocked about it. The change has come about so gradually that it has scarcely been noticed, and the eccentricities and freaks of fashion keep the attention of the public rivetted upon them while all the time the real and vital changes are taking place and by the time the public wake up to the fact have become accepted. Bicycling for women was the beginning of it, and sports and professions have developed it. It is no uncommon thing for little girls nowadays to be dressed exactly like their brothers when at the seaside or in the country, and it will not be long before the older girls and women adopt the same costume if they find it practical and comfortable, and so by degrees it is likely that a mannish style of dress will be used for everyday wear, though I doubt if the skirt will ever be abandoned for house and smart wear. But you never can tell.

KEEPING ACCOUNTS

Enter Each Item and Thus Avoid a Muddle

Most women are not nearly sufficiently particular abouts keeping accounts—they are apt to think it is dull and unnecessary work. It is quite a mistaken attitude to adopt, however, for it is only by keeping accounts that a woman can learn how to manage her money in the best and most advantageous way. Certainly women of every degree and position will find their money covers much more ground when they see the wisdom that lies in keeping regular accounts.

Accounts must be kept in the right way, but that does not necessitate a great deal of work, and any elaborate book-keeping is misplaced. One large account book and a set of small ones are required—the large one to be balanced up once a month, the small ones being for weekly accounts. The small books must be divided up under various headings, according to the various calls that are made upon a woman's pocket. The latter vary so much according to individual responsibilities that it is impossible to generalise. Anyway, one book should be devoted to each department in which money is chiefly spent, and quarterly or monthly or weekly (as the case may be) the money which has to cover certain things should be systematically divided among them. This must be entered into each of the respective books, on one side as "Money received," and on the opposite side must be entered a full and complete account of "Money spent." It is most essential that every item should be regularly entered in the right little book on both the credit and debit sides. It is not an atom of good for women to follow the example of the schoolboy who kept his accounts like this: Collection, 10 cents; car fares, 25 cents; sundries, $2.50; total money spent, $5. That is only waste of time and energy. Accounts are kept so that one can tell exactly how every cent has been spent—the importance of entering each item immediately cannot be too strongly emphasised. The items, however, should not be enumerated when balancing the small books into the monthly one—then it is only necessary to put the covering heading which appears on the outside of each little book.

It is wise to keep all old account books. If some one item of expenditure is shown for no apparent reason, a reference to last year's books will often show where the reason lies. The advantages of keeping accounts are many, and such that no woman can fail to appreciate once she determines to give up a little of her spare time to keeping the books in order.

MUNICIPAL FORMS ALWAYS IN STOCK

In separate coats as well as frocks and suits the raglan shoulder is an improved feature. There is also a tendency to belt them in slightly at the bottom or at a low waistline, allowing the bottom to flare in the new modish way. The coat shown in No. 8270 is developed in a brown tweed mixture and combined with a three-tiered skirt of the same material; this makes an unusually effective walking suit and both coat and skirt may be worn separately if desired.

If gabardine, serge or moire were used with this design, a suit dressy enough for almost any occasion would result.

This coat requires for size 36, 3½ yards of 36-inch or 3¼ yards of 42-inch material; 4⅞ yards of the same widths will be needed for the skirt. A happy combination of moire and silk poplin was used in the afternoon frock shown in No. 8297, with an underblouse in one of Poiret's brightly colored silks; there is also a guimpe of cream colored net and a broad girdle of satin, as a finishing touch.

This dress may be copied in size 36 with 4⅛ yards of 36-inch or 4¼ yards of 42-inch material. Both silk poplin and moire are wide, averaging 42 inches; in price they range from $1.50 to $4.00 a yard.

No. 8270—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 8002—sizes 22 to 32.

CONGO WITCH-DOCTORS

How the Spirits Are Made Amenable to Influence

Witchcraft prevails throughout the whole of the Congo territory, said the Rev. J. H. Weeks, in a lecture at the Horniman Museum, London, upon Congo witch-doctors and their methods. You pay the witch-doctor a certain fee, said Mr. Weeks, and he will bring a disease on your enemy; or if you want to be rich he will give you a spirit fetish or powerful charm which will draw the monkeynuts from your enemy's land, or take the fruit from a neighbor's tree and put it on your own tree. Another superstition held by the natives is that no shark, or crocodile, or leopard will harm you unless it is bewitched to do so. "I have seen a man jump from a steamer on top of a shark," said the lecturer, "and he was fortunate enough to escape injury." Had anything happened to him, however, two or three other natives might have been done to death for having bewitched the shark.

There are fifty different kinds of witch-doctors in the Lower Congo alone. Each one has his own work with his own fetish or charm. They [illegible] over overlap, so that there is a fetish and witch-doctor for every emergency in life and for every kind of disease and every sort of good luck or bad luck. If a man loses something by theft, he hires a fetish, and beats it with a stick. The more he beats it the better it works, and after he has lifted it three times in the air and laid it three times on the ground he takes it into his house. The spirit of the fetish is then supposed to go after the man who stole the goods. Meanwhile the latter, hearing that a powerful fetish spirit is after the thief, runs off at once to the witch-doctor, and buys a charm to protect him from the curse. Hence the witch-doctor takes a fee from one side to bring down the curse on a victim, and from another to remove the curse, so that he stands to win either way.

If you desire to become a witch-doctor in the Upper Congo you must belong to the family of a witch-doctor, or, if you do not, then you must begin by bewitching all your relatives to death. The Lower Congo witch-doctor handles things differently, for he places the novice—one of his assistants—in the centre of a crowd, and then beats a drum. If the man begins to sway to and fro to the beat of the drum and then rushes wildly and clambers up the roof of a house and tears away the thatch [illegible], he [illegible] be duly made a witch-doctor, but his initiation is not completed until he finds the [illegible] of a person who has died by [illegible], and as such victims are buried in obscure graves the task is not an easy one.

Another easier method is by paying the witch-doctor a thousand strings of blue pipe beading or one can even be a witch-doctor by being cute enough, like a man whom the lecturer met, who pretended he had lain seven days under water conversing with the water spirit.

MILLIONS OF BEADS

"For what is form or what is face,
But the soul's index or its case?"
—N. Cotton

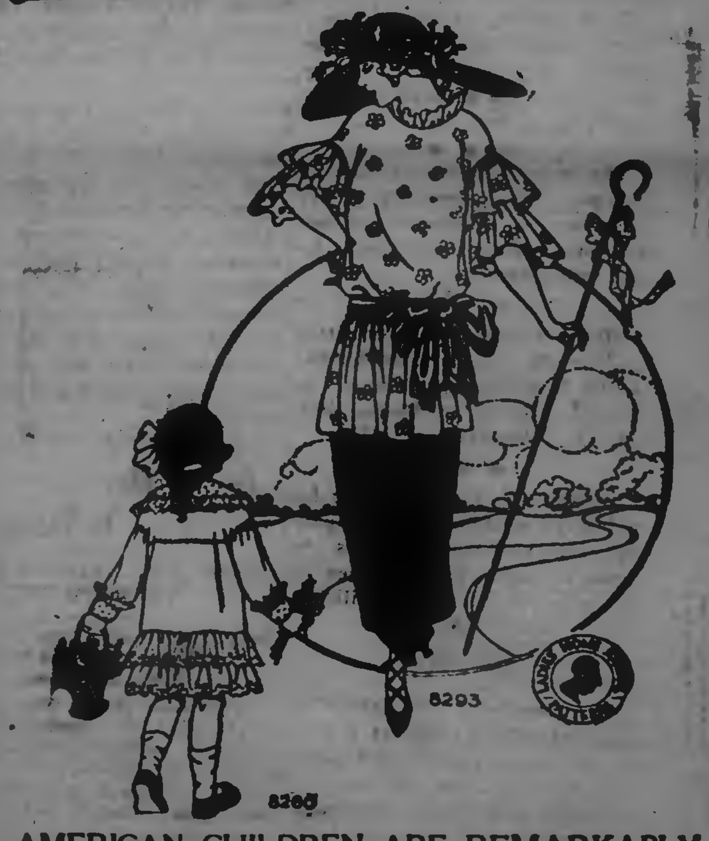
The bead craze in Paris and London is reaching a height never before heard of. Women, it is stated, are sometimes practically covered with beads from head to foot. Crystal beads are very much used, and some of the materials used in the making of the gorgeous mosaic and oriental beads are glass, china, wood, celluloid, rubber, metal, pearl, agate, galalith, porcelain, amber, amethyst, paste, jet, coral and Florentine mosaic, the galalith beads being the chief novelty. The composition of galalith is really milk, and the design was first discovered through the famous Greek milk-stone. The wooden beads are largely used in embroideries as they are light. The latest models in beads are fruits of various kinds, while there are also mushroom beads, egg-shapes, half pyramid models, bead cuts and gems which look like lumps of sugar candy. Some of the bead necklaces are priced as high as two and three hundred dollars, and everyone who has old bead necklaces is hunting them up and restringing them with the addition of some of the new beads. Catgut is used for stringing the more valuable of these necklaces, while for the cheaper beads there is a bead-stringing thread and special needles which come in four sizes. The Venetian beads are among the least expensive and are extremely pretty being sold in every imaginable color, pink, green, mauve, and purple, blended with streaks of gold or silver, while the black Venetian beads streaked with gold make handsome necklaces if threaded alternately with small gold beads. Anyone who possesses an old coral necklace can make a most delightful novelty by restringing the coral with one-inch or two-inch rows of small gold beads between each coral bead, or if the necklace is a graduated one, the largest beads can be put aside to make a pendant which can be strung from the chain to form a four-sided ornament. Ear-rings may be made to match the necklaces, and for the woman who is artistic and fond of such work there is endless delight, and probably not a little money to be made, in composing and completing necklaces of beads the materials for which can be bought any time at a comparatively small cost.



AMERICAN CHILDREN ARE REMARKABLY WELL DRESSED TO-DAY

Whereas it is a great temptation to dress the dainty little maid of 3 or 4 in frills and furbelows, much as one would a doll, American mothers refrain to a degree that is noticeable and praiseworthy.

The child, as soon as she is old enough to notice her clothes, takes strong likes and dislikes; if she has been dressed always according to the standards of good taste, she will naturally show good taste in after years, when she has to guide herself in sartorial matters.

Rich silks and velvets, too much lace and too many frills, have no place in the small wardrobe this season. The long waisted styles are still favored and for "dress-up" occasions, modernised Greenaway dresses are quite popular.

No. 8260 is a little dress in drop-shouldered style fashioned of linen, which will be preferred this season to many of the other materials, and trimmed with two straight, gathered ruffles of embroidery; it shows one of the new yoke effects that will be popular. For a child of 6, this model requires 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8293 shows a very quaint dress for a girl of from 14 to 18; the blouse, which is unusually long waisted, is developed in a flowered crepe; the skirt is of black taffetas. In size 16, this dress may be made with 5¾ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8260—sizes 2 to 10.
No. 8293—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

THE ANTIS

Erie Despatch · The anti-vivisectionists are again at it. They have raised such a hullabaloo in Philadelphia that the university authorities have considered it necessary to take action and advise their professors to continde with their experiments for the benefits of humanity. It is all very nice to get up and say that if the welfare of men requires the suffering of dogs and guinea pigs then humanity ought to be willing to suffer a little. The truth of the matter is that the lowering of the mortality of men has been accomplished only because of the fact that the men of science have been able to test their theories on the lower animals. We are proud of the progress of medical science in the cure of hydrophobia and typhoid. How would this ever have been achieved without vivisection? The same thing is true of the treatment of diphtheria. All the serums and anti-toxins had first to be tried out and their efforts on animals noted. By animals noted. By further expeeiments it is likely that some of the other dread diseases will be better understood and better fought. It may not be a pleasant thing to contemplate the experiments of the doctors. It would be a still more unpleasant thing to consider how much more human suffering and death there would have been without these experiments. The discoveries of a Pastuer would never have been made. Typhoid, smallpox, hydrophobia, diphtheria and a score of other evils would still be claiming their victims by the thousands.

Of course, no one wants the right of the true scientist turned over to an untutored and heartless student. Neither does anybody want the scientist himself to be heartless nor unnecessary cruel. But the abbse of vivisection is a different matter from its proper and humane use.

Face Sores and Eruptions

Zam-Buk Will Quickly Heal.

The approach of spring finds many people with unsightly face sores, eruptions, boils, etc. In this connection Zam-Buk is invaluable. An illustration of the way in which it cures even the most serious and chronic cases of eruptions, sores and ulcers, is provided by Mr. R.H. Barker, of Glencairn, Ont., he days:

"I never could have believed that any remedy could cure so quickly and at the same time so effectively as Zam-Buk cured me. My face began to be covered with a kind of rash, which itched and irritated. This rash then turned to sores, which discharged freely and began to spread. I first tried one thing and then another, but nothing seemed to do me much good and the eruption got worse and worse until my face was just covered with running sores.

"Apart from the pain (which was very bad) my face was such a terrible sight that I was not fit to go out. This was my state when someone advised me to try Zam-Buk. I got a supply, and within a week I could see that the sores were rapidly healing. A little longer, and Zam-Buk had healed them completely and my skin was as clear as if I had never had a sore. We shall never again be without Zam-Buk in the house."

Zam-Buk is unequalled for Spring rashes, eruptions, children's sores, scalp diseases, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, eczema, tetter, piles, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries and diseases generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations. Zam-Buk Soap, which may be had from any druggist at 25c., a tablet, should be used instead of ordinary soap in all cases of eruptions and skin diseases.

From Halifax to Vancouver

WOMEN ARE PRAISING DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Nova Scotia Mother Tells How They Cured Her Aches and Pains, and Made Her a Well Woman Again.

Ecum Secum Bridge, Halifax Co., N. S., April 27.—(Special).— From Vancouver to Halifax come daily reports of the splendid work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing for the suffering women of Canada, and this little place can show a splendid cure of its own. Mrs. Orastus Pace, the mother of a large family, was a sufferer from those aches and pains only women know. To-day she is a strong, healthy woman. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it.

"I had a pain in my left side and down through my hips," Mrs. Pace states. "I had headache all the time. My heart was weak, and at times a pain around it added to my fears. Some days I was hardly able to walk.

"I read of a number of cures of cases like mine, by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and sent for three boxes. To-day I am a well woman, and can do as much work as ever I could."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mrs. Pace because her troubles came from diseased kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased kidneys, and as ninety per cent. of women's troubles come from kidney trouble, Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to be known as suffering woman's best friend.

WILL RADIUM CURE CANCER? (by H. Lindlahr, M.D., Author's rights reserved) Almost daily, newspapers and magazines bring articles news items and discussions about the interesting element, radium. The propaganda is so persistent and orderly that one cannot help suspect the artistic hand of the press agent. Factions are forming in the medical profession for and against the use of the metal in the treatment of cancer and other disease. Prof. Schweninger, one of the most prominent physicians in Germany, says radium treatment is a gigantic swindle. Pthers claim to have produced, within forty-eight hours, most marvelous cures of cancer by means of the radium rays. The surgeons declare there may be some good in the radium treatment, but after all they say the safest way lies in the early removal of tumors by the knife.

The extravagant claims of the radium advocates are bound to arouse new hope in the many thousands of people all over this country, who suffer from the dread cancer malady and undoubtedly multitudes will try the new remedy, only to be disappointed in the end.

It seems cruel to kill the hopes of those who have pinned their faith on the miracle-working power of the radium, but it is not right to give positive assurance of cures, when this method of treatment is still in the period of dangerous experimentation, and when it is a well-known fact that malignant tumors tend to recur after local extirpation, within a period of two years. For this reason alone, it will require several years to prove the efficiency of radium treatment. Furthermore it is not right to lead inquiry into doubtful and dangerous paths, when the only rational and effective way has already been discovered and positively demonstrated.

About ten years ago, the same positive and extravagant claims were made for the Roentgen-rays. Institutions for X-ray treatment sprung up all over the country. What has been the result? It is now a well-established fact that the X-rays instead of curing cancer, create it. Already evidence is accumulating which indicates that the radium emanations are just as dangerous as the X-rays.

These agents on account of their immense vibratory velocity and power are altogether too strong and too destructive, for the tissues of the human body. Their work is slow and insidious, but nevertheless, certain. The pernicious effects of the X-rays do not manifest until afew years after exposure. I have in my map, over thirty newspaper clippings gathered during the last ten years, which report the development of cancer-like growths after exposure to the X-rays. One of the first victims was an assistant of Thomas A. Edison. After repeated exposure to the rays in the course of scientific experimentation, the flesh on his body decayed, and fell off in pieces, until death ended his terrible suffering. Thousands of others have suffered the same fate but I have failed to hear of a single, well-authenticated case of cancer cure by the Roentgen-rays.

Personally, I know of several cases that have come under my observation where the application of these rays for some insignificant local lesion, was followed by the development of cancer-like decay of the flesh, and final death,—in one instance suicide.

The radium rays are just as powerful as the X-rays, and while they may destroy the abnormal cells of the cancerous growth, they have also a weakening and destructive effect, upon the normal cells of the surrounding tissues and nearby organs. But these destructive after effects may not manifest for many months or several years after exposure.

CLUB NOTES

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor: I take the liberty of asking you some questions which I hope that you will kindly reply to very soon. It is about my fiancee, who is troubled with St. Vitus dance. What causes this disease? Would it be best for her to marry and would this influence her condition? Are emotions and excitement likely to make her worse? Have surroundings anything to do with it? Is there anything special I can do as her betrothed to help her? What is the best way of overcoming the trouble? Would thank you very much for an early attention to this. J. A.

There are several causes of Chorea or St. Vitus Dance. Young girls between the age of 6 and 18 are most subject to the ailment. Children whose parents had consumption or who were very nervous suffer most frequently from this disease. The trouble generally develops slowly or may quite suddenly arise from some great emotion or bodily injury. Sometimes worms may be responsible for it and when the worms are removed it will also disappear. In quite a number of more severe cases of this character I have found that a disorder known as a Hooded Clitoris will produce symptoms of Chorea. I would suggest that you ask her to be very thoroughly examined preferably by a lady homeopathic physician. If such a disorder is present in her case an examination will soon disclose it. A very simple operation would then be the right method of treatment.

Chorea is a nervous trouble as you well understand and though there is no great reason why you should not marry it would be better to have her treated before than after marriage. I know some cases where the trouble was aggravated by contracting marriage. Excitement and emotions should be avoided. A great deal depends upon suitable surroundings and though there is no reason to pay any great attention to the trouble or speak of it too much, it is also necessary not to neglect it entirely. One of the best home methods of treatment for cases of that character is discussed in the Home Health Club book, Vol. 2. You ought to send for that volume, it would help a great deal. The tissue foods internally used for some time would undoubtedly be among the very best remedies that could be given her they are safe and reliable, better than anything else I know of.

Further she should never over-exert herself in any way whether it is mentally or physically. She would be out in the fresh air a great deal, outdoor exercise is very much to recommend. The diet is also important. Under no circumstances she should drink coffee or tea or eat too much meat. Fruits and vegetables are good for her, especially the latter. The subject of the diet and exercise is also mentioned in the Club books. One of the best herb remedies I know of is as follows: Prepare a syrup of each one-fourth ounce Cramp Bark, Black Cohosh and hops to a pint of hot water. Steep and add one and one-half pounds of sugar and flavor with essence of Anise. Give a teaspoonful between meals and at bed time. Follow these [illegible] and it will not take long before you will notice good results.

ROOSTER PECK KILLS CHILD

Tokio, April 27.—Japanese doctors are discussing the unusual, if not unprecedented, case of a child meeting death from the peck of a rooster. A 4-year-old girl was walking to a playground near her father's house in Tokio when she was attacked by a rooster, who pecked her viciously. The girl ran, stumbled and fell, hitting a stone. Before the onlookers could interfere the rooster had again pecked the child in the forehead. The child was picked up dead.

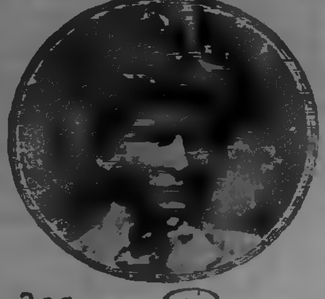
What a Mother's Neglect May Mean to Her Child

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

A CERTAIN boy is a confirmed tobacco smoker, and he is just 3 years old. He went before a state medical association the other day and smoked a long, black perfecto.

His father told the doctors with great pride that the boy smokes four cigars a day and has been keeping up this record ever since he was a year old.

Two years ago the father left a lighted cigar near the baby's crib; the baby reached out and got it, finished it, and cried for more.

The doctors before whom the little boy appeared to do his smoking examined him thoroughly and pronounced the child normal mentally and physically.

I wonder who examined the father to find out whether he was "normal" or not. And the mother of the poor little fellow—where in the world was she and what has she been doing all this time?

"Normal"—well, perhaps he is, poor mite—normal now, but he won't stay normal long, not if a father and mother like that bring him up.

I met one of those "normal" mothers down in the country three or four years ago.

She was a pretty little woman and very charmingly dressed. She wore the most beautifully embroidered waists and the prettiest and daintiest little hats, and she made them, she said, all herself, just for pleasure.

One Case of Nerves.

She had some children, and they were always exquisitely dressed and delightfully neat—but they were pale and irritable and very nervous.

The charming little woman didn't worry much about her girls. She seemed to think it was quite natural and very proper indeed for little girls to be "nervous." But the boy—she seemed to be quite concerned about him whenever she wasn't counting the stitches in her embroidery.

He was a handsome little chap, and very bright in a sort of uncanny, old-mannish way that made you expect to see him put a glass in his eye and order a high-ball right before the minister.

But he was nervous, there was no doubt about that, terribly nervous. Everything excited him so, and then he would shake all over like a very old man with the palsy, and sometimes he had screaming spells, and he would scream and scream—the poor, perverted little chap, and kick and tear his clothes.

His mother said it was temper; he inherited it from his father's side of the family, she declared.

Just as we who knew the charming little woman had made up our minds that we really must talk to her about getting a nerve specialist down from town to look at the little boy, I was invited to the charming woman's house to spend a couple of days.

The first night at dinner all the children were at the table, and they all ate some of everything there was. And just about as much nourishment for a growing child in most of it as there would be in a dinner of nice, clean white chips with kerosene oil poured over them for sauce.

They didn't care for the chicken, but they did care for the dressing—highly spiced it was and very rich; and they ate great platefuls of it, and sauce and preserves and jelly and pickles; and they drank huge cups of strong coffee all through the meal.

The "Hygienic Mother's" Success

That night two of the children had the nightmare and the little boy woke up and cried and cried. He hated the moon, he said, and he wished somebody would make it stop shining; and he was lonesome and he wanted the kitty for company, and the whole family turned out and went and called "kitty, kitty, kitty," under the trees and in the barn and in the front garden. And in the morning the nervous little boy ate for breakfast a large saucer of black New Orleans molasses and two cups of coffee so strong that it was black as night.

Speak to my friend the charming little woman about her children's diet? Why, she never would have listened to me for one moment.

I did venture to whisper something about the coffee, and she laughed and said: "Oh, you are a food faddist; we just fairly live on coffee at our house." The other day the little boy died, in a terrible nervous seizure, and the mother says that she cannot understand why the Lord has picked her out for such a visitation of His wrath.

I have a friend we call the hygienic mother.

We have a good deal of fun with the hygienic mother and her hygienic children.

I must admit they looked pretty healthy, and they seem to have a good deal of fun being hygienic, but somehow I can never get used to a child who isn't allowed to eat a cookie once in a while, and who refuses gingerbread because it is not wholesome when it is warm. But since I've seen the nervous little boy eat his breakfast of molasses and strong coffee, I don't laugh half so much at my friend, the hygienic mother, and her hygienic family.

My Best Complexion Creams

By MAGGIE TEYTE

The noted prima donna

SOME one asked me recently for the recipe for lettuce cream. I give it gladly, for I know its excellence, and I wish every one who reads this and feels the need of such a cream would make it, for it is far better than the average cold cream you will buy.

Scald the lettuce in boiling water, and after it has stood a few minutes, pour the water off and pound the lettuce to a paste in an earthen bowl with a granite spoon or a wooden potato masher.

Then strain it through a piece of sterilized cheese cloth. There should be about two ounces of the juice.

Put an earthen bowl in a dish of boiling water and melt together four ounces of almond oil and one ounce each of white wax and spermaceti. Then add the lettuce juice and perfume with violet extract. I would add, drop by drop, a little tincture of benzoin, for it will aid in the whitening process.

Sunburn is the first trial of the tender skin. Let me give you the rule for a soothing lotion which will soothe burn and also whiten and tone up the skin.

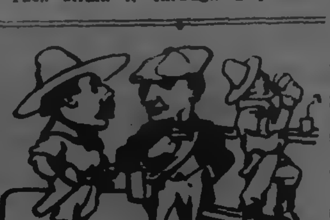
The chief ingredient is 10 ounces of cucumber juice, which will require half a dozen or more large cucumbers. Slice them without paring, and let them cook very slowly in little water till they are a mush. First rub them through a fine sieve and then strain them through cloth.

Here is the rule:

Four ounces oil of sweet almonds.
Ten ounces fresh cucumber juice.
Three ounces cucumber essence.
Tincture benzoin.
A quarter of an ounce of powdered white Castile soap.

To make the three ounces of the essence of cucumbers, you mix one and one-half ounces of the juice with the same quantity of alcohol.

The secret of this cream lies in the making. Take a big bottle and add the soap and the essence of cucumbers and shake till it is mixed. Let it stand to be sure the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Pour into an open receptacle and add the oil, the juice of cucumbers, and the benzoin, about half a dram of the latter, and stir till it is creamy. Keep in a dark, cool place in tightly corked bottles.



A Serious Affair.

"Who is that solemn man?" asked the tourist. "He seems to take life seriously."

"He does," assented Alkali Ike. "No one ever saw a smile on his face when he was makin' a gun play."

Crooked Path Leads Straight.

"He's as crooked as a dog's hind leg."

"Yes, and if he's not careful he will go straight to jail."

"FURLANA" TO FOLLOW THE TANGO

Three Poses of Albertina Rasch, Who Predicts Popular Favor for the Venetian Folk Dance.

Premier Ballerina Describes the Newest Dance.

By Eleanor Ames

SINCE the discussion of the Furlana as the superseding dance of the tango and the maxixe, there has been a wholesale application of the name to various feminine frills and furbelows, while "Furlana" green—the shade to be found in the national colors of Italy—is one of the newest of summer shades in which ribbons, feathers, straw hats and silken fabrics are being developed.

Yet there is a somewhat indefinite idea in existence as to what the real Furlana is.

Albertina Rasch, who has been the premier ballerina of the Century opera company in New York, has the privilege of qualifying as a Furlana expert, for she danced the Venetian Furlana not only in Venice, but at a royal command function of Emperor Francis Joseph at the palace in Vienna.

"The Furlana is the folk dance of the Venetians, and even the little children of Venice dance it in the street to the tunes of the hurdy-gurdy, just as the children of America dance your American dances," explained Miss Rasch to me.

"It is a charming dance, and combines the steps of the minuet, polka and waltz. It is full of grace and has a certain snap and fire and abandon which makes it distinctive. It resembles more than any dance I can think of, some of the folk dances of the Russians—and where will one find such wonderful dancers as those of Russia?

"I cannot understand any one who has ever seen the Furlana properly danced making any objection to it. It is full of grace and runs the gamut of emotions in a succession of swift, joyous posturing and rhythmic steps, which tell the story of the country and its people to those who appreciate the meaning which animates the various measures.

"It is a positive joy to one who has lived in continental cities where dancing is given so important a place in the curriculum of the schools, to find America awakening so splendidly to its possibilities. It gives ideal exercise. It teaches grace and poise and balance and time. It lifts all classes out of themselves, and furnishes a mental and physical relaxation which is as delightful as it is advantageous.

"The Russians and the Austrians make dancing a serious training of their school children. It is practically a law that all school children shall be taught the elementary steps in the art of dancing.

"There is a broader significance to this teaching than one at first realizes. Health is involved. To dance well and joyously presupposes the possession of health. If a child is being seriously taught to dance his health will come under special observation.

"Moreover, the weakly child will not have the desire to dance. He will not enter into the dance with the keen enthusiasm which is the natural spontaneous expression of youth and health.

"Any game or exercise or study which brings up the question of the physical betterment of children is a wise and excellent thing. Russians and Austrians make it imperative on parents to have their children learn dancing. There is a vast pride in having the little ones excel in their dancing contests. So the care of the health becomes an unconscious part of the home training.

"Americans have been accused of being too serious, of not knowing how to relax and enjoy themselves.

"Dancing will relieve this result of the overstrain of generations that have been busy up-building the country and its business until they have forgotten how to play.

"Out of this present craze, with all its excess of enthusiasm, I feel sure there will come a splendid, sane foundation which will have telling effect on the next generation.

"Of course, to me, learning how to dance seems as necessary as learning how to read and write and figure the interest on the dollar. And I think all nations should have their distinctive dances as well as their laws, their institutions and their characteristics. From the Furlana, America may find some steps which can be incorporated in the wonderful national folk dance, which I am sure will be evolved from what is termed the present 'dance madness.'"

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the New Novel "Diane of the Green Van," Awarded a Prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure, Judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Woman's Divine Instinct.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

WHAT a wonderfully fine, wholesome sort of girl Edna Merton is!" I exclaimed one night to Mary. "She's so busy and cheerful, and always ready with a smile for everybody. I wonder some enterprising man hasn't had sufficient foresight to see what excellent marital timber their is in Edna and marry her."

"Edna," said my wife, "is not the sort of girl men like."

"Just what sort of girl," I begged cautiously, "do men like?"

"Oh," said Mary airily, patting her lovely hair with a smile of the utmost satisfaction, "pretty ones."

"Men certainly are fools," I exclaimed, nettled by her manner. "I believe that the best potential wives are the ones that never marry."

"What do you mean?" demanded Mary, wide-eyed. I distrust that wide-eyed, ingenuous glance of Mary's. It's too sophisticated to be accidental. Mary's eyes are large and beautiful, and she knows exactly how to look beautiful whenever she has a chance to look astonished.

"Well," said I, "take Edna, for instance. She knows how to run a house, she's mothered all her brothers and sisters, she loves children, she has a great, big splendid nature, but just because Fate didn't give her a Cupid's bow for a mouth and distracting eyes all the young chaps pass her by and make for the silly, giggling chiffon brigade who look pretty and know nothing at all."

"Peter," exclaimed Mary indignantly, "I do think you say the most horridly cynical things at times. Just because a girl is pretty isn't a sure argument against her knowing anything."

"Certainly not," I agreed, "but the fact remains—the homely ones always seem to know the most."

"I once knew a dear, old-fashioned, kindly sort of man," I went on reminiscently, "and one time I remember very well watching him pore over his wife's fashion book. He studied each face and figure so intently that I wondered what he was so tremendously interested in. It didn't seem to be fashionable clothes especially, and presently I asked him. 'Well,' he said quietly, 'every Sunday morning when there's a new fashion book, I glance over it and study the faces, and do you know what I'm usually wondering? Just which of those girls would make the best mothers! Which of them would be kind and patient and rear strong, fine lads and sunny-hearted girls to start the world off afresh with new hearts, new energy and new optimism.' I often thought of what he said. That's the look I like to see in a girl's face, Mary, and that's the look in Edna's face."

Mary reddened uncomfortably.

"It—is that look in my face, Peter?" she demanded.

How could I answer? I have never seen Mary voluntarily offer kindness or caresses to a little child. Not that she doesn't always speak kindly to them, but she's casual and indifferent. A child doesn't seem to grip her heart-strings like it does the heart-strings of a woman who has the divine maternal instinct born in her.

Isn't it hard to believe that there are women without maternal instinct? Yet there are—plenty of them. Some find it awaking only when their children are born—some never give it a chance to assert itself—some, like Edna Merton, have the great, strong flood tide of it pulsing powerfully in their veins by natural gift. Such as Edna, I take it, are real women as God in his scheme of things intended women to be. In this effete civilization the maternal instinct is paling. Thank God there are still women with brains and philosophy enough to give it a chance to develop when it doesn't assert itself strongly of its own accord.

But why don't men see the worth of a girl like Edna Merton?

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Salt Air Is a Tonic For Your Tired Nerves

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

AS the vernal days wane thoughts of azure skies, flapping canvas, sunny beaches and ocean breezes begin to intrude into the yearning fabric of human anatomy.

How happy are they who from the toil and tumult of their lives may steal an eventide glance to where naught but the ocean strives. Healthful indeed is the sweep of the vast, salt, dread, eternal deep. No one may count the hours spent in wandering by the sea.

The mountains and the verdant meads, the low, thatched cottage and the house on the farm, sing highly for outdoor health—but the ocean is a Delphic miracle to many.

Behold the sea, the opaline, the plentiful and strong. Fresh as the trickling rainbow, sweeter physic than the roses of Arabia.

The beach is tender to the tread, the ultra-marine heaven electrifies your soul and body, the sea supplies you with fabled foods.

The seashore is always balmier in winter and cooler in summer, and, therefore, more bearable to the sick, the aged, the infirm and infants than inland resorts.

The reason for this is obvious. Changes in the prevailing temperature can always raise or lower that of solids or gases, the earth and the air, more quickly than large bodies of water.

Land reflects cold and heat very quickly, so that a frosty northwest wind will play its unpleasant staccato in town and country as it listeth.

Not so, however, where the wild waves whisper. The absorbed heat of warmer days mollifies the malignant Aeolus and tempers him to the shorn tango skirt.

Similarly in the torrid days the bottled-up ices of the Arctic ocean flow, like the gentle Avon, along the shores and make the mercury more modest than you might expect it to be.

There are a variety of happy physical agencies ubiquitously at work at shore resorts. Not by any means the least of these are the powerful ultra-violet rays, those mighty assassins of malicious microbes.

The salt of the sea, the bathing, the outdoor, open air, sun-saturated, energizing life, these all aid in substituting a hearty vigor for the physical surrender which many ailing ones have.

The strolls along the jetty, the tramp, tramp back and forth along the beach, the dilated nostrils inhaling often for the first time undust-filled oxygen, these have a magic in them which make all tokens, talismans, charms, incantations and scientific medicine hang their heads in confessed futility.

The ocean was before the land, before the hollow sky, which, like another sea, encircles it. There is no finiteness in its beauty; no narrow confines weaken its power. It visits the remotest wilds of the Indies at the moment it touches Maine.

Answers to Health Questions

Reader.—Why am I short of size? I am only 17 years old and do not measure over five feet.

If your grandparents on both sides are short and their ancestors are short, you cannot expect to be tall. If, however, either side of your grandparents' houses are tall or of average size, you still have five years in which to develop your height.

Men usually stop growing at 22. Therefore, live much out of doors, learn to swim and perform upon the trapeze. Use arm and leg stretching exercises. Pull yourself apart—without going to harmful extremes—in bed.

Remember that most growth comes during sleep, so you must get eight to ten hours sleep. Never smoke! Smoking is held to retard growth, and even though this is not proved, you had better err on the safe side and avoid tobacco.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

Am 20 years of age and have been keeping steady company with a young man two years my senior for about two months. He calls four nights a week, which I suppose is too often, but we are very unhappy when apart. He says he loves me. What would you advise?

IN LOVE.

SO you're "in love," are you, and you can't live if you don't see your sweetheart at least four nights a week! Poor you, and poor sweetheart. No, I'm only joking—I mean lucky you and lucky sweetheart.

There, there, little girl, don't cry; it's a hard world, but you'll have to learn to live in it; and really, now, honestly and truly, to come right down to the facts in the case, if I were you, I shouldn't see him quite so often—unless I were really engaged to him.

And even then don't have your engagement too long.

Long engagements have caused more bitter tears than engagements that were "too short"; and that is saying a good deal more than I really like to say.

See your sweetheart as often as you can, little girl, but don't make the "can" too often.

"Hottest love is soonest cold"—don't you hate the sort of people who are always quoting that just when you begin to believe that nobody ever loved anybody in the world as you love your sweetheart and your sweetheart loves you?

But they know what they're talking about, these people. Some of them have been more in love than you will ever be, and some of them know the misery that too much loving is so apt to bring. Listen a little to what they say, little girl, and, whisper, you can love him just the same even when he isn't there, and it's the loving that really counts after all—isn't it?

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

WHAT in the world is that Bantam Rooster doing, sleeping in that nest over there?" asked Mrs. Cackle of the Little White Hen one moonlight night.

The White Hen squinted over in the direction of the nest Mrs. Cackle spoke of, and there, sure enough, was the Bantam Rooster fast asleep.

"I guess he was so tired he went fast asleep and forgot to crow," said the Little White Hen.

"No, roosters never forget to crow at night," said Mrs. Cackle.

"That is not the point," said the White Hen. "The point is, he should not go to sleep on a nest. I tell you what we'll do. You slip over and see if there is an egg in the nest next to him, and then come back and tell me."

Mrs. Cackle did as she was told, and when she came back she said:

"There is a tiny egg in the nest next to the Bantam Rooster. Why did you ask?"

"I am going over there and roll that egg under the Bantam Rooster, and in the morning we will see what he says."

When the sun came streaming in the henhouse it woke the Bantam Rooster up. Mrs. Cackle and the Little White Hen were watching to see what he would do.

He began to move uneasily, and soon he flew on the edge of the nest and looked back of him in the hay.

"Goodness!" he exclaimed to himself. "I wonder how that egg got there!"

"Are you talking to yourself?" asked Mrs. Cackle as she flew over to where he was.

"No," said the Bantam Rooster. "I was wondering how that egg got there."

"It serves you right, for you had no business going to sleep in that nest. You belong on the roost."

"I guess you are right, a rooster belongs on the roost," said the rooster.

NORTHWEST BRONCHO

Old-time Pony is Replaced by Finer Types

A rather pitiable thing about the advance of civilization is the shutting out of the broncho. The range horse of to-day is no more like the broncho of 10 years ago than the nerve-strained thoroughbred is like the Indian cayuse. All are passing away. Eastern methods of breaking are now used and gentler horses are the result. There is no longer a demand for the tough pony of 10 years ago, and so having passed the period of usefulness he is vanishing, but, as a reward of his fidelity, to reappear in a higher type.

The "mustang" combined with the ordinary horse produced the real broncho of the Northwest. There is not a phase of Western history that has not been largely influenced by this animal. Pioneer, cowboy, sheriff, Indian, prospector, all have used the broncho. He has been the cheerful companion of each of them. In fact he was the "sine qua non" of the exploitation of the West. The broncho has a good deal of treachery about him still, though not so much as the mustang. He is a rugged, useful animal that can travel along mountain ledges and live on next to nothing.

When the Western broncho is broken he often becomes the gentlest of horses. No one, it is said, has ever successfully taught a wild horse to buck. As a matter of fact, it is not necessary. Bucking is a part of the animal's stock-in-trade. It has learned it instinctively. It is possible to break a horse of bucking, but to do it is not necessary to break its spirit, and the "wrangler" does that when he thoroughly conquers the animal. The broncho-buster who wants to preserve the spirit of the horse does not ride it to a finish. Horses are intensely human and "cheaty." Feeling that they have conquered makes them back harder the next time the cowboy attempts to ride them.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE snapped in his study. This picture was especially posed for to oblige a newspaper photographer who called and found him in a particularly affable mood.

Dead Wife's Letter

A retired captain named Barrett, living at Plymouth recently received a letter from his wife, who has been dead for ten years.

This letter was written by Mrs. Barrett twenty years before she died, and posted at Redruth, Cornwall, where she was then living, to Captain Barrett, who was in Spain. The letter never reached Captain Barrett, and evidently the Spanish Post Office is a most reliable institution, though perhaps a little slow, for the letter was sent back from Spain to Redruth thirty years after it was posted.

The Redruth postal officials traced Captain Barrett to Plymouth, where the letter was delivered to him.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no disgust, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4000, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

WASHING WOOLLEN COATS

"Fixed to no spot is happiness sincere.
'Tis nowhere to be found, or everywhere.
'Tis never to be bought but always free."
—Pope.

Everyone nowadays has a woollen or sweater coat. It is rather curious when one realizes what an indispensable item they have become to the ordinary wardrobe to remember that it is only a few years since they came into vogue, but ever since they first made their appearance they, like the coat and skirt costume and the blouse and shirtwaist, have remained with us, and are likely to remain with us. If these coats are light colored the problem of washing them is a matter which often causes some anxiety, as they are apt to emerge from the soapsuds in an unwearable condition. However it is a consolation to know that even the most delicate of them can be washed in such a way as to restore their original freshness if care is taken. First of all outdoor drying is essential, and a good breezy day should be chosen so that the coat will dry as quickly as possible. In this frosty weather they can only be left out a short time, and when brought in be very careful not to put them near the heaters as they will inevitably shrink. For the actual washing procure one ounce of lump ammonia, a packet of flaked soap and a quarter of a pound of powdered borax, and if possible use rainwater. If the coat be a new one it should first of all be steeped for half an hour in lukewarm water, to which a large pinch of salt as well as the ammonia has been added. This will take out the dressing which is always found in new woollen garments. Use very little water for this; only enough to cover the coat and no more, otherwise the dressing will make the dirt go into streaks when the coat is put into the soapsuds. While the coat is steeping mix the soap to a lather with boiling water taking care that it is all dissolved and then fill a large bath-tub with hot water and add the powdered borax to it. Then wring the coat gently from the steeping water and plunge it into the soapsuds, where it must be squeezed and pressed and kneaded, but not rubbed, until every atom of dirt is out of it. Often two lots of soapy water are required for this process, and two lots of soft warm rinsing water must be used to entirely free the coat from soap, otherwise it will shrink. A tablespoonful of vinegar added to the last rinsing water will brighten the colors. Having squeezed as much water out as possible, shake the coat thoroughly, pull the seams into shape, place it on a coat hanger, button it up and hang it by the hook to the clothes line, occasionally squeezing the water out of the hem as it accumulates. By this means it will dry evenly and keep its shape—and it can be finished in the kitchen by hanging it (still on the hanger to a line stretched across the room.

CURIOSITIES OF CHESS

The origin of chess is the subject of an extensive literature. The game was known in exceedingly ancient times both in China and India. The Cyclopedia of the Arts and Sciences published in 1786, quaintly says of chess: In China it makes a considerable part of the education of their females, and seems to take the place of dancing among us. The Hindu game, chaturanga, was played by four persons, two being allied against two, as in whist or bridge. The derivation of the word is from chatur, "four," and anga, "a member." The word chaturanga became modified, on its journey westward, and subsequently by progressive changes turned too; thus giving the English "check," leading to the important and quite different word "exchequer."

All over the world there are countless variants of the game of chess. In a great many games the board has 100 squares, 10 by 10. In the so-called Prussian national game the board has 100 squares. In the Duke of Rutland's game, played in the eighteenth century, the board was 14 squares in breadth and 10 in height. In Alfonso the Tenth's game, played at Seville in the thirteenth century, the board had 144 squares, 12 each way. In the older Turkish game the board had 169 squares, 13 by 13. Three-handed chess is described by a Neapolitan author writing in 1722. A Mr. Cox, who travelled in Russia about the end of the eighteenth century, saw four-handed chess universally played there then. But four-handed chess would appear to date still further back, if we are to believe Les Oeuvres de Sarasin (1683), which stated that it was invented by Palamedes "to prevent the Grecians from being tired of themselves during the siege of Troy."

GERMAN AIRSHIP STATION

Heligoland, the tiny island in the North Sea which Germany proposes to turn into a great station for her airships, is one of the most curious islands in the world.

Its towering cliffs, for instance, are largely artificial. Some years ago there was grave fear that the island, which was steadily growing smaller, would soon be eaten away entirely by the waves from the southwest. But $5,000,000 has been spent on raising a massive cliff of granite on this exposed side.

On those parts of the coast where the red, porous rock of the genuine cliffs has been too badly honeycombed by the seas, hundreds of thousands of tons of cement have been used to strengthen the face.

Heligoland has long been an important naval centre. It is defended by the most powerful guns, and is said to be prepared for a siege lasting three years. It is, indeed, the North Sea storehouse of the German fleet. Visitors are only allowed in the tiny port, the high plateau that forms the rest of the island being carefully guarded from the public.

OPENING A SAFE

An Electric Expert Has Invented an Odd Device

A safe that can be opened by means of a musical tone, and in no other way, has been invented by a London electrical expert. The safe is made of chilled steel with the regulation knob on the door, but without combination or timelock. Attached to it on the inside are electro-magnets, connected by wires with a circuit of batteries. These are in turn connected with another sort of dry batteries, which are wired to a curious looking apparatus that looks like a carpenter's mitre-box, with a double row of numbers down the inside of the channel. Across this is a gage, attached to which is an ordinary violin bridge. Over this fret is stretched a music wire of metal, drawn taut to a binding-post and passing through this to form a coil below it, and outside the tuning-box and thence down into the dry batteries.

The mitre box is really a musical scale, set by numbers so that the tone can be gaged up or down by twos as may be desired, to meet the needs of a new combination, or a new tuning-fork, if it is desired to thus change the combination or opening note. The music wire, which may be a guitar, banjo or violin string, is selected and gaged to synchronize with the tuning-fork used.

When the tuning-fork is struck and placed to the top of the safe the wire inside catches the vibration from the fork and vibrates in sympathy. This vibration passes through the binding-post into the outside coil and thence down into the small circuit of dry batteries, mechanically closing this circuit. An electric current is thus started which passes on and is made to close the larger circuit of dry batteries, which starts a stronger current moving. This stronger current acts through wires directly on the electro-magnets that throw the bolts of the concealed lock. Once these are thrown, the door may be pulled upon.

After the tuning-fork and wire are set to the same gage, no other tuning-fork will have any effect whatever upon the lock. As no two tuning-forks are exactly alike in pitch, it is obvious that only one tuning-fork in the world could open the safe, once it is closed and locked, and only the person possessing the fork could have access to the safe. However, once it is opened, it can be reset to accord with another tuning-fork, whereupon the original one is useless.

Curfew Still Rings

It is not generally known that a curfew is still rung in London, Eng., at the present day, in Lincoln's Inn, although the hour of ringing has been changed from 8 to 9 p.m., and the lights are not extinguished. The bell which is now rung was brought from Cadiz by the ill-fated Robert Devereux, Earl of Essex, in 1596. The ringing of the curfew is looked upon as a very important part of the chief porter's duty, and at 8.45 each evening he makes his way to the tower of the Lincoln's Inn Chapel, and as soon as the last stroke of nine has sounded he strikes the curfew fifty times.

Killed While at Dinner

Robert Maloney, fifty, a laborer, died in the Dunfermline Hospital from the results of a peculiar accident at Rosyth Dockyard. Blasting operations had been in progress at the lock entrance, when Maloney entered a hut which was within the danger zone and began to eat his dinner. A large piece of rock, which had been thrown into the air by the force of the explosion, crashed through the roof of the hut and struck Maloney on the head.

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

Herbert Morrah Thinks Difficulties of English Are Exaggerated

Mr. Herbert Morrah addressing the Authors' Club in London, thought they were all united in believing in the great mission of English literature, but he was affaid that was where their unity would end. For he did not believe it would go out that they were on the whole very much in favor of the scheme set forward by the Simplified Spelling Society, and this not because it was a reform. They were all conscious of the anomalies of the English language, but they were not prepared for a revolution. During the last day or two he had had the pleasure of reading pamphlets of the Simplified Spelling Society, and he gathered from these that there was a definite scheme for placing the whole English language into the melting pot. Education had largely to do with this subject, and he thought that the difficulty of spelling the English language was enormously exaggerated (cheers). It was not extremely difficult for the average child to learn any subject, and he was not convinced that the average child was stupid (hear, hear). He was convinced, however, that our education in English left much to be desired, and he was quite sure that that should be thrown into the melting pot before they tampered with the spelling. It was admitted that the body of our language had not altered in 150 years, and he supposed the man of all others to whom they owed most for this was Dr. Johnson. There were many people who believed that Dr. Johnson had given them a good working model, and that it would be a good thing to leave well alone rather than enter into a scheme which, whatever else it might do, would involve an indefinite number of complications.

Man Must Work and Woman, etc.

That "Man must work and woman must weep," is an old and oft-told tale. A Times reporter, who sometimes looks at the films, noticed that this is not proven at the movies. In the films most of the tears are shed by the male actors. Possibly the rouge worn by the ladies is accountable for this. A tear trickling down a lady's face and leaving a track as wide as the Trent Canal might be disastrous to the scene. This, however, is only trifling persiflage. The pictures at the local movies, to a non-super-critic, are most interesting and many of them very educational. The vaudeville is also of high grade.

Lindsay's Chief Is Defiant.

Police matters in Lindsay have almost reached the climax stage, and further eruptions are expected.

At the meeting of the Police Committee on Thursday night last, as stated in The Warder, Mayor Beal and Ald. Clark were appointed to interview Chief Chilton in regard to police affairs. They did so Friday afternoon, and after half an hour or so of discussion it is understood that His Worship intimated that if he (the Mayor) happened to be in the Chief's position he would resign.

Chief Chilton asked the gentlemen to bring forward some one particular charge why he should tender his resignation, and refused to resign until the Police Committee did do.— Lindsay Warder.

Margin of Difference Small.

"The margin of difference between the contending parties is now very small," it says. "The principle of exclusion has been admitted, and only requires to be fair and generously applied. It is ridiculous to turn to armies and fleets when a means of adjustment of a very narrow difference lie ready to hand."

An End to Threats.

To which to-night's Westminster Gazette responds with the hope that "if there are any Liberal fire-eaters, the sentiments in The Times will go home to them."

"The admission that the differences 'are very narrow' ought to make an end of these threats of violent and unconstitutional action," adds The Gazette. "It is quite true that the principle of exclusion has been admitted, but with its admission must go the pretence that Ulster is being forced under the yoke of the Dublin Parliament.

What is Real Object ?

"Differences of opinion there may be about the duration or final condition of the exclusion, but there are none which cannot be solved by constitutional means long before the term of the proposed exclusion has expired. How can such a situation justify a recourse to arms unless the real object is different from the avowed object ?"

S. ADMIRAL SEIZES A BRITISH TERMINAL STATION

rican Admiral In Command at Vera Cruz Acted Within Rights

Cruz, April 28.—Rear Admiral er last evening seized the piers and buildings of the Terminal any, a British-owned concern, l over which he regarded as ne- y in order to facilitate the re- ion of the normal business ac- of the city. The Admiral had ndeavoring to rent the property uld not come to an agreement he managers as to the price to id. The management quoted a which the naval authorities ere exorbitant, and Admiral er ended the controversy by advantage of his powers un- artial law and assuming posses- f the property.

Just Seized It.

eizure was made with no oth- rmality than the announcement that Admiral Fletcher was in control of the property.

Prior to the seizure a high official of the company had a British flag raised over the water station far out in the yards in the belief that such action might prevent the Americans from taking over the property. It availed him nothing, however. W. Morcom, manager of the Mexican railway and President of the Terminal Company, called on Rear-Admiral Cradock of the British Cruiser Essex and related the circumstances to him. The Admiral advised Mr Morcom to present his claims to the British Foreign Office.

No Trouble Over Seizure.

London, April 28.—The seizure yesterday by United States Rear-Admiral Fletcher of the property of the British-owned Terminal Company at Vera Cruz is accepted by the British Foreign Office as a perfectly natural action, quite within the Admiral's rights and in accordance with propriety, both of which are considered unquestionable. Officials here regard the Admiral's action as coming within the ordinary routine of such circumstances. It was stated to-day that if the Terminal Company presents a claim to the British Foreign Office it will be forwarded to Washington in the ordinary course.

A GREAT PROBLEM FOR MR. BORDEN TO SOLVE

Mr. J. H. Burnham Contributes an Excellent Speech on Problem of Ocean Transportation

Mr. Burnham : Representing a large number of farmers who have often expressed their opinion to me on these matters, I find it my duty to say that this difficulty is presented in various forms, whilst being undeniable, is not insurmountable.The hon. minister has just outlined the fact that the problem before him is difficult and the Government hesitates to undertake to solve it, but that does not excuse the Government. Great Governments will do great things, If this country were at war, they would take possession of all the means of transport, guard all the avenues of output and of import and see to everything. Napoleon once held Europe in the palm of his hand. He blockaded the whole continent of Europe at one time.

Mr. Foster : Yes, and Europe had a hard time of it for many years.

Mr. Burnham : Yes, because he was in supreme control : that only emphasizes the point I am trying to make. Surely in this age we are not going to throw up our hands and say, because a difficulty is a great one, that it is therefore insoluble. The very fact that some system of national insurance could be contrived, if the different interests of the country would bind themselves together for the purpose, shows conclusively and at a glance that it is the Government's duty, as representing the people, to undertake that very thing. That is the function of government. People combine in communities and in nations for the purpose of having combined interests and managing them in a combined or national way. Governments, I submit, are elected for that purpose and accordingly as they display capacity for administration [illegible] make for the success of the national interests, as well as of the individual. If the farmers must be told that their produce will have to run the chances of an inclement cline, of rivers difficult of navigation and of all the other troubles that arise in a country like this : if that is the final finding of this Government why then we must accept it. If it is a correct finding, we must resign ourselves to our fate, but the simple fact that the problem is a difficult one is surely no excuse for leaving it unsolved.

Mr. J. J. Hughes : Change the Government.

Mr. Burnham : That would only make it worse. We surely may expect that such a minister as we have will, grapple with great things and solve them. We have tremendous means of internal transportation, but we are blocked by the sea. For my part, I have been thinking this question over for many years; I have been reading it up to the best of my ability and associating myself with those who understand it, and I must confess that, I do not understand it, notwithstanding the fact that I have brought myself in contact with those whose interests are most involved. I cannot help saying however that I view with great disappointment any statement to the effect that another year is about to close without some supreme effort being made to solve this question. It is all very well having commissions of various kinds who bring in ineffectual findings, which are pigeonholed and that is the end of it: we farmers want to see these things grappled with ; we want to see them solved. Speaking in a somewhat radical way, I think that if a government at any time finds that it cannot do things, it is that Government's duty to give place to another. I am speaking in a general way; I do not know that anybody in this country would for one moment advise such an exchange of horses as was suggested a moment ago. But it is a well-known maxim of law and equity that there is no wrong without a remedy. It is certainly no sign of strength, no sign of progress, no sign of aptitude that year after year we cannot do what other countries can do. Look at little Holland, covered with the sea, as it was. She shut the sea out; she actually defies the sea by mighty dykes and pumping them out. Holland is a country of marvellous prosperity ; she has become a [illegible] and prosperous people. Now here are we with enormous natural resources as we are told every day, and with great wealth: yet, in conclusion, we are actually throwing up our hands before any of the most ordinary difficulties of everyday life. The farmers ought to feel that those in charge are capable and are ready and willing to do their duty in this respect. The farmers must know that the Government have some plan or will mature some plan which will give the farmers better facilities for the carrying of their produce and the transaction of their business. The farmers, as we all know, not being banded together in well-connected relationship like other classes of business men are unable to grapple with these questions for themselves; therefore they must be particularly looked after by the Government. Other branches of business can by instantaneous communication or by well-conducted methods of business contrive plans for the solution of their problems.The farmer is, of course, an authority on the question of the productions of the soil ; he is not an authority on business by any means. I cannot emphasize it too strongly that the wish may, the demand of the farmer is that the present or some Government will rise up in Canada and solve the question of ocean transportation ; and it must be solved.

MONTFORD AGROUND BUT IN NO DANGER

Quebec, April 28.—The C. P. R. steamer Montford, bound from Antwerp to Montreal, with 160 passengers and a general cargo went aground while approaching the harbor of Quebec at 9.30 o'clock this morning during a fog. She is resting on the beach just below the Island of Orleans. The tide had been running down over two hours when the accident occurred. There is no danger for the vessel, except injury by its own weight, as she is lying on a sandy bottom. The company's officials expect to have her floated at high tide this evening.

AN UNTRUE REPORT

Special to the Times.

Ottawa, Auril 28.—An untrue report was sent from the Capital yesterday to the Liberal press, stating that Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., for West Peterborough, was amongst those who walked out of the caucus this morning, called to discuss the Canadian Northern Ry. proposition. This report is absolutely false. Mr. Burnham suggested a referendum. He recognized fully the Government's desire to clear up a difficulty not created, but inherited, and supported the proposal.

THOUSANDS OFFER SERVICE TO U. S.

Washington, April 28.—Applications for commissions in the army are pouring in upon the war department. Many are from former soldiers. Some are offering to raise regiments of "rough riders" and many are regularly retired officers.

Headquarters at the war department today was swamped with letters from women volunteering for hospital and nursing service. Red Cross officers informed writers that only graduate trained nurses of two or three years' experience can be enrolled, much less given immediate assignment.

DRUG VICTIMS NEED HOSPITAL, SAYS METZ

New Orleans, April 28.—That the State of Louisiana and particularly the City of New Orleans is badly in need of an institution for the caring of unfortunates addicted to drug habit was the expression Thursday morning of Dr. A.L. Metz, City Chemist.

"The drug habit in New Orleans is increasing at a tremendous rate, and something should be done" Dr. Metz said. This comment was made to Judge O'Donnell in the Second City Criminal Court after the court had listened to the evidence in the case of Louise Sanders, an unfortunate her twenties, but a complete wreck from the use of drugs and when Judge O'Donnell asked Dr. Metz if it would be advisable to send the woman to the parish prison.

"The parish prison," Dr. Metz said "is the best place at present. But I have never seen a person who had entered that institution for violating the drug habit come out cured. I have seen them abstain from the drug for a year or two at a time, but they finally go back to it harder than ever. We are badly in need of an asylum to care for these unfortunate individuals," continued the doctor.

The Sanders woman was sent to the parish prison for a short term.

EGGS PAY ENTIRE EXPENSES OF CHURCH

Ravenwood, Mo., April 28.— How to make the hen pay the preacher and bear all other expenses of the church and never know it has been figured out by members of the Harmony church, five miles northwest of here.

The project followed Sunday's egg collection at the Harmony Church when the worshippers brought the Saturday's product of their hens to church instead of the usual dimes and quarters.

One hundred and sixty-eight dozen eggs went into the contribution boxes or $26 worth, figuring the value at 16 cents a dozen, the present price here. This makes the value of the eggs of the community $9000 a year, and there is a move on foot to market these eggs, guaranteed, as a community, claiming three to five cents a dozen extra that is paid for such eggs as compared with the uncertainties of the ordinary product. The difference will pay the preacher, keep the church in repair, buy special music and coal and keep the church's light plant running.

The women of the community have agreed to undertake the plan, and they will organize into an egg-shipping company for the purpose.

In regard to Sunday street watering in the business portion of the city, the work will be done early in the morning and in the afternoon if needed.

More Street Paving.

The following street paving work will be advertised: On Aylmer to McDonnel, and up McDonnel to George street; on Murray, from Aylmer to George; on Water, from Charlotte to Brock; on Hunter from Water to Queen; on Simcoe, from Water to Queen; on Queen from Simcoe to Hunter; on George from McDonnel to Smith.

While the above work will be advertised, the whole of it will not be done this year. Probably not more than the unfinished section under contract, on George to the C.P.R. station, on Charlotte to the Grand Trunk station, together with the following new work: on Aylmer to McDonnel, on McDonnel from Aylmer to George; on Murray from Aylmer to George; on Brock from Aylmer to Water street; on Water from Brock to Charlotte. This will practically complete paving the business section.

Cigarette By-law.

The measure to amend the Cigarette by-law by reducing the license fee to $15 was lost in its second reading on the following division :

Yeas—Ald. Duffus, Stratton, Langford, McIntyre and the Mayor.

Nays—Ald. Saunders, Duncan, Dobbin, Johnston, Anderson, Green.

The original by-law fixing the license fee at $40 consequently stands good, and will be enforced unless Council again changes their mind.

FOR THE LABORER

The following notice of motion was made in Parliament on April 23rd.: Proposed Resolution—That, in the opinion of this House, the Government should be empowered to restrict immigration, acquire land, expend money and generally to take such measures as will provide work and wages for the unemployed, to the end that recurring periods of unemployment and underserved destitution may cease, and that the true functions of Government be further realized.

ALL ULSTER AT DRILL WITH ENTHUSIASM AND CONFIDENCE

Commons, Factories, Halls and Stables Used by the Volunteers--War Supplies Are Carefully Guarded

Belfast, Ireland, April 28.—Nothing is more certain than that the men of Ulster are more determined than ever to resist Home Rule, to assert their "inalienable right to self-government" and to maintain their full, undiluted British citizenship. As the Irish measure approaches the final stage at Westminster, the Ulstermen become only more firm in their set purpose to have nothing to do with a Legislature at Dublin this year, six years hence, or sixty years hence. During these Easter holidays, Northern Ireland is an armed camp, a vast drilling ground, the scene of military manoeuvres on a greatly extended scale. Tens of thousands of volunteers have gone into camp for a week, during which they will undergo field training and be reviewed by Sir Edward Carson and other leaders.

Volunteers' Strong Position

From Donaghadee and Bangor, on the eastern coast, to Killybegs, the most westerly point of the Imperial Province, the whole week practically will be spent in route marching, field tactics, skirmishing, and other military exercises, temporary mobilization of the full strength of the Ulster Volunteer Force being decided upon. The South Antrim regiment will be reviewed at Antrim, the North Down regiment at Clandeboye, and the North Belfast regiment at Belfast Castle. "Here," it is announced, "a sham fight on the slopes of the Cave Hill will form the leading feature of the movements. Should civil war come, it is here that the first engagement will probably take place. Experienced military officers state that one thousand men acting on the defensive could keep an army division in check for weeks, the natural formation of the ground being such as to render the place almost impregnable."

STEAMER MANITA LAUNCHED

Reconstructed Local Steamer Once More Afloat.

The trim little steamer Manita, that has been in course of reconstruction at McDonalds' shipyard was successfully launched yesterday. The whole hull, upper works and machinery have been removed. The steamer will be soon in commission and will ply on the local inland waters.

Messrs. J. W. Hickey & Sons, the wellk nown local shipwrights, did the work and did it well.

WOMEN PRISONERS IN MEXICO ARE NOW IN A HORRIBLE PLIGHT

Eighty-Seven Foreigners Herded in Mexican Jail Plead for Help Taunted by Drunken Men

Vera Cruz, April 28.—Sleeping on the stone flagging of the jail with insufficient food, no sanitation and threatened every night with assassination by drunken jailers, is the experience of the American and other foreigners including women and children, confined at Cordoba. Their release to-day has been promised by Gen. Maas, in a reply to a request from United States Consul Canada through a messenger who returned to Vera Cruz to-day. W. H. Mechling, of the Geological Survey of Canada, who has been for some time in Mexico in behalf of the universities of Harvard, Pennsylvania and Columbia spent two days at Cordoba. He was detained, but not put in jail and finally was permitted to proceed here as an Englishman, though he is in reality an American.

Know Some Prisoners.

Mr. Mechling went to the jail in Cordoba Sunday afternoon and talked to the prisoners, among whom are several he is acquainted with. They begged him to communicate their plight to Consul Canada and Rear-Admiral Fletcher in an endeavor to secure their release. The prisoners are herded like cattle and are jeered almost constantly either by the keepers or the Mexican inmates of the jail. They are permitted to have food or drink only when the whim suits the jailers and are kept in a state of terror by frequent threats of death. The total number of prisoners of all nationalities, according to Mr. Mechling, is 85.

WAR "MOVIE" FILMS TO BE PRESERVED AS MATTER OF HISTORY

New York, April 28.—The Mexican war is to be "canned" according to an announcement by the modern historic records association, and the "cans" are to be filed in the New York library. The association plans to take photographic and moving picture records of Mexican battles.

NEWSPAPER MAN, CHARLES W. METZGAR, TAKES FATAL DOES

Washington, April 28.—Charles W. Metzgar, a Washington newspaper man for twenty years, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. For five or six years Mr. Metzgar was the Washington correspondent of the Buffalo Express, and he had a son who is employed in the electrical works at Niagara Falls. Financial reverses are given as the cause of the suicide.

ALABAMA HOTEL MAN DECOYED, THEN BEATEN

Meridian, Miss., April 28.— Decoyed from his hotel, seized by four men, a sack placed over his head, carried to the woods and given a severe beating, was the treatment that was accorded Sunday night to L. M. Moore, proprietor of the Southern Hotel at York, Ala., a town east of Meridian, on the Alabama Great Southern Railroad, in Sumter County.

Badly beaten and bruised, Moore arrived in Meridian yesterday.

It is claimed that the men accused Moore of having whipped his wife. This Moore and his wife deny.

SEVENTY HEAD OF JERSEY CATTLE DIE IN FLAMES

Leicester, April 28.—The barns and outbuildings on the James A. Fouracre estate on Whittemore street, in Leicester Centre, were destroyed by fire today with estimated damages of $15,000.

Five horses, 70 head of Jersey cattle, two tons of hay, three waggons and farm implements were destroyed. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

ONE OF THE QUAINTEST, MOST BECOMING MODES IS THE PANNIER

It is quite natural with the vogue of old fashioned looking flowered silks, moires and taffetas, that the pannier should appear. The effect is brought about in many ways; the draped overskirt, the puffed overskirt and the double or triple ruffle about the hips vie for favor with the wired or corded tunic. Some form of overskirt is seen on most of the frocks.

Just at the moment there are few tailored frocks and suits to be seen; the gowns are all more or less dressy and are suitable for afternoon or evening. The simple little one-piece frock is still favored for shopping and morning wear but for afternoons, soft draped effects, frills and flounces, are the order of the day.

Number 8147 is of chiffon taffeta in that new perle blue; the blouse is kimono, the skirt is a two-piece model with a draped overskirt in pannier effect.

The sleeveless blouse is one of the attractive novelties of the season. One may have several lace underblouses lined with different colored chiffons, giving the effect of a new costume each time it is worn.

Number 8152 shows the popular yoke effect, is sleeveless and opens in front to give the appearance of a vest. The skirt (8151) is a three-piece model with a double pannier. The overblouse and the pannier are of figured silk in a Persian design; the skirt is of terra cotta charmeuse. A cream colored chiffon underblouse completes a most attractive afternoon dress.

This may be copied in size 36 with 1¼ yards of 36-inch material for the blouse and 1½ yards of 42-inch material for the guimpe. The skirt requires for size 24, 4¾ yards of 36-inch material.

Number 8147—sizes 34 to 42.

VARIOUS METHODS OF PRESERVING EGGS

They Must be Fresh in the First Place and Should be Scrupulously Clean

There is no better method of preserving eggs than in water-glass, or soluble silicate of soda, which is not an expensive material to buy, as a pound, which only costs a very few cents, dissolved in the correct proportion of water, will preserve a large number. The amount of water to be added depends upon the sample, but as full directions are usually sent with each tin, it is difficult to go wrong. The eggs are placed in a glazed vessel, and covered with the liquid, care being taken that all the eggs are submerged. When they are wanted for use, they should be gently lifted out of the liquid, wiped dry, and used as speedily as possible.

The oldest, but still a very excellent method of preserving is by means of salt, lime and water. Four gallons of lime, one of salt, and twenty of water, should be mixed together, and when the water has taken into solution as much lime and salt as it is capable of doing, it should be allowed to settle, the clear liquid being used to pour over the eggs, which have previously been placed in a suitable vessel. This method has the disadvantage of making the shells rough and extremely brittle—so much so, in fact, that, as a rule, eggs that have been preserved in lime cannot be boiled, the shells cracking with the least touch. When eggs are to be preserved for only a very short time—for two or three months—dry salt answers admirably, but this is an unsuitable method for a longer period.

If a new-laid egg be dipped into boiling water, it slightly coagulates the white, and so prevents the air getting to the contents. For home use this method is suitable, but it does not answer when the eggs are for market. Smearing with vaseline or butter keeps the contents fresh for a week or two, but is not recommended for more than a month.

Only perfectly fresh eggs should be preserved, and it is largely a waste of labor and money to attempt keeping eggs that are more than two or three days old when placed in the preservative. They should be allowed to settle twelve hours after being laid, but the sooner after this time they can be treated the better will they be when they are wanted for use. Dirty eggs do not preserve at all well, and if there is any dirt on the shells they should be washed. A dirty egg has an injurious effect not only on its own contents, but on all those that come into contact therewith. As infertile eggs preserve better than those containing a germ, it is advisable when producing eggs with this end in view to keep the hens apart from the male birds.

BUTTERMILK CHEESE

Dairy By-product Utilized at Agricultural College

In the Dairy Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Miss Bella Millar, in charge of the Home Dairy Work, made some experiments in the utilization of dairy by-products. Cheese was made from skim milk and buttermilk. The making of cheese from skim milk is comparatively simple, but the buttermilk requires a little more of a process, which is described as follows:

Heat the buttermilk to 80 degrees F., as rapidly as possible, stirring enough to ensure even heating. Leave it undisturbed for an hour.

Heat to 125 degrees rapidly, and with just enough stirring to ensure even heating. Cover it to retain the heat, and leave undisturbed for about an hour.

Without further stirring drain the curd by hanging it up in a cheesecloth bag, or by placing a piece of cheesecloth over a rack or strainer. As the portions of the curd next the cloth will drain more quickly, lift the cloth and allow the curd to roll over, thus securing more even and more rapid drainage.

As soon as the curd is properly drained it is salted and packed. The amount of salt to use will depend on the consumer. 1 ounce of salt to 5 pounds of cheese is recommended, but many prefer 1 ounce of salt to 3 pounds of cheese.

MISSED COBALT'S RICHES

Old French Voyageurs Knew of One Mine 150 Years Ago

That the old French voyageurs and missionaries knew of the existence of at least one mine old maps show beyond disputation. If they had extended their researches for minerals beyond the waterways and had happened upon the silver mines at Cobalt what a difference it would have made to the probable destiny of the Dominion?

The discovery of Cobalt a century and a half ago was quite within the realms of possibility, says The Cobalt Nugget. There was an old Indian trail within a few feet of Long, now Cobalt Lake, and where the Indian was wont to go, there too, the French voyageur could and did follow him. There would have been no difficulty in mining the ore. It was right on the surface and could easily have been mined and taken down in boats to Quebec. Then would the world have been astounded with the glamor of a silver Eldorado in the heart of Canada. The French king would have taken more pains to conserve the country which his predecessor had valued as so many arpents of snow and the destiny of the Dominion might have fallen along quite other lines.

MONEY IN WOODLOTS

Scientific Principles to be Followed to Secure Best Results

There is no part of the farm which will give bigger returns for so little expenditure of time and labor as the woodlot, says Mr. B. R. Morton, expert forester for the Dominion Government, and there are three ways in which the farmer, by the exercise of ordinary common sense, can readily improve the composition, production and reproduction of his woodlot.

The first thing necessary is to improve the character of the crop, which can be done by cutting down and using for firewood all diseased and deformed trees, as well as such species whose presence in the woodlot is not desirable. Only too frequently is the method of cutting exactly the reverse. The best trees are cut, often for purposes for which an inferior wood would serve. Firewood [illegible] yields the best returns for a [illegible] and for this purpose rapid growers such as poplar, ash and elm should be encouraged, which should make an annual growth of from one-half to one cord per acre. [illegible], too, will be in increasing demand because of its rapid growth, because it copprees readily and because of its value in small sizes for the manufacture of excelsior, cooperage stock and other small articles for which the wood is particularly adapted. Maple reproduces readily, and although not a rapid grower, it nevertheless yields a substantial revenue when it becomes large enough to tap. Soft woods like spruce, balsam and pine grow much more rapidly than hardwoods and might be advantageously grown for fuel or pulpwood.

When the most suitable species have been selected and the weed-trees removed, the woodlot must then be thinned until the crowns of the best-formed remaining trees are seen to barely touch.

The third requisite in the scientific farming of the woodlot, is that the cattle be kept out, especially after heavy cutting, when reproduction is most desired. Cattle are just as injurious to a young crop of tree-seedlings as they are to a young crop of grain. They may indeed eat the grass in the woodlot, but they would just as soon, if not sooner, eat the young and tender hardwood shoots, and the same can be said of sheep. Even coniferous seedlings are not immune so that certainty in production is only assured by fencing off the cut-over areas.

Newly-laid Eggs

Bacteriologists tell us that in an egg evaporation and the action of bacteria are evident by the third or fourth day. There are some who believe that from that time on the egg is not perfectly "fresh," or "new laid," nor any other name that should mean the best. It is edible for some time after that if kept properly, but it is not of first quality, and all the statements to that effect cannot make it so. If the farmer has to have longer time than three days to get his eggs to the consumer, he should have to classify them other than the highest, and he cannot expect to compete with the poultryman who delivers his product 72 hours old.

Beets For Cattle

If beets are fed to cows in the barn in large quantities the place should be well cleaned up and aired before each feeding, else the effect on the atmosphere will be so bad it will taint the milk.

OUR PUBLIC SPIRIT

Scotchman Says Unpleasant Things About Canadians

A young Scotchman, after three years in the Canadian West, wrote a letter to the London Everyman describing in unvarnished terms some of the Canadian characteristics, says The Ottawa Citizen. They can hardly be said on the whole to be complimentary, which doubtless makes their expression all the more valuable from the Canadian standpoint. It is always well to "see oursels as ithers see us," and a touch of Scotch opinion may in this case help to improve the spirit of Canada. One of his criticisms regarding the latter is as follows:

"Nor does the public spirit of the Dominion strike a stranger as abundant. It does not find its expression in the Territorial forces, at any rate, which are manned, out of all proportion, by home-born Britons. Certain Canadians suffer from the gratifying belief that the Dominion saved the effete Empire in 1901, and are indignant when told that of the Canadian contingent sent to South Africa eighty per cent. were home countrymen. Nor does public spirit find much expression in local government, where the 'best people' are conspicuously absent—too busy making money to bother with such matters."

Without discussing the incident of 1901, The Citizen says by way of comment, the truth of the rest of the criticism must be confessed. Canadians have been so busy with the multifarious tasks of a new country that they have not had much time to devote to the interests of the country at large. But surly Canada has now advanced in development to such an extent that more attention can be given to the public interest. Unless such attention is given, no greatness of future can be safely predicted. That public spirit that makes a citizen think and feel and act for Canada, as for his larger self, is without doubt the great need of Canada to-day. Others recognize the fact, and Canadians cannot too soon follow their example, and profit by it.

ORIGIN OF PAINTS

Ground up Mummies Furnish a Beautiful Brown Color

In order to furnish the innumerable delicate tints of paint required by artists, manufacturers have nowadays to ransack the world. Even mummies are called into use. Mummies are usually preserved in the finest bitumen, and this ancient bitumen has, in the course of centuries, turned the mummies a leathery-brown tint. It has been found that when the bitumen and the shreds of mummy are ground down by machinery, a beautiful brown pigment is the result—exactly the tint required for painting certain shades of brown hair.

Sepia is one of the commonest of artists' paints. It is a deep brown in color, and comes from a source equally strange. It is prepared from the black, inky fluid discharged by the cuttle-fish to blind and baffle its enemies.

Prussian blue is prepared from horses' hoofs, and is made by fusing the hoofs with potassium carbonate.

Raw sienna is soil from near Sienna in Italy. Burnt sienna, another common tint, is simply the same earth burnt.

The majority of pigments for making colors—that is, the dry powder—are obtained from minerals, but many pigments come from the animals kingdom. Cochineal, for example, comes from the dried bodies of insects. A kind of pitch is also used for certain pigments.

CHLORINATED WATER

Drug Can be Added to Kill the Taste After Germs Die

Just when the chemists were congratulating themselves that they had largely solved the problem of pure drinking water by their idea of doctoring water with chlorinated lime to kill germs, protests came from many cities that the water tasted of the chlorine, and they have had to go to work again on the problem. Now they have discovered a way of putting more chemicals into the water to kill the taste of the chlorine after the chlorine has killed the germs.

Usually the amount of chemical spread through the water is so small that no one can taste it; but the proportion varies with local conditions, and there are times when much larger amounts are used. If more than seven pounds of the chemical is used in a million gallons of water, the most sensitive palates begin to discover the taste and complaints are made to the water department. With every additional pound of the chemical come more protests.

One way to get rid of the taste is to store the water before sending it into the mains; but this is not usually practicable, and chemists have been seeking another remedy. Now it is stated that a drug called thiosulphate will hide the taste of the chlorine after the chlorine has had a few minutes' time to kill the germs. The prescription calls for one part of thiosulphate to two parts of chlorinated lime. To prove that the additional chemical is harmless, the discoverer points out that thiosulphate is used in medicine, and that, in order to get a dose the size a doctor would order for a patient, a person would have to drink about 370 gallons of the treated water.

Strength of Insects

If you were as strong, proportionately, as the beetle is, and were a man weighing a couple of hundred pounds, you would be able to lift with ease 400,000 pounds. For a beetle can lift a weight that is just 200 times its own weight.

Or, if you could jump about with the same ease as the grasshopper, you could spring over a church without much effort.

Or, again, if you wanted to be nearly as strong as the bee, you would have to drag after you a load weighing 4,000 pounds.

It seems, apparently, from such observations made by naturalists, that the greater in size the animal the greater is the muscular energy needed to move it about, and that there is not much left for outside force.

A Costly Metal

Platinum is among the most precious metals in existence. It is now more than twice as expensive as gold. The metal has been utilized more extensively during the past few years than ever before in the jewellery industry, in the chemical laboratory and in the industrial world.

Huge Pipe Organ

One of the world's largest church organs is an electrical instrument at Hamburg, which has 12,173 pipes, some of which are 37 feet long.

Helps the Dentists

Apparatus delicate enough to measure the roughness or softness of the enamel of the teeth, even in their slightest stages, has been invented.

Montreal's total debt, if divided up equally among its population, would leave everyone in the city in debt to the extent of $113.

THE PLOT AGAINST ULSTER

Here is part of a report of the proceedings of the British Parliament a few days ago while Mr. Bonar Law, Unionist leader, was speaking :—

"Now I am going to read an extract from the letter of a young officer (Ministerial cries of 'Oh,' 'Name,' and 'Anonymous again.') connected with the Infantry Brigade. This officer wrote it as an account of what Sir Charles Ferguson said to him. It is very important, and I ask the Prime Minister to send to Sir Charles Ferguson and find out whether or not he did use language like this in addressing his officers. 'The idea of provoking Ulster is hellish.' (Ministerial protests.) It is quite in order to use the word when applying it to an idea, not to an individual. This is what Sir Charles Ferguson is reported to have said on advice which presumably he got from the War Office :— 'Steps have been taken in Ulster so that any aggression must come from the Ulsterites, and they will have to shed first blood.' (Ministerial cheers.) Have hon. members ever heard of agents provocateurs? Was there ever anything in the world more wicked, if it is true, than to provoke these people in Ulster so as to be able to deal with them? The words do not admit of any doubt of it. (Opposition cries of 'Read.') I say that I have given my authority for them, and the Prime Minister can verify them, but so far as the words go, they admit of no doubt."

In the same debate Mr. Balfour said :—"I was only able to listen to part of the speeches of the hon. gentleman below the gangway, but I found them very interesting for I liked the idea of a new French revolution led by an hon. gentleman whom we know so well and who sits on the Labor benches. I heard some of these speeches, and what was the substance of them all? It was that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. Now examine it. Who are the people who would be shot down by our soldiers if this civil war broke out? There is no more democratic community in the world, and these volunteers are a more democratic army than has ever existed in the world, not excepting Cromwell's own New Model in the time of the civil war. When you say 'You are afraid to shoot down the rich,' I say that there is no case in which soldiers could be employed where it would be more certain to be shooting down the working classes than it would be if you sent such an expedition into Belfast."

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

THAT TOMFOOLERY.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir.—"At the meetings of the United Kingdom Alliance in Manchester, England, leading doctors all over the world, including Chinese Physicians, of the highest rank and reputation in their profession were present. They all spoke of alcohol as a dreadful protoplasmic poison which lowers the vitality and renders the system more liable to disease, especially consumption. This most terrible of all diseases is the most deadly disease in the world. A great Paris doctor found that there was no question that the man who took alcohol in however small quantities introduced into his blood that which tremendously lowered the power of the white cells to overcome the microbe. That has proved directly or indirectly by statistics of persons who have visited Paris in order to be treated of various diseases."

"Sir Arnold White has discovered that the germs of consumption are found in greater numbers in the bedroom of a victim of tuberculosis and that the second prolific site of this deadly enemy of mankind is the public barroom. Medical Officers of Health, including our own distinguished Mr. Niven, are in perfect accord with that opinion."

Some time ago the International Congress on Tuberculosis met in Paris, and was attended by the world's greatest experts in that disease. That Congress passed unanimously a resolution which they forwarded to the effect that the fight against tuberculosis must everywhere be combined with the fight against alcohol.

The doctors who passed that resolution were not Temperance cranks but men who devoted their lives to the study of tuberculosis, and they said "If you are going to fight this you must simultaneously fight alcohol." In view of these facts what tomfoolery it is to talk about stamping out consumption without attacking the cause.

And what folly it is to maintain places that cause consumption and at the same time to be spending thousands in an attempt to stamp out the disease.

MANY BABIES RENTED FOR USE IN COURT

New York, April 27.—Some one on the East side is renting out babies by the hour for use in the Essex Market court to excite the sympathy of the magistrate. At least that is what Chief Magistrate McAdoo and court officers were inclined to believe when 30 women, all armed with babies were rounded up yesterday by officers of the street cleaning department for alleged offences against the sanitary code.

As each woman's case was called she came forward with a baby in her arms, with from one to a half-dozen of assorted sizes toddling after her. If the woman had no money to pay a fine the magistrate was compelled to discharge her, for he could not sentence the whole family to jail.

SUES FOR DEATH OF WIFE, HURT BY MULE

New Orleans, April 27.—The death of his wife caused by lockjaw which came from an injury said to have been inflicted by a mule belonging to the defendant company, is the foundation for a suit for $10,120.20 damages filed in the civil court Thursday by Frank Jackson against U. Koen & Company.

The petition relates that Mrs. Jackson while in the act of crossing Chippewa street at Felicity street on Aug. 11, 1913, was knocked down by a mule attached to a waggon and driven by an employe of the defendant firm. The mule stepped on the heel of the woman's left foot, completely severing it from the foot, it is alleged. She was conveyed to the Charity Hospital where she developed lockjaw and died soon afterwards. It is alleged that the accident was due entirely to the negligence of the driver who could have avoided the accident, it is alleged.

How "Rolling" Aids You to Remain Young

By Maggie Teyte

The noted Prima Donna.

MAGGIE TEYTE

"SPEAKING of woman's figure," said a sculptor to me recently, "The most wonderful woman I know is a model who has been posing continuously for the past 20 years, and her measurements are exactly the same today as they were when she posed for her first statue. Her lines are just as fine. Her flesh is just as firm. Apparently she has bid time [illegible] still, and the old chap has obeyed.

"The secret [illegible] I only know two rules. She told me [illegible] sincerely they were the only means she used. First, she has never neglected her regular exercise one day of those 20 years. She bends and touches the floor to keep herself supple, and she does enough stretching to keep her figure from having a chance to slump, which is the first sign of age.

Rolling Most Valuable.

"But of all the exercises," he says, "rolling is the most valuable. She told me if she had only one chance she would choose rolling. Back and forth, over and over, she rolls every morning and every night on a hard floor for at least 20 minutes, and sometimes longer.

"As for her diet, she has only the rule of eating regularly, and the food that does the most good. I was particularly interested in what she told me about food, for it seems simple and practical for men and women alike.

"She is a clever woman, and has a most unusual store of information on a variety of subjects. Early in her life she decided to find what foods gave the greatest nourishment and to make them the staple in her dietary. She has never eaten to please the palate alone, but for the purpose of feeding her body. She told me she never ate enough to feel [illegible]. Starches are almost eliminated in her food scheme, and fresh fruits are important. She never drinks with her meals, and during the score of years she has been a model she has never been seriously [illegible]

Successful Beauty Rules.

The same day I met a woman who is younger looking than her own daughter, and who says she feels younger than her granddaughter. She has a complexion free from wrinkles, and a freshness of laughter and voice that is a joy to all who hear her speak.

"My beauty rules?" she repeated with a trilling laugh of real merriment. "Keep busy. Be kind. Don't worry. Eat simply. There, I guess if I have any rules, those will cover the ground. I don't say exercise, for I am always so busy that I never need any more exercise than I have to take. I walk whenever I can, for I love the fresh air.

"I never climb stairs, and sometimes I climb them instead of taking the elevator [illegible] I feel I need [illegible] when I am [illegible]. But above all I do not, cannot and will not worry. Nor have I an unkind thought about a single person in the world. What's the use? It would only hurt me. And as for [illegible] time talking about persons [illegible] if there are any such, it [illegible] waste of time."

A TRULY beautiful dream [illegible] to be the ONLY man in a perfect cloud of girls, and all of them profoundly, abjectly, [illegible] interested in YOU.

The dream of a VERY YOUNG man, old enough to want the heavens as well as the earth. Not old enough really to know that there is safety in numbers, but just a heart brimming, covetously wanting to be in the presence of tons and tons of beauty.

A jolly [illegible] while it lasts, with all the exquisite shades of brunette and all the [illegible] delicate variations of blonde; blue eyes, brown eyes, gray eyes and those tantalizing, difficult, unreadable green eyes; lips that run the gamut of [illegible] teeth that copy all the tints of the pearl and the tenderest opal, and [illegible]

Secrets of Health

Why Odors Differ in Plant Life

By Dr. L. K. Hirshberg

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

A ROSE by any other name would smell as sweet, and onions and garlics would be the malodorous delusions and snares that they are even were they called violets and narcissus. What, then, is it which causes the odors of flowers and the noxious, nasal annoyances of moulds and other lowly plants. Mr. Eugene Charabot, the able chemist, now rushes into the breach in an attempt to explain all this.

What is a plant odor? Where does it come from? How is it distributed? Why are some of them fragrant and others malodorous? After a 10 years' research independently and along with Mr. Al Hebert, Mr. Charabot now attempts to answer some of these queries.

There are two great groups of odoriferous vegetation. In the one division the fragrance emanates and is found in the flowers of the plants, in the other the odors spring from the green parts or bulbs. The perfume of the flowers usually surpasses that found in the rest of the plant. The rankest compound of villainous smell that ever offended a nostril is found in the latter, whereas the balmiest, most ambrosial bouquet of redolent scents are to be obtained from flowers.

The odors usually, he says, make their earliest appearance in the young, green shoots. Thence, they continue to accumulate, until the plant flowers. Then the odorous compound migrates from the leaf into the stem, and thence into the inflorescence and obeys the well known laws of diffusion.

When fertilization of the plant takes place, some of these oils are used up by the flowers, while at the same time the green parts are called on to make more of these fragrant oils.

The practical outcome of this is that to harvest the perfume-oils yielded by the plant, it should be most profitably carried out just before fertilization occurs. For after this the odorous principles appear to descend again into the stem and generally into the organs other than the flower. This migration is probably induced, in the view of Mr. Charabot, by the withering and drying up of the inflorescences.

In the isolated flower there exist two kinds of fragrance. One sort continues to be produced in one group of flowers, when placed under conditions where the plant still grows. The other class which contains all the fragrant oils in the free state in the flower soon stops producing them whether the flower is cut or allowed to grow.

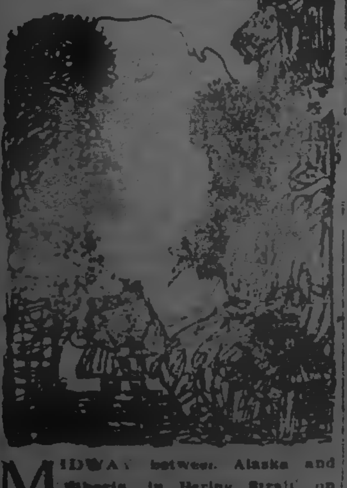
Three Minute Journeys

Where the Youngest Rules the Home

By TEMPLE MANNING



MIDWAY between Alaska and Siberia, in Bering Strait, on the Diomede Islands, there are to be found today the true survivors of the ancient Eskimos, who, although they have adopted some of the better customs of the white man, are probably freer from civilization's vices than any other of the Arctic Indian tribes. These little known people live in houses built in the island cliffs, and are strikingly patriarchal—families to the third and fourth generation dwelling under connecting roofs.

The striking feature of this home life is the position occupied by the youngest child. He is the real ruler of the house. Nothing is denied him; his every wish is gratified. Of course he is carefully taught, but his lessons are at his own pleasure. There is no such thing as punishment for him, because, in the eyes of his elders, he cannot commit a fault.

Strangely enough, according to the way we look at things, this child is not spoiled, in the accepted sense of that word. He grows to manhood possessed of the store of knowledge of his tribe and ready to walk in the footsteps of his father. He sows no wild oats; upon arriving at the age of understanding he naturally heeds the words of his elders, probably at the same time bowing to the childish will of a younger brother or sister.

An experience illustrative of the custom came to my attention during a short visit I made with the Government teacher, who has organized a training school for the natives on the bleak slope of the harbor. One of his little charges had not appeared at school for several days, and I went with him to the family igloo to ascertain the reason. The grandfather gravely listened to our questions, then, pointing to a tot of 5 playing about the door, said:

"You should ask him if it is his pleasure to attend the school."

My friend at length solved his problem by adding a number of simple games to his course and rewarding good pupils with bits of candy. The parents refused to exercise any authority in the matter.

These Diomede Eskimos are among the shrewdest traders in the far north. And they exhibit an inborn honesty quite foreign to most of the tribes. There is only one objection to them—they have conceived the notion that all white men are wealthy, and they do not hesitate to ask you for anything of yours they admire. Your generosity or stinginess on your first visit forever establishes your reputation there.

That they are generous, however, their unwritten code of etiquette shows.

"If a stranger has nothing, give him anything you have got; if he has plenty, ask him for everything."

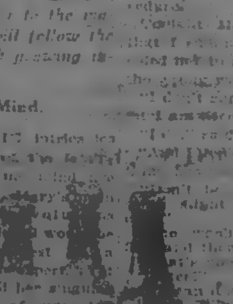
LEONA DALRYMPLE



THE [illegible] many [illegible] has [illegible] that [illegible] of [illegible] for all her singular ways of reasoning Mary's powers of intuition are altogether startling. She leaps at conclusions with such speed that it fairly dazzles me. I go slower by the fields of logic and I always get there late. Mary makes more mistakes perhaps than I do, but intuitive instinct quite as often guides her aright.

I came home one night and found Mary decidedly out of sorts. Now I've learned from [illegible] experience that there are two things equally productive of squalls [illegible] to [illegible] her. [illegible] sleep with both [illegible] Mary [illegible] that I [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible]

"I don't [illegible]" said Mary. [illegible]

[illegible] I said, with [illegible] "Of course [illegible] man didn't come [illegible] and then she did."

[illegible] "for by the time he [illegible] got here I had everything out [illegible] and it forced me to have her start [illegible] in the middle of the day."

"All right, then," said I. Which was [illegible] the right thing to say.

"I don't suppose, but never mind, Peter," added Mary with an air of [illegible] wisdom, "go on into the library and read your paper. I'll finish what I'm doing without you."

[illegible]. When Mary emulates the [illegible] martyr—I exterminate.

I heard Mary thumping furiously with something—and then she set a bottle down with a sudden bang.

"Peter!" she exclaimed sharply.

"Yes?" said I apprehensively.

"If you'd stop reading that horrid paper for about half a minute and help me, maybe I wouldn't dig my fingers all up with this can opener."

"Great Scott!" I exclaimed, appalled; "why didn't you ask me to help you, Mary? I didn't even know you were struggling with a can opener."

"All day," said Mary tragically when I [illegible] her, "I've been trying to open that [illegible] bottle by prying the can opener under the ruffled tin edge [illegible] and it slips every time and [illegible]. I try for a few minutes and then I give up. Then I try again. It's nearly driven me insane."

I glanced sympathetically at her hands. They were in pretty bad shape—scratched and cut and bleeding—and then I glanced suddenly at the bottle. I could have laughed. I didn't. You don't always laugh when you want to when you're married.

The bottle had the conventional cap that comes on a beer bottle. Now, Mary and I have back-slid sufficiently from the ways of our Puritan ancestors to like beer in Welsh rabbit and therefore my wife is quite familiar with the process of opening a beer bottle on [illegible] occasions.

"[illegible]" said I, very, very patiently, with a glance at the patent top on the vinegar bottle, "why, Mary, didn't you use the beer opener, and save your hands?"

[illegible] thunderstruck [illegible] then guilty.

"I—I don't know," she said. "I—I [illegible] only for beer!"

There is an intricacy of the sub-conscious feminine mind for you!

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am very young and pretty, and all my men friends say they adore me. Do you think they do because they hug and kiss me incessantly? Should I let them? Please tell me what you think, as I am so inexperienced, but like to be loved. Yours sincerely,

MODEST MAIDEN.

MODEST MAIDEN, you have chosen a peculiar name for your signature. Honestly now, don't you think so? Do you really believe that any modest maiden would let any men friends "kiss her incessantly," no matter what they say about her.

Now I'm going to talk some very plain English to you, little girl. I think you need it, and it's time you had it.

So you like to be loved, do you? What has incessant hugging and kissing to do with love? Nothing, in the wide, wide world.

Do you want to be really loved? Do you want to be held in some good man's heart like a jewel in a ring of precious metal? Then stop this "incessant" hugging and kissing this very minute, and stop it once and for all.

Don't imagine for one minute that the men who hug and kiss you so "incessantly" feel about it the way you do. They don't. They kiss you because you let them do it—that's all. You're just a convenience to them, like an ash tray or a cigarette holder.

They kiss you and then go out and tell each other about it and laugh over it. You're just a joke to them, that's all, a poor, pretty, little goose of a joke.

The weaker sex—it is to laugh. No man in the world could put up the fight for decency and virtue and modest self-respect that any plain little schoolgirl can and does put up, year in and year out.

When she loses in that fight she's a poor little girl, all gone out of the world you want to live in. She belongs out there in the street, and that's where she will go sooner or later.

Don't like to be loved so well that you can't like to be respected, too, for, whisper, there's lots of respect without love, and there isn't a bit of real love in all the world without respect. Send your "incessant" friends about their business.

Hold yourself too high for any such coarse and brutal commonizer.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Sanol BLOOD SALT

No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will always superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 18 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous diseases.

SUN'S RAYS WARM MERE SKIN OF EARTH

It Takes Six Months For Midsummer Heat to Penetrate to Its Full Extent

How far does the heat of the summer's sun penetrate into the ground? Probably not one person in ten will give a answer that is even approximately correct. Their replies generally vary from one inch to many hundreds of feet, says London Tit-Bits. Actually the distance is about 3 feet. Beyond this depth the temperature of the soil does not vary appreciably from hour to hour, let the midday be never so hot and the midnight never so cold. At this depth the mean temperature in the summer is about 58 degrees Fahrenheit, and in the winter about 38 degrees.

And the annual difference? That is to say, the depth at which there is some difference between the summer temperature and that of the winter? Well, at a depth of 60 feet it is impossible to measure any change due to the changing seasons overhead. Go down only 40 feet, and it is minute—barely measureable. But at 25 feet to 30 feet it is quite a definite amount.

The surface heat takes a long while to penetrate downwards. In fact, curiously enough, the change in temperature of the ground takes just over six months to reach the end of its 25 foot journey. Thus we are faced with the phenomenon of midsummer upon the surface occurring at the same time as midwinter 25 feet to 30 feet down, and vice versa.

Farmers talk about "cold" soils and "warm" soils. This, although it sounds improbable to those who have never had anything to do with the land, is an actual fact.

Everybody knows that black clothes are hotter to wear when a hot summer's sun is shining than white ones. The reason for this is that black and other dark colors absorb heat, while white and the lighter shades reflect it. And this applies to soils equally with cloths.

Those soils which by their ingredients are of a darker color are literally warmer than their lighter neighbors. Peaty soils, some of which are nearly black, others a rich, dark brown, are the warmest; light-colored clays and chalk the coldest. There may be as much as 15 degrees or 16 degrees between the temperatures of two soils, lying next to each other and upon the same day.

SILKEN BANK NOTES

A Possibility of the Future, a Woman's Invention

It is possible that before long all bank notes will be printed, not on paper, but on silk of a particular shade. It is by means of photography that most clever bank note forgeries are effected. An English concern held a private demonstration when Mrs. Ernest Hart explained a new process she invented for waterproofing fabrics without rubbing and drying them in the same operation. By utilizing this process linen, cotton, or other material can be put into one end of a machine white and brought out a few minutes later colored, waterproofed, and dry! Each machine treats 480 yards in a day, and the materials produced are useful in hundreds of trades, from building aeroplanes to bank note making. As regards the latter, the material produced is of such a color that it cannot be photographed.

Will Crooks' "Dont's"

Mr. Will Crooks, M.P., gave the following advice in an address to workingmen:—

Don't argue when you are tired; you can't do it.

Don't take the workshop home with you.

Don't talk trouble before the children.

Don't think you can't be "done;" you can.

Don't think you are worse than other people, and don't think you are better; you're not.

Don't think you have a constant job; the man in the cemetery has that.

Don't talk of being master in your own house. You may be while you are there; but you have to go out.

Don't get angry; no one cares if you do.

Blunders in Book Titles

Nothing so taxes the ingenuity of the bookseller as phonetic endeavors to get at the name of a book. Who but a genius could conceive that by "Within or Outside the Pail" was meant "Beyond the Pale," or that by "The Forgotten Cigar" a customer meant "For God and the Czar?"

Even Mr. Bullen would be puzzled by a reference to "Screws of the Cash Lock" for "The Cruise of the Cachalot." Some other amusing blunders are "She Strips to Congo" for "She Stoops to Conquer," "Hero of the Week" for "Hereward the Wake," "Lined Pockets" for "Lying Prophets," and "Bad Acre in Greece" for Baedeker's "Greece."

THE POULTRY HOUSE

Some Pointers Gathered From a Government Publication

Select a location that has natural drainage away from the building.

A dry, porous soil, such as sand or gravelly loam, is preferable to a clay soil.

In most localities the building should face the south, as this insures the greatest amount of sunlight during the winter.

Allow at least two square feet of floor space per bird.

Proper ventilation and sunlight mean a dry house and healthy birds.

The partial open-front house is conceded to be the best type for most sections.

The colony plan of housing poultry may be adopted to good advantage on many farms. This system does away with the danger of tainted soil.

The roosts should be built on the same level, two feet six inches from the floor, with a dropping board about eight inches below them.

Good roosts may be made of 2 by 2-inch material with upper edges rounded.

The nests may be placed on the side walls, or under the dropping boards. It is best to have them darkened, as the hens prefer a secluded place in which to lay.

TWO PESTS OF CATTLE

How to Prevent and Control Lice and Ringworm

These two pests of housed cattle trouble most in dark, damp, dirty, badly ventilated stables. Remedial measures fail if only the animals are treated. So long as calves and adult cattle remain on pasture they are not bothered with vermin or skin disease; but when they go into winter quarters the trouble starts. The reason is that eggs ("nits") of lice remain in the stable from season to season, while the vegetable parasite of ringworm lives on damp walls, partitions, fences and other woodwork as well as on the skin of animals. Both pests, therefore, are acquired in the stable. If animals are to be made comfortable by keeping them free of lice and ringworm the stable should be specially prepared for their reception. Each animal should be allowed four square feet of window-glass and five hundred to eight hundred cubic feet of air-space in the stable.

Good ventilation, too, is absolutely necessary, and by preference should be of the King system. In this method of ventilation the fresh air enters at the ceiling, drives the hot air downward upon the backs of the cattle and is sucked out through wall vents near the ground-level and connecting with pipes discharging through a high chimney in the roof. The cleansing process consists in removing all loose trash, litter and soiled feed, scrubbing walls, mangers, partitions, floors and ceiling with a 1-50 solution of coal-tar disinfectant or crude carbolic acid or solution of four ounces of formaldehyde or sulphate of copper to a gallon of water. Fresh-made lime-wash is then applied with a spraying pump, which forces the wash into every crack, cranny and crevice. An addition of one pound of chloride of lime to three gallons of lime-wash makes it more effective.

To rid animals of lice a 1-100 solution of coal-tar dip may be sprayed on and brushed in, when the weather is not too cold, or an even more effective solution may be made by steeping four ounces of stavesacre seeds in a gallon of boiling water and using when cold. Frequent applications are necessary, as new broods of lice hatch out from "nits." In cold weather dust the infested part of the skin freely with flowers of sulphur, or Persian or pyrethrum insect-powder. Mercurical ointment (blue ointment) is effective when applied to the poll of the head and along the backbone; but treated animals must be separated to prevent licking of the ointment, which is poisonous. Ringworm is indicated by bare, white, scaly, crusty spots upon the face, around the eyes and on the neck or other parts of young cattle. Treat by scraping and scrubbing each spot clean, and then rubbing in iodine ointment every other day until well. "Barn itch," or ringworm, may also effect adult cattle, causing itching, scaly spots on the body and especially about the tail-head. Treat by scrubbing clean and wetting with a solution of two pounds of sulphate of copper to a gallon of water applied hot.

Ensuring Potato Crop

Canadian western farmers are remarkably ingenious in assuring themselves a crop. At least they are reported to be. An Ontario farmer tells of an incident that occurred when he was paying a visit to a relative farmer in the Canadian West. He followed the trail for many miles and finally found his relative digging in a field. The man dug about eight inches and rooted out a good hill of potatoes. He dug to another depth and revealed a second hill. At still another depth a third hill of potatoes was forthcoming.

Mystified, the farmer from the east questioned the digger concerning the magnificent crop of potatoes, by hills, three deep. "Well," he said, "we plant them three deep this way in order to be sure of one crop at least. You see, in a dry season the upper hill is killed by drought, and in a very dry season the second hill is also lost, but it never gets so dry that the bottom hill is destroyed. On the other hand, when the season is wet the bottom hill rots, in a very wet season the middle hill goes as well, but it never gets so wet that the top hill is destroyed. In the third place, in a favorable season the result is three crops, as you see.—Toronto Globe.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sort of mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Advance in Lighting

Since the introduction of the incandescent lamp, over thirty years ago, the art of illumination has been an example of meritorious study and results as the world has had from time to time during the interval since the great Edison discovery of the efficacy of carbonized filament. At the present, many additions of utilitarian value have transformed the electric lamp from an expensive luxury into a commodity upon which depend the health, comfort and advance of civilization, and the general advantages of which have rendered possible an increase in production from accelerated ...

BOMBS FROM THE AIR

Dirigible Balloons Add to the Horror of Naval Warfare

The Zeppelin dirigibles are so constructed that they can come to rest on the sea, but they require special moorings. With even five of these airships ... properly equipped with arms from low or medium altitudes in the air, it is difficult to see how the battleship can remain undiscovered. The new rigids being built in Germany will, it is reported, have a speed of nearly sixty miles per hour, and a scope of action of thirteen hundred miles, so that one of these vessels would itself be quite capable of exploring a very large extent of sea and coast line. These aerial cruisers are to carry no less than eight tons of explosives and improved bomb-dropping appliances.

The moral effect of the dirigible in sea warfare of the future is bound to be very great. One can well imagine what an outcry there would be were a Dreadnought to be put out of action by the bombs of an airship, and yet such an occurrence is by no means impossible. The man in the battleship has already an anxious time of it, knowing as he does that he has to avoid the attentions of the submarine, the mine, and the torpedo. But now, that the airship has been added to all these terrors, the extra strain that will be thrown upon the sailor's nerves will be almost unbearable.—Chamber's Journal.

Nothing Known So Sure For Throat Weakness, Bronchial Trouble Etc.

No doctor attempts today to cure a genuine case of catarrh or bronchitis except by the inhalation method. Stomach dosing has been discarded because useless medicine so taken affects only the stomach, never reaches the seat of catarrh.

The advanced physician recognizes that only air can be sent into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Fill this air with healing medicaments and you solve the problem. No combination of antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. It contains the richest pine-balsams and the greatest healers known.

One breath of Catarrhozone instantly circulates over the area that is afflicted with catarrh. Relief is instant—suffering stops at once—germs are destroyed, every taint of disease is removed. Think it over seriously. Here is a remedy that clears the throat, relieves hoarseness, coughing and bad breath. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, inflamed bronchial tubes are healed, throat and voice are strengthened.

Catarrhozone is pleasant and certain. You breathe Catarrhozone—you don't take it. Large $1.00 size is guaranteed; smaller size 50c, and trial size 25c, at all dealers everywhere.

At a special session of the Police Court yesterday afternoon, Parsonson, Parkinson and Donoghue, were each fined $50 without costs, with being found in a common gaming house contrary to the code. It is understood the fines were paid under protest.

Four Swimming Places.

The special committee to deal with the playgrounds proposal held a meeting and appointed sub-committees to locate our playgrounds and three swimming places with the reports to be presented as soon as possible. Fined For Selling Cider.

On Friday Samuel Fusco, fruit dealer, appeared before Police Magistrate Jackson, at Lindsay, charged with selling fermented cider. License Inspector [illegible] laid the information and had samples of the cider sent to the [illegible] Dept., Toronto, for analysis where it was found to be of sufficient intoxication. The magistrate imposed a fine of $100.

A New Government Steamer.

Messrs. E. Vernon and W. Boyle, of Hastings were guests at the White House yesterday. These gentlemen are connected with the Trent Canal, and will to-day take to Hastings the new Trent Canal steamer "Oriental," which was brought here under a change of name from Lake Simcoe. She is in addition to the Bessie Butler, and will be used for survey work on Rice Lake and Otonabee waters.

A Fire Scare.

Some excitement was caused yesterday at noon on the property that will soon be the home of the former Charlotte street church, just south east of the Convent. A pile of laths taken from the demolished building was set fire to. Flames soared heavenward to a height of 20 feet. Within a few yards lay piles of time dried lumber and rafters. It was feared that the blazing pile might set fire to the lumber. However, no damage was done.

Heating Expert Here.

Mr. Harr F. Dow, representing the Steel and Radiation Ltd., of Toronto, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Dow is an enthusiast over his firm's system of hot water heating. He noted that he has, during his present visit to Peterborough, secured contracts for heating the residence of Mr. C. H. Thompson and Mr. John Craig. This firm also supplied the heating system for the local Bank of Commerce.

Mr. Brightman Won His Case.

The non-jury sittings of the High Court were opened at the Court House yesterday morning, with Sir John Boyd on the bench. The members of the local Bar present were Messrs. F. D. Kerr, V. J. McElderry, S. T. Medd and G. N. Gordon. The first case, Brightman vs. Quigley, was awarded in favor of the plaintiff, Mr. Thomas Brightman of Peterborough, who received his claim of $2,334. He was also awarded interest on that amount from May 30th, 1911. Mr. Medd appeared for Mr. Brightman.

Lindsay Visitors Coming Here.

Lindsay Post: Indications point to the fact that a splendid deputation of citizens will accompany the town council to Ottawa on Wednesday evening when the heads of different departments of the Government will be interviewed with a view to obtaining such needed works in Lindsay. Those who cannot possibly arrange matters so that they can catch the 6.30 o'clock train, may take the 9.32 G. T. R. train for Peterboro and have several hours in that city before the departure of the C.P.R. midnight train.

A Spanish Belle.

Yesterday Mr. George Read, formerly a Marine in the United States Navy, was in the city. Mr. Read is now a cripple. He is a man who has visited almost every country in the world. In conversation with a Times scribe Mr. Read showed the former a photograph he took in Havana, Cuba, of the wall against which a Spanish General lined up 12 students and had them shot, years ago! It seems that the students of a college of that city had made a political disturbance. None of the Cuban youths would tell who were the offenders. The General made them draw lots and every tenth man was shot. Mr. Read also showed our reporter a bullet he cut from this wall, which is now fenced in as an historical spot.

20 MEN CALLED LOST IN SUPERIOR WRECK

Duluth, Minn., April 29.—The steamer Benjamin Noble is lost off Duluth and twenty men are believed dead. Wreckage was found on Spark Point. Life savers are unable to launch a boat because of the high seas. Not a man reached shore so far as is known.

THREE POSSIBLE MEANS OF EXIT

Out of the present Ulster entanglement there are three possible doors of exit.

The Government may go on and enact the Home Rule Bill, and, if any resistance is offered by the inhabitants of Ulster, may undertake to enforce the provisions of that Bill, despite such resistance. This means civil war.

The second way out is to accept the challenge of the Unionist party and appeal to the country for its support of Mr. Asquith's policy. He has the pledge of the Ulster leaders that Ulster will accept Home Rule in its entirety if the policy of Home Rule is approved by the country in a popular election; but there is a very good reason why Premier Asquith should object to this way out, even if he is sure that the country would support him in such an election.

The third way out seems to us the natural way. It is for the Government to grant by the same measure Home Rule to the South of Ireland; to give to each section its local Parliament; and to do this as part of a plan which eventually will give similar Home Rule to Scotland, Wales, and England; in a word, to adopt a modified form of the Federal system.

MR. J. H. BURNHAM AND OTHERS NOT INSURGENTS AGAINST GOV'T

After Being Made Acquainted With Terms of C. N. R. Aid They Give Approval

Ottawa, April 29.—Details of arrangements arrived at with the C.N. R. made first to the Conservative caucus yesterday morning and publicly last night, was the sole topic of gossip to-day in the lobbies. The greatest satisfaction is expressed by the Conservatives. Opinion was practically unanimous that the Government had driven a most extraordinary bargain and one that was in every way in the interests of the Dominion.

Notice of the resolution upon which the bill to validate the agreement will be based, was given by Premier Borden to-day. It is understood that the question will be taken up in the House on Thursday of this week. Before the agreement comes into effect all the subsidiary companies will have to declare their allegiance to the terms.

One of the striking features of the agreement which appeals to the Conservative supporters is the stringent provision to prevent the money raised being appropriated or diverted for any other purpose.

The guaranteed securities are to be secured by trust deed made to a trustee or trustees approved by the Governor-in-council.

Another feature which appeals to the Government supporters is the consolidation of the thirty-one companies of the C.N.R. into one big company, the squeezing out of $45,000,000 of water and the reduction of the capitalization to $100,000,000. This has been one of the biggest objections to the C.N.R.

Mr. Burnham for Proposals.

That Conservative opposition to the agreement had dwindled down to two members, Mr. R. B. Bennett and Mr. W. F. Nickle. Mr. J. H. Burnham and Mr. B. R. Hepburn, who have been very outspoken in their opposition to the C.N.R., will support the Government proposals. They believe that the bargain on the whole is a good one. The fact that Mr. Burnham left the caucus early yesterday and refused to make any statement led to the belief that he would stand with Messrs. Bennett and Nickle. The action of these two men does not mean that they have broken with their party but simply in effect that they disapprove of the proposed agreement under which the Canadian Northern interests will receive a bond guarantee. It is understood that Mr. Bennett and also Mr. Nickle disagree with the Government on two points and that they desire first a temporary arrangement by means of which the construction of the road will continue during the next year, and that in the second place, that a public investigation be held into the standing and securities of all the various parts of the Canadian Northern system.

DISHES FILL AIR TILL POLICE COME

Woman Arrested and Held For Observation as to Mental Condition.

Buffalo, April 29.—Dishes were flying and chairs hurtling through the air yesterday when Patrolman Albert B. Blystone braved the bombardment and placed his hand on the shoulder of Mrs. C. Burke, who lives at Ludington and Gold streets, northeast corner, and who was the storm centre of what looked like a Kansas tornado.

Here's what the police blotter said:

"Mrs. C. Burke was arrested charged with insanity. She was breaking furniture and dishes and otherwise acting in an insane manner."

HER BOY WAS SHOT NOW MOTHER STEALS

Council Says She Has Not Recovered From the Shock.

Toronto, April 29.—"This woman is the mother of little Tommy Prince, who was killed by two companions near Port Credit, while they were out shooting. She has never recovered from the shock."

This was the plea put forward by counsel for Mary Chris, a middle-aged woman, who pleaded guilty, before Judge Coatsworth, to a charge of stealing from a department store.

"I'm sorry that the woman has had trouble, but I cannot depart from my custom. Fived ays in jail," said His honor.

MR. ROWELL IS CHARGED WITH ACCEPTING FEDERAL RETAINER

Report of Auditor-General Shows Large Sum Paid Him—Held His Seat in Violation of Law?

Toronto, April 29.—During the heated debate in the Legislature last night over the charges launched by Mr. Bowman, Liberal whip, against the Provincial Secretary, Mr. G. Howard Ferguson laid before the House an affidavit calculated to show that until recently Mr. Rowell was in the employ of the Liberal Government at Ottawa. Mr. Ferguson said, in part:

"On the 17th of March this House was treated to an all-night session, listening to Mr. Rowell and his followers expounding their views upon the independence of Parliament. He declaimed against the re-enactment of the law passed by the old Liberal Government, and inadvertently omitted from the Statutes. He asserted his position most emphatically that a member of this House should forfeit his seat if he had business relations with the Dominion Government.

"The people expect sincerity and candor in the public conduct of the man who occupies the position of leader of the great Liberal Party.

Held Seat Illegally.

"What will the public at large, and especially the Liberals who support him have to say of the present leader of the Opposition when they learn that from the very moment he took the oath and entered this house he has all the time sat here in violation of the law. At the very time he was making his declaration he held his seat illegally.

"But whatever excuse he may have had up to that time, he has undoubtedly since the 17th of March knowingly and wilfully been guilty of deception towards the House and the public.

"At the date of his election, Mr. Rowell was in the pay of the Dominion Government, and continued in the service of that Government for months after his election, and was paid $3,250 from the Dominion Treasury as fees for such services."

THE DRY DOCK

The disputed valuations of properties expropriated by the Dominion Government for a dry dock in Ashburnham, are now in the Exchequer Court, and will be settled as soon as the Court is able to decide them.

Plans and specifications are now being prepared, and as soon as these are completed tenders will be invited for the work.

WELL KNOWN BRITISH OFFICER SAVES AMERICANS FROM DANGER

Commander Tweedie, of Cruiser Essex, Went up to See Huerta--He Told Him What's What

Vera Cruz, April 29.—Commander Tweedie, of the British Cruiser Essex who went to Mexico City several days ago to intercede for foreigners held in the capital, returned here late yesterday and reported that his mission had been successful. President Huerta Minister of War Blanquet and Foreign Minister Portillo Y. Rojas assured Mr. Tweedie they would release all American prisoners and that all Americans desiring to do so might leave via Puerto Mexico, but that the trains on which they would go would not be provided with escorts.

The train on which the Commander came back to Vera Cruz picked up one hundred American refugees from various interior points who were assembled at Soledad.

Presented Pitiable Sight

These refugees who came from Tierra Blanca, Cordoba and Orizaba presented a pitiable spectacle and were worn, dirty and tired from their frightful experiences. Women with babes in their arms and young girls lugging heavy bundles containing all that remained of their earthly possessions, wearily trudged with the other refugees from the station here in charge of agents from the American consulate. Many of these refugees are destitute and these were lodged aboard the rescue steamers last night

SEND MORE TROOPS TO NANAIMO DISTRICT

Two Companies of the Westminster Fusiliers Leave for Trouble Zone.

New Westminster, April 29.—Two companies of 104th Regiment, Westminster Fusiliers, will be despatched to Vancouver Island coal mining district within the next day or two in response to a request for an augmented civil aid force for both Nanaimo and Ladysmith. It appears that the Councils of both towns refused the coal miners unions permission to organize a demonstration by means of a May Day parade and it was stated to-day that threats have been made that they will parade anyway.

As there has been a recrudescence of the rioting spirits among the miners the authorities decided to ask for the militiamen.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mostly fair and a little higher temperature.

JUDAS MACCABAEUS LAST NIGHT A HUGE MUSICAL TRIUMPH

St. George's Choral Society and Conservatory Orchestra Excel Themselves. Principals Captivate an Enthusiastic Audience. Miss Dorothy Allan Heard to Splendid Effect in Duet and Rrio

Handel's famous oratorio, "Judas Maccabaeus" was presented to a good and appreciative audience at the Grand Opera House last night, by the St. George's Choral Society, under the masterly direction of Mr. R. J. Devey. The instrumental programme was in the capable hands of the Conservatory of Music orchestra augmented by the Toronto Syphony Quintette. The offering was a two and a half-hours' rendition of classical vocal and instrumental music, mainly of that stirring martial character which especially appeals to British audiences. Both the Toronto and local talent which took part are to be congratulated upon the thrilling triumph they scored by their masterly efforts last evening, which reflect the fullest measure of credit upon both directors

This is the second of Handel's masterpieces rendered by St. George's Choral Society and very creditably demonstrates the high class musical capacity of our local people under technical tuition. And it is to be hoped that this commendable educational training in emanations from the best masters will be continued and encouraged indefinitely.

The occasion was graced by the presence of Dr. Torrington, of Toronto, the veteran music conductor and Father of oratorio in Canada, who warmly congratulated the Choral Society and their leader, Mr. Devey, and the Conservatory of Music Orchestra and their director, Mr. Gliddon, upon the enviable excellence of their work. He urged upon Peterborough citizens generous patronage of the Choral So- tal culture, which gives dignity and the interests of voice and instrumenciety and Conservatory Orchestra in tone to any city in which it prevails.

"Judas Maccabaeus" is an inspiring musical story replete with thrilling solos, duets and trios, with stirring chorus climaxes. Last night's audience was continuously responsive from the mournful chorus of captive Judah, onward through Israel's defiance and defeat of Syria by Judas Maccabaeus, until the grand climax was reached in the brilliantly sung number by the chorus of "See the Conquering Hero Comes."

The length of the oratorio would not permit of the frequent demands for encores being responded to, although the delighted audience would not be denied repeats by Mr. Frank Oldfield, bass, with "The Lord Worketh Wonders," by Mr. Albert Downing, tenor, with "Sound An Alarm," and by Miss Olive Casey and Miss Dorothy Allan, sopranos, with their sweetly pretty duet, "O Lovely Peace." Miss Casey and Miss Allan sing irresistibly pleasing in duet, their voices blending in charming cord and melody. Miss Casey sustained her reputation as a high class soprano, whose voice is rich and full of varied compass and delightfully appropriate to oratorio. Mr. Downing is thoroughly trained tenor, rich and sweetly clear in note. Mr. Oldfield is a soul-stirring bass singer, whose numbers last night thrilled his hearers to intense enthusiasm. All three of these Toronto principals captivated their audience in each of their airs and continuous applause prevailed. They will be always warmly welcomed by Peterborough's lovers of classical music. Miss Dorothy Allan was heard to splendid effect in duet and trio and sustained her reputation as a local soprano of considerable talent. The chorus was very strong, admirably trained and of exceedingly noticeable volume. Their numbers were highly commended by all.

The whole offering was a sublime rendering of oratorio surprising in its demonstration of what Peterborough is capable of in that direction.

After the performance the whole company, vocal and instrumental, the principals and Dr. Torrington, sat down to supper in Coleman's parlors.

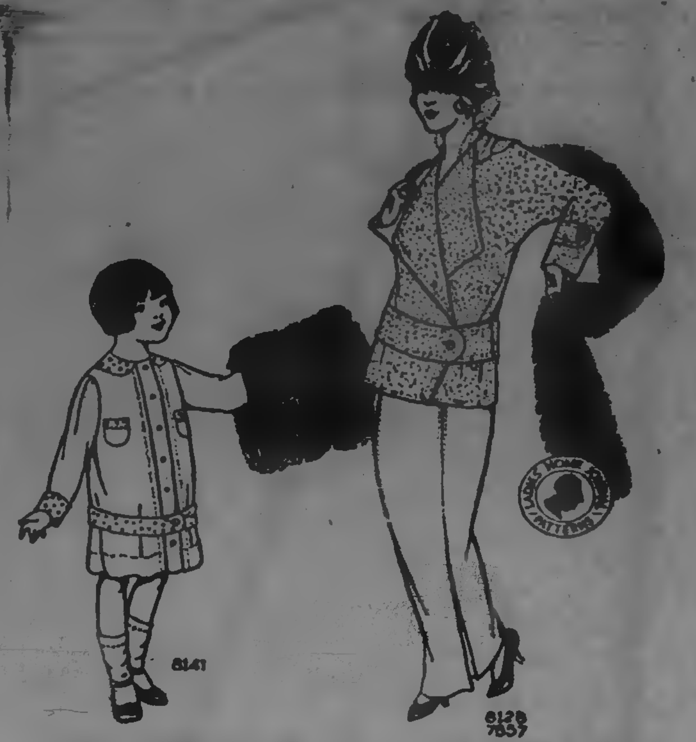
MUNICIPAL FORMS ALWAYS IN STOCK



THE SPORTS COAT A SERVICEABLE NOVELTY

Quite the most sensible of the recent modes is the sports coat. It has been adopted by young and old.

Many of these coats are cut on severely straight lines, others are modified somewhat by rippling collars, wide revers, broad stitched belts with now and then a tiny pocket attached. There is nothing else by way of trimming, however. If they were to be trimmed to any extent they would fail of their purpose, which is purely practical.

Most of them are fashioned of the light weight wool fabrics, which are delightfully warm. A coat of this kind will be found excellent to slip on over a one-piece frock or may be combined effectively with a skirt of plaid or tweed.

For size 36 this coat requires 4½ yards of 42 inch material. The skirt may be copied in size 24 with 5¾ yards of 36 inch material.

Nos. 8128-7857 shows a coat of dark brown duvetyn worn with a skirt of tweed in a rich brown mixture.

The small child's dress shown in No. 8141 is made of dark blue serge with collar and cuffs of red and white dotted silk. It is a simple design with a stitched belt and two patch pockets by way of finish.

To make this dress in size 2 it requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8128—sizes 32 to 44.
No. 7857—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8141—sizes ½ to 4.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

A REAL PITCHER

Walsh a Tower of Strength, Hard Worked and Reliable

To Walsh belongs the title, "Ready Rescuer." No pitcher can honestly dispute his right to the honor. Ever since Walsh became valuable to the Chicago club, which, by the way, was in 1906, he was the salvation of the Sox. Managers Jones, Sullivan, Duffy and Callahan always called upon him in a pinch. Sullivan used him to less advantage than the others. A friend commented upon this one day during his reign as manager and his answer was truly Sullivanesque.

"I have caught Walsh in so many games that I realize the terrific strain it is to work as he is worked. I realize that the over-working of the spit ball has killed off many pitchers and I simply can't reconcile myself to calling on Ed. to suit the occasion."

ED. WALSH

In a way Sullivan sacrificed his career as manager to save his star pitcher. Being a catcher, he realised what Walsh was doing.

Honors fall to Walsh. Pitching before big Sunday crowds is always his lot. Rescuing faltering pitchers is his first duty. Doing the heavy work in all big series he dotes on.

More young pitchers are tried out against Walsh than against any other man in baseball. When he is right, managers know it is a task to beat him. Often the opposing leader starts a youngster against Walsh, admitting the chances of victory are slight.

"I've been beaten by almost every bush pitcher in the business," Walsh once said. "They start some phenom against me and he always works like a star, although he may never pitch another good game. These phenoms have been my Jonah."

GREATER BRITAIN

Royal Colonial Institute to Change its Name

The Royal Colonial Institute proposes to change its name to the Royal Britannic Institute. When the society was first founded some fifty years ago, it had two rooms above a shop in the Strand; it now occupies a large building in Northumberland avenue, and has the best library of colonial information in the world. Since its foundation, however, the institute has extended its work so greatly that the word "Colonial" is felt to be no longer applicable. In the first place it does not include India, although a large portion of the library is devoted to Indian literature. In the second place, Canadian and Australian members resent the word "Colonial." And, finally, the institute has a large number of members in South America, which is in no sense a British colony.

RACING ETIQUETTE

The novice in the world of racing often finds himself "up against" all kinds of little points of etiquette rendered customary by long usage, but not generally known outside the regular devotees of the sport.

For instance, the equine patricians who have passed the post first in "classic" races are always, on being led back to the paddock, treated by the onlookers with a mark of courtesy generally rendered to reigning Sovereigns, that is, a general doffing of hats. The man who fails to bow solemnly to the Derby winner after the races gives himself away at once as unversed in racing etiquette.

Except at Ascot, where there is a state procession, it is an unwritten law that no notice shall be taken of royalty at race meetings. The King or any other member of the royal family on the course is treated just as an ordinary commoner. In fact, you would often see the late King Edward in the paddock at Epsom, taking his chance with a whole crush of minor notabilities of the racing and social world in their anxiety to view the horses as they were being led out. The observance of the royal incognito, indeed, is said to have been originated by his late Majesty, when Prince of Wales, for his devotion to the sport of racing was such that he openly expressed his intolerance, while indulging in it, of tiresome ceremony.

In the case of the Derby, the Oaks, the One Thousand and Two Thousand Guineas, the St. Leger the Manchester Cup, the Liverpool Cup, the Ascot Gold Cup, the Ascot Vase, the Chester Cup, the Jubilee Handicap, the Lincoln Handicap and the Goodwood Cup, the winner is always "led in" by the owner. If he is unavoidably absent this duty must be performed by a relative of his, or a personal friend deputed by him.

DESTINY OF STALE BREAD

Much of it Goes to Customers—Feed For Pigs and Chickens

What is done with stale bread in a city like Toronto? General opinion has it that a great amount of the "staff of life" which becomes damaged and stale, and is returned to the bakers, is thrown out and done away with, without having been made use of. Not so; enquiry elicited the information that in one week, five of Toronto's many bakers have the problem of disposing of 4,450 loaves of stale and damaged bread, divided as follows: North end baker, 3,500 loaves; East Toronto baker, 300 loaves, and three other bakers, one, 250 loaves, one, 100 loaves, and a fifth, 300 loaves, total 4,450 loaves. And how are they to rid themselves of all this bread you ask. It has been summed up as follows:

Customers	2,850 loaves
For sausages	510 loaves
Chickens	580 loaves
Institutions	250 loaves
Boarding houses	200 loaves
Pigs	60 loaves
	4,450 loaves

THOROUGHBREDS SHOW STEADY IMPROVEMENT

The light of other days always shines more brilliantly for some of our instructors, and each generation finds someone to lament the past and exalt the worthies who then flourished. The superiority of the horses of the preceding generation is a favorite conviction of writers of this turn of mind, and it is easy to find in turf chronicles of fifty years ago the exact repetition of lamentations over the changes for the worse that are not uncommon to-day. Yet there is no good ground for believing other than that the merit and quality of horses of every breed are steadily improving. The thoroughbred may be best compared because of the practical uniformity of the supreme test, that of speed on the racecourse. By this standard the progress is up, not down, and horses are improving, not deteriorating. Tracks are faster to a certain extent than 50 years ago, but not nearly so much as to account for the difference in the times recorded. No other sport can be cited in which, under similar circumstances, deterioration would be claimed. As a New Zealand trainer not long ago put it: 'I have yet to hear it contended that the man capable of running a hundred yards in 10⅕ seconds is superior to the man who can do it in 10 seconds and yet that is the position taken up by many people in respect of racing. If the horse of 20 years ago was better than the one of to-day the same line of argument might be carried back still further. Perhaps the present-day race horse may not be as tough as the old-timer, but as a speed machine he is considerably ahead of him."

NO TROUBLE BREAKFASTS

"If any of you are married let me give you this piece of advice; leave the purse also to your wife and take nothing out of it which she does not give to you. From the very first I left my wife in charge of the purse and laid myself out for politics, and I have always found that this was a very good arrangement."—Bismarck.

"You would not have so much trouble over your breakfasts if you got things ready overnight," said Mrs. Experience to Mrs. Hausfrau, in answer to the young wife's dismal lament that breakfast was the worry of her life. "I don't like getting up early any more than you do, but I can quite understand that your husband gets tired of boiled eggs and fried bacon day after day. Personally I always choose dishes that can be got ready the night before and all there is to do is to heat them. Here are two or three of my staple dishes which I think you will find will break the monotony and will really be less trouble in the morning than preparing eggs. For ham cakes, for instance, take ½ pound cooked ham, four tablespoonfuls of mashed potatoes, one teaspoonful of grated onion, pepper, salt, milk, one egg, some breadcrumbs and fat for frying. Overnight I chop the meat very finely, and mash the potatoes free from lumps, then mix the potato with the ham, and onion, season and mix all these ingredients carefully, and add just enough milk to bind the mixture and prevent it crumbling. Next I divide the mixture into even-sized pieces, and shape these into round flat cakes. Brush each over with beaten egg, and then coat them with crumbs, and place them ready on a tin covered with paper, on which to drain them after frying. I put a deep pan of frying fat all ready. In the morning I put the pan of fat on the fire to heat, and when a faint smoke rises from it I put in some of the cakes, and fry them a pretty golden brown—then I lift them from the fat, drain them on paper, and serve neatly arranged on a hot dish. Boiled lean bacon, tongue, cold meat or poultry can be used instead of ham. For Fish Croutons you want ½ pound of cooked fish freed from bone, a tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a little fish stock or milk, one hard-boiled egg, two teaspoonfuls of anchovy essence, salt and pepper, and some slices of bread cut about ¼ of an inch thick. Overnight I chop the fish finely, melt the butter in a saucepan, stir in the flour smoothly, and add the milk, heat and stir this until the sauce boils. Then add the fish, shelled and chopped egg, anchovy essence and seasoning. If the mixture seems too dry add more liquid, for it should be stiff, yet creamy and leave the mixture in a pan in a cool place. I cut the bread into pieces about three inches long and one and a half wide, and lay these on a tin with about an ounce of bacon or beef dripping, in which they will be fried. In the morning I heat the mixture thoroughly, remembering that it is thick, and so will stick and burn if not stirred; heat the bacon fat in a frying-pan, and when a faint smoke rises from it lay in the bread, and fry it a pretty gold color. Then drain the pieces on paper, and neatly heap on them the hot fish mixture. Any fish, or mixture of fish, will do. If there is any suitable sauce, white or brown, ready, use it instead of making fresh. Toast can be used instead of fried bread.

Cure Children's Colds By External Treatment

It's really a shame to upset a young child's stomach by internal dosing, when external treatment will so promptly break up a cold.

When your boy comes in after play with his feet soaking wet, his throat hoarse and sore, his little chest tight and congested, just apply Nerviline. Give him a vigorous rubbing over his throat, and put lots of Nerviline on his chest and rub it right in. To make Nerviline penetrate more quickly cover his chest and throat with a hot flannel bandage. This treatment WON'T fail. Your boy will be feeling better in half an hour and you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have warded off perhaps a cold or grippe, or illness that might have laid him up.

Nerviline is mighty good for penetrating colds and for breaking up a bad one, too. For general family use it cures all sorts of external aches and pains—you simply can't beat it. Try it for earache, toothache, neuralgia, sciatica, lame back, rheumatism or lumbago. Wherever there is congestion, inflammation or pain in the joints or muscles, Nerviline will cure mighty quick. The large 50c. family size bottle is so economical, so useful, it should be in every home. There is also a small 25c. size. Dealers anywhere sell Nerviline.

TIME TO SWAT THE FLY

The authorities of many cities are issuing appeals to the public to begin swatting the fly. Flies that have survived the winter will begin now to lay their eggs and in a few weeks the first broods will be in evidence. As a consequence of the prolific breeding capacity of the insect the nuisance will soon be beyond control, thus minimizing the good effects of the war of extermination.

It has been figured out," says the Pittsburg Post, "that one female fly lays 120 eggs at the start, and the younger flies, developing rapidly, produce in large numbers, thus proving the claim that one fly that gets through winter becomes the ancestor of millions. The value of one swat in April is, therefore, fully apparent. Scientists say the fly can be exterminated, but in order to accomplish this the work must not be delayed until the pest is beyond control."

It appears that heretofore people have made the mistake of swatting in minsummer when flies are plentiful, but notwithstanding that millions were slain there was no appreciable diminution of the swarms. This fact, which caused wonderment is easily explained. When the fly season is at its height there are countless millions of eggs in process of hatching and for every fly killed a million substitutes appear in a few days, hence we should remember that it is worth more to swat a fly this month that to kill a thousand in July or August. So begin the swatting now and let the slogan be "Up and at 'em!"

Boy Attacked by Bulldogs

A lad, ten years of age, was set upon in a small garden in Dundee by four bulldogs. A fifth dog, a large retriever, was also on the scene, but took no part in the attack. When help arrived the boy was found to be severely lacerated and utterly exhausted. The dogs were ultimately driven off, and the boy taken to the infirmary. The bulldogs were removed to the premises of a veterinary surgeon, to be kept under observation in case of complications.

WOMAN ADMITS SHE LIVED WITH DIVORCED HUSBAND AS WIFE

Judge Fisher Refers to Domestic Troubles of Wagner as "Remarkable Case."

"This is a remarkable case and we must treat it as such."

This was Judge Fisher's response to an objection from Assistant District Attorney Landfriend when he objected to a question propounded by Attorney Gauche, who was defending Charles A. Wagner, on trial in the first city criminal court for larceny of an automobile valued at $1000, which he is alleged to have given his former wife as a present.

This is the case which held public attention for a time recently, when Wagner was hauled before the court for kidnapping his little son. It will be recalled that Wagner's sister drove up to the school attended by the Wagner boy and took him away in the automobile. Wagner is charged with stealing from the residence of his former wife at 2934 Tulane Avenue.

The former Mrs. Wagner—now Miss A.E. Thomas—testified that her husband had made her a present of the automobile. In answer to a question from Attorney Gauche, Miss Thomas admitted that she lived with her former husband as man and wife at the Tulane street address, after they had been divorced, and that he contributed to the expense of "keeping house" saying he gave her about $15 a week.

Assistant District Attorney Landfriend was caught by surprise when the defense brought out this feature. The defendant denies that he gave his former wife the auto as a present and will endeavor to show that the machine belongs to the firm of Wagner Bros., tailors. Wagner will be tried later on the charge of kidnapping his own son, who has since been restored to his mother.

GOVERNMENT TRIES THE MUSSELS ON POLICEMEN

Boston, April 27.—Eleven barrels of mussels and a quantity of small cook books telling how to prepare this kind of new food were ordered distributed among 11 of the police stations of the city yesterday by Government Agent Thomas M. Dorthart of the bureau of commerce. Each patrolman was invited to take home enough mussels for a meal.

This distribution is the latest move in a wide campaign on the part of the bureau of commerce to popularize the mussel as an article of food. If those policemen who took home some of the seafood report that they liked it, it is probable that more barrels will be distributed at other stations.

OUR BODIES AND HEAT

We Drink Liquid That Would Scald Our Hands

The human body can stand far greater heat if it be dry than if it be wet, and, strangely enough, it can stand far hotter liquids inside than out. For example, the average tea-drinker sips tea at a temperature of about 140 degrees—sometimes as high as 145 degrees. But he cannot bear his hand in water at 120 degrees, of his feet in water higher than 112 degrees. Few people can stand a bath in water at 103 degrees.

In parts of Central Australia men live in an average temperature of 115 degrees in the shade and 140 degrees in the sun, while 151 degrees has been registered. In the Persian Gulf the thermometers on ships vary between 122 degrees and 140. An explorer in the Himalayas reports that he found in December, and at more than 10,000 feet altitude, a temperature of 131 degrees.

Drs. Bleyden and Chantrey, two English scientists, desiring to ascertain how high a temperature the human body could stand, shut themselves in an oven, of which the heat was gradually raised, and they were able to bear it until the thermometer registered 212 degrees, the boiling point of water.

A Mountain of Borax

There is a strange mountain in the Death Valley region of Nevada. It is known as Mount Blanc, and consists entirely of borax. Mount Blanc is approximately 1,200 feet high and two miles in diameter.

The market value of this borax where it lies is something more than $100 a ton. Experts estimate that the mountain has at least three billion tons in it.

Much M[illegible] Lake

For h[illegible] prevailed [illegible] the va[illegible] at the bottom [illegible] Guatavita [illegible] once oc[illegible] nowned for [illegible] fabulous wealth.

The aboriginal Indians of the locality had a [illegible] of casting their vessels a[illegible] of precious metal into the waters of the [illegible] offerings to their [illegible] and the knowledge of this custom led to the belief that has been handed down through the ages that it was the burying-place of fabulous wealth.

For centuries almost ever since the country was first discovered travellers and [illegible] engaged in various expeditions in search of this territory, and many attempts were made to drain the lake, without success. The Spaniards were just on the point of succeeding in the task of draining the lake after years of hard work spent upon it; but when they were half-way through, the sides fell in and years of work were wasted. In 1900 an English company undertook the work. They proceeded to drain it by digging a tunnel through the adjacent mountains, bringing it below the level of the surface of the water.

The lake was not emptied until 1903, but it kept refilling on account of the heavy rains and the presence of springs. A number of jewels and ornaments found in the mud of the lake bed seemed to indicate that the search for hidden treasure was to prove successful. Then the mud dried hard and fresh difficulty was thus encountered. The engineers continued operations, but no further treasure came to light.

After an outlay of some $75,000 it was decided to abandon the hunt.

COLD CURES BALDNESS

Nature Steps in and Provides Protection for Head

Can baldness be cured by cold atmospheric treatment? This is a question that has been occupying the attention of scientists.

Sir Ernest Shackleton, the explorer, laid stress upon the fact that many of the men in his expedition before their sojourn in the Antarctic regions were remarkable for the thinness of their locks. They had hardly been a few weeks in the frozen South, however, than their hair began to grow, and when they returned from their expedition all had hair remarkable for its thickness and luxuriance.

It has been remarked also that nearly all the men who work the greater part of the day in cold-storage rooms have good heads of hair.

The laws of Nature would seem to emphasize the fact that cold is favorable to the growth of hair. Take the case of the animals. In no countries of the world is their fur so thick and luxuriant as in the frozen Arctic regions. By a special dispensation of Providence the animal dwellers there are given an extra thick warm covering to protect them from the cold. In the brief spell of warm weather they cast their coats for a lighter one more suitable for the season.

FAMOUS PHRASES AND THEIR ORIGIN

Some Everyday Expressions Have Come Down to Us From the Time of the Greeks.

The average person probably does not know the origin of half the common phrases used in ordinary conversation.

No less a person than Cicero first made use of the expression, "While there's life, there's hope," in a letter he wrote to Atticus. "We are in the same boat" is not modern slang, but occurs in a letter written by Clement I., Bishop of Rome, to the Church of Corinth in the first century. This letter is still in existence.

"I never put off till to-morrow what I can do to-day," was Lord Chesterfield's explanation of how he managed to do so much work. "Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well," he wrote later in the famous "Letters to His Son.

Lord Eldon, Lord Chancellor of England during the first twenty-six years of the nineteenth century, continually mispronounced the name of Henry Brougham, [illegible] to be a successor in the Chancellor's office. Brougham objected to being called Broffam, and once, after Brougham had made a speech, Eldon, by way of apology, pronounced his name correctly and made a proverb, "New brooms sweep clean."

"No man is a hero to his valet" has been paraphrased by scores, from Madame du Cornuel, a witty Frenchwoman of the seventeenth century, to Dr. Johnson and Napoleon. The first record of it, however, is found in Plutarch, who states that when Hermodotus addressed a poem to Antigonous I., King of Sparta, hailing him as son of the sun and a god, the monarch replied, "My bodyservant sings me no such song."

The phrase "circumstances over which he has no control" was used by the Duke of Wellington in a letter concerning some affairs in which his son was mixed up, and with which he declined to interfere.

"Conspicuous by their absence" has been used on many occasions in modern oratory. It was first used by Tacitus in relating that in the funeral procession of Julia, niece of Cato, sister of Brutus, wife of Casaius, many of the images of the most famous families in Rome were seen, but Cassius and Brutus shone pre-eminent because their images were not displayed."

"Nothing is certain but death and taxes," wrote Benjamin Franklin, stating that the Constitution of the United States was in operaion and to all appearances would last.

"Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones," was said by James I. of England, when his favorite, the Duke of Buckingham, complained that a mob had broken his glass windows, which were at that time a luxury.

"Mind your P's and Q's" is said to have been taken from an old French phrase at the time of Louis XIV. A very low bow was in fashion, and the dancing master, instructing his pupils, would warn them to look out for the position of the feet and the movement of the head, lest their queue wigs be disarranged. The French word for foot is pied. "Mind your pieds and queues," soon came to be transplanted into English, and abbreviated.

Newest Cotton Weaves in "Crazy Quilt" Patterns

By MADGE MARVEL

AUNT MINERVA'S bed-quilt must have furnished the inspiration for the weavers of cottons this year. Nowhere else in the memory of the present generation have such colorings and patterns been found. There is the identical orange with the queer leaf design in yellow and green on the cotton crepe and "novelty fabric" of today that Aunt Elizabeth wore when she was a girl, and which is sprinkled sparingly over the family quilts of her day.

The design has always proved a fascinating puzzle. One way it looks like a conventionalized palm leaf. From another angle it resembles a gourd. Unless you have slept in a four-post bed beneath one of these quilts, in some old village mansion, the description means nothing to you. If you have, you have recognized the repetition of the patterns in the materials of today.

A "Linen Season."

Summer clothes are a lovely problem. The looms have been so beautifully generous. Unless one has the financial resources of Sheba's queen, or the wisdom of Mrs. Solomon, she finds herself quite lost in the oceans of fascinating linens and cottons and similar fabrics which are offered for her choosing.

Never have the cotton weavers accomplished such a triumphant combination of artistic coloring and practical patterning.

They seem too lovely to be only one season [illegible], and the appreciative soul sighs for the bygone days of the preservation of "pieces" by means of patchwork quilts.

Makers of dresses and shopkeepers both assure us it is a "linen season."

They roll before us billows of white and rainbow goods of flaxen origin. There are fine, soft weaves, there are loose, open meshes, there are checks and stripes. And before we have time to choose from the overwhelming offering our eyes are attracted by the cottons. Then we are all at sea once more.

Ratines loom prominently in the foreground when we select the coat and skirt suit, which, in spite of fashion's moods, remains ever the most practical choice.

The colorings are delightful. Broken checks in Delft blue and rose and white, combinations of violet and willow green and pink—lovely clear plaids [illegible] faded shades which are found on old plates, threads of crushed raspberry crossing those of absinthe green on a background of white; browns, from the faintest tans to deep leather tones, livened with true Chinese yellow, which seems to be the pre-eminent color in all fabrics this season. In linens it is delightful. They are very wide, 50 inches is the average width, and have splendid substance without excessive weight.

Crepes are exceptionally popular for summer wear. They have the advantage of holding their color and requiring little ironing, and they do not crush.

"Poems in Cotton."

I saw the wardrobe of a woman who is preparing for a summer in Europe and she had an even half-dozen frocks of cotton crepe. Some of the solid colors are charming, and the ones which show the rosebuds or single violets are equally attractive. Dolly Varden and Pompadour designs make many of the crepes suitable for dressy dresses.

The mulles and organdies are literally "poems in cotton," as one woman has described them. Here, too, the Pompadour and Dresden influence is apparent. They are soft as silk, and lend themselves most agreeably to the present ruffled, draped and gathered modes.

In the trousseau of a June bride I saw an organdie frock of pale pink with [illegible] apple blossoms with the faintest suggestion of leaves. Another mulle gown in the same wardrobe was in palest blue with prim little bunches of pink rosebuds and violets scattered over its surface. There was also a crepe of finest weave in dull Indian red with the same orange and green design which is on the patchwork bits.

I have noticed a great showing of the yellow and blue checks for separate skirts or for coats to be worn with plain blue or yellow linen skirts. Some go beyond checks and are genuine plaids.

Bordered Goods Popular.

The bordered goods are in great demand, and the cotton chiffons in black and white stripes with borders of pink roses or [illegible] or primulas are charming. Very many of the ratines and linens show the black and white checks and stripes. The linens also are exquisite in the damask effect which is similar to the brocade design.

Golfine is a fabric which will be much worn, and there are tiny red and blue and yellow chenille posies on white crepe backgrounds that are the dernier novelties of the season. Laces will help to make these summer frocks alluring, and in the realm of nets and lace there is the same wonder of newness in patterning.

The utter absence of any use of starch in these fabrics is noticeable. Also the strong colors give promise of many trips to the laundry without losing their beauty.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the New Novel, "Diane of the Green Van," Awarded a Prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as Judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Who Is Boss?

LEONA DALRYMPLE

THERE have been a great many humorous anecdotes about who is the head of the house—or, to put it a little more brutally, who is the "boss"—but I have recently had an experience which determined my status in such brief and positive terms that I shall always feel quite sure just what position I actually fill in my little household.

I have always talked a lot of idyllic stuff about partnership. I never saw any actual necessity for a "boss." I like the notion of a man and his wife talking domestic problems over amicably and adjusting them with an eye to each other's comfort and inclination.

It took a very simple thing to teach me my place—nothing more than the floor of a cold storage cellar.

Mary had talked a great deal about somebody or other's cold storage cellar, and, although we had been spending [illegible] too much money, I eventually decided to have one end of my cellar made into a cold storage place merely as my [illegible] and my purse [illegible] might be ushered by irrelevant and significant reference to storage facts.

When a topic begins to come up every night it's wise to pay attention to it, for there's something ahead. It may begin with a mere anecdote relating to somebody else and seem entirely impersonal, but if that anecdote is repeated several times with varying inflections to accent certain phases of it—if it begins to form an integral part of the evening's conversation—then it's pretty safe to assume that the anecdote has some vital bearing upon your own existence.

For instance, the cold storage affair began in this way:

"Mrs. Wayne," said Mary on Tuesday, "has a wonderful cold storage cellar."

"Yes," said I.

"Mrs. Wayne," said Mary on Wednesday, "has a wonderful cold storage cellar. She has about everything she wants."

"She's lucky," said I.

"Mrs. Wayne," said Mary, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, "has the right idea. She has a cold storage cellar, and [illegible] save money by it."

"Very well," said I on Sunday, "we'll have one, too."

I made but one alteration in duplicating Mrs. Wayne's famous cellar. There was such a difference in cost—and my purse was so sickly—that I decided to have the floor made of sand instead of cement.

Coming home early on Saturday—it was before lunch, I recall—I decided to go around the back way and inspect my cellar. There were voices below discussing something with considerable energy. I heard them distinctly as I passed the window.

"What's all this?" I heard Mary demand in some surprise.

"Sand," said the phlegmatic workman, a foreigner.

"What's it for?"

"The floor."

"The floor!" exclaimed Mary disapprovingly. "This cold storage cellar is to have a cement floor!"

Conceivably the man went on working.

"You might just as well stop that now," said Mary with an air of finality, "for I'm going to have a cement floor in that cellar. Sand is absurd—"

"[illegible]," said the man. "It's cheap." Which was really very much better than he knew. Still he went on working.

Mary stamped her foot.

"That's enough," she said. "Stop it."

The man halted. With his foreign conception of domestic arrangements he said positively:

"Boss he say sand—and sand it be!"

"Boss!" said Mary sharply. "What do you mean?"

"Man of the house—he want sand. He get it."

"Well," [illegible] Mary, "he may be the man of the [illegible] but he isn't the boss. I'll [illegible]."

And she did.

Once in a while a man inadvertently learns the real truth about himself and then he sneaks furiously off to his kennel and howls at the moon.

IS CONVERSATION A LOST ART?

Mary Jordan, Singer Who Discusses Conversation.

Mary Jordan Analyzes the Social Wit of the Day

By ELEANOR AMES

S[illegible] prophetic and optimistic soul says that when we are too tired to [illegible] we will sit and sip our tea and talk. Then the almost lost art of conversation will be revived.

"But what will we talk about?" pertinently asks Mary Jordan, the well known prima donna. "It seems to me most of us are like one of Dr. Johnson's friends, of whom he said: 'The worst of him is that he has a rage for saying something when there's nothing to be said.'

"So few of us really know how to talk! We merely chatter. Table talk at any hour of the day is sadly commonplace. Unless there is some hope of its being improved, it seems to me we might as well keep tangoing.

"A clever man told me recently that epigrams were no longer considered smart. When I asked the reason, he said: 'They are too difficult to make and it takes too much effort to understand them.'

"Last summer I travelled a lot and was present at lots of breakfasts and luncheons and teas and dinners where I met many and varied personages.

"Just for fun I kept mental account of the topics of conversation. When the summer was over I found that we had talked most about dress.

"Next, about scandal in which strangers or acquaintances were implicated. Most of the scandal concerned divorce.

"Then, when women met alone, the servant question was the chief topic next to dress.

"Dinner conversation has become tinctured with essence of vaudeville wit. Breakfast talk is the most soothing of all. There is less of it.

"Mental gymnastics are not popular at breakfast. We should be thankful for that. We are neither required to lend a listening ear or a witty remark.

"After all, it seems to me that the supreme test of friendship is silence.

"When two persons of the same or opposite sex can sit in the same room, each occupied with his own thoughts of his own work, and yet conscious of pleasing and helpful companionship, of understanding without words, of appreciation without speech, I think we have reached the ideal friendship.

"Do you know the line in 'Much Ado About Nothing,' where it says: 'Silence is the perfectest herald of joy'? That expresses more than anything I can say of the silence test of friendship.

"Dear, quaint Oliver Wendell Holmes described a tea, years ago, as a medley of 'gabble, gobble and git.' The description holds good, and 'gallop' might be added now for the excuse for a tea at the moment is the opportunity to tango.

"The delightful sociability which once marked a peaceful, restful indulgence of congenial spirits around the tea table has degenerated into a pause in the maxixe or a rest in the hesitation long enough for [illegible] of tea or [illegible] with the dance [illegible] between [illegible] of the [illegible].

"The charm of the Frenchwoman as a [illegible] thoughts [illegible] illuminating [illegible].

"Perhaps the dance [illegible] the survival of the fittest. Perhaps the world is done better than it was [illegible].

"Spontaneity is the very life of conversation and of wit.

"If we have to force ourselves and our neighbors to say something worth while, would it be worth the effort? Unless we have thoughts and time for the right expression of them, why try to force the issue? One of the Shaw heroines says 'Everything there is to say has been said,' so perhaps it is as well that we go on babbling instead of trying to converse.

"Pity is the one who sits by and indulges in thought once in a while. It seems that when the world is so filled with wonderful [illegible] and of wonderful persons and their accomplishments it's a great pity that conversation is unfashionable. Also there seems a tremendous [illegible] of fame for the hostess [illegible] enough to bid the [illegible] the wit flow."

Learn to Rest for Beauty's Sake

By MAGGIE TEYTE

The noted prima donna.

MAGGIE TEYTE

"MY nerves are simply on edge! I am just frazzled out, and when I see anybody I know I feel as if I must run screaming away from her."

This is the commonest complaint from womankind, according to the various physicians of my acquaintance. And it is also the cause of the many worried faces and wrinkled brows and petulant mouths which we see on all sides, in spite of the generous use of creams and lotions and rouge.

"Raggedy" nerves and beauty do not go hand in hand. There is no use in trying to make a lovely complexion and perfect features if one feels like "running and screaming."

Frazzled nerves will undo all the best work of the best beautifiers.

I have always held the opinion that we don't want to run screaming to get away from anybody in the world but ourselves.

And only one in a hundred of us knows how to get away from herself.

We must learn how to rest. We have learned splendidly how to be restless. It has grown into a national habit. We dignify it by a variety of names: strenuosity, activity, efficiency, interest in the affairs of the world. It is nothing in the world but restlessness.

Half the rushing around we do is totally unnecessary and unimportant and unrestful.

It leaves us worn out and without any progression to our credit.

It ages us—when we think it is helping us to keep young. It makes us very unpleasant persons to live with, for the poor woman with "raggedy" nerves can't help being irritable and irresponsible. And it makes us less efficient.

The first thing women need to learn is how to let go and rest.

When I say rest, I don't mean being indolent or [illegible] of ambition.

I mean [illegible] we can [illegible] up and gather our [illegible] where we are going.

I know a woman [illegible] work of [illegible].

[illegible]

When it seems to her [illegible] she sits [illegible] just rests [illegible] closes her eyes if she finds herself [illegible] to see. And she catches up with herself between [illegible] as it were.

If she has a few spare minutes during the day she does not spend it talking, unless she has something really important to say, but she sits back in her chair, alone in a room if she can, and shuts the world out. She makes her mind a blank and relaxes all her tense nerves and muscles, and at the end of 15 minutes she is refreshed.

If we spent our money as we do our nervous energy we would be called extravagant and wicked spendthrifts.

Get out of yourself, dear lady of the "raggedy" nerves. Go into some quiet corner and lie down and forget the outside world, and let nature do what all the doctors in the world can't do without her help.

Run away into the lovely pink and green country and let the soft breezes cool your throbbing head and blow the wrinkles out of your strained face, and let the brooks and the birds sing you to sleep.

Almost any one of us can get away one day in the week—away from the cares and companions of the other six days and most of all away from the [illegible] we know as the rushing cyclone of activity.

What's the use of rubbing sweet-smelling unguents into the face while we let "raggedy" nerves eat up our vitality?

In the [illegible] time we may seek beauty and nerve balm in tonic baths.

We can all have the soothing luxury of a sea-salt bath before we go to bed, and we can have the cool sponge bath in the morning with diluted alcohol. And here are baths which are not beyond the possibility of most of us.

Boil half a pound of pine cones a half hour and [illegible] the [illegible] into the bath.

Mix together one ounce of tincture of camphor, two ounces of [illegible] and [illegible] tincture of [illegible].

Add [illegible] to the tub to make it [illegible].

[illegible]

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Neglect of Aching Feet May Lead to Many Ills

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

JUST the other day you read in the news dispatches that a young girl who had been irritable and cross became a changed child when two distinguished orthopedic surgeons corrected the flat foot with which she had suffered for years.

This is no sensational, exaggerated or "fake" story. Despite the fact that several medical societies have thus gone on record, this is absolutely true. I do not know the surgeons, but I went out of the way to investigate carefully the accuracy of the account. It is true. Now, it may be said of the child:

"A foot more light, a step more true
Ne'er from the heath-flower dashed the dew,
Even the slight harebell raised its head,
Elastic from her airy tread."

If the feet play such a series of rat-a-tat-tats upon the thoughts, feelings and aspirations of the individual, as seems to have been the case in this little girl's experience, it is high time that the orthodox medical associations and malaria experts interest themselves in the problem.

The small estimate placed upon the feet by most clinical professors and specialists is illustrated by the apologetic introduction to a certain volume on the form of the shoe.

The writer says, with excuses, that he scarcely dared to make public a work on the foot, and the book really originated in a jest!

Although it is a cruel dictum which should be modified a bit, Lord Palmerston almost hit the mark when he said that all shoemakers should be made "to walk the plank."

It would indeed be a happy earth if innocent, unshod feet trod as lightly upon it as does the doe. Such lightness of foot would not wear out the brain, the brawn or the body of the owner.

The language of the eye, the lip, the cheek, and the nose is no better than that of the foot. The very stairs the sleepless foot treads upon salutes it in friendship. While both the floor and the shoes when worn heave and groan and creak in almost intelligent agony.

The mental havoc caused by deformed or painful feet should be plainly apparent to physicians: from those tango terrors, the none too meek but excessively lowly corn or bunion.

Wars have been fought, the moral fibre of individuals has been undermined, the will has been crushed, ambition has been stifled, and every form of crime and plunder has been incited by the spasms, cramps, throbs, agitations and galling anguish of the imperious corn.

Like the laws of the Medes and Persians, those of the Egyptians and Philistines of the fashionable world, the shoemakers seem to be unable to change. A nude foot or a [illegible] foot would raise neither anguish, droopy spirits, [illegible] or [illegible].

Her treading would not bend a blade of grass,
Or shake the downy bluebell from its stalk,
[illegible] thickest root
As she had sowed them with her fragrant foot.

The Brooklet

SEE how the brooklet is surging and leaping,
Swollen and angry it eddies and splashes;
Breaking the peace of the meadows and sweeping
Over its banks, as in fury it dashes
Lifting a plaint to the rains of the season,
Setting the dew-laden rushes a-quiver,
Pausing the shade of a moment to reason,
Hurrying, scurrying on to the river.

None who has sat on its bank in the hay-time,
Lulled by the voice of the stream as it passes,
None who has harked to its song in the May-time,
Whispering low as it kisses the grasses,
Ere could imagine it, lazily creeping,
Angrily setting the willows a-shiver;
None could imagine it, swollen and sweeping,
Darting defiantly on to the river.

So, like the brook, in the course of a lifetime,
Slowly meandering, scorning to strive,
Comes, as the rains of the season, a strifetime,
Setting our somnolent senses alive;
Urging us on to success that we hope for,
Stirring our blood to a joy in the journey,
Giving a grasp of the things that we grope for,
Sweeping us on to the end of the journey.

TALKED OF THE STAGE

Observations of Yeats, the Irish Poet and Dramatist

William Butler Yeats, Irish poet, dramatist and mystic, in speaking before the Toronto Gaelic League, said the Irish theatre was a revolt against the artificiality of the politician and rhetorician, who desired to hide the ugly side of Irish life. The aim of the Irish writers was to present Ireland as it was, and to express their ideals in the language of the poet. Synge, for instance, based his much-abused play on a story told him in the Aran Islands. Speaking in more general terms of the new theatre and the movement initiated by Gordon Craig, Mr. Yeats said several writers were at present producing unrealistic plays for the new theatre from which realism will be banished. The absurdity of modern staging—as artificial lights and shadows—was pointed out. The new theatre, said the lecturer, was the result of a purely technical evolution of the theatre itself. Painted light and painted shadow, a heritage from the Italian Renaissance, was doomed, and the theatre of the future would have a stage made beautiful, but incapable of realism. The realism of the modern stage, he declared, was the expression of modern democracy. Poetical drama was essentially the drama of an aristocracy—an aristocracy of artists, of cultured men, and men of good taste—those who had been able to attain to leisure either by good fortune or by sacrifice. In the west of Ireland, said Mr. Yeats, the native Irish tongue was used to express emotion, and could be used by the poets. True beauty he defined [illegible] like true religious faith and a [illegible] at the least emotional of [illegible] men were either [illegible] of affairs or bad artists.

Such an application from a foreigner was so unusual that the officials at first paid no attention, believing her to be deranged. Having lived for many years in Japan she is well acquainted with things Japanese, and is an accomplished player of the samisen. For a white woman to become a geisha is unique.

CANADA A COUNTRY OF YOUNG PEOPLE

Over Eight Hundred in Every Thousand Are Under Forty-five Years of Age

That Canada is pre-eminently a country of young people is shown by the fact that 813 persons in every one thousand of the population are under forty-five years of age. It is also a country where males predominate, since the number of males exceeds the number of females by about half a million. The influence of immigration on the relative standing of the sexes is shown by the fact that there are 113 men to to every 100 women as compared to 105 to 100 ten years ago. The disproportion between the sexes is especially noticeable in western Canada. In the eastern cities the female population in practically every case outnumbers the males. These are some of the interesting facts disclosed by a census bulletin just issued dealing with the ages and the sexes of the people.

The proportion of the population under fourteen years of age is 32.91 per cent. The largest number of children is found in the Province of Quebec, where 273.5 out of every thousand of the population are under ten years of age, as compared with 200.3 in Ontario, 156.2 in British Columbia, 245 in New Brunswick, and 231.9 in Nova Scotia.

Young People in West

The western Provinces are the regions of young men and women, as is shown by the large percentage of population between the ages of twenty and forty. In Saskatchewan it is 450.7 per thousand of the population, in Alberta 457.8, in Manitoba 417.3, and in British Columbia 523.8. The Provinces showing the largest proportion over seventy years of age are the three Maritime Provinces and Ontario, with 46.6 for Nova Scotia, 38.1 for New Brunswick, and 34.7 for Ontario respectively per thousand. In Alberta the proportion is only 8.2, in Saskatchewan 8.8, and in Manitoba 13.3.

For all of Canada the proportion of the population under five years of age is 12.3 per cent., as against 11.97 per cent. 6 years ago, whilst those who had reached the allotted span of life represented only 2.31 per cent. in the last census, as compared with 3.04 in the preceding census. At the age of seventy the ratio of males to females is about even. From eighty years of age and upwards the female population exhibits a greater tenacity of life than do the males.

Bachelors and Spinsters

The proportion of divorces for both sexes is only about six in every ten thousand. Of the total male population, 62 per cent. are single, 34.65 per cent. are married, and 3.33 per cent. widowed; of the total female population, 57.37 per cent. are single, 26.97 per cent. married, and 5.31 per cent. widowed.

The records of the last census show that one male and thirty females under the age of fifteen had assumed the cares of married life. The one adventurous male was a foreigner in Alberta. Of the total male and female population of marriageable age—namely, between twenty and forty—45.8 per cent. of the males and 63.6 per cent. of the males and 63.6 per cent. of the females were married.

The rate of mortality is greatest among married males than among married females, since the percentage of the widowed is greater for females at every age period. The total number of divorced persons in Canada is given at 4,400. The larger proportion according to nativity are among those of foreign birth. When the census was taken there were 919 persons in Canada between the ages of ninety-five and ninety-nine years, and 124 of a hundred years or over. There were 37 centenarians in Ontario and 21 in Quebec.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4836, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

CLEANING AT HOME

Keep Down [illegible] by Removing Spots and [illegible] Yourself

For the [illegible] of little stains in the regular [illegible] of wearing apparel the most [illegible] and economical plan is [illegible] your own cleaning plant. If you are noted for faultless [illegible] shoes and accessories you are either an owner of a good [illegible] or you are your own [illegible]. It is for the man with limited means that this article is written.

That spot of [illegible] on your [illegible] or blouse is a telling note of [illegible] your carefulness in matters of dress. There is really no excuse for it. Purchase five or ten cents' worth of French chalk. This will last a long time and will give a delightful sensation of security if you know that it is on hand. Take the garment and place the spot over a piece of blotting paper. Over the material sprinkle the French chalk, now place a piece of blotting paper over it. With a warm iron press the paper down over the material. The warmth chalk up or the grease [illegible] and the [illegible] absorbed by the blotters.

The [illegible] grease stains may be removed [illegible]. Also ether, chloroform or gasoline are [illegible] ordinary [illegible] should not be used near a [illegible]. [illegible] apply with a piece of the same material. If you [illegible] rub from the outside of the grease spot in toward the center to prevent the spreading of the grease. [illegible] blotter under the piece of material which you are cleaning.

Machine [illegible] is an organic grease. It can be removed while fresh with cold water and a pure white soap.

Wagon grease contains a great quantity of [illegible]. This can be removed by [illegible] lard, which will combine with the [illegible], and the two can then be removed with warm water and [illegible] soap.

Buy a quart or more of gasoline and keep [illegible] place, of course. When you need to clean your gloves, place them on the regular wooden glove forms if you have them, or your hands if you do not own the stretchers. With an ordinary [illegible] brush [illegible] of pure soap and gasoline with it. Rinse in pure gasoline and hang [illegible] to dry. You will be [illegible] at the [illegible] ness of [illegible]

Life Saving Helmet

A new English mine rescue apparatus does away with the helmet and weighs only 28 pounuds, yet with it a man can work in deadly gases more than two hours.

Where Clergy Are Scarce

In the whole of British Columbia and the Yukon Territory there are only 170 clergy. The region is rapidly opening up, and the new railways are bringing in an enormous stream of new settlers which it is far beyond the power of the Church to cope with. This immigration will speedily reach still greater developments, and the various agencies working in England on behalf of the Church on the Pacific Coast have decided, therefore, to federate together, so as to promote at once a greater unity and a greater strength. The British Columbia and Yukon Church Aid Society, in view of the importance of buying land for church sites while it is cheap; for establishing an ecclesiastical training college; and for the promotion of a campaign among Indians and Orientals on the Pacific Coast, states that an income of at least $275,000 a year will be required for the next fifteen years.

DON'T HAWK, SPIT, SNEEZE, CURE YOURSELF! BREATHE "CATARRHOZONE"

Gives Instant Relief, Clears Out Nose, Throat and all Breathing Organs.

In this fickle climate, repeated colds very easily drift into Catarrh.

The natural tendency of Catarrh is to extend through the system in every direction.

Exposure to cold or dampness intensifies the trouble and nasal catarrh is the result.

Unless a complete cure is effected, inflammation passes rapidly to the throat bronchial tubes and then to the lungs.

You can't make new lungs hence Consumption is practically incurable.

But Catarrh can be cured, except in its final and always fatal stage.

Catarrh sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be cured right at home by inhaling "Catarrhozone."

In using Catarrhozone you don't take medicine into the stomach — you just breathe a healing piney vapor direct to the lungs and air passages.

The pure balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists, germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance and cure comes quickly.

Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed, sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhozone to prevent and cure your winter ills. It's pleasant safe and guaranteed in every case. Complete outfit $1.00. Smaller size 50c., at all dealers.

Crops Hurt In Victoria County.

Lindsay Warder: That fall wheat and of the clover are a decided failure in the Township of Mariposa this year is a foregone conclusion, and neither frequent showers nor warm sun can retrieve the injury done by the recent spring frosts.

Extending Telephone Service.

Estimates for nearly one hundred telephones to be installed throughout Smith, Emily and North Monaghan, were received by Manager G. O. Cameron of that great Canadian utility, the Bell Telephone Co. yesterday morning.

Same Firm Works Here.

Belleville Ontario: The contract for Front Street and Bridge Street [illegible] pavements was early this morning awarded to Messrs. Foley & Gillespie. After years of discussion the city sees the new era of clean modern streets dawning.

Case May Be Appealed.

G. N. Gordon, who acted for M. J. Quigley in the action of Brightman vs. Quigley, heard at the High Court here, is considering an appeal against the judgment of His Lordship Chancellor Sir John Boyd, who gave judgment for the plaintiff Thomas Brightman.

Barnardo Stenographers Leave.

The Barnardo Home stenographers and book-keepers who have lived at 433 Water Street for some years, vacate the premises today, and will seek boarding places elsewhere. It will be remembered that Mr John Bell, the local poet, purchased a few months ago, the business at 451-453 Water Street.

Was Known In This City.

News of the death of Rev. J. H. Hector, universally known as the Black Knight, at his home, York, Pa., has reached this city. He was very well known here, as in many other centres as an influential temperance speaker, having spent a great deal of his time in the local option cause.

Prominent Ulster Man Here.

Mr. J. Craig, a prominent citizen of Belfast, Ireland, and a strong supporter of Carson, the Ulster leader, is in the city a guest at the Oriental Hotel. Mr. Craig noted that the trouble in Ulster is only in its incipiency. He said, most emphatically that whilst a man in Ulster can shoulder a gun, Ireland will never have Home Rule.

Showed Good Sense.

Yesterday evening at 6 o'clock a horse drawing a buggy in which was seated a young lady, took fright and ran furiously away, its course being westward. At the corner of Aylmer street, the young lady gave a sample of good understanding, as she jumped from the flying rig. The horse at Bethune street, collided with a telegraph pole and was captured.

Mr. G. N. Graham Very Ill.

Last night enquiries made by The Times elicited the unwelcome news from the hospital that Mr. G. N. Graham, of the National Hotel, was very low. Mr. Graham, as before noted in these columns, is ill in St. Joseph's Hospital with pleuro-pneumonia. He was, last night, in such condition that the application of oxygen was necessary.

Lindsay's P. O. Improvements.

Lindsay Warder: It is understood that Mr. Robert Bell has been appointed Government clerk in connection with the post office contract. Col the Hon. Sam Hughes has intimated that a cement basement will be placed under the new addition, which is being erected: also that the well, which has been used so frequently by citizens in the vicinity of the post office, will not be closed up, but an extension made which will make it accessible for use.

Port Hope Cop Criticised.

Regarding the lately discharged Chief of Police of Port Hope, at a meeting of the Council of that town, Mayor Bush said, in part.

"The charges against the suspended Chief Constable, and the evidence in support of some of them, have not been published, but are known to the members of the Police Committee and myself, and, if proven, are serious.

How can the public be expected to respect a Chief Constable, or the law and order he represents, when they know that such Officer is under suspicion of having himself, while a Peace Officer of the Town, been guilty of misconduct and possibly of offences against the law he was supposed to uphold!"

Two Affidavits in Frank Case Declare He Confessed Killing Mary Phagan.

Atlanta, Ga., April 28. Three affidavits seeking to fix guilt for the murder of Mary Phagan upon James Conley, negro factory sweeper, were submitted in superior court here today by attorneys for Leo M. Frank under death sentence for the murder, in connection with a motion for a new trial on newly discovered evidence. Hearings on the motion began yesterday and are expected to continue several days.

Two affidavits signed by the Rev. C. B. Ragsdale, pastor of a local church, and R.L. Barber, allege that while on a street here several days after the murder they heard a negro confess to another negro that he had killed Mary Phagan. Barber, in his affidavit, further alleges that he recognized the negro who is alleged thus to have to have confessed as James Conley. The third affidavit is by Annie M. Sarter, a negress, who alleges Conley confessed to her that he had committed the murder.

Conley was the principal witness against Frank at the latter's trial and is serving one year's imprisonment upon conviction as an accessory after the fact.

OUARETTE ENGAGES Y. W. C. A. ROOM AT N. O. KEEPS JONNIES AWAY

Gladys Caldwell, to Appear in 12-Week Comic Opera Season at Crescent.

New Orleans, April 29. Rooms in the Y.W.C.A. for a soubrette! Broadway would sent a long cynical laugh up and down the length of the Great Alabaster turnpike. But Miss Gladys Caldwell, the pretty soubrette of the New Orleans Comic Opera Company, which opens a 12-week season at the Crescent Theatre Sunday, May 3, and her sister, Annabel, light soprano, have made arrangements for a front room in the Young Women's Christian Association Building, just across from the theatre, and will occupy them during their engagement.

Mr. Caldwell, father of the young women, came to New Orleans several weeks ago to complete all arrangements for their comfort while here.

"I always like to get rooms in the Y.W.C.A. wherever it is possible," said Miss Gladys Caldwell. "One can then be sure of her associates, also it is comforting to know when you go to sleep that a big party with singing won't open up next door, and keep you awake the rest of the night. It is my one best bet—plenty of sleep, and careful eating—to keep me fresh and in condition for work."

"The 'johnnies' would have a hard time finding you at those quarters, wouldn't they?" she was asked.

"And that's another thing in favor of the plan," she laughed and trotted into the theatre to try out the acoustics, with her little Mexican hairless at her heel.

WARNED CLERICALS BY POSTED SPEECH

Cabinet Placarded Country With Strong Words Defending Lay Schools.

Paris, April 29.—One of the most significant recent speeches in the chamber of deputies, which was almost unrecorded by the press on account of the Caillaux affair, is now receiving wide attention because of the senate order to have it publicly posted throughout France.

It was by the minister of public instruction, M. Viviani, in defense of the lay schools. In this he savagely attacked the clerical party amid the cheers of deputies. It was the first public posting of any speech since M. Briand's sensational utterances on the law of separation in Dec. 1908.

M. Viviani, whose speech is regarded as a statement of the present Government's attitude toward the Catholic church, said:

"You clericals in the confessional schools set yourselves to destroy the sovereign principles on which the present regime is founded. You seek to implant in the souls of children irremediable misunderstandings, destined to cleave our country into factions.

"What is our aim in teaching? Our aim is to teach tolerance, and that all convictions ought to be respected, so long as they are sincere, whether rooted in reason, the heart, or in the intellect.

"We make no appeal to Divine inspiration, neither in promising honest folks the sweets of paradise nor in terrifying them with the darkness of hell. Our principle is that humanity ought to win its own salvation by toil and suffering.

"If the church brought us only her belief, her dogma, her benediction to the dead, her consolation to the living, we would not distress ourselves about her. But she wishes to be the government and to reign over. She wishes to reconquer the prerogatives torn from her by the republic, to bring force into the service of the faith.

"Well, then, I say that if there is a regime that ought to fear her it is the republican regime, for the republic also has a faith whose task is the uplifting of men's souls.

"I reply to your challenge, as declared by yourselves as children of the church soldiers of the cross. You may well repeat the say of Montalembert:

"Descendants of the Crusaders will not give way before the children of Voltaire."

"So then I say to you:

"'Descendants of the revolution will not allow a renewal of the heaviest tyranny that ever existed!'"

LAMP-POST LORE

Technical Education Owes Its Start to the Street Lamps

Everybody knows what a lamp-post is, but nobody seems to realize its curiosities.

For example, technical education in London came to be developed just because of the lamp-post. It happened in this manner. Years ago, the old vestry of Shoreditch planned to utilize its lamp-posts for advertising purposes, and it was arranged that the revenue so derived should be devoted to technical purposes. So it came about that the old Shoreditch Technical Institute came into being. Then the County Council undertook responsibility for technical education, since when the lamp-post institute has grown into one of London's most famous educational organizations.

A driver may knock down a lamp-post almost with impunity. Usually he has no money to pay for the damage, and the authorities cannot make his employer pay. About one hundred lamp-posts get knocked out of the perpendicular every week in London.

In the Mall are yet to be seen some of the original gas-lamps, bearing the arms of George III., and there are ninety thousand gas-lamps in the metropolis and about ten thousand electric lights. The cost of lighting the streets of London is about $1,250,000 per year.

Mexico City, April 30.—The port of Manzanillo, on the Pacific Coast, was bombarded yesterday by an American warship, according to a telegram received to-day by Gen. Blanquet, Mexican minister of war, from Gen. Jose Maria Mier.

According to Gen. Mier's message, the warship entered Manzanillo harbor at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of April 28th. At half past four o'clock the telegraphers left their posts, carrying their instruments with them, and at 5 o'clock the bombardment began.

The telegram says the wharves and adjoining buildings were destroyed by shell fire.

House of Mrs. Salmoni of Kingsville Ont., Shaken to the Foundations.

Body of John McLelland of East Garafraxa, Found in Swamp.

Guelph, April 30.—John McLelland, an East Garafraxa farmer, was found dead in a swamp about a mile from the village of Everton on Tuesday afternoon. He was first identified as Samuel Boyle of the same township. Peculiar circumstances surrounding his death. McLelland, who resided on the farm at East Garafraxa, but whose wife lives with her daughters, Mrs. James McDonald of Fergus, left home on Saturday morning with his horse and buggy to go to Fergus. He spent the greater part of the day there, and was known to have left Fergus between 7 and 8 o'clock, in the evening, ostensibly for home. He was accompanied by Samuel Boyle, a neighboring farmer, the two being very fast friends. It was Monday night before Boyle reached home and McLelland was found dead in a swamp. He is thought to have died of heart disease. An inquest will be held.

SWIFT CHANGES IN MEXICAN WAR AFFAIRS IN DAY'S EVENTS

Vera Cruz Back Under Civil Government But for Moment Subordinate to Martial Law, or Till Order is Restored There

Vera Cruz, April 30.—Vera Cruz went back to civil government today, under the laws of Mexico, administered by American officials. The civil government, however, remained subordinate to martial law while the work of restoring the municipal organization went forward. General Frederick Funston's brigade troops off the transports and marched to the Sand Hill barracks and other quarters, to relieve Rear-Admiral Fletcher's bluejackets who went back to the men-of-war. General Funston's established his headquarters in the barracks deserted by Gen. Maas, and Admiral Fletcher withdrew his staff. The marine corps was distributed to work with the army.

More Refugees Arrive.

Refugees continue to arrive, and preparations are being carried forward for their departure. The navy transport Hancock to-day is lying at Puerto Mexico to take aboard those coming down from Mexico City. She will bring them here for transportation to New Orleans and other ports on the transports Monterey and Morro Castle.

Continued reports of renewed fighting at Tampico, that the battleships Utah and Florida were being held in readiness to sail, and that the Dixie was loading marines for that port, all lacked official confirmation.

Mrs. Trufant was the daughter of former Judge T.B. Stuart of Denver and was divorced from her husband. Two weeks ago a breach of promise suit she had brought against Henry O. Williams, for $50,000 was dismissed on appeal.

NEWSPAPER MAN LOSES FOOT AT SLIGHT FIRE

Run Over By Four-Ton Truck at Manchester, N. H.

Manchester, N.H., April 30.—Frank M. Frisselle, city editor of the Manchester Mirror and a call fireman in the fire department, was badly injured today at a slight fire near Elm and Church Streets. While endeavoring to aid the police in holding back the crowd, Frisselle stepped backward, directly in the path of a big truck from the central station. The front wheel went over his foot, crushing it to the sidewalk with a weight of nearly four tons. Every bone in the foot was splintered, and scant hopes of saving the member are entertained.

WEALTHY BROTHER JAILED IN CONTEST FOR DEMENTED MAN

Mobile, Ala., April 30.—Oliver F. Dwight, wealthy Chicago paper dealer, who has been trying to secure custody of his demented brother, Harvey A. Dwight, from the latter's wife, Mrs. Grace D. Dwight, of Chicago, was jailed for contempt today by Judge Brothe in Circuit Court. He is held under $1000 bond.

Dwight, after the circuit Judge granted custody of the crazy man to his wife, went into another court and secured a writ of habeas corpus. The writ removed the demented man from the wife's custody.

The court threatened to put Dwight's lawyer in jail with him. Contempt proceedings were fixed for trial next Saturday.

FARMERS BLAMED BY F. A. VANDERLIP FOR COST OF LIVING

New York, April 30.—Ignorance and inefficiency among the country's farmers rather than big business make up the fundamental cause of the high cost of living, Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank, declared at a dinner of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association here tonight. Land is being utilized with only forty per cent. efficiency, yet the farmer is not held culpable—he is not answerable to society, Vanderlip said, as is the railroad manager who produces anything less than 100 per cent.

Vanderlip deprecated what he alluded to as the increasing bonds of hampering regulations under which business is being placed by law. As a means of obtaining relief for what he said is an existing business depression, he urged a campaign of education to have public opinion based on "correct economic principles."

SPRINGVILLE AND LAKEVALE WELCOME NEW MINISTER

The induction took place of the Rev. Geo. I. Craw, late of Thornton into the pastoral charge of Springville and Lakevale. One thing that gave the service a unique interest to both congregations was the fact that it marked the union of these two places of worship under one minister after a separation of nearly forty years. Until about two years ago Springville was united with Bethany, and as the distance between the two is twelve miles it made the long drive and three services a heavy day for the minister. Now the distance is just six miles, and most of the families live close to their respective churches.

At the induction yesterday, Rev. Robt. Pogue, who has been interim Moderator, conducted divine worship and preached the sermon. The Rev. H. Brown, of Warsaw, put the prescribed questions to the newly elected minister, and then by prayer inducted him into the pastoral charge of Springville and Lakevale. Rev. H. J. Keith then addressed the newly elected minister in suitable terms, and Rev. Wm. Johnston gave the address to the people.

At the close of the induction service, a reception was held for the new minister and his wife, when a number of addresses were given by the Ministers of Presbytery, and the neighboring Methodist ministers, the Rev. Mr. Butler and the Rev. Mr. Wickett. The choir rendered two musical selections, and Mr. John Marsh, the son of the former pastor, Dr. Marsh, sang a solo which was enjoyed by all present. Addresses of welcome were given by six men representing different departments of the work of the church. The Rev. Mr. Craw then came forward and in a few well chosen words expressed his thanks to all present who had extended words of welcome to himself and Mrs. Craw. He came among them to help them to do the work of the Master in their midst, and he asked the sympathy and hearty co-operation of all. At the close the congregation was introduced by Mr. John McIntosh to the newly elected minister and his wife, when each by a hearty handshake welcomed them to their new field of labor.

Refreshments were served at the close to all present. The people of the united charge are to be congratulated in the very happy settlement which has taken place; and on the man they have chosen as their minister. In Mrs. Craw the manse at Springville has a lady who will worthily fill the place of Mrs. Marsh, who for so many years made herself the centre of many church activities in connection with the Springville congregation. Mrs. Craw by her sweet manner has already captured the hearts of the people.

Was Sentenced For Threatening Alleged Suitor of Spouse.

Jackson, Miss., April 30.—After carrying out a condition that he marry his divorced wife, J.F. Jones, a farmer near Meridian was pardoned by Governor Brewer shortly before noon today. The bride and bridegroom, both farmer near Meridian, was pardoned went from the office of Magistrate F.M. Featherstone, who tied the knot to the Governor's office where Governor Brewer signed the document that gave the groom his freedom.

Jones was sent up from Lauderdale county two years ago to serve a sentence of five years after being convicted of assault with a pistol on a man whom he suspected of having sent notes to his wife.

Jones, soon after going to the penitentiary, secured a divorce from his wife, but later, friends seemingly convinced him that his former suspicions that she had received notes from another man were groundless.

OPPOSITION MEMBERS DECIDED TO INTRODUCE OBSTRUCTIONIST TACTICS ON C.N.R. AGREEMENT

Threats Made That Application of the Closure Will Be Necessary--Long Fight is Looked For

Ottawa, April 30.—At the close of the Liberal caucus held this morning it was announced that the proposals of the Government with regard to the Canadian Northern would be opposed. While no official statement was issued it is stated by prominent Liberals that they will take the ground that no accounting has been required from the railroad of all its past expenditure. Threats are being made that the agreement will not go through without application of closure and there are also rumors that the Liberal majority in the Senate will be influenced to throw out the whole legislation.

If a fight of this character develops no adjournment by the first of June can be expected.

The caucus held this morning lasted nearly three hours. It was by no means unanimous in coming to the final decision, but the views of the aggressive element prevailed. Those who had made up their minds to oppose whatever plan the Government might announce were ready this morning to urge opposition despite the excellence of the agreement which has been arrived at.

Conservative Members Enthusiastic.

In taking their stand against the agreement the Liberal party at Ottawa will have to fly in the face of representations that have been made by three or four Liberal Provincial Premiers. These three have strongly urged the Government to come to the assistance of the C.N.R. They have asked the Government to lend Canada's credit to save the road from going into liquidation with all that this would involve in the way of destroying Provincial credit.

The Conservative members are enthusiastic over the agreement. The statement made in the Toronto Globe that Gordon Wilson, John Fisher and Dr. Steele, three Ontario members, are opposed, is absolutely false. They have all three denied any such attitude, nor did they at any time take any action or make any statement that could be so construed.

ENVOYS TO DEAL WITH CARRANZA

Peace Program Broadened by Introduction of Mexican Constitutionalists Cause Into Negotations

Washington, April 30.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza, head of the Mexican constitutionalists, late to-day notified the Latin-American intermediaries of his acceptance of the principle of mediation in the difficulty between the United States and Mexico. He expressed willingness to confer on the subject.

The announcement was made by Secretary Bryan on being informed by the three South American envoys. The introduction of Gen. Carranza and the constitutionalist cause into the negotiations broadens the peace program to an effort to compose the entire Mexican situation. It is understood that a proposal for an hostilities, which has already been submitted to the United States and General Huerta, now will be presented to Gen. Carranza.

SPIRIT OF CONCILIATION MOVES OVER THE ULSTER SITUATION

All Leading Journals Welcome Absence of Fire-Eating Speeches--Last Night's Debate Called Historic Turning Point

London, April 30.—Conviction that a settlement of the Irish situation was near was expressed on every side here to-day. Political and club circles breathed a sigh of relief. That civil war had been near was undoubted; that it would have been confined to Ireland was held impossible. What its consequences, would have been none could foretell.

There were important changes in leadership freely forecasted to-day. It was said that Mr. Bonar Law, a Canadian would soon retire as Unionist leader, in favor of Mr. Austen Chamberlain, whose utterances on the Ulster question recently have shown him less acrid and eminently levelheaded. Mr. Redmond, it was said was in danger of losing his head. Nationalist rank and file resent his concessions in order to help toward a settlement. A possible successor was not named. The London Times to-day expresses the view of the vast majority, when it says that settlement was never so near. Dealing of troops in Ulster, and to some extent in the south of Ireland, continued, in preparation for any eventualities.

Condemns Any Compromise.

The Northern Whig, Belfast, leads the way to-day amongst the Ulster press in condemning any compromise along Federal lines. The leading article in this journal says: "This is the time for plain speaking, no matter what the consequences may be. Our primary objection to Home Rule is on religious grounds. The history of thousands of years has taught us that whenever the Church of Rome has the power she uses it for extermination of heretics, of whom Protestants are the worst of all. This talk about federation is so much nonsense. Great Britain does not want a federal system, and we certainly do not want one. We are prepared to lose everything rather than submit.

S.W. Clark, night clerk at police headquarters, Port Huron, Michigan dropped dead. He formerly lived in Sarnia.

DROWNS AS CANOE CAPSIZES AT BANGOR

Steward of Coodoskeag Club Loses Life in Penobscot River.

Bangor, Me., April 30.—Frank Pereira, steward of the Coodoskeag Lodge and Country Club, was drowned in the Penobscot River today while fishing, his canoe capsized. Scott Emery another club employe, was with Pereira, but swam ashore. Pereira was a fine swimmer, but sank almost at once, evidently benumbed by the icy water.

DR. MEREDITH GETS FIVE-YEAR TERM FOR MALPRACTICE

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 30.—Dr. C. C. Meredith, arrested some weeks ago in a sensational raid upon his private maternity hospital, known as "The House of Mystery," pleaded guilty to malpractice today and was fined six and one-fourth cents and sentenced to not less than five nor more than six years in the Western penitentiary.

The fine was imposed so the costs would fall upon the accused.

EX-FIREMAN HELD FOR $200,000 FIRE

Peoria, Ill., April 30.—W.H. Foglesong, discharged member of the fire department, it is said, today confessed to Police Chief Rhodes to firing the cattle sheds of the Morris Cattle company last Monday, which caused a loss of $200,000 and resulted in 1,000 cattle being burned to death.

Foglesong was discharged from the fire department two weeks ago, when it was charged he had a mania for turning in false alarms.

He was arrested on suspicion four days ago.

THE SOFT COLORS, RUFFLES AND FRILLS OF GRANDMOTHER'S DAY ARE BEING REVIVED

The most noticeable thing in the new summer frocks is the wonderfully harmonious blending of colors; the old-fashioned, faded-looking shades are being revived and also the figured materials, with creamy backgrounds and quaintly designed figures, in somewhat darker shades. Ruffles are another of the pleasing revivals; they appear on the small girl's frock and on that of her older sister, and are equally charming for both.

A pleasing dress for summer afternoons is shown in No. 8296; it is a young girl's frock with bodice and tunic of cream-colored, embroidered batiste over a foundation skirt of plain white voile. A raglan shoulder is shown, a V-shaped opening at the throat and a three-piece skirt. Batiste is priced according to the embroidery; a very good quality may be purchased for 75 cents a yard. Voile averages 65 cents a yard.

For a girl of eighteen, 5¾ yards are required for this design. Three circular frills form the skirt of the little dress illustrated in No. 8317 and a circular frill finishes the neck and sleeves. The design is made up in pale-pink linen with a line of white crocheted buttons down the front; a line of white stitching is used to finish the frills as well. For a child of eight, 3 yards of 36-inch material are needed for this dress.

No. 8296—sizes 16, 17 and 18.
No. 8317—sizes 4 to 12.
Each pattern 15 cents.

HOW THE JOCKEYS TRAIN TO WEIGHT

Dangers and Methods of Reducing Flesh in England in Order to Ride Races

Were the older generation of jockeys a stronger and hardier breed than those of the present day? This is the question often asked by followers of the racing game. The truth is, probably, that it is not so much a difference in the men, or their stamina; the change is in the methods jockeys now adopt in order to rid themselves of the superfluous flesh that they have put on during the winter months.

In the old days they used to walk fifteen or twenty miles a day, swathed in half a dozen sweaters. Now it is Turkish baths and medicines—a far more weakening process. It was this regime that killed the famous Archer. A fortnight before his death he rode in a race in Ireland at 120 pounds. This was on a Tuesday. The following Thursday he rode again at 124 pounds. Then, on the Wednesday following he rode St. Mirin in the Cambridgeshire at 113 pounds. He never rode again. He went home in a raging fever, became delirious, and took his own life in a fit of insanity. If ever a man died for his profession, Archer did.

Luke Snowden, an elder brother of the famous Jem Snowden, wasted very hard in order to ride a horse named Claire at 104 pounds. He walked about all night prior to the race, wearing four sweaters and a heavy horse rug, and would not so much as moisten his lips with a drop of water lest he should be tempted to swallow some. He won the race, but fell out of the saddle in a swoon at its conclusion, and had to be carried to his bed, where he died three days later.

Then there is the case of "Tiny" Walls, who fainted on the race course after getting down to 75 pounds from 94 pounds in seventeen hours—a seemingly incredible feat.

Sam Day, another famous old-time jockey, used to boast that he could "kill a town wasting," whatever that might mean. He certainly came near to killing himself on many occasions, for, owing to his lowered strength and vitality, due to the heroic methods he adopted, he met with so many accidents while riding that at different times he broke practically every bone in his body, excepting his right arm, but including his skull and jaw, while one leg was fractured twice.

John Wells, the tallest and biggest jockey who ever rode at 119 pounds, used to walk 22 miles in four hours with four suits of sweaters on when wasting for an important race, and live on dry toast with an occasional glassful of soda water. He dared not, he used to say, yield to the natural cravings of his appetite, as upon one occasion, when reduced by severe training, a single wineglassful of sherry, which he was induced to partake of, sent his weight bounding up by two pounds.

Another jockey famous in the wasting line was Sam Darling. He kept a regular diary of his walks in sweaters during 25 years, entering up times and distances, and on his retirement he found that he had totalled up just over 5,000 miles. Most present-day jockeys would probably prefer to this the methods now in vogue, although not all of them, of course, rely exclusively, or even principally, on "wasting mixtures" and Turkish baths.

Boy's Strange Mission

The body of John Thomson, fourteen, appearance hosier, was found at the bottom of the disused Tynebaggan Quarry, seven miles north of Aberdeen. His overcoat and cap were found on the side of the road about 100 yards from the quarry. Inside the coat pocket was a slip of paper with the words, "I have fallen into the quarry." A gamekeeper and the police searched and discovered the body lying at the foot of a precipitous cliff.

Gallant Double Rescue

At Inverness a mother and child named Mackenzie were rescued from drowning in the River Ness. The child first fell into the water, and the mother immediately plunged in after it, both being carried away. Amidst great excitement two men, James MacMillan and John MacDonald, swam out to midstream and brought them ashore in an exhausted condition.

Lost Life For Cap

Benjamin Owen, sixty-five, living at Pontneath Vaughan, an expert angler, was walking along the Pontneath Vaughan road towards home, when his cap was blown off his head by the strong wind, and it was carried into the river, which was in flood. Owen tried to recover the cap, and jumped into the river after it, but was carried away by the strong current and apparently drowned, for he was not seen again.

TYRANNY OF SUNDAY DINNER

> "Men have many faults, women only two, > Nothing right they say and nothing right they do."
> —Old Proverb

Why is it that in most households all the menfolk are supposed to have a claim to make Sunday a day of rest and idleness? Nothing is ever done by a man on Sunday that can possibly be put off until Monday, but it very seldom occurs to them that their womenkind do not have the same privilege. Always there must be a hot dinner, and an extra good one, and if there is no maid it means that the wife or mother has to spend the greater part of what should be her day of relaxation in preparing the meal, otherwise there will be grievances and grumbles at the table. Breakfast is generally later on Sundays and the morning is shortened thereby, so that immediately the one meal is over and the rooms tidied the dinner must be prepared, and the woman who can manage to get to church in the interim is a wonder and an envy to her sex. Here are a few tips as to engineering the church hour or the rest hour in the morning and still having the hot meal. Partially cook the joint or the chickens on Saturday and leave them in the pan, reheating them for half an hour in a hot oven on Sunday. If a sufficient number of potatoes are boiled the day before they can be browned in the pan at the same time. Green vegetables too can be boiled on Saturday, and if reheated with a little butter will be as good as if they were done the same day, while other vegetables can be warmed up in a white sauce. Very few men will tolerate a cold mid-day meal on Sundays, especially in winter, and some ingenuity must be exercised in arranging everything so that as little time as possible need be taken up in getting it ready on Sunday. I once heard of a woman who, when she was first married, was told by some friends that they only had two meals on Sunday, a late breakfast and a dinner at four o'clock in the afternoon. She determined to try the plan on her husband. The following Sunday they went to church, and on their return he asked how soon dinner would be ready. She said at four o'clock. He looked at her, but said nothing. But he went upstairs and shut himself into his room where he remained while the young wife prepared a sumptuous meal. At four o'clock she went to call him, and was greeted with the reply that if he could not have his dinner at the proper time he would not have it at all—and he didn't. It was her first and last attempt to interfere with masculine feeding hours. She is an old woman now but the memory of that experiment is as vivid as if it happened yesterday.

PEER'S WIDOW ENTERS CONVENT

True Romance Which Reads Like Fiction

A fascinating romance of the peerage is recalled by the report that Julia Lady Lyveden, has entered a convent in Edinburgh.

Seventeen years ago Lady Lyveden was a pretty assistant of eighteen in a fancy shop at Eastbourne. Miss Julia Kate Emery, as she was then, attracted the attention of the late Lord Lyveden, who was seventy-seven years old and an invalid. He fell in love with her and was drawn in his bath chair every day to the shop.

After fulfilling an engagement as secretary to the aged peer Miss Emery consented at length to accept her patron's name and coronet, and in 1896 the marriage took place at All Souls' Church, Hastings. The marriage lasted only four years, the late peer dying in 1900, and as there was no issue the title passed to a nephew, the present peer. Eight years later the widow became engaged to Mr. Henry Hugh Maclean, but the engagement was broken off.

The present Lord Lyveden has had a most adventurous career, having been in his time a soldier, a market gardener and a ship's steward. When he was roughing it in America, without any apparent prospect of becoming a peer, he lodged over a stable and earned a precarious living as a cab driver.

QUEEN MARY OWNS NUMEROUS JEWELS

Her Majesty Wisely Had Her Jewelry Insured as She Acquired It

Queen Mary, as a rule, wears comparatively few ornaments, although when occasion demands she can rival any queen in Europe in the splendor of her gems, not even excepting the Czarina or the Queen of Spain.

It was computed when she was married that gems to the value of considerably over $500,000 were presented to Her Majesty, and those, of course, remain her personal property.

Considerable additions have been made to Her Majesty's jewels by Indian potentates. During the visit of the King and Queen to India, several rulers of leading Indian states were permitted to present to the Queen jewels—principally pearls—of a value that it is not easy to assess. Diamonds are Her Majesty's favorite gems, and she cares little for colored stones, although she has some exquisite emerald and ruby ornaments.

It was characteristic of the business-like ways of Her Majesty that when, upon her marriage, she came into possession of the nucleus of her present wonderful collection of jewellery, she took the eminently sensible precaution of having it valued for its intrinsic worth, and as soon as this valuations was complete the collection was insured for the amount. Since that time other policies have been taken out upon any additional jewels, including the Crown jewels, that have passed into her keeping, so that if the whole collection or any part of it were lost or destroyed, a sum sufficient to replace it would to a very large degree be forthcoming.

The whole of Her Majesty's jewels are, as a rule, kept at Buckingham Palace in strong rooms. Each of the shelves is lined with white velvet, and everything is so arranged that whole sets of jewels, orders, etc., can be kept together, making it a matter of very little difficulty to obtain precisely the jewels that the Queen requires at the shortest notice.

BISHOP'S PLEA FOR SUNDAY

The Bishop of Willesden presided at a conference called by the Harlesden and District Free Church Council to consider the question of Sunday defence. The Bishop said that it was absolutely necessary to stir up a large body of opinion in favor of keeping Sunday as a day of rest, for owing to the apathy of electors, time after time the legislation on the subject was not being carried out. With regard to the question of Sunday cinemas in Middlesex, he rejoiced at the action taken by the county council, and could assure the members that they had the solid support of all the religious bodies behind them. In Canada public opinion had been so far influenced as to preserve the Sunday for the working man, and the churches had successfully protested against the opening of any places of amusement.

They wanted to see to it that in England Acts of Parliament were carried out, so that the working man should have his recognized day of rest. The appalling monotony of going on day after day without a break led to terrible results, and he welcomed the proposal to form a committee for Sunday defence.

A NEW EMPIRE

Undeveloped Tract of Land in Northwest Can Support Millions

In the vast basin of the Mackenzie River, the largest river in the world, there lie latent possibilities which may in the future aid in the formation of a new empire. In this immense territory, as yet uncultivated, there are no less than 404,840,000 acres of land which, according to Government reports, are suitable for the production of potatoes, and 202,250,000 acres of the finest wheat land, and these acres will shortly be added to the visible agricultural areas of Canada.

Nearly all minerals of economic value are to be found here, and also platinum, silver, iron, copper, mica, sulphur and saltpetre, while it has a timber area of 300,000 square miles, an illimitable fishing industry, and a fur trade the exact value of which has not been estimated, but which is known to run into millions.

There is also a pastoral area of 300,000 square miles, while its facilities for water transportation are unsurpassed. The Mackenzie River has a navigable mileage of 2,100 miles, and there are 4,000 miles of lake coast. There are, too, immense water powers awaiting development, among them the grand rapids of the Athabasca River, where it is estimated that a 30,000 horsepower can be harnessed.

If all under cultivation the basin of this giant river could produce 8 bushels of wheat, 6 bushels of barley and 60 bushels of potatoes for every man, woman and child on the globe, or in other words, sufficient wheat, barley and potatoes to feed five hundred millions of people.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

It is singular how keenly the girls feel the obligation to attend church regularly when they have a new and stylish hat.

We are told that one of the big Anglo-American tobacco companies now doing business in China has as a watchword the following: "A cigarette in the mouth of every man, woman and child in China." China has fought the opium successfully; will she be wise and strong enough to overcome the tobacco evil?

PENITENTIARIES TO BE HUMANIZED

Penitentiaries to be

The Royal Commission which undertook to investigate conditions in Canada's penitentiaries published its reoort a few days ago. It had made a special study of Kingston, but its recommendations cover all our Canadian penitentiaries. The Commissioners declare that the industrial conditions in the penitentiary are a disgrace to the Dominion. The officials really try to get employment for the prisoners. But there is not enough work to be had, and hence these men are kept in enforced and most undesirable idleness. The report declares that there is not one well-equipped and continuously busy shop in any prison in Canada. The days of the senseless stone pile are numbered, and some other form of labor must be found, suitable to the different prisoners. Both in regard to prison discipline and for the sake of the prisoners themselves, work must be provided, and plenty of it. The Commission recommends that the men be employed in general farming operations, clearing land, quarrying stone, or road-building, and for inside work they advise that they keep the prisons in repair. It is also recommended that if the prisoners are to be employed at useful work they be paid wages the wages to be handed over to the families of the men concerned. This seems to be a most sane and commendable arrangement. The repart recommends that the control of all the penitentiaries be vested in a commission, who shall make all appointments, and make any advisable changes in conditions. It was also thought best that the provinces should take over the control of all offenders under twenty-five years of age, but if the provinces refuse to do this it was thought that it would be advisable to establish reformatories for first offenders and all young offenders. The Commission disapproved of cropping the hair, the use of the present prisoners' garb, and the present punishment of hosing, dark dungeons, and ball and chain. We trust the recommendations of the Commission will be given speedy effect.

Best Liniment of All Destroys Every Pain - But Never Burns

"How thankful we are to get hold of such a wonderful household remedy as Nerviline," writes Mrs. E. P. Lamontagne from her home near Wetaskawin, Alberta. "In this far-away section, far away from a doctor or druggist, every family needs a good supply of liniment. Nerviline is the best of all. It destroys every pain, but never burns. We use Nerviline in a score of ways. If it's rheumatism, aching back, pain in the side, sciatica or stiff neck you can laugh at them if you have lots of Nerviline handy. For earache, toothache or cramps I don't think anything could act more quickly. For a general all-round pain remedy I can think of nothing more valuable and speedy to cure than Nerviline."

The above letter is convincing — it tells how reliable and trusty this old-time remedy is. Nerviline for forty years has been a household word in Canada. Scarcely a home in Canada you can find without Nerviline. Every community has its living examples of the wonderful curative properties of Nerviline which will cure pains and aches anywhere in the joints or muscles. It's penetrating, soothing, warming and safe for young and old to use. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; it's the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at any dealer's anywhere.

UNTIL LIFE'S CROWN IS WON.
Dreary and long my path may be,
But Lord, I know it leads to Thee,
Bright loadstar of my soul.
The sunshine of Thy smile o'er bright,
Illumes my path, turns dark to light,
How can I miss the goal?

Earth's sorrow and its pains I feel,
Yet, Thou art ever near to heal,
Thy hands pours Gilead's balm;
As a father dost Thou watch o'er me,
Thy grace will be enough for me,
Therefore, my spirit's calm.

When rough, Thou'st ever smooth'd my way,
Thy presence's cheered me every day,
I have no wish to roam,
But, daily strive to do Thy will
Be my Guide, my Protector still
And lead me safely home.

On Thee, Lord Jesus, do I rest,
I know that that for me is best,
Life'll then float calmly on,
In Thy strength all things I can bear,
My joys, my sorrows dost Thou share
Until Life's Crown is won.

"LITTLE AH SID"

Little Ah Sid was a local kid—
A cute little boy you'd declare—
With eyes full of fun and a nose that begun
Up at the roots of his hair.

Jolly and fat was this frolicsome brat
As he played through the long summer day,
And he braided his queue as his father used to
In Chinaland, far, far away.

Once over a lawn that Ah Sid played upon,
A bumble bee flew in the spring;
"Melican buttlefly," said he, with winking eye,
"Me catchee and pull off um wing!"

Then with his cap he struck it a rap—
This innocent bumble bee—
And put its remains in the seat of his jeans,
For a pocket there had the Chinee.

Down on the green sat the little sardine,
In a style that was strangely demure,
And said with a grin that was brimful of sin,
"Me mashee um buttlefly sure."

Little Ah Sid was only a kid,
Nor could you expect him to guess
What kind of a bug he was holding so snug,
In the folds of his loose-fitting dress.

"Ki-yal Kip-yep-ye!" Ah Sid cried as he Rose hurriedly up from the spot,
"Ki-ya! Yuk-a-kuk! Dam um Melican man—
I'm buttlefly velly much hot!"

Of all animals the cow is most to be respected by man. She is more closely allied to him in her relations than any other quadruped, and in fact was brought across the ocean by him when he began to settle upon the American continent.

The most common name for a place in England is Newton, which occurs no fewer than seventy-two times.

BURD[illegible] [illegible]A[illegible]S G[illegible]

One Girl [illegible] Twenty-six C[illegible] [illegible] Alphabet

Probably the most burdensome name ever bestowed on a child was that given by Arthur Pepper, a laundryman of West Derby, Liverpool, to his daughter, born in December, 1882. It contained one name for every letter of the alphabet, and was certainly lengthy in its way, running: Anna Bertha Cecilia Diana Emily Fanny Gertrude Hypatia Inez Jane Kate Louise Maud Nora Ophelia Quince Rebecca Starkey Teresa Ulysis Venus Winnifred Xenophon Yetty Zeno. P, of course, was provided in the surname, Pepper.

Hundreds of examples of this poor form of parental wit were brought to light by an investigator. Noah's Ark Smith, Sardine Box, Jolly Death, Judas Iscariot Brown, One-too-Many Johnson, Not-wanted Smith, Bovril Simpson, Merry Christmas Figgott Odious Heaton, Anno Domini Davis, are the names of children probably living who will have to bear them through life. How can such children observe the Fifth Commandment?

There was for a long time a curiosity in nomenclature on the Australian pension list. His name was, "Through - much - tribulation - we - enter - the - Kingdom - of - Heaven Smith." The officials of the Pension Department very pardonably abbreviated him into "Tribby Smith."

It is not surprising that the names of Dickens' characters—odd though they are—should be found in real life, for it was from life that many of them were taken. Some, as we know, were copied from the names over shop doors, etc., but this was not the novelist's only source of selection. Among his papers John Foster found carefully-drawn-up lists of names, with the source from which he obtained them, and the longest lists were those drawn from the "Privy Council Education Lists." Some of the names thus noted are too extravagant for anything but reality—Jolly Stick, Bill Marigold, George Muzzle, William Why, Robert Gospel, Robin Scrubbam, Sarah Goldsacks, Catherine Two, Sophia Doomsday, Rosetta Dust, Sally Gimblet!

THE STRAIGHT EDGE

One of the most difficult problems in practical mechanics is to make a straight edge. How difficult it is may be judged from an incident that occurred in the shop of a celebrated astronomical instrument maker.

A patron asked what would be the price of "a perfect straight edge of glass thirty-six inches long."

"It cannot be made perfect," said the instrument maker; "but it could probably be made with a limit of error amounting to only a fraction of a wave length of light."

"How much would that cost?"

"About $40,000."

It turned out that the customer wanted the straight edge for a scraper, and that an error of one sixty-fourth of an inch would not bother him.

ADVICE TO FRUIT MEN

Consumers Will Always Pay For the Best

"One must have the ability to produce fruit of better quality and more cheaply than his competitor to be successful in fruit-growing," said Dr. H. A. Surface, of Harrisburg, Pa., to the Niagara Fruit Growers' Association convention. "Produce the best and the consumer will pay for it. Don't put good fruit in a poor package. Feed and water a tree when it needs it, just like a person." He strongly advised specialization in any community on one class of fruits. Keeping trees low headed was recommended, as this makes it easier to prune, spray and pick. Dr. Surface expressed himself strongly in favor of co-operation among growers, both in the buying of supplies and the sale of products.

In an address on "The Most Profitable Commercial Fertilizers for the Orchard," Prof. R Harcourt, of the Ontario Agricultural College pointed out the value of growing leguminous crops, like the clover, and plowing them under for the purpose of adding nitrogen to the soil, which these crops do by means of nodules on their roots. "Nitrogen," he said, "is the most expensive and valuable of all plant foods. Potash and phosphorous are always present in the soil, and it is up to the tiller to make them available by proper methods of cultivation. Humus or decaying vegetable matter in the soil is one of the important factors in rendering all these constituents available for the use of the plants.

"Many soils are deficient in lime, which is necessary to neutralize acidity and to aid in keeping the texture in the desired condition. Lime is secured cheapest in the form of dust from a stone-crusher. Before buying a pound of fertilizer, one must first look to the presence and condition of organic matter and lime in his soil, and he must be prepared to give good cultivation. Of all fertilizers barnyard manure is the best, but it can be used to excess."

How do Animals Know?

One of the mysteries still unsolved is that of the sense by which the lower animals become aware of the approach of earthquakes. For three or four days before the severe earthquakes at Guadalajara, Mexico, the many parrots of the city showed great and unusual restlessness, and during the period of disturbance the increased cries of the birds gave warning of the nearness of the worst shocks. Rats, also, became alarmed, fleeing from the city before the earthquakes came. Supersensitiveness to faint shocks hardly gives satisfactory explanation, for modern seismographs are very sensitive, and it is quite unlikely that tremors too slight to be reckoned would be felt so strongly as to give alarm.—"Science Siftings."

"Picture Book" Kiddies Models for New Frocks

By MADGE MARVEL

PICTURE book kiddies, particularly the boys of Dickens, have furnished the patterns for the dress of the modern boy.

The girls have drawn the inspiration for their fascinating apparel from Kate Greenaway's always delightful babies, from the little maids of Mother Goose's ever interesting family, and from that naughty, adorable Dimples of Grace Drayton's pen creation.

There is the quaint little suit which poor Oliver Twist wore when with the big-eyed courage born of honest hunger he passed his bowl for more porridge.

Difference in Types.

The suit which clung pathetically to Paul Dombey's sickly, frail body developed in wear-defying cottons and linens covers the sturdy legs and husky shoulders of the athletic small boy whose muscles bear evidence to the scientific care and feeding which is the portion of the modern child of the well-to-do.

There is the duplicate of the suit which David Copperfield wore, and the garments bear the name of their original wearers.

Ask for "Dombey suits," or "Oliver Twist rompers," or a "David Copperfield" and the salesman instantly knows what you mean, or the lady who dispenses patterns asks "What age?" without the tremor of an eyelid.

At first glance there seems not to be great difference in the three types of Dickens clothes.

There is a cunning little shirtwaist of white and some abbreviated trousers in blue or pink or tan which are buttoned on the waist with big white pearl buttons.

The "Dombey" suit has the turned-over collar of the same color as the trousers. The "Oliver Twist" suit has this same collar and the addition of suspenders of the colored material and the trousers have a sort of high-waisted effect which brings them up almost under the arms.

The shape of the collar forms the chief point of difference in the style of the "Dombey" and "Copperfield" suits. In the latter garment the collar cuts off on a line just front of the shoulders with decided points that slope outward. Also the waist has one pleat on each side, in the place occupied by the suspenders in the other suits.

Linen "Dress Up" Suits.

The "dress up" suits are made of linen, and the play garments are developed in the stronger cotton materials at less expense but with the same charming effect. For the very dressiest of occasions when the small boy goes to dancing school, or to Auntie's wedding or some such festive party, the waist becomes a lovely white silk or satin affair, and the trousers are of black bengaline or white corded silk.

But the absence of elaboration is as marked on these garments as on those intended for romping. Gone into oblivion is the lace and velvet of the Fauntleroy dress, along with the curls which boys used to wear to their disgust and their mother's delight.

The boy of the hour is a real boy from the top of his closely cropped head to the square toes of his sturdy shoes.

The little girls are most bewitching in their picture garb and their cunning faces look more than ever adorable under the floppy brim of a shepherdess hat a copy of the one in which Bo-Peep [illegible] straying sheep, or framed in a Kate Greenaway or a Dimples bonnet.

Mulles and Organdies.

The "Little Miss Muffet" frock is the nearest like the Dickens garb in point of practicability. It shows the same combination of plain white linen waist and plain colored linen skirt and the identical pearl buttons are used to hold the two together, and sometimes there are the same suspenders over the shoulders. It would seem as if such a very sensible dress would keep Miss Muffett from being frightened by a spider, but then, spiders are sometimes quite horrific enough to disturb the poise of the most sensible miss.

The Kate Greenaway and the Dimples dresses are made in soft, dainty mulles and flowered-sprigged organdies and Dolly Varden muslins, and have a certain fluffiness of skirt and quaintness of bodice which makes them distractingly lovely.

And all the little folks, flesh and blood boys and girls, look as if the picture book kiddies have been mysteriously animated and released from the pages where they have lived so long.

Cultivate Your Natural Gifts

By Maggie Teyte

The noted prima donna

DO you recall the fable of June and the Peacock?

It relates to the visit of the proud and beautiful Peacock to the goddess with the request that she grant him the voice of the nightingale, in addition to all his other charms. June refused. The Peacock persisted and declared she should grant the request as he was her favorite bird. Still June was obdurate.

"Be content with your lot," said she. "One cannot be first in everything."

What has this fable to do with beauty?

It was brought to mind by a letter I received from a young woman recently. She said she had a wonderful voice, a mezzo-soprano of such rare quality that a rich woman is going to send her abroad to study for grand opera.

"But," writes this girl—I feel sure she is very young—"I'd almost give half my voice for thick, lovely hair and dark, expressive eyes."

Imagine any woman saying in the idlest moment that she would give up one note of such a heaven-sent gift as a voice for plenty of hair, when one can buy all the hair she wants, in any color of the rainbow.

And as for the eyes and their expression, if she has this voice and feels the inner consciousness of it as she should in order to reach the hearts of her hearers—and it is the heart of the audience for which all true singers aim—I am sure her eyes will reflect the same quality that makes the voice, and will grow in expression.

So there are two applications of the fable: how to make the most of what you have and how to make your lot so good contentment is justified.

For, be it known, I am not a preacher of the gospel of content.

What is most often known as content approaches laziness.

Discontent is the backbone of the law of progress.

Discontent is what has made the world what it is.

Discontent must make us go on to betterment.

Let me say to my singer friend, that with your voice, your mouth is the feature which will be most noticed. Keep your teeth like pearls. Keep your lips like rose petals. Keep the curve of the mouth sweet and upturned, the reflex of a smiling nature and a sympathetic heart.

Keep your skin soft and clear and wholesome and glowing with health, for the first aid to singing is health, the more the merrier.

With all my heart, I agree that the expression of the eyes is of paramount importance, for all persons.

EXERCISE AS A DAILY DUTY

Lois Ewell, Who Says the Athletic Girl Will Win.

The Part of Athletics in a Successful Career

By ELEANOR AMES

EVERY prospective singer should be given a thorough course in practical athletics," said Lois Ewell to me recently. "I laid the foundation for a successful operatic career when I captained the girl's basket ball team in Erasmus high school, in Brooklyn, New York. It gave me the chance to develop my body. No singer need hope to have a well developed voice in a weak body.

"And it is the exception when the body is thoroughly developed and the muscles under control without some attempt at athletic training."

"Then you don't believe that the woman athlete is in danger of becoming overtrained and of losing her femininity?" I asked.

"Not for a minute," she replied emphatically.

"The woman whom athletics will make awkward and coarse would be something much worse without such training. For, at least, if she has enjoyed the scientific application of athletic principles she has gained command of her body, and has her nerves in some sort of control.

"I don't believe in overdoing any more than I believe in neglect.

"But I think that the modern woman is better fitted for the business of life because she has been taught to use her muscles, because she has had the opportunity of exercise, than her mother or grandmother was."

I reminded Miss Ewell that in talks with educators in women's colleges, with athletic directors and with physicians, several had told me that the woman of today was not as enduring as her mother and her mother's mother.

"Well, don't blame athletics for that fact, if it is a fact," she retorted. "The modern woman is a fine specimen of humanity, and is doing work very different from the old-fashioned woman, and I think statistics would bear me out in the statement that the physical training she has received is responsible for her being ready to answer the call for playing so foremost a part in the rough and tumble business world.

"As for the singer, I have given particular attention to the students in America and in Europe, and I have found every time that the girl with the well trained body made the greatest success in voice training.

"Athletics has given her freedom. It has released her muscles. It has taught her how to breathe. It has given her dominion over her nerves. It has made her self-reliant. It has discovered her centre of gravity.

"We all know that the true secret of grace is control of the body. Athletics gives us release from tension. It is a daily duty. It teaches us to let go. That means a distinct increase in vitality, for tension implies a constant using up of vital force with never a chance to re-store it.

"There is no voice worth cultivating that is not backed by vitality.

"Stage presence is something which every singer must have if she is to make the most of the singing gift she possesses.

"Stage presence means self-confidence, absence from self-consciousness. To acquire this blessed state there is nothing to compare with a course of athletic training. In a certain sense athletics has paved the way for the modern interesting Feminist movement.

"It seems to me that one of the most splendid compliments which has been paid to the modern woman is that the fashion makers should call upon the classic draperies of the ancient Greeks to furnish inspiration for present styles.

"The Greeks gave forth the idea that the body and the soul should be trained together. Their clothes, with their graceful and free draperies, expressed beautifully this idea of freedom of body and soul—not the freedom of abandon—but the freedom of control, of understanding, of proper appreciation of its worth and capabilities.

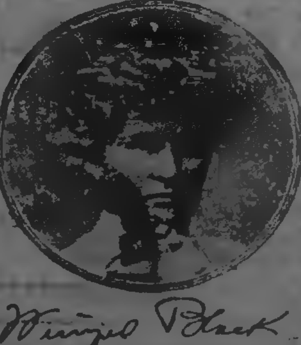
"If the modern woman has progressed to the stage of physical development where she can wear with becomingness the draperies of the ancient Greeks, then she is reaching a higher standard mentally as well as physically—she has outgrown the wasp waist, pinched toes state, and is verging upon the ideal.

"So I always say when I am asked for a message to the girl who wants to be a singer. Give your voice first, a strong body from which to emanate. Then feed it on deep breaths of pure air. Be strong and well and happy, and if the gift of song is yours, it will find means of expression."

"Smart" Schools and the Old Fashioned Idea of Education

By WINIFRED BLACK

(Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)



Winifred Black

SCHOOL days, school days, dear old golden rule days. Readin' and writin' and 'rithmetic."

The song's all right, but the old-fashioned school days are all wrong—so the modern educators say.

It was all a waste of time to teach children to spell, and nobody thinks of calling it "'rithmetic," or even arithmetic, any more. It's "number work" now, and goodness knows what the name is for fractions, and how in the world you tell a child what you mean by long division.

And now the hours are too short, from 9 till 12, and from 1 to 4—six hours. That isn't enough time to be given to school work.

Six hours a day—what in the world can a child learn in such a little bit of time as that? Why, it's hardly worth going to school at all, so the new educators say.

Lengthen the school hours, that's the cry now; make the children study at least seven and probably eight hours a day and take their books home in the evening besides. That's the idea.

The fashionable schools have been carrying out this plan for some time.

Every smart school in the country takes the smart children at 8 o'clock in the morning and keeps them until 6, and has as many evening affairs at the school as it is possible to crowd into the week.

And that isn't all, that's just a tiny, wee bit of a step in what the manager of the "smart" school believes is the right direction.

In the "Smart" School.

Have you any friends in the real "smart set"? Did you ever notice their children bothering around much in vacation time? If you do, there's something wrong about the school where your friends send their children.

The really "smart" school doesn't give the children any chance to make vacation a bore to their parents at home. Easter—oh, that's taken care of with a trip to New Orleans, or to California. The whole class goes with the teacher in charge.

Christmas, why Santa Claus lives in a Pullman car these days and the "smart" children find him in the drawing room on the way to Florida with teacher there to see that he doesn't spoil them with too much old-fashioned, simple, childish fun.

The summer vacation! Sister Susy spends it at a girl's camp in the Adirondacks; Brother Jim is off with the Boy Scouts for two months and a half. Brother Jim's father learned to swim himself in the "swimming hole" or in the "riffle" in the creek over by Grandpa Jones's, and he was something of a swimmer, too, if you ask him about it—and he learned to shoot from old Billy Somebody, the town's hired man, and he learned to ride bringing Doctor, the old bay horse, and Nellie, his old gray mare, up from the pasture. What Brother Jim's father didn't know about the birds and the squirrels and the rabbits and the foxes wasn't worth knowing—and nobody had to pay some expensive specialist to take him out camping and show him how to build a bonfire and roast a potato or an ear of corn in the ashes.

Brother Jim is different, quite different. He can't whistle under some fellow's window and go out after quail early in the gray dawn; he can't hold up his two fingers and get a pal to "go swimmin'" with him; why, he can't even play Andy Andy Over without having a tutor to show him how to throw the ball and to tell him the rules of the game.

Baseball, basket ball, tennis, golf, polo—oh, Brother Jim plays all the games with teacher to show him how and to stay right with him to see that he plays with the right sort of boys.

Longer Hours at Home.

Mother can't be worried thinking about Brother Jim and his companions. Why, the idea; isn't she busy with her class in sociology—and her afternoons with Strindberg, her Maeterlinck mornings, and then the opera season, and the bridge fad, and how in the world would mother have the strength to tango if she had to take up her energy fretting about Brother Jim's games and the company he keeps at them!

Father—oh, father is too busy to ever remember that he has a boy, except when the bills come in.

And there's Sister Marie Louise. She's never at home a minute; it wouldn't do at all for her to be at home; she'd be sure to get into mischief.

So when vacation comes she goes on a yachting cruise—chaperone, of course—or abroad with the French teacher, or to the seashore with the teacher of deportment.

Never with mother and father? Oh, never.

That's all right, for the "smart set."

Nobody expects very much of them or of their children, anyway; but now it seems to be coming to the plain, every-day people, who make up the plain, wholesome, every-day world, and I wonder what it's going to do to them before it gets through.

Longer hours at school for the children, fewer hours at home. Well, that may be all right, for the children, but, oh, what is to become of the mother and father?

Why, they're the one thing in the world worth living for, the children, the one thing that keeps us sweet-hearted and clean-minded and gentle and kindly, the one thing of beauty that is left in so many, many lives.

Longer hours for my children at school—not for me, thank you. My children might be able to stand it, but what am I going to do?

Longer hours at home, that's what I want, and what I hope my children want, too. But then I am hopelessly out of the fashion.

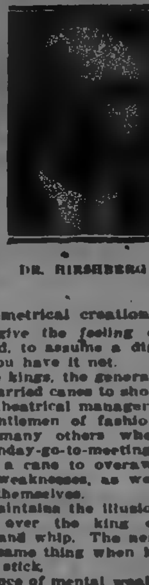
I'm quite depressed about it.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why You Carry a Cane; Famous Staffs in History

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

HAVE you observed that porches, cornices, platforms, gables and the eaves of buildings usually have arms or Caryatides beneath them?

Your superficial glance tells you that the upstretched arms or apparent supports are there to hold the projectory structures up. These shelves seem to be there for strength.

Yet this is not true. In many instances, the leaning or protruding parts need no aid from other things.

The architect, however, has an unconscious knowledge of psychology as well as the esthetic. Atlas, who supports the earth, typifies the human craving which makes everything and everybody lean on something else.

To stand alone in this world is impossible. Even to appear unpropped is comic, as witness the phrase, "to kick the props from under" a man.

Architects are trained to produce beautiful and symmetrical creations. They do not always know why, but they are aware that Gorgon heads, caryatides, pillars of Hercules and other decorative effects beneath a cornice, a capital or a veranda, not only add to the beauty, but also seemingly to the safety of the structure.

What has this to do with canes? Much more than the wearers or carriers of these sticks themselves imagine.

It must, true enough, be plain that some innocents who carry canes beneath their arms, do as persons with umbrellas do, to wit, jab the eyes out of those behind them. Watch some persons invade a car with an umbrella under the arm, and you will have doubles of some simple-minded cane wearers who do the same with their walking sticks.

Canes in History.

The patriarch, Jacob, when about to meet his brother, filled with apprehension at the issue, offered up this prayer: "With my staff I passed over the Jordan."

The cane or rod of Moses was more potent than the imperial power of Pharaoh. It was the stick which conveyed the wrath of God to the Egyptians and performed the miracles of mercy for Israel.

Achilles, too, in Greek legendary lore, said: "I swear by this stick, which can never again bear leaves or shoots or buds."

Canes were in the ancient world, before the days of Babylonia, Nineveh and Tyre, the badge of distinction, power, wealth and aristocracy.

Agamemnon never went forth without his walking stick of royalty. The depredations of the Sphinx caused the oracle of Apollo at Thebes to propound this well known riddle to be asked:

"What creature goes on four legs at dawn, two at noon and three at night?" If solved, the Sphinx would be shorn of its power. Oedipus said: "Man," and the riddle was solved.

Not alone the aged, the infirm and the tired pilgrim, however, wear canes nowadays. About 60 or 70 years ago, when the military were beginning to think in terms of firearms, and to forget all about spears and lances, gentlemen began to burden themselves with smaller walking sticks.

A Prop to Dignity.

Grotesque knobs, multiform sinuosities, rhinoceros hide, sharks' skins, ivory handles, gold heads and thin canes came to be the vogue.

Sir Plume of amber snuff box justly vain
And the nice conduct of a clouded cane.

What does it mean, then, this racial, world-old custom? What is the physiology and psychology of cane wearing? Manifestly, the answer is to be found in the architect's unconscious analysis. Namely, it is to give the feeling of power and command, to assume a dignity even though you have it not.

Just as Moses, the kings, the generals and the Crusaders carried canes to show their authority, so theatrical managers, newspaper men, gentlemen of fashion, press agents and many others when dressed in their "Sunday-go-to-meeting" clothes, take along a cane to overawe their own internal weaknesses, as well as those outside of themselves.

The lion tamer maintains the illusion of his supremacy over the king of beasts by the stick and whip. The nervous man does the same thing when he carries his walking stick.

It is both an evidence of mental weakness and strength to carry a cane. It takes a modicum of strength to pick up the cane, but it is partly the psychology of imitation as well as a sense of bolstering up human posing and dignity that helps this habit.

Once jauntily striding with a cane, there is a curious exhilaration in the bouncing gait which soothes the nerves with less danger than Lady Nicotine or the Demon Rum.

Answers to Health Questions

R. S.—I smoke very little and retire at midnight, yet my hand shakes when I write; why?

Some men and boys are peculiarly susceptible to lack of sleep or even one cigar a day. In your condition you should retire not later than 10:30 or 11. Do not smoke, and do not drink tea, soups, coffee or alcoholic drinks. Take milk, water and lemonade as drinks.

R. A. R., West Philadelphia—There is a constant buzzing and ringing in my head. I easily catch cold in the head. This is of many years' standing.

No doubt you have been to many hospitals and doctors, but do not lose hope. Instead of ear specialists go to some of the younger throat and nose physicians. It may be necessary to have your throat and nose operated upon.

If these growths were removed in very young children, and they are present in over 30 per cent. of youngsters, there would be little deafness and ear noises in grown-ups.

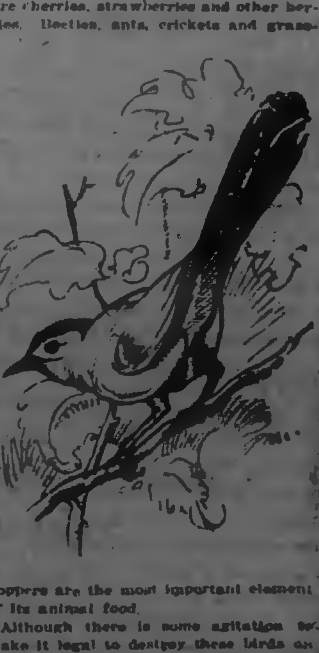
Our Bird Friends

The Cat Bird

IN many localities the catbird is one of the commonest birds. Tangled growths are its favorite nesting places and retreats, but berry patches and ornamental shrubbery are not disdained. Hence the bird is a familiar visitor.

The catbird has a fine song, occasionally marred by "cat calls." With habits similar to the mocking bird and a song almost as varied, the catbird has never secured a similar place in popular favor.

Half of its food consists in fruit, and the cultivated crops most often attacked are cherries, strawberries and other berries. Beetles, ants, crickets and grasshoppers are the most important element of its animal food.



Although there is some agitation to make it legal to destroy these birds on account of their depredations, their friends seem to have sufficient interest and influence to protect them.

WHEN LOVE IS DEEPEST

With Women It Is Later on in Their Life

Psychological tests to determine at what particular age men and women love with deepest feeling, conducted at the University of California and at Hamburg University resulted in the graphic showing of the "curve of love" by German scientists, but with no results of scientific value at Berkeley.

Professor Jackh, the eminent German scholar, based his theories and plotted his "curve of love" on the love affairs in the lives of four hundred famous men and women, and said, in a scientific bulletin, that these cases are typical of man and woman kind the world over.

"There are no psychological proofs," said Professor Brown, "to show that man or woman may be capable of experiencing greater feeling, such as love, at any particular age, but observation would seem to establish the fact. The majority of men make better sweethearts between the ages of twenty-four and twenty-six, because at that age they are under the sway of romantic ideals. After this, he contends, and especially after they have arrived at thirty, they love but little.

"On the other hand, women are most susceptible to their deepest affection at thirty to thirty-four years long after man has ceased to be a love factor.

"With women, the age at which this highest capacity is revealed may be later—may even be after she has reached thirty, not because the romantic impulse comes to women so much later but because its first expression seeks a different outlet than that of man."

FOOTBALLER'S LIFE

Disabled and Had no Trade at Thirty-Two

Samuel Frost, a professional football player, who was incapacitated by an injury to his left knee during a match, sued his employers, the Millwall Football and Athletic Company, Limited, London, England, for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Frost's salary, $12 per week, continued till the expiration of his agreement. Then $5 per week compensation was allowed for three months. No longer able to play football, which had been his source of livelihood for twelve years, he was now thirty-two years of age, his counsel said, and had never learned a trade.

"Football is a comparatively short life," remarked counsel.

The applicant said he had no summer occupation, because he got his pay, and usually went to the seaside for those months to brace himself up. Herbert Lipsham, manager of the Millwall Football Club, said not one man in a thousand was able to play football after thirty. Bloomer, of Derby County, and Meredith and the witness himself were exceptions. Clubs were demanding younger men. Frost was given a benefit last season.

Judge Smyly awarded $5 per week, and Mr. Skeggs, one of the directors of the club, said he would undertake to pay the full costs of an operation to Frost's knee and all expenses connected with it.

Birds That Change Their Food

It is well known among naturalists that while many birds are exclusively flesh-eaters, few are exclusively vegetarians. The latter seek a change of food, not because of its scarcity, but from choice, and this choice is nearly always exercised when they are feeding their young. All gardeners know that sparrows are ordinarily vegetarians, yet they eat insects off of plants.

Mincemeat, after being stored in glass jars, should have the cover removed occasionally and the mincemeat stirred. This will prevent it from becoming hard. If a little extra brandy is added occasionally mincemeat can be kept fresh for about one year.

CLIMBED TO FAME

Heinie Wagner Graduated From One of New York's Tough Spots

Just how high an ambitious boy, blessed with ability, can climb in baseball was never demonstrated more forcibly than by Heinie Wagner, of the Boston Red Sox.

About fifteen years ago Billy Rodenbach, former amateur middleweight boxing champion, managed and played with a nine on New York's upper west side. The team was to play a formidable club in New Jersey and the day before the game the third baseman went to bed, very sick, causing dismay in the organization, for it wasn't easy to find a good infielder on short notice. Rodenbach had given up hope of making any sort of a showing in the game when a friend met him and said, "Billy, there's a kid down in Hell's kitchen that looks good. Go and take a look at him."

Rodenbach went to the historic ground and found a game for the "championship of the kitchen," in progress. Rodenbach watched the third baseman of one team and was impressed with the way the boy scooped all sorts of drives and threw them across to the first baseman. Between innings Rodenbach approached the lad and asked him to go over to Jersey the next day to play with his club.

"Aw, I can't play with you big guys," replied the little fellow.

"I'll take a chance on you. Come on and I'll give you a half dollar."

The boy's eyes widened and he consented. Next day the youngster's stops and lightning throws materially helped Rodenbach's team to win the game. The boy became a fixture on the team.

In the fall of 1912, after one of the world's series games between Boston and New York, Rodenbach jumped from his seat and shook hands with one of the Red Sox. After some general talk he said: "I suppose you have done pretty well this season."

HEINIE WAGNER

"Yes," answered the player, "with my salary as player, extras for acting as captain and my share of the world's series, I'll clean up about $10,000."

"Good for you," said Rodenbach. "It's different from the day I slipped you a half-a-dollar to play third, isn't it?"

"Sure," said the player laughing, "but do you know that fifty cents looked as big to me that day as a thousand does to-day?"

HAWAIIAN SURF RIDERS

Are Best in the World—Ancient Hawaiian Sport

Duke Kahanamoku, the Hawaiian expert, is one of the Hawaiian Islands' best surf riders. Those who have watched the big islander shooting along on the crest of a big comber have seen a sight never to be forgotten.

Surf boarding is an ancient Hawaiian sport, and one which is accomplished nowhere else in the world with the perfection of the Hawaiians. It has been tried in Australia and other places where there is good surf, but the conditions in Hawaii seem to be different, for it is there alone that the sport takes rank as an amusement of both whites and Hawaiians.

Any afternoon when there is a good surf running half a dozen dusky shapes may be seen lying flat on long boards and paddling out towards where the blue waves break in white froth over the coral reef a mile from shore. Soon they are but spots on the water and then they can be seen only for a moment as they breast the combers to get on the outside, where they can make the race in.

Once the line of breakers is reached, they lie in wait for a big one, and as it comes roaring in they paddle ahead as fast as possible to get speed enough so that the waves will pick them up. If they have a good start the comber takes them along on its inner edge with the white spume curling up behind, and at the speed of an express train they race for the shore.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worms, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

FORTUNE IN STAMPS

French Millionaire Has Wonderful Collection Which Few Have Seen

The distinction of having the most valuable collection of postage stamps belongs to a Frenchman, M. Philip La Rénotière, who started collecting stamps in the middle of the sixties, and who probably spent nearly $1,500,000 upon his collection of 120,000 stamps. An ardent philatelist, and possessed of ample means, this gentleman amassed a collection of stamps which is as near the collector's ideal of completeness as it is possible for any individual to form. But few collectors have been privileged to see M. Rénotière's collection, for, having spent a fortune upon it, it is not surprising that he does not risk sending it to public exhibits.

The value of the collection is enhanced by the fact that M. Rénotière acquired other collections in the early days of philately. Indeed, he purchased outright the collections of two presidents of the Royal Philatelic Society—Sir Samuel Cooper, Bart., whose collection, in 1878, he bought for $15,000, and Judge Philbrick, for whose collection, in 1882, he paid $40,000. To-day these two collections would probably fetch $100,000 and $250,000 respectively.

In addition this famous French collector has had the first pick of the stamp markets of the world for over forty years and to him was sold, for a comparatively small figure in the 'seventies, the rarest stamp in the world, the one cent stamp of British Guiana, issued in 1856, no other example of which has been found, although dealers and collectors have searched the world for another specimen.

EMPRESS OF RUSSIA

The Czar May be Succeeded by His Daughter

Strong representations are being made to the Czar to have him issue a proclamation revoking the Salic law, and declaring the Grand Duchess Olga heiress to the imperial throne, according to a report current in diplomatic circles in Paris.

The Grand Duchess Olga, who would thus succeed to the throne, now is nineteen years old and is remarkably clever. She has evinced a striking aptitude for taking hold of the interior affairs of the imperial palaces, and in view of the semi-anarchical condition of Russia, political refugees here say by enforcing constitutional humanitarian measures, she would have a superb opportunity of outshining Catherine the Great.

Veteran Cricketer

Mr. William Caffyn, a member of the first English eleven to visit Australia in 1861, celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday. Speaking, in an interview, of cricket at the Oval fifty years ago, he declared: "It was cricket then. You had to run all out even if you drove to the Vauxhall end of the ground. There was only one boundary, and that was to the pavilion. If the present-day batsmen had to make their runs it would make galleo."

Novel Competition

Commander Turon, of the battleship "Audacious," at Portsmouth, has presented the crew with a handsome silver cup for a novel competition between various sections in coaling, watch, evolutions, boxing, rowing, and football. The cup first goes to the men of the foretop, who beat the remainder of the ship at coaling, 2,000 tons being taken on board at an average of 220 tons an hour.

A Good Muskrat Season.

Mr. Ed. C. Armstrong, of Lindsay, who for the past number of years, has been an extensive purchaser of muskrat skins, has this spring purchased two thousand skins, and expects to get in several hundred more before the end of this week. This year's collection is a splendid one, although the trapping season is a short one.

Local Building Permits.

The building permits issued from the city hall last month shows the building conditions have improved wonderfully over February and March. The total for last month, which is $95,315, although about $20,000 less than the total for the corresponding period of last year, is very encouraging.

From Paris to Peterborough.

It will be remembered that a few months ago, the Oriental Hotel got out some pamphlets describing this popular caravansery. One of these was sent to the Hotel de L'Intendance, 50 Rue de l'Université, Paris, France. Yesterday the Oriental received a kind letter of acknowledgement, commending the pamphlets and promising conjoint action for European transients.

Single No Longer

A young couple from a nearby village are spending their honeymoon in the city, guests at the Oriental Hotel. They arrived there on Wednesday in single state and were assigned rooms on different floors. During the evening they went out all "dolled up," and returned with faces wreathed in smiles, but no longer single. Judging by the groom's face yesterday he is a great admirer of connubial bliss.

Norwood Pupils Succeed.

G. Carter, of Westwood, a graduate of the Norwood High School; and Miss Clarice Leighton of Yorkton, Sask., daughter of Mr. R. H. Leighton, a former principal of the public school here.

When Buster Turned

Yesterday morning a local citizen who rejoices in the nickname of 'Buster,' and who is well-known here, particularly on Hunter Street, after a prolonged rest, decided to get to work on a ditch. He walked down Simcoe Street with a long handled shovel over his shoulder. A friend called out, "Hello Buster, how are things"? Buster turned quickly and the shovel head broke two panes of glass in a store window.

A Quick Deal in Horseflesh

A speed-lightning horse deal was put through on Wednesday in Lindsay and as a result Fire Chief James Bell is the owner of a mare which changed ownership three times in practically as many minutes. The animal was originally owned by a local drayman, but yesterday it was as obstinate as a sulky child. The owner became so disgusted that he offered to sell it for a dollar. A spectator produced the "William" and the horse was his. He decided to sell it for $5.00. Jas Bell was the buyer. The horse is a good looking animal and Mr. Bell was first offered $20. Then yesterday morning an offer of $55 was made.

New Bread Legislation.

Hereafter, if a proposed by-law goes through the Council, all local bread must be wrapped in paper before before being put in bakers' delivery rigs. It might be wise to add an amendment that the paper must be thoroughly soaked in a solution of iodoform or carbolic acid. Of course this might taunt the staff of life. Still, the garbage collectors could gather up dead microbes lying in front of thousands of homes. Arthur Blade, the local gardner, might buy several cart loads of such dead bacteria, and, after having it disinfected use it for fertiliser. First, drivers of delivery carts are compelled to wear gloves to handle bread. A splendid sanitary precaution! Still, by the times these gloves have been used to brush sweat off their horses and for similar purposes, the last state of those gloves is worse than the first and the bread is no purer. The unfortunate citizen, now paying 26 mills on the dollar, will have to pay for the new fad.

HEAD OF A DEFUNCT BANK GIVES ALL TO DEPOSITORS

Financier, Now Poper, Goes To Veterans' Home

Jackson, Miss, April 30.—L. Foot, president of the defunct Mississippi State bank at Canton, has turned over to the receivers deeds conveying all of his real and personal property to the institution, leaving self and family penniless.

In a pathetic letter addressed to the depositors the former president, who for 30 years was one of the leading financiers of the state, states that he is going to seek refuge in the Soldiers' home at Hampton, Va., in order that he can give his wife his meagre pension of $15 per month for her support.

The receivers agree to allow Mr. Foot $50 per month for support out of the income for his property until it can be sold for benefit of the bank's creditors.

Physicians state that Mr. Foot is in a critical physical condition and fear that he can live only a short time. After the closing of the bank he went to his home in Canton and did not appear on the streets until the day of departure for the Soldiers' Home. Five years ago his personal fortune was estimated at $500,000.

MAHONEY INSANE; BLAMES CONDITION TO BLOW ON HEAD

New York, April 30.—After an examination by the commission appointed to enquire into the sanity of Michael P. Mahoney, who wounded Corporation Counsel Frank L. Polk in an attempt to kill Mayor Mitchel, two physicians said Mahoney undoubtedly was suffering from senile dementia and was irresponsible.

The prisoner reiterated his past statement that he would have nothing to do with lawyers. He said he had been struck on the head once with an iron bar.

When led on by his questioners, who remarked he was a poor shot, Mahoney said he had not missed his aim, but had shot at Mr. Polk when he saw he was in the way.

MAN, NOT BOY, RODE WITH SLAIN DRIVER

Albany, April 30.—A man about 30 years old, who wore a moustache and not a youth resembling Malcolm Gifford, Jr., who is charged with killing Frank J. Clute, a chauffeur, rode with him when he made his fatal drive toward Troy a year ago, Mrs. Mildred W. Thorne, said yesterday.

Her story has been investigated by Gifford's father, who, it is said, chanced to overhear the woman describing Clute's passenger to another woman while the two stood on a downtown street.

Mrs. Thorne said she was a friend of Clute's and that soon after he started away from his automobile stand with the man who is supposed to have slain him, the chauffeur saw her and stopped his car. Clute and the woman talked a minute, she added and then the passenger thrust his head out of the car door so that she saw him plainly.

Detectives and local authorities worked futilely for weeks immediately following the murder in an effort to find some one who had seen the passenger. Mrs. Thorne's explanation of her failure to tell her story until after Gifford's arrest is that no one ever asked her about it.

FRANK IS INNOCENT DECLARES DAN LEHON

New Orleans Sleuth Has Been Assisting Burns on the Case.

New Orleans, April 30.—"Leo M. Frank, under sentence of death in Atlanta for the murder of 14-year-old Mary Phagan, is unquestionably innocent. Jim Conley, the negro janitor, is without a doubt the man who killed the girl."

This statement was made Monday morning by Dan S. Lehon, manager of the Southern division of the William J. Burns detective agency, who arrived in New Orleans Sunday night from Atlanta, where he has been assisting Mr. Burns in the investigation of the case.

"Frank was a victim of the intense feeling and sentiment aroused at the time of the trial by the horror and evident perversion surrounding the tragedy. Our investigations have revealed that Frank's character is absolutely blameless, that he is normal and not a pervert as was the contention of the prosecution. Circumstances surrounding the case point out that the crime was undoubtedly committed by a pervert, and the fact that Frank was convicted on a charge of perversion and not of murder is made clear on the statement of Juror Henslee, who said, 'Early in the trial I became convinced that Frank was a pervert.'

"Now the main prop of the prosecution has been exploded as the state insofar as it is represented by the police and detective forces has completely withdrawn its accusation of perversion."

fast, Ireland, May 1.—It is in touching extract from the Old ament that Ulstermen crystalize appeal to England in a trying . They treasure their present e in the British Empire and their in the mother of Parliaments, they pray the people of England Scotland not to abandon them hat they fear would be a hostile onalist legislature—not to eclude from the full enjoyment of an ng Imperial partnership.

the words of a Unionist, Nation- Ireland asks Great Britain to it to set up aseparate govern- at Dublin and to bring Ulster the government. He finds an analogy in Canada. It is as if the French Roman Catholic majority in Quebec asserted at Ottawa the right to establish a quasi-independent legislature of its own and to take with it in that movement the Provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia on the ground that those Provincts were first owned and settled by the French. How would Ontario and Western Canada regard such a proposal to weaken confederation? How would the Protestant Maritime Provinces look upon the project? To Canadians such rending of the Dominion is unthinkable. The analogy may not be complete but there is reasonable ground for using an hypothetical Canadian case as an illustration of conditions in Ireland.

R. PRICE BRANDS AS UNTRUE FINDINGS OF JUDGE DENTON

ronto, May 1.—Claiming that had never allowedhis personal dships to interfere with his pub- uty, and that Judge Denton ghout the whole investigation the Architect's Department was rned to discriminate against elf, and hinting that the Judge e case, that of Mr. Solomen , was guilty of making untrue uations against him, Acting Cit- itect Price to-day submitted his er to the Judge's report to the ard of Control. The document is ost amusing in recent city his-compliance with the Board of rol's order," he writes, "I will avor in the time at my disposal eply to His Honor's findings as as possible, but submit that the is practically an impossible one erform in the time limited, and impossible to make any lengthy ence to the evidence in order to e the charges made.

"A fact which must strike every reader of the Judge's report is the frequency with which my name is mentioned, he even going out of his way to repeat it, and using my name when Mr. McCallum's should have been used, all tending to try and make me the head-liner. Another evidence of feeling on the part of his Honor is the repetition of any points that he thought he had made that told against me.

Charges Discrimination.

"A very glaring case of discrimination is shown by His Honor (even after the inquiry was over and the report in the hands of the Mayor) refusing to let me have an office file out of the evidence to report on a certain matter to the Mayor, while the Globe newspaper was able to obtain exhibits during the investigation and make comments on the same which were not true, and were not borne out by evidence. A very singular coincidence in connection with this incident is that the Judge's comment is along the same lines as The Globe's, and opposed to the evidence.

"I have failed to find any comment from His Honor covering the evidence that went in, showing that the acting head and endeavored to do a great amount of work personally, and has had to work nights and Sundays to fill the dual position, and has not hada holiday in nine years, nor is any credit given for many reforms which have been instituted during the last six months.

SIR GILBERT PARKER ATTACKS TELEPHONES

Montreal, May 1.—A feature of the ensuing debate on the postoffice estimates in the British House of Commons yesterday, says a London cable to The Daily Mail, was an attack by Sir Gilbert Parker upon the report of the committee which investigated the conditions and wages of the postal employes. He took the ground that it did not effect the workers in the lower grades, who were given no relief. The net profit arising from the operating of the postal services during the year was $27,500,000, according to the statement of the postmaster-general.

Mr. Hobhouse announced that he proposed to spend $3,750,000 on the telephone services in London during the year, establishing semi-automatic exchanges and readjusting the rates, though he did not promise any reductions.

A PEACE MOVE GAINS STRENGTH IN BRITAIN

London, May 1.—The movement towards peace has made amazing strides during the past twenty-four hours. Even the Southern Irish Unionists encouraged by Mr. Balfour's admission now acknowledged that opposition to Home Rule for Ireland outside Ulster must cease.

"Most Irish Unionists, certainly most southern Unionists, agree that the status quo has gone and that there is no use pretending it can be recovered," says the Dublin Correspondent of the Times.

It is anticipated that Mr. Asquith will summum a conference including Sir Edward Carson representing Ulster, Mr. John Redmond representing Nationalism, and another representative of Unionism to discuss the entire situation. The choice of a Unionist presents some difficulty.

Bonar Law's followers admit that in view of his disproval charge of lying brought against Premier Asquith the latter would be justified in refusing to meet him.

The Irish Times suggests Lord Lansdowne as the Unionist nominee. Parliament generally hopes that it eill be Mr. Balfour. The conference will be confronted by two main problems—the area of Ulster to be temporarily excluded and the form of the amending bill embodying the compromise.

TORONTO MUST KEEP ON USING CHLORINE

Toronto, May 1.—Toronto will never have perfect system of sewage disposal. The cost would be prohibitive Additional mains will have to be laid in every street. New connections would have to be put in every house the drainage system of every house would have to be changed. Mayor Hocken estimates that the cost would be $15,000,000. Works Commissioner Harris declares it would be a very much greater sum, and that the city of Toronto would never be able to undertake the work.

For these reasons, Works Commissioner Harris declared to-day that the drinking water of the city will have to be chlorinated and filtered for all time.

Furthermore said Mr. Harris, there is no necessity for going to the cost of installing the dual system. The water were are giving the citizens now is sterile. When the additional filtration plant and the gaseous chlorination is installed our water will not be excelled anywhere on the continent.

Mr. Harris explained that to have an absolutely perfect system of sewage disposal the sanitary and water low drains would have to be kept entirely separate.

LIBERALS NEGOTIATING SAFE SEAT FOR HON. MR. GRAHAM

Ottawa, May 1.—It is understood that the Redistribution Committee has Ontario and Quebec practically completed unless differences over one or two counties in each should compel considerable change in the whole map.

The counties over which there is difference at present are Brockville in Eastern Ontario and Brome in Quebec. In the case of Brockville, the Liberals are endeavoring to make a safe seat for Hon. George Graham if possible. The Toronto seats will stand as originally drafted with seven city seats. West and East York will be the only purely rural riding and it is understood that it will remain unchanged.

In Western Ontario there will be a seat disappear in each of the three counties of Middlesex, Huron and Grey. It still looks as if Elgin would be made one riding instead of two as at present.

SCH. JAMIESON CREW IS SAFE

Ran Into Shelter at Timber Island, But Could Not Report Till To-day

Kingston, Ont., May 1.—The schooner William Jamieson and her crew are safe. The vessel was believed to have been lost on Lake Ontario during the heavy gale Tuesday night, but was in shelter at Timber Island and South Bay, with which no telegraphic or telephone communication is possible. The schooner reached Napanee to-day and at once reported all well.

Duluth, May 1.—Five tugs are still searching for some trace of the steamer Benjamin Noble, of Detroit, lost sometime Tuesday or Wednesday with her crew of some twenty men.

Lost Upperworks in Storm.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 1.—With nearly all of her upper works torn off by the terrific seas, the steamer Texas tied up here to-day. She encountered the worst of the storm on Tuesday and Wednesday. The top of the pilot house was washed overboard and the sides were smashed in. Windows were torn out and the furniture was thrown around and smashed. The sides of the Texas were also broken in and bulged.

Thesteamer Buffalo is still at the Soo putting on her lightered cargo. About six hundred tons of flour were removed to effect her release. She will leave to-day.

WOULD SHOOT JOHN D., JR.

New York, May 1.—Marie Gans a woman radical speaker, led a crowd of men and boys to the offices of the Standard Oil Company, 56 Broadway this afternoon and there announced: "If Rockefeller don't arbitrate and stop the murders in Colorado, I'm going to shoot him like a dog."

A policeman tried to detain her at theentrance, but she rushed by him, into the building and went up in an elevator to the fourteenth storey, where John D., Jr., maintains his offices. A negro messenger told her he was not in. She forced him to take in her card, but he returned with the statement that Rockefeller was not there.

"Well, you tell him just what I say. If he don't arbitrate I'll shoot him like a dog."

OTTAWA REFORMING

Ottawa, Ont., May 1.—There must be no more "tangoing" in Ottawa hotel cafes, according to the dictum of the Board of License Commissioners, which to-day served notice on the Russell House that its license is renewed for only three months and further renewal will depend upon stricter observance of the law and elimination of the tango.

PEEL HOTELS GET EXTENSION

Brampton, Ont., May 1.—The License Commissioners of Peel have given all Peel hotelkeepers three months to sell out or dispose of their business if they desire to do so. Eight hotel and three club licenses will be wiped outAugust st.

IF HOME RULE PASSES IN ITS PRESENT FORM PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT WILL IMMEDIATELY BE SET UP BY THE UNIONISTS OF ULSTER

STRABANE, County Tyrone, Ireland, May 1.—At this writing the political future of Ireland is still on the knees of the gods. It is not overstating the situation to say that no one knows what is going to happen. Question Ulstermen, Nationalists, English Unionists, and English Liberals. All in turn throw up their hands and confess an utter inability to prophesy. This sweeping assertion applies to high and low, to leaders and to the rank and file. Sir Edward Carson is not in a position to foretell even the immediate future. Neither is Mr. John Redmond, Mr. Bonar Law, or the Prime Minister himself. The situation is one of drift.

Mr. Asquith's proposal to let such of the Ulster counties as may approve the Irish Bill vote themselves "into Ireland" forthwith, and to compel all the remaining counties to come in at the end of six years, has not yet been included in the measure. It is altogether probable that the Unionists will reject the suggestion, and that if the Bill goes to a final third reading it will go much in its present shape.

Few people doubt the intention and ability of the Government to place the measure upon the statute books practically unaltered. The chances seem to be that they will do so before the end of June and then appeal without delay to the electorate before enforcing the act. But I am told that an election cannot be held early enough to avert further complications in Ireland. I have information on the highest authority that the present plan of the Ulster Unionists is to set up a Provisional Government immediately the bill becomes law, and without waiting for it to come into operation. All the preliminary arrangements are completed, and unless the Ulster leaders reverse their campaign proposals within the next few weeks we may see a separate Government established at Belfast before July is past. Once in being the administration will have behind it a pretty effective army of 110,000 men, already trained and splendidly equipped.

With half the adult male population of Ulster under arms, there will be Nationalist outbreaks both in the north and south. In such an event, the dilemma of the Asquith government, which will then be in the throes of an election, will be unprecedented. Its difficulties will be increased by the reported and pretty well substantiated refusal of officers and men in the Imperial army to act against the northern volunteers. These are the considerations which make the outlook so cloudy. Mr. Asquith cannot back down without losing 80 Irish votes, and so going out of power. On the other hand, he cannot proceed "full steam ahead" with any degree of confidence or satisfaction.

LIBERALS LIKE C. N. R. DEAL FIGHT IT TO 'PLAY POLITICS'

How They Could Oppose Aid to Company They Created Could Not be Seen

Ottawa, May 1.—Despite the Liberal announcement of "fight" on the C.N.R. agreement, it is believed that the Opposition will put more than a perfunctory contest against the proposed settlement. The Liberals will ask for much criticism and will move some amendments. That is their duty as an opposition. That they will go to the extent of forcing the Government to put through the agreement by closure is not believed.

A Committee of Five.

It is understood that all the caucus did yesterday was to appoint a committee consisting of Hon. George P. Graham, Hon. Dr. Beland, Mr. A. K. Maclean, Mr. Frank Carvell and Mr. E. W. Nesbitt to make a thorough examination of the settlement and to propose a counter policy. There will likely be another caucus called by the Liberals when this committee is ready to report. That the Liberals are unanimous in their opposition to the agreement is nonsense. Many Liberals have openly expressed their belief that the agreement is an extraordinary good one and a far better one than they even expected the Government would drive. If they oppose the agreement it will be for political exigencies and not from conviction.

Created Present Muddle.

How the Liberals can consistently oppose the agreement it is hard to see. They created the present railway muddle and handed out $52,000,000 bond guarantees to the C.N.R. without one solidary concession in return. In addition three Liberal Provincial Premiers, Hon. Arthur Sifton of Alberta; Hon. Walter Scott of Saskatchewan, and Premier Murray of Nova Scotia strongly urge the Government to come to the assistance of the C.N.R. and without asking for any concessions. However, consistency is not one of the virtues of the Liberal party as at present organized. There seems to be considerable misunderstanding as to the plan which has been adopted for consolidating the various companies of the C.N.R. system.

DE LAVAL MANAGERS BUY PROPERTY ON WELLER ST.

Yesterday Messrs. C. J. Carroll & Co., the live wire real estate agents put through an important property deal at Victoria Heights whereby five of the leading officials of the De Laval Co., purchased a lot each facing on Weller Street. Those buying the lots are Gen. Manager Treyfogle, Chief Engineer Sangster, Dept. Mgr. Cook, Dept. Mgr. Reid, Dept. Mgr. Evans.

BONAR LAW TO LOSE THE LEADERSHIP OF HIS OWN PARTY

Mr. Austen Chamberlain Favored for Post in Event of an Election

London, May 1.—Mr. Bonar Law's offer for a resumption of the "conversations" on the Irish question between the leaders on the front benches excites the greatest speculation to-day regarding the internal relations of the Unionist party. Mr. Bonar Law's preferment to the position of leader of the Opposition when Mr. A.J. Balfour resigned was admittedly planned to relieve the Unionists of the necessity for deciding between Mr. Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Walter Long. It was then agreed that Mr. Bonar Law was unlikely to become Premier of the next Unionist Government, his being a "stopgap" role. Meanwhile Mr. Bonar Law, while admirably playing the Ulsterite Unionist game, has compromised himself so badly that it is doubtful whether the King would summon him to form an alternative Government. Mr. Walter Long's continued and frequent illnesses disable him from accepting the onerous duties of the Premiership.

Therefore Mr. Bonar Law's specific naming of Mr. Austen Chamberlain as negotiator for the Unionists instead of himself is taken to indicate a decision by the Unionist party that as the elections are possibly not far distant, the future Premier must reach limelight. Mr. Austen Chamberlain has been notably moderate and fair in his frequent interpositions in the Parliamentary and platform contributions in the Ulster conflict. Another view taken of Mr. Bonar Law's self-effacement is that being the most prominent leader on the Opposition side, Asquithian attacks upon his presence might negative the chances of peace, which at the present moment are brighter than they have ever been.

The Standard's special Parliamentary correspondent avers that if a break now occurs it will be because the Nationalists spurn the three-quarters of a pound of flesh which will be all that will be offered them. The Standard, in a remarkably fair summary of the present position says "The Unionist leaders facing the horrors of civil war, have resolved to work genuinely for a settlement, despite the awful power they have at their disposal for smashing the Home Rule Government forcefully. Wednesday's debate marks a historic turning point." Although apparently insurmountable difficulties beset the settlement of the problem, the Nationalists, although uneasy, are disinclined to shatter the present fair hopes of peace.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mostly fair and warmer.

OVER 700 PEOPLE ON STEAMER IN DISTRESS

Tokio, May 1.—Wireless calls for assistance from the pacific mail steamer Siberia, from San Francisco April, 7 for Manila, heard on the Japanese coast to-day, intimated that she was in great peril off the coast of Formosa.

An early report said the liner was sinking, while a latter message said she was ashore six miles off the mainland.

The Siberia left Yokohama April 27, direct for Manila. She has a passenger list of 521 persons, and a crew of about 200 men.

OLD PEOPLE TO PUT UP FIGHT

Refuse to be Frozen Out of Home Circles Order Without Struggle

Toronto, May 1.—The old people who are members of the Canadian Order of Home Circles are going to put up a fight. The new scale of assessment adopted by the Order has practically frozen them out, the rates at which they can retain their standing being prohibitive. Under the reorganization they are assessed at their present age, and not at the age they were when they joined 25 or 30 years ago. It really means that the people who made the Order and have supported it for so many years have to step out and join again on just about the same terms that would be extended to a new member. Many of them cannot do it and others will not. On their behalf a strong committee has been formed in Toronto, a campaign fund started, prominent legal counsel engaged and soon the matter will be determined in the courts.

It Is "Sub Rosa."

Mr. J. B. Dixon, mason contractor, 46 St. Patrick street, who is chairman of the committee which was appointed at Occident Hall, declined to discuss the situation this morning. "It is 'sub rosa'" he said, "and I must refuse to talk about it."

THE RICH SOFT SHADE OF THE EGG PLANT, AN ATTRACTIVE COLOR FOR STREET AND AFTERNOON FROCKS

Aubergine is the name of this modish color and it is being used in all materials: in chiffon for the bodice, in silk for the afternoon gown and in serge, gabardine and various other materials for the tailored suit. Green is smart too, in all its shades; also many tones of red and brown. When black is used it is usually in taffeta or one of the other soft silks; black, however, is employed for trimming purposes and often affords a striking contrast combined with one of the bright colors. Aubergine faille is used in the afternoon frock shown in No. 8294; there is an inverted V-shaped vest of cream white batiste, cream frills finishing neck and sleeves, and drop shoulders. The skirt, which is a two-gored model, is finished with an applied tunic, slightly gathered and set on at yoke depth.

Faille averages 42 inches in width and ranges in price from $1.50 per yard and up.

This costume may be copied in size 36 with 4¾ yards of 42-inch faille, or 5¼ yards of a 36-inch material.

A soft, pink voile is used here with trimming bands of silk-dotted mull.

This little dress requires, for a child of 6, 3⅝ yards of 36-inch material.

No. 8294—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8313—sizes 2 to 10.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

AIDS TO BEAUTY IN FOREIGN LANDS

How Women in Different Countries Strive to Follow in Fashion's Wake

There is nothing in which women are more united than the desire to be beautiful, and as a consequence many members of the fair sex attempt to increase their personal charms by artificial means. Specially is this so in foreign countries.

In order to appear beautiful the Burmah girl must have her ears bored. When she is quite young her mother gives a party, and all the guests look on while the girl is thrown on the ground and a golden wire thrust through the lobe of each ear and twisted into a ring. As soon as the wound is healed a bigger wire is put in, and this is followed by a bigger one, until the hole becomes as large in circumference as a man's thumb. Then a plug of gold or silver is put into the ear, and is worn there afterwards as an ornament.

To be considered a Tahitian beauty a lady must have a long nose, and in order to produce an elongated organ of smell she compresses it with wooden contrivances. The Hottentot lady, on the other hand, must have a broad, flat nose if she wishes to be considered pretty.

In some parts of the world the shape of the head is of the utmost importance, and the ladies will compress it into all manner of shapes. The females of Arakhan must, to be beautiful, have broad, smooth, flat foreheads, so when baby girls are born a plate of lead is tied to the head and kept there until the forehead is flatter than a pancake.

An Arabian baby girl, on the seventh day after birth, has six holes bored in her ears, and when she is two months' old heavy gold rings are attached to them, which she is to wear throughout her lifetime.

The mutilation of the teeth is observed by many races. The female members of the Sunda Islanders blacken all their teeth but two with burned cocoanut, while the two excepted teeth are either pulled out and their place taken by gold ones or covered with plates of gold. The ladies of the Malay Archipelago file their teeth into points like those of a saw, and Arabian women not only file their teeth but color them, and stain their lips blue and their fingers and toes red.

In some of the islands of the Pacific the ladies are not considered fashionable unless they wear clothing of mulberry bark, which they beat with mallets and wash, until all the soft parts of its substances have been taken out of it, leaving the textile portion only. Among the wealthy islanders it is the custom for a woman to wear a piece of mulberry bark as much as 30 or 40 feet in length, and this she wraps round her body in the manner of a robe.

BIRD LIFE IN CANADA

Seventy-seven Verities Observed in One Winter by C. W. Nash

People who complain that bird life is practically an unknown thing in Canada during the winter time will no doubt be surprised to know that Mr. Charles W. Nash, ornithologist of the Toronto Museum, located about 77 different species in and around Toronto in one winter. Many of these birds are denizens of the north which find their way south, either on account of exceedingly hard times in their natural haunts, or else because their normal conditions being existent here the boundary line of their peregrinations is extended. On the other hand, the robin, flicker, meadow-lark, and numerous other summer birds never migrate entirely. Wherever there is some extra measure of shelter or some additional supply of food they remain. The service rendered by these birds is enormous. Red-polls and snow-birds in particular are invaluable as weed destroyers, if the snowfall has not been a particularly heavy one; the heads of the taller weeds stick above the snow and the birds feed on the seeds, thus preventing a spread of the plant. Many of these winter birds live on the berries left hanging on the trees, the mountain ash berry, or the berry of the North-West maple, or barberries being typical examples of the winter food of the common grosbeaks. Many birds formerly migratory are now no longer so. A notable instance of this is the common crow, and the reason he stays is that increased cultivation, and particularly the custom of farmers of manuring their land in the winter leaves large quantities of grain on which the birds can feed. There is also the fact that unthreshed corn is often stacked for the winter. The visits of northern birds are erratic and difficult to understand, sometimes one species appearing in great abundance and at other times some other species. Some six years ago the flocks of Canada jay, or Whiskey Jack, as it is called by the lumbermen, appeared here in large numbers. This was their first recorded appearance, in any quantity, since 1837, when the Hon. W. Allen observed a similar visitation. The northern birds particularly prevalent were the pine grosbeaks, evening grosbeaks, red-polls, and an unusually large number of snow bunting or snowbirds as they are commonly called. It appears that the migration of birds is governed almost entirely by the quantity of available food, and if they are able to get a sufficient quantity, and also shelter such as that provided by evergreens, houses, or barns, the birds will remain. The goshawk is another bird present in considerable quantities and although an inveterate foe of rats, mice, and other injurious rodents, he is also a poultry killer. Its particular prey being absent it turns to the farmyard for food, so that in the winter time particularly the presence of this bird of prey is rather a disadvantage than an advantage.

Nelson's Battered Hands

Battling Nelson, who has quit the fight game many times and has finally decided never again to appear in the ring blames it all on his hands. Every other part of him that counts—his jaw, eyes, heart and strength—they're all there. But the fists that have put many a fighter under an anaesthetic are feeble and broken, and they have become useless as a means of earning a living in the ring. Everyone knows what a wonderful fighter Bat was when going at his real clip. He would be just as good to-day if he had a pair of hands he could use. Every bone in them has been broken at least once. "I've made quite a hit at fighting," says Nelson. "But if my hands had been able to stand up under the wear and tear as well as my legs and jaw and eyes and wind, I'd still be there. There's no fun in being a second-rater—and a man can't fight without a pair of hands."

Maeterlinck on Boxing

Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian author, said in an interview on the subject of boxing: "It is the discipline of violence; it is violence civilized by conventions that are almost courtesies. The boxer is never a rowdy. On the contrary, his knowledge gives him self-confidence. Combative instincts are an integral part of our nature; the man who lacks them lacks mental energy."

Cold Water First

Milk pans, pitchers and tumblers which have contained milk, and dishes in which milk and milk puddings have been cooled, should first be rinsed with cold water. Hot water converts the casein of the milk into a kind of cement or glue which is hard to remove.

Blacking Mixed With Milk

This is a proper way to mix blacking: Cut the cake of blacking into small pieces, put it in a saucer and pour over enough sweet milk to make it into a rather thick cream. Blacking mixed in this way helps to prevent the leather from cracking.

EXTRACTED FROM FLOWERS

Flavor of This Pure Sweet Varies According to Its Source

Honey, the sweet juice of flowers prepared for our tables by the honey bee, is the purest and most delicate sweet ever known. The working bees extract it from the flowers and carry it to the waiting comb in the hive. Its fine flavor is not always the same, though it is usually delectable. In the west great stretches of blooming sage furnish honey to millions of bees, and this sage honey is highly esteemed for medicinal as well as table purposes. It has a wild, sharp tang, very different from the dark colored, cloyingly sweet honey made from the buckwheat fed bees or the clear, clover honey.

Honey candies or crystallizes when it becomes chilled, and if heated returns to syrup again, but the comb hardens and may be taken out when the honey is cool. Kept in a temperature around 70, honey will never sugar or spoil, as this is the average temperature of the beehive.

Honey Cakes: These cakes will keep as long as you can keep the key to the cook box hidden. One pint of strained honey, half a pound of powdered sugar, half a pound of butter, the juice of one lemon, one nutmeg grated. Put these ingredients in a mixing bowl and place in a pan of warm water until the butter is soft and the mass slightly warm. Then beat with a cake spoon, and when well mixed add enough flour to make a dough that will roll out in a paste half an inch thick. Cut in rounds and bake in an oven with good bottom heat.

Apples, sweetened with honey and baked, and then served with rice, are a very fine breakfast dish well liked and often met with in France.

ROYALTY A-SAILING

Every Individual of the Entourage Has Private Cabin

Every individual of the Royal entourage is provided with a cabin to himself on the Royal Yacht Victoria and Albert. They are all prettily upholstered in chintzes or cretonnes, and each is provided with a commodious wardrobe, a marble washhand stand, etc. Writing tables are in some cabins, and the secretary's cabin possesses a large roll-topped desk as well.

His Majesty's sleeping cabin and dressing room are next door to those of the Queen. The latter uses the same room as was arranged for Queen Alexandra, practically no alterations having taken place. It is very prettily upholstered in chintz; private photographs and pictures decorate the walls; and there is a large dressing table replete with all the electric appliances requisite for light and heat. There is also a beautiful bathroom.

Her Majesty's private saloon is like a dainty drawing room in a private house, furnished with drawing room lounges and chairs, pretty curtains and cushions, and a grand piano.

Immediately forward of the dining saloon there is a smoking room. This apartment is also furnished in blue morocco and mahogany, and it boasts of a pretty little fireplace. It was here that the late King lay in bed for some weeks after his critical operation for appendicitis, the cabin having been rapidly and dexterously converted into a sickroom. It had the advantage of being large and airy and free from the danger of having to convey the Royal patient down the staircase.

SAD MOMENTS ON THE GREEN

Many of the saddest moments of the golfer's life, writes an enthusiast who signs himself "Straight Drive," are experienced upon the putting greens on those occasions when it seems impossible to get the ball to go toward the hole. I have seen players who have devoted years to practice at the game as helpless as a baby when it came to getting the ball close to the hole on the approach putt. Many writers have gone on record as of the opinion that putting is purely a matter of mental calculation and judgment, while others think that it is a matter of eyesight. So far as I have observed, after having seen nearly all the leading players of the country in action, it is a combination of both. Headwork, judgment, and nerve enter into the stroke in gauging the distance to be covered and calculating the line to the hole, while the matter of aiming so as to accurately catch the back of the cup is one where the man with the better eyesight must prevail.

The question of distance is nicely solved by many players, who carefully walk up to the hole apparently on the lookout for irregularities and the line, but who accurately pace off the exact distance to be made on the stroke and examine the texture of the turf. They have learned by practice how much force to apply for five yards, for ten yards, and further under various conditions, and can usually be depended on to get up to the hole, giving the ball a chance to go down if it reaches the lip of the cup.

A Dressing for Cabbage

Cut in pieces (do not chop or shave fine) as much cabbage as desired to cook. Cover with water and cook until tender, but not dark colored. When done drain, and while hot mix into it a dressing made as follows:

Cream one-third cup of butter and beat into it the yolks of three eggs, one at a time, one-half teaspoon of paprika, one teaspoon of salt and the juice of a lemon. If the lemon is not very juicy use one and a half lemons. Stir this mixture into the hot cabbage, which is sitting on a warm part of the range. When cooked enough pour into a hot serving dish. This dressing very much resembles the Hollandaise sauce and is much easier to make. It is also delicious with cauliflower or brussel's sprouts.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE CIGAR

A French historian has discovered that one hundred years ago, during the siege of Paris by the allied armies, the cigar was first introduced into the French capital by Spanish officers who had attached themselves to Joseph Bonaparte. The manner in which the cigar was taken up at the time by the French Government suggests an idea that might be tried in Washington.

During the tense strain at the siege of Paris, when men's tempers were set on hair triggers, the historian tells us that those who smoked the queer rolls of tobacco were must more tranquil than those who did not. Observing this fact the government promptly ordered the police to seize the available supply and to distribute the cigars among the officers of the army. The effect is said to have been all that could be desired.

The application of this idea to Washington in the approaching canal tolls [illegible] the Senate might produce good results. The chances are that pockets full of cigars would help Senators on both sides of the tolls question to keep peace in the U. S. Senate during the next few weeks.

All The Tired Nervous Women

Can Find a Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Madame Perreault Tells How She Cured Her Kidneys With Dodd's Kidney Pills, and Found Health and Contentment.

Verner, Ont., May 1.—(Special.)—"I am very content. Dodd's Kidney Pills have made me well," Those are the words of Madame Eugene Perrault, a highly respected lady of this place, and mother of a large family. For twenty years she was a sufferer. But, let her tell her own story.

"I was always tired and nervous," she states. "I felt heavy and sleepy after meals. My limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across my loins. My skin itched and burned at night. I had a bitter taste in my mouth, especially in the morning. In twenty years I hardly knew what it was to have a well moment. Then I commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes cured me."

Madame Perreault's symptoms were those of kidney disease. They are the symptoms of nine out of ten of the nervous, run-down pain-wrecked women of Canada. Madame Perrault found a speedy and complete cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills. They simply cured her kidneys.

ENGLISH AS SHE IS SPELLED

This may revive recollection of the lamented Artemus Ward, but it was not penned by the gentle showman, nor was Josh Billings the composer:

"It wud be a great servis to the speling reform moovment if, insted ov only trying to introduse new sistems ov uniform speling, attempts wer made toards breaking the comon idea that it iz important that evry one shud spel alike; and to teech the English speeking peepl that it iz ov litl importans whether they aul spel alike or not providing that the speling they use clerly indicates the right pronunsiashon ov the wurd. In the 18th and erly 19th senturies peepl ov the hiest rank spelt as they choze and wer quite rite in doing so. It is not ov the leest importans whether we spel 'box' b-o-x or b-o-k-s, and 'next' would be just az good and az eezy to reed if spelt n-e-k-s-t."

The lines are from Dr. G. B. Hunter, a leading advocate of the movement in Great Britain "for making English spelling more rational." For a brief period the U. S. Congressional Record was printed in a nearly similar style of frenzied orthography by order of Col. Roosevelt when President, but Congress presently directed a restoration of sanity, and it does not appear that the colonel long nurtured his fad. Although the members of the simplified spelling board doubtless are sincere in their notions of phonetic propriety, the good faith of some of the educators who endorse the so-called reform may be questioned in view of the poor quality of instruction in the art of spelling given in numerous institutions of learning. The simplified spelling can certainly be a cloak for a large amount of ignorance in that direction.

David Sim, thirty-two, a pit inspector, met a terrible death at the Fran[illegible] Dysart. Sim was going on duty about eleven o'clock at night and after being served with his lamp proceeded to the pit-mouth. Under the impression that the cage was at the pit-mouth, Sim opened the gate and, stepping into the shaft, was precipitated to the pit bottom, a distance of 840 feet. The unfortunate man was literally dashed to pieces.

THE ICEBERG DANGER

New Devices for Warning Ship of Approaching Danger

Since the terrible Titanic disaster, scientists and engineers have devoted much time and attention to devising means by which ships may detect the vicinity of icebergs. The old method consisted of lowering a thermometer into the water when the iceberg zone was being approached, the distance of the icebergs being judged according to the temperature of the water in the vicinity.

Since the increase in the speed of big liners, however, this method has been found to be quite inadequate, being neither safe, quick, nor accurate. One of the most reliable inventions for detecting icebergs at sea seems to that of Dr. Coplans, of the University of Leeds, who invented an apparatus which detects the presence of icebergs by giving readings of the saline contents of the water. The nearer an iceberg is to the ship the less is the amount of salt held in solution in the water. The Canadian Government assisted Dr. Coplans in his investigations.

Another invention of which high hopes are entertained is what is known as the microthermometer, an instrument enabling very much closer readings of the temperature of the water to be obtained than is possible with an ordinary thermometer. It is also self-recording.

Submarine signalling, too, for the prevention of disasters in foggy weather, is also being closely studied by experts, for it is recognized that there is much room for improvement in the signalling apparatus used at the present time on board ship.

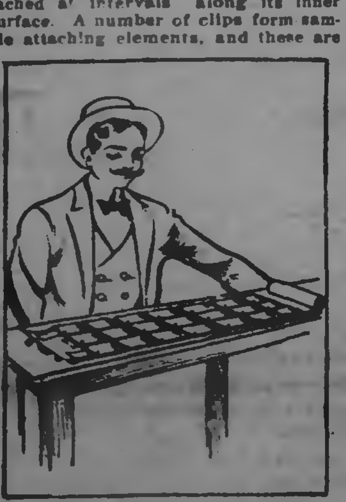
The modern system of submarine signalling consisted of bells sunk in at least 20 feet of water, operated by electricity or pneumatic or hydraulic pressure. It is said that a submarine bell can be heard at a greater distance than any fog-horn, siren, or any other generally used air signal or device, and it is recorded that one of these bells was heard at a distance of from ten to fifteen miles.

The receiving apparatus is very simple, consisting of two cast-iron tanks, which are placed below the water-line on either side of the ship's bows and in contact with the shell of the ship. In each tank is the microphone, which is connected by an electric telephone system with the bridge. There the navigating officer has suitable receivers and switches which enable him to listen on either side of the ship. If he alters the course of the ship on hearing the bell so that the intensity of the sound is equal on both sides of the ship then the bell lies straight in front, and according to the intensity of the various sounds he is able to avoid danger.

ROLL SAMPLE CASE

Samples Take up Little Room and do not Become Mussed

An ingenious case for dress goods and other fabric samples has been designed. It rolls up closely and makes a compact bundle, yet the samples are not wrinkled or mussed in the process. A long piece of flexible material has a series of narrow straps removably attached at intervals along its inner surface. A number of clips form sample attaching elements, and these are removably fastened to the straps. The clips, for example, are run through a bunch of fabrics and hooked onto the straps. The bunches are mounted in the case in transverse rows, with room enough between them to permit of the free and smooth rolling of the strip without wrinkling or creasing the goods. If the salesman desires to remove any particular bunch of samples for closer inspection he can do it—and replace it—instantly.



SAMPLES EASILY REMOVED.

To bleach celery without the constant labor required to heap soil about it as it grows a bright gardener invented strips of webbing, supported by large wire staples, to be placed about the growing plants.

Problems of the Large Employer

In the small factory, frequently managed by a resident owner, the continuance of a system of direct contact between employer and worker has generally operated to maintain and perpetuate harmonious relations. The problem before the large corporation-owned plant is to provide that ready touch which, by emphasizing the essential community of interests, establishes a sense of unity and fellowship. It can be done only by making this oneness of aim and interest a reality, and not merely the occasion for pleasant speech-making. It cannot be done by reducing wages; it may be done by dividing profits. Success depends principally on an unfailing insight into the needs and problems of the body of employes, and that insight can only be obtained by sharing the problems of management with the men. The degree to which employers are prepared to go in this direction is a sound indication of their earnestness in desiring the removal of the prevailing mood of discontent.

THE FANATICAL ORANGE DRAGOON.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Dear Sir.—Below you will find something that the electors of Peterborough should look at. There are many "broadminded" Protestants helping the cause in this locality. Let us run them up higher. Here is the article:

"The West Canada, a Roman church paper printed in Winnipeg, in February said: "Wherever it is possible in the province to put up a Catholic candidate let it be done. Away with the Orangemen! The better and more reasonable part of our non-Catholic citizens will be on our side and with their help we shall succeed in cutting off the head once and for all of the fanatical Orange dragon."

Thanking you, Mr. Editor for your valuable space, I am, Yours truly.

MY MOTHER'S PRAYER.

I never can forget the day
I heard my mother kindly say,
"You're leaving now my tender care;
Remember, child, your mother's prayer,"

Whene'er I think of her so dear
I feel as if she still were here
A voice comes floating on the air.
Reminding me of mother's prayer.

I never can forget the voice
That always made my heart rejoice;
Tho' I have wander'd God knows where,
Still I remember mother's prayer.

Tho' years have gone, I can't forget
Those words of love, I hear them yet;
I see her by the old armchair,
My mother dear, in humble prayer.

I never can forget the hour
I felt the Saviour's cleansing pow'r;
My sin and guilt He cancell'd there;
'Twas there he answered mother's prayer.

O, praise the Lord for saving grace,
We'll meet up yonder, face to face
The home above together share
In answer to my mother's prayer.

HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT

Mr. Archie McCuaig, a farmer of Priceville, Ontario, has made a vigorous reply on behalf of the farming community to the demand for trunk roads of a high-class, permanent sort, with deep ditches for proper drainage. Mr. McCuaig pictures the farmer mortgaging his land for the luxury of travelling in the ditch or along the road fence, while joy-riders occupy his expensive and well built trunk road. The first need in rebuilding the roads of the country, he asserts, is modern bridges. Old bridges need renewal in every direction, and there is no available timber with which to replace them. The farmer depends on thrashing outfits travelling over these roads, and accidents have already been reported in which engines have broken through. Mr. McCuaig suggests that the first grants should be devoted to the building and maintaining of bridges.

Innocence or Ignorance— Which Prevails Socially?

"PEACH BLOOM"—that's the name of a play

It hasn't been played yet; it's in a book and it's being circulated from hand to hand by the American Vigilance Association.

It came to me in the mail the other day, such a nice, pretty, neat little volume.

The name made me catch my breath. "Thank goodness," I breathed to the Irish terrier, "Blazer, I'm going to have a good time at last. I'm going to sit down and read something clean and sweet and fragrant—for once; I'm going to forget that I ever heard the word vice and that there's such a place as a den in the world. I'm going to read about something that will make me feel a little less than a thousand years old. I'm going to stop being as wise as a serpent and be for this afternoon as harmless as the dove."

It wasn't any of these things at all; it was what my typewriter called a "sexplanation" the other day. I've adopted that word since; isn't it a good one? Well, "Peach Bloom" wasn't a story at all, or even a collection of essays; it was a play—save the mark—and it was just a "sexplanation" from cover to cover.

All about the white slave traffic and the white slaves and the white slavers, and not one single hideous detail was glossed over for one single [illegible] moment.

A Result of Experience.

It was clever and well written and "strong" and vital, that play called "Peach Bloom," but I threw it across the room just as hard as I could and got Blazer to go and worry it—which he did with the greatest of delight. He knows just how I feel about that book, and every time he sees me coming he runs and gets it out from under the couch and worries it, and then comes and lays his head upon my knee to be approved.

Blazer, sometimes I wish that I were you or something like you. I do get so tired of being human.

Things seem so simple and natural and real in your world somehow, Blazer. When you like any one your just say so with your eyes and with your whole body, and that's all there is to it.

The persons you like may be mean and sordid and cruel and small minded and stupid and poor and rejected of men—but you like them, and that settles it. You'll follow them through flood and famine, through fire and brimstone, through neglect and cruelty, to the end of the world.

We're growing old, Blazer, you and I. We must be to be so bored by vice.

I remember when it used to give me lovely shivers to read about "The Lure of Lilith." And I can think of the time when I shivered deliciously all through "Zaza" and the rest of the Magdalene plays from "Camille" down. But somehow, since I've been acquainted with Lilith, she isn't half so interesting to me—as she was in a book.

No "Explanations" Needed.

At any dinner there are just two topics of conversation, the new steps in the tango and the white slave traffic. Oh, yes, I heard a girl of eighteen talking to a grinning old fossil of seventy about the traffic the other night, and across the table from her a girl of twenty-two was asking the clergyman who had taken her in to dinner what he thought of the difference between innocence and ignorance; and I must say for the clergyman that he looked a trifle embarrassed.

Perhaps it was because there were so many other people in the room, or so few.

I've heard him tell the most astonishing stories at mothers' meetings and never even try to pretend to blush.

I wish somebody would burn up all the books and the plays and the handbills and the lectures and the newspapers that have anything in them about the "Lure of Vice," and let's see what would happen if we tried to get along for twenty-four hours without any more "sexplanations."

I thank you, good machine, for that most convenient word.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie.

I am 18 years old, and I attend quite a number of dances. My friend is always criticizing the way I talk in company. Do you think that it is ignorance to talk a little bit different when in company? INNOCENT.

WHAT do you mean when you say that you talk a little bit different when in company?

Are you a nice, sensible, straightforward, candid girl when you're in business, and do you turn into a silly, little, affected creature when you go to parties?

I've seen girls like that, and I've always liked them so much better when they were themselves.

"In company," what do you mean by that?

People are people, and party dresses don't make you a single bit different from the girl you are when you are answering the telephone or writing "dear sir."

Be yourself, be simple, be natural, be real, and you'll feel a lot more comfortable all the time.

And so will your friends.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

RICE MOUSSE.

Cook half a cupful of rice in three pints of milk until tender, then add two eggs blended with two tablespoonfuls of sugar, stirring constantly until very thick and creamy, allow it to cool and then whip in a pint of stiffly beaten cream and a cupful of peach pulp sweetened to taste, and a drop or two of almond extract. Pour the mixture into a [illegible] mould, decorated with a selection of crystallized fruit and pack in ice and salt (rock) for three hours before using; when unmoulded, surround the base of the mousse with alternate macaroons and lady fingers pressed lightly into the frozen cream. This is a [illegible] novelty in desserts, and is as delicious as it is attractive.

MARMALADE PUDDING.

Mix together two ounces each of breadcrumbs and well-chopped suet, an ounce of castor sugar, and a small pinch of [illegible]. Beat up an egg; stir into it two ounces of orange marmalade and two tablespoonfuls of milk. Add to the dry ingredients. If not moist enough add a little more milk. Stir well. Pour into a buttered basin and steam for an hour and a half.

PORK CHEESE.

Cut up into dice-shaped pieces one pound of cold roast pork freed from skin and gristle, and four ounces of solid fat. Bring a pint of stock, made from pork trimmings, to the boil. Add half an ounce of gelatine and pepper and salt to season. Place the prepared meat in a small mould, previously rinsed out with cold water. Fill up with the stock; place in a moderate oven and bake for about an hour.

APPLE FLOAT.

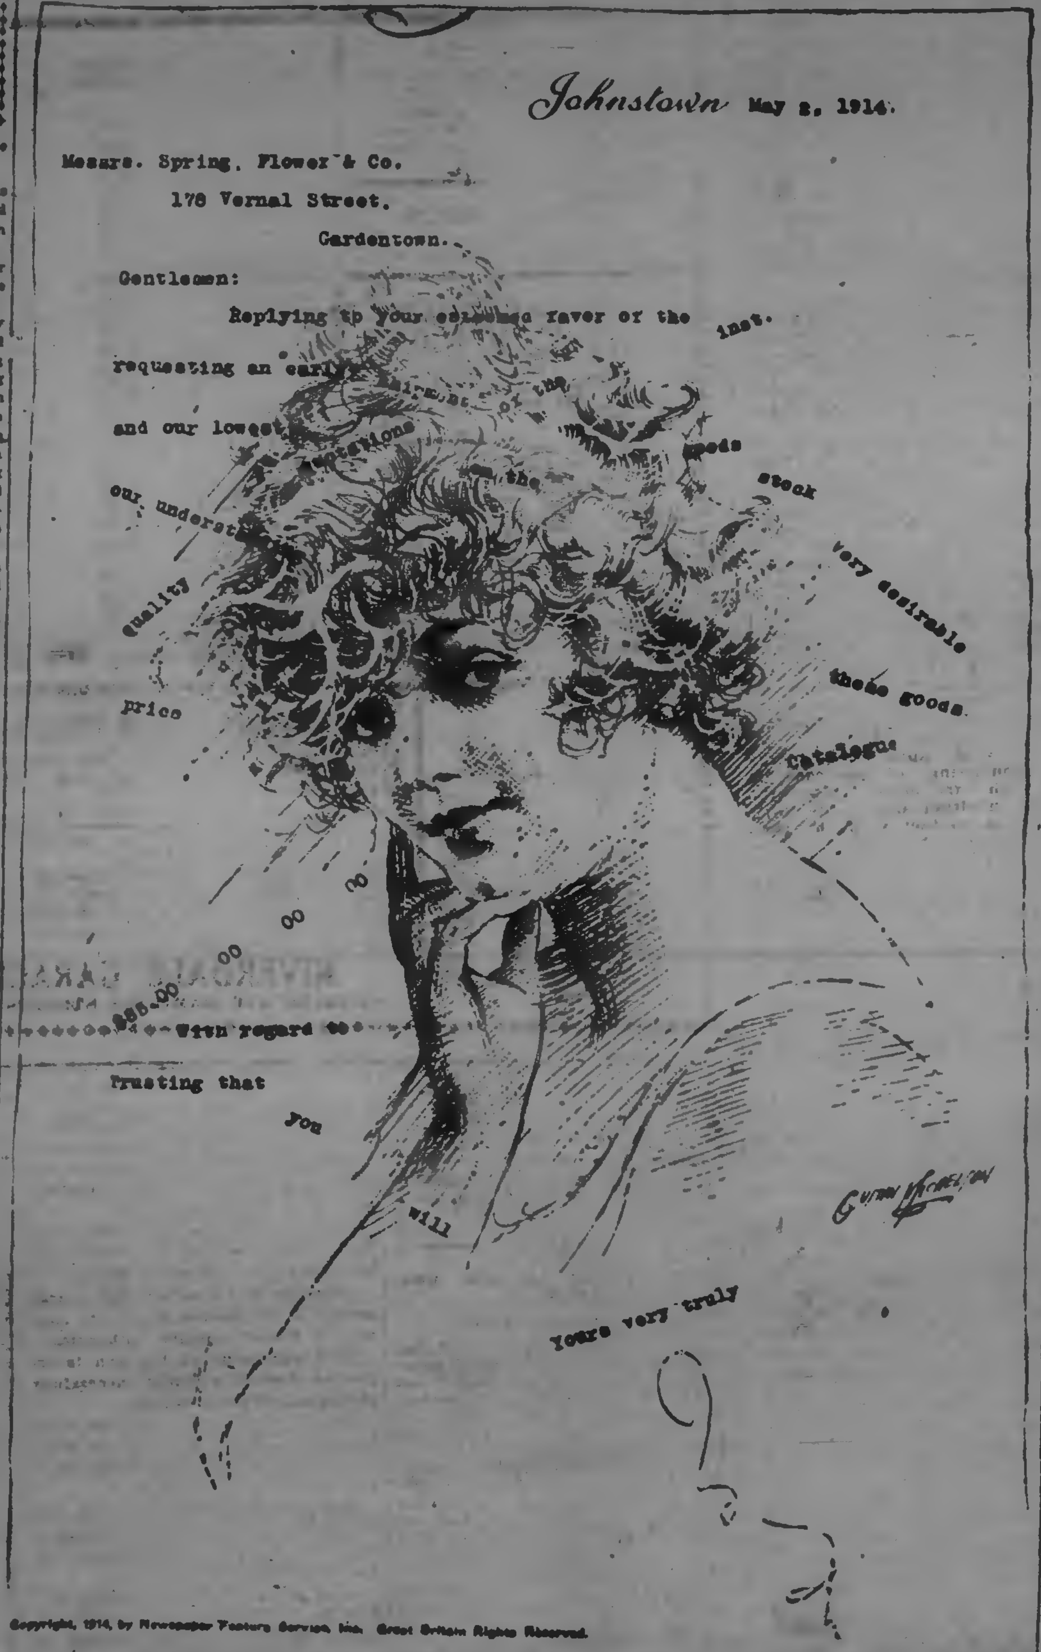
Pare, core and slice two pounds of good cooking apples. Add enough water to prevent them from burning, and simmer until soft enough to be passed through a sieve. Sweeten to taste. Whip the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth. Add the apple pulp a tablespoonful at a time, and beat until perfectly stiff. Make a custard with the yolks of the eggs and a pint of milk, sweetened to taste, and flavored with vanilla. Pour it into a glass dish, add the apple mixture, and serve very cold.

GINGERBREAD.

Sift a pound and a half of dry flour into a basin. Add two ounces each of ground ginger and allspice and an ounce of carbonate of soda. Make a well in the centre. Pour in half a pound each of honey and dark treacle. Mix in from the sides. Knead into a pliable paste. Place in a well-oiled, shallow tin (two inches is a good depth). Leave in a warm place for an hour, brush over with white of egg, and bake in a moderate oven. If liked two ounces of ground almonds can be added.

A BUSINESS LETTER—IN THE SPRING

By Michelson



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

AT the first glance it seems, to the young man who starts to read it, pretty much like any other business letter.

But it is May, and the buds are busy and the early green is giving its prophecies of fairyland. At such a season it is notorious that one's mind is with difficulty concentrated on business. Images dance in the brain and float out to intercept the hard realities. So that before the young man has read a couple of lines he begins to see something that isn't really on the paper. The typewriting (by some OTHER girl) begins to wobble and struggle with the image of the ONE girl who is most important. The letter melts into an incoherent mess, and there SHE is, her eyes as tantalizingly real as the day, and as wonderful.

There shouldn't be any business in the Spring. Really, it's too much of a jolt to come back to business.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Entertaining a Husband.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

I WAS pretty tired. That began it, I think. Anyway, I was dimly aware at dinner that Mary was unusually bright and talkative.

"Peter, dear," she said, sweetly, "do let me tell you about my afternoon!"

"Yes, do," I assented, absently, wondering just why Mary had favored me with such an arch, coquettish glance.

"Well, then," she went on in sprightly tones that drew my attention, "I went to a church fair with Mrs. Warden in her car. And there were ever so many people there!"

"Yes?" I encouraged.

"And they did have some dreadfully sour lemonade. I bought some for Mrs. Warden and she drank it bravely, I must say, but just as I felt the lemon climbing up behind my ears I looked away and made a face and gulped and she was doing the same. Wasn't it funny? We both laughed so. 'My!' she said, 'that was a dreadfully robust lemon, wasn't it?'"

Mary waited for me to laugh, but I was too tired.

"Peter," she complained, "I think that was really very funny. Lots of other people laughed."

"They laughed," said I cynically, "because Mrs. Warden has money. You can perpetrate any sort of joke you choose if you own a motor car. I should think most jokesmiths would make it part of their trade equipment. You get the laughs—and they get the rides."

"Peter!" exclaimed Mary.

"Don't mind me," I said. "I'm tired and my alibis are rather porous. Ideas fall out, chiefly the worst ones, too, and the very ones I ought to suppress."

"Then," went on Mary, with another of those mysterious sidelong glances alive with beautiful frequency, "then there was a tent with a gypsy fortune teller at the fair and the fortune teller told Mrs. Warden the most dreadful things about her husband—"

"Did she tell how he stays [illegible] nights and pumps the piano [illegible] while Mrs. Warden is out doing [illegible] society act?" I inquired cautiously.

Mary looked hurt and again I begged her pardon. I was really very tired and irritable.

Mary took heart and began afresh.

"And then there was a log cabin made of papier-mache logs and you bought a log and every log had something in it, and of course you didn't know what you were going to get for your money. It was a gamble——"

"All those things are gambles," I suggested wearily. "Lots of men I know say that the lotteries at church fairs are worse than Wall street. In Wall street you do get stung with pitiful frequency, but at a church fair you're stung every time without fail. You haven't a ghost of a chance."

"What a horrid, cynical thing to say!" said Mary, and her lips quivered. I reformed on the spot.

We adjourned to the library and Mary continued to favor me with beautiful, bewildering glances. Utterly mystified at the meaning of it all, I slipped comfortably into my big chair by the fire and, I'm ashamed to confess, went to sleep in the middle of a description of a cake auctioned off to somebody or other at the end of the afternoon.

"A raffle, eh?" I inquired drowsily.

Mary looked scandalized, then she burst into tears.

"Peter," she said, "I'll never, never try to be nice to you again. Didn't I read in a newspaper that if you did your best to be polite and pleasant to your husband and tried to entertain him just as you would before you were married, he'd always respond? And here I've tried it on you and and you went to sleep!"

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Your "All in" Feeling Seldom True Fatigue

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

ARCHBISHOP LEIGHTON said that if he were to choose a place to die in it should be an inn; it looked like a pilgrim's home, to whom this world was all an inn. When you are weary with the noise and confusion of life, you can there rest your tired bones. The archbishop obtained his desired wish, for he died at the Belle Inn in Warwick Lane.

Weariness does not come only from physical exertion. The feeling of fatigue may be sensual, muscular or reflective. That is to say, you may think you are tired, your exertions may actually fatigue you, or you may feel tired much beyond any real state of exhaustion.

To lessen your strength by worries, intellectual difficulties, the troubles of experience, long-continued physical exertion, or the other harassing turmoils of life, may give you either true fatigue or a deceptive sense of weariness.

To utter more than an occasional "How tired I am" and to yawn violently and stretch your arms do not prove that you are really weary. One southbound robin does not make a winter, nor a dozen yawns show fatigue.

When your eye becomes fatigued to red, you do not feel tired when you mistake it for green. A sense of the loss of strength which follows certain sorts of labor, the exhaustion that ensues upon deeds of daring may be out of all proportion to real fatigue.

In fine, feeling tired is no index to being tired. The girl who has dolled herself up at habit makers all day and danced 47 dances at night and into the wee, small hours, if she falls upon the shoulders of Harold, who proposes at 3 A. M., does not feel exhausted.

Indeed, she and her happy mamma are happier and more buoyant, readier for new fields of physical conquest, than 90 per cent. of the other less successful girls who have slept all the previous day and danced little at night.

To win a race, to capture a prize, to receive honor, approbation, hero-worship, removes and shifts below into the unconscious all sense of weariness.

In contradistinction to this, all disappointments, failures, worries, sicknesses, troubles and blows imaginary or real, enhance the conviction that you are "all in," "done up," "played out," "good-for-nothing more," "unable to go another step," "tired to death," "weary beyond words," and so on.

Even stock words and phrases, songs and people pall upon you, if you allow that point of view to prevail. Things become faded and worn; you grow blase to your surroundings and your experiences, your pleasures and your labors.

All of these matters are examples of a sense of fatigue. The eye fails to respond to the real colors; the ear will not take in sounds; the nose turns skyward.

One of the maladies of idleness is a pathogenic exaggeration of the sensations of fatigue. Laziness and lassitude are no more fatigue in themselves than your tired feelings after eight hours' work.

Happy is he whose toil has over his languid limbs diffused a seemingly powerless, pleasant lassitude. Then he may be up and doing, and force himself with a right good will to do another task.

This explains why those who are pleased with their work, who are at home in their occupations, who are pleasant, lively, jovial and happy in their endeavors are better able to perform their appointed tasks.

Such hearty souls, girls and boys, housewives and wage-earners, mothers and merchants are necessarily more robust, palpitating with health, more economical, and more efficient than others.

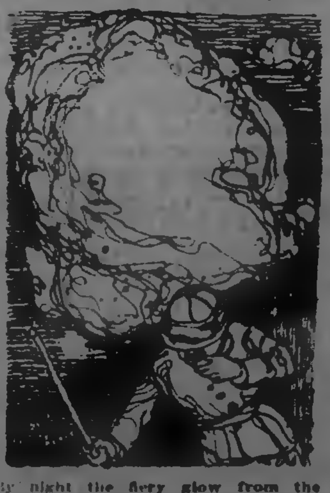
Three Minute Journeys

Nature's Turkish Bath—By Temple Manning



IT is a long, hard row from Upolu, the seat of German government in Samoa, to the scene of what I believe is one of the wonder sights of the Pacific—the subterranean volcano on the island of Savaii. But if the traveller permits several relatives of his boatmen to accompany them and remembers to thank them every ten or twenty minutes for being so good as to "perspire in his behalf"—to which they will invariably answer that it is "an honor"—the trip will be made really pleasant. And the end will assuredly justify the journey.

Of the ten islands in the Samoan group Savaii is unique. It presents a striking picture of luxuriant life and desolate death. On one side of the island, up to the village of Fagamalo, the land is fertile; breadfruit trees, cocoanuts, bananas and other fruits abound. On the other side all vegetation is gone; where the lava streams have not laid waste ashes have destroyed the forests and almost all signs of previous habitation. This section now lies cold and forbidding—to the point almost at the ocean edge, where a new volcano has broken out.

This spot is approached best by water—up to a discreet distance. For at least a mile at sea the water is hot, growing hotter to the boiling point as the land is approached. If you wish to believe the natives, a dip in this lava-hot brine will cure almost any muscular ailment. I can vouch for its exhilarating effect at any rate.

The lava stream, coming out under the water into about twenty fathoms, sends up an enormous volume of smoke and steam, and its ashes are immediately cast up again with terrific force, moulded into the shape of pellets by the action of the sea.

By day this sign of nature's own Turkish bath may be seen as a pillar of smoke at least twenty miles away. By night the fiery glow from the crater is visible from almost the same distance.

One will fancy a glimpse into the nether regions when he looks over the brink of this crater. This is about two hundred yards wide at the top, and the walls are nearly vertical. At a depth of, perhaps, two hundred feet is a seething lake of red hot lava—a glowing, bubbling, gurgling devil's cauldron. This constantly emits immense quantities of vapor in vicious puffs—poisonous, sulphurous fumes.

There comes into the heart of the papalagi (foreigner) a sense of awe. This is a manifestation of power beyond the ability of mere man to comprehend. The desire to descend the hill and get away from the dreadful lake and the utter loneliness and desolation of its surroundings is overpowering.

The guide books have not as yet listed this by-trip, but Savaii will give value received to the most blase globe trotter.

With the Bark on

The sober second thought so often advised must be preceded by a first.

SKILL IN PLANNING MEALS

How the Printed Menu Card Originated Years Ago

There is, says a writer on the construction of menus, a decided art in planning a menu, and the cook or housekeeper who is to succeed must have imagination as a guide, a knowledge of foodstuffs and their value, and a resolution to avoid the obvious and prevent the monotony that is the deadly foe of gastronomical ambition. The little homely menu of soup, meat and vegetables, and a sweet, is quite simply arranged, but even its selection takes both ingenuity and skill. Thought, originality, novelty, simplicity and taste go to the construction of all menus. Three points have to be given due emphasis where catering is to be done in the wider sense—the choice of food, the cooking of the various dishes and methods of serving.

The best planned menu may be spoiled if the cook is indifferent, for all food should be of first-class quality, plates hot or cold as required, and every course served exactly. Choice rather than quantity is the motto of the hostess of to-day. The late Earl of Dudley considered the following a dinner for an epicure: A good clear soup, a turbotin, neck of venison, duckling and green peas or a chicken with asparagus and a fruit tart.

Emperors who feasted copiously and sumptuously had no menu card, so they often spoiled their enjoyment of a banquet by eating too much of one dish, and finding themselves compelled to pass over something they specially liked. In days when 58 courses were not extraordinary this might easily occur. The Duke of Brunswick in 1541 got the master of the kitchen to write out the list of dishes, and he kept it under his plate and consulted it as the banquet proceeded. The idea became popular, and gradually led on to the printed menu of to-day.

A MONEY-MAKING IDEA

Women Should Find Ready Sale For Automobile Comforts

There are great money-making possibilities for the woman who will supply the demand, or even anticipate the demand, for automobile "comforts." People sometimes do not realize how uncomfortable they have been until you show them how really comfortable they might be. Among the comforts a woman can make are eiderdown bags, into which the feet are thrust and which are drawn well up over the lap. Eiderdown caps and gloves may be made to match the bags; or instead of bags some prefer leggings which fasten closely. Chest protectors may also be made either of chamois skin or of silk well lined with paper.

Besides articles of wearing apparel there is a demand for other things for the automobile. One is a traveller's case made with pockets to contain comb, brush, and other toilet accessories. A cushion is not amiss. Heavy robes are also in demand. Linen bags that button up are useful for stowing away articles that must be kept free from dust.

How a Youth [illegible] a Position in a Bank

When Sir Edmund Walker, now president of the Bank of Commerce was general manager of that institution, he [illegible] surprised [illegible]. In response to a [illegible] at his private office and [illegible] in, there appeared a [illegible] about fourteen years of age [illegible] but neatly dressed.

"Well, [illegible]" [illegible] the banker, not unkindly. "What [illegible] I do for you?"

"Please, [illegible] a job, sir."

"How do you happen to come in here, and who sent you?"

"No one, sir."

"Then how did you find your way up?"

"By the same way as you did, sir."

"What way is that?"

"Why, you have it printed on the door downstairs," remarked the urchin.

"What's on the door?"

"Push," replied the lad. The clever chap was given a position before he left the building.

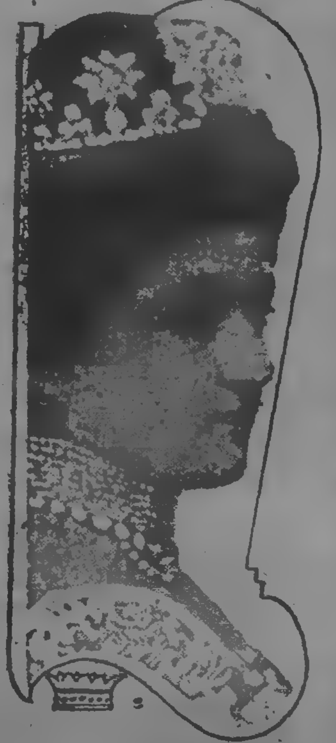
THE RABIES GERM

It May Lie Dormant For a Number of Months

A remarkable case is reported of a soldier in India who died of hydrophobia caused by the bite of a monkey, which was bitten by a small dog six months before. It is an illustration of the length of time in which the virus of hydrophobia may lie dormant in the system of warm-blooded animals. Usually, from six weeks to two months elapse before hydrophobic symptoms manifest themselves in human beings. Such symptoms are ushered in by dulness, depression, irritability, and general ill-health. To these indications succeeds a slight difficulty in swallowing, which becomes worse as the disease advances, and hoarseness of the voice, or "barking," as it is termed, ensues. The temperature rises, the difficulty of swallowing increases, the patient, although tortured by thirst, has so violent an antipathy to liquids that the sound of splashing water may bring on a fit of convulsions, and in the delirium which sometimes attends the later stages of hydrophobia the victim may even attempt to bite his attendants. After two or three days of intense suffering death may result either from general exhaustion, from heart failure, or from asphyxia due to the spasms of the throat.

Until Pasteur, in 1885, made his discovery of an anti-toxin for rabies there was for human beings only a slender chance of recovery from the bite of a mad dog. The barbarous surgery of a red-hot iron applied to the wound was sometimes resorted to as was also the use of the cupping glass and the application of [illegible] caustics. Pasteur inoculated [illegible] with the virus of hydrophobia [illegible] from their spinal cords [illegible] an extract for use hypodermically.

In 1888 the Pasteur Institute [illegible] founded in Paris. Thousands of people have been treated there [illegible] death-rate from hydrophobia has [illegible] reduced to less than one per [illegible]. All over the world institutes [illegible] on the Paris establishment have been founded, and are doing equally beneficent work.



QUEEN WEARS CORAL TO HELP FISHERMEN

The coral industry on the Mediterranean coast had fallen into such a condition that the fishermen and coral dealers appealed to Queen Helena of Italy for assistance. She immediately ordered a collar of red coral and placed clusters of red coral in her tiara. Other women followed her example and the coral industry is now prosperous again.

Lord Murray's Gifts

Since his return from abroad, Lord Murray of Elibank has made some additional gifts to the museum attached to the Chambers Institution, Peebles. The gifts are natural specimens secured during his travels in Ecuador, and include fifty rare humming birds, a magnificent specimen of the peculiar fire bird, some curious beetles, a beautiful specimen of the coral snake, and a well-preserved skin of an enormous python measuring 20 feet in length.

"Excess of Sport," declared Lord Methuen, in presenting badges to the members of the Ramsbury detachment of the Wiltshire National Reserve, "is going the right way to bring about compulsory service. We must recognise that as a nation we are in favor, I do not say wisely or unwisely, of a voluntary system. But it is no use thousands of young fellows wandering to football and cricket matches when they should be doing their duty, and gentlemen spending their time at golf who ought to be officers."

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing col[illegible] of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

It is Often of More Value Than Less Simple Remedies

There is no remedy of such general application and none so easily attainable as water, says a physician. Yet nine persons in ten will pass by it in an emergency to seek for something of less value.

A strip of flannel or a napkin folded lengthwise and dipped in hot water, wrung out and then applied around the neck of a child that has the croup will usually bring relief in ten minutes.

A towel folded several times and dipped [illegible] and quickly wrung out [illegible] over the seat of the pain in toothache or neuralgia will generally afford prompt relief. This treatment in colic often works like a charm.

It would be difficult to find a shorter cut to relieving congestion of the lungs, sore throat or rheumatism, than hot water when applied.

A sprained ankle has been cured by showering it with hot water poured from a height of three feet in so brief a time as an hour.

Pieces of cotton batting dipped in hot water and applied to old sores, new cuts, bruises and sprains are used very generally in hospitals.

A Kitchen Calendar

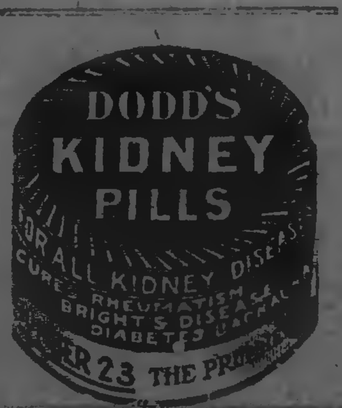
"I can't keep house without it," said a careful housekeeper when a friend noticed the large calendar, like those used in business offices, which hung on her kitchen wall. It was a white calendar, with black figures an inch and a half large, which her husband brought from his office. On the squares of the dates, she marked each day the ice delivery, the number of bottles of milk, and dates for guests or special dinners in which the kitchen was interested. Certain evenings that she wished the maid to stay in, etc., were also marked on the calendar, which thus served as an accurate reminder to both mistress and maid.

Soap Keeps Away Moths

When storing blankets it is an excellent plan to put a few pieces of dry yellow soap amongst the folds. The soap keeps away moths. Then if you shake the blankets from time to time in the sun they will keep in perfect condition when they are required for use.

First Submarine

The earliest known patent upon a submarine vessel was one granted by a French king in 1640 to the Scotch inventor of an under-water craft for purposes of salvage.



Protection in Mid-air

An English engineer proposes to defend his country in event of war by suspending bombs from balloons, which could be exploded from the ground when approached by a hostile dirigible or aeroplane.

Of English invention is a signal automatically operated by the clutch pedal to display the word "slow" or "stop" beside an automobile rear light as a warning to following drivers.

Signs of Another "Revival"

Incidents similar to those which ushered in the Welsh Revival of 1906 are again being witnessed in Wales. There was a series of revival scenes in the quarry village of Llanddulas, and an exhibition of fervor at Colwyn Bay.

MARVELLOUS BALSAMIC ESSENCES CURE CATARRH NO DRUGS TO TAKE--A DIRECT BREATHING CURE

Statistics Prove Ninety-seven Per Cent. of Canada's Population is Infested With the Germ of Catarrh.

This disease is most dangerous owing to its tendency to extend to the Bronchial tubes and lungs, where it causes Consumption. Unfortunately the people have had faith in sprays, ointments and snuffs, which can't possibly cure, and in consequence catarrhal disease has become a national curse. Science is advancing every day discovered that not only cures but prevents Catarrh. This new treatment and fortunately a remedy has been "Catarrhozone" has sufficient power to kill the germs of Bronchitis, Catarrh and Asthma. It contains pure pine essences and healing balsams that go to the remotest part of the nose, throat and lungs, carrying health-giving medication to every spot that is tainted or weak. You don't take Catarrhozone like cough mixture—you inhale its healing vapor at the mouth and it spreads all through the breathing organs, soothing and curing wherever Catarrh exists. This is nature's way of supplying the richest balsams, the purest antiseptics known to science.

A sneezing cough is cured in ten minutes. A harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system.

For Asthma and Bronchial irritation nothing can equal Catarrhozone —every physician and druggist says so, and we advise our readers to try this treatment if suffering with a winter ill. The complete outfit costs $1.00, medium size 50c., at all dealers.

Contradictory Testimony

At the Division Court yesterday before His Honor Judge Huycke, a citizen claimed to have loaned a friend $30 of which only $5 was repaid. The friend claimed that he only borrowed $5 which he repaid. The plaintiff and defendant were the only witnesses heard. Judgement was given for $5 for the plaintiff.

Snow In Lindsay.

Lindsay Warder : The last day of April and snow. This is no April Fool joke, but a fact, there being a light fall of snow very early this morning in Lindsay. At Haliburton, it is understood, that there was quite a heavy fall, and that the ground was mantled with snow when the residents awoke this morning.

A Brock Street Real Estate Deal.

Mr. J. W. Butcher who carries on the 10 cent store on George St. has purchased the property on Brock St. between the Windsor Hotel and Dr. Carmichael's office. This was owned and occupied formerly by Mr. Hudson the artist and taxedermist. Mr. Butcher will temporarily use his recent acquisition as a store house.

Pool Room Case Questioned.

The magistrate's decision in the pool room case in which Raymond Sullivan was fined $100 will be tested before Judge Huycke. Yesterday Mr. Widdifield, of the firm of Gordon and Widdifield, served notice of appeal on Police Chief Thompson. Sullivan was convicted on the ground that while he was in charge of Joe's pool room, he permitted a gambling pool game to be played there.

New Factory For Lindsay.

Lindsay Warder : Mr. B. Cooper of Toronto, President of the Cooper Cap Co., and Mr. C. D. Wilder, travelling salesman for the same firm, were in town the other day looking over the town with a view to establishing a branch factory in Lindsay. In conversation with a local citizen, Mr. Cooper stated that they wished to establish another factory to take care of their Eastern Canada trade, owing to the congestion in their ware house at Toronto.

Sunshine Brightened His Cell.

Hugh Flood received news that his half-sister, the late Mrs. McManus of this city, had remembered him in her will to the extent of $1,000. Mr. Flood, who was formerly employed at the Canadian General Electric plant here, was confined to a cell in Calgary police station when attorneys informed him that Mrs. McManus had bequeathed $1,000 to him. Flood who left the city some time ago for the west, was fined for driving a vehicle which he had charge of, on account of driving on the wrong side of the street.

Old Local Story Recalled.

And now Lindsay citizens who own gardens are kicking over hens being allowed to run at large. This reminds us of an old story about the town council of Peterborough. Many years ago when the town was considering a by-law to prohibit cattle running at large, a councillor, since dead, rose to a point of information. The late Mr. James Stevenson was Mayor at the time. The councillor asked: "Mr. Mayor in the meaning of this bylaw, are hins cattle ? Them hins of Dolans fly into my garden as soon as the tomatoes git ripe and do great damage. If hins is cattle, I'm for the by-law!"

Good-Bye, Old Backache Nerviline Will Fix You

Stiffness Is Rubbed Right Out; Every Sign of Pain Disappears.

Gee whiz—think of it !

No more stomach dosing necessary to cure your lame back.

Every trace of lameness, every bit of stiffness, every sign of weakness in the back's muscles can be rubbed away for all time to come by good old "Nerviline."

No other liniment can do the work so quickly, can penetrate so deeply, can bring ease and comfort to the back-weary sufferer as Nerviline invariably does.

Backache isn't the only malady Nerviline is quick to cure. For lumbago, or sciatica you would go far to find relief so speedy as Nerviline gives. For chronic rheumatism there are pain-destroying properties in Nerviline that give it first rank. The way it limbers up a stiff joint and takes soreness out of strained or rheumatic muscles is simply a wonder.

If you have an ache or a pain anywhere, if you have a sore back, a stiff neck, a stiff joint, a strained muscle—if you have lumbago, congested chest or sore throat, just try Nerviline. Rub it on plentifully—it won't blister, it can't do anything but cure you quickly. The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, of course, but you can, from any dealer, also get the 25c., small size of Nerviline, the king of all pain-relieving remedies.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Peterborough, April 30, 1914.

W. H. Hill, Esq., Agent for Fidelity & Casualty Co., of New York,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir.—I beg to acknowledge receipt of the cheque of the Fidelity & Casualty Company of New York, for the sum of $5000.00, being the amount of my claim for double liability under my policy in this company, arising out of the accident which resulted in the loss of the sight of my left eye. I wish you would be kind enough to convey to the Company my thanks and warm appreciation for the prompt and entirely satisfactory manner in which my claim under my policy has been settled in full.

It may be of interest for you to know that when I first took this accident policy in your Company it was due solely to the very friendly and cordial relationship that has always existed between your agent, Mr. George E. Elliott, and myself, but when I received the Company's cheque this morning, through your office, I was deeply impressed with the fact that I, in common with the vast majority of people, never before realized how prudent and important it is to carry an accident policy in a company that settles so promptly.

Yours faithfully,

R. R. Hall.

LATEST FROM APSLEY

The outlook for getting the logs down the creek was rather blue, as water in Eel's Lake was unusually low, but the late rain will help and a few more good storms will help out.

Dickson Davidson, of the Peterboro Lumber Co., passed through Apsley on Wednesday, and he is quite optimistic.

Mr. John Hull, of Lakefield, was in the village the past few days on business, and has taken a number of fire insurance risks through the country.

The boys are coming in for the drive and summer camps.

The stork is on his round again and called at the residence of Mr. Norman James, leaving a fine healthy daughter, also later at Mr. Steels' and left a bouncing boy. Dr. Shepherd is kept busy.

Our old friend Ernie arrived Wednesday with Mapus Hardill and Jewell representing Risbora Ltd., and Hopwood Co., both securing fair orders. Rain, storm, or mud has no terrors for John when he notifies the merchants that he will call on them on a certain day. Well, he is there on time and don't you forget it.

ACTORS RISK LIVES BEFORE THE CAMERA

Hair-raising Tricks Performed to Make Moving Pictures Really Sensational

Each big film-producing company includes amongst its artists a number of nerve-hardened players who are specially engaged to take huge risks in carrying out sensational exploits which add realism to spectacular moving pictures.

These men are mostly retired acrobats and circus riders. One of the most risky and consequently best paid occupations in the "movie" world is that pursued by a number of men who specialize in falling off galloping horses in spectacular Indian or war films. These artistes attempt feats that even the most hardened rough-rider would hesitate to perform.

Throwing themselves from the saddle when galloping in the midst of a horde of riders, they will lay perfectly motionless on the ground, although running a terrible risk of being trampled on by the hoofs of the other charging animals. Another well-known actor, who, in addition to possessing nerve and athletic skill, has his powers of timing well developed, earns a good deal of money through a sensational drop from an express train.

He utilizes this performance in several ways. Sometimes he poses as an escaped convict who endeavors to escape the clutches of the law by a daring jump from an express. On other occasions he indulges in a struggle with another actor on the roof of a moving car, eventually being flung off the train into space.

The manner in which this player accomplishes with safety this daring leap is to fall into a lake that runs at the side of the railway track, for the train on which he does this trick always travels over the same piece of line.

A favorite sensational incident in connection with dramatic films is the falling of a vehicle—generally a motor-car—over a precipice. Many believe that a dummy figure sits at the wheel of the car when it plunges into space. This is not the case, however, for a real actor usually does remain in the vehicle when it leaves terra firma. Quite a number of daring actors are capable of performing this feat without serious injury to themselves. They actually fall over a fairly steep cliff in a car, but just before it crashes to the ground they leap clear into a patch of sand to safety. The motor-car is invariably smashed up.

One film-producing company employs an artiste solely for his ability to leap extraordinary distances sideways from a horse's back.

When traveling on horseback over a narrow bridge, he gives a violent sideward spring, which carries him over the parapet of the bridge down to the stream below. This plucky actor has few rivals in the portrayal of this hair-raising deed, for should his spring not be well-judged he could easily sustain some serious injury by crashing up against the masonry of the bridge. This is a favorite trick of J. P. McGowan, who, by the way, used to be a dispatch rider for Lord Kitchener in South Africa.

M. Louis L. Klotz, French Minister of the Interior, in a speech before the International Women's Congress at Paris, especially eulogized the work of the organization in the field of public hygiene and said that women should be on every health board.

NEW WELSH SCHOOL

Agricultural Courses to Add to Wealth of Principality

In opening the Madryn Castle Farm School, the first of its kind in Wales Mr. Runciman, President of the Board of Agriculture, said that no man had ever learned all that was to be known about farming. The Madryn Castle School would teach many things and he hoped that the advantages which it supplied would be put to the fullest use. The funds which enabled Wales to make progress in agricultural education were provided by the development commissioners, and he hoped that the day would come when it would call on them for more money for the furthering of the same purpose.

Carnarvon, said Mr. Runciman, could add $1,000,000 yearly to its wealth. He had noticed many patches of ground lying waste. Such a thing would not be tolerated in Holland, Belgium and Denmark, and he hoped that the same would soon be said of Wales.

Madryn Castle School will provide a course of dairying and poultry farming for young women, two summer courses in agriculture for farmers, extending over a period of five months and a course in horticulture.

DON, MAY 2.—Nothing definite has been done so far towards a set- of the Ulster problem, but Lord Lansdowne's speech yesterday is ed to have raised fresh obstacles and it is uncertain yet that com- won't be defeated in the end by the arrogant pretensions of the leaders. Sir Edward Carson personally is not the difficulty, but not be able to control the Orangemen who are being incited to ll concessions.

view is shared by Mr. Bryan White House. It is the belief president that Gen. Huerta cept the irreducible minimum hich the United States will insist upon as a basis of peaceful settlement—the elimination of Huerta.

Belief Based on Late News.

According to high authority, the White House bases its belief that Huerta will quit upon information received from Mexico City through the British and Brazilian embassies, and the last 24 hour developments in Mexico City.

The British and Brazilian representatives in Mexico City are exercising their strongest influences to induce Gen. Huerta to resign as the head of the defacto Government of Mexico. They are pointing out to him that only through his resignation can peace in Mexico be restored.

Reports of disintegration of Huertas forces in the Mexican capital continue to reach Washington.

Worked Against Huerta.

While details are lacking regarding the move which led Huerta to demand the resignation of his foreign minister, the opinion prevails in some quarters that Portillo had been exercising his influence against Huerta.

FOUND IN RAVIN WITH BULLET HOLE IN BACK OF HEAD

Victim Unidentified and the Police Uncertain as to Foul Play.

Atlanta, Ga., May 2.—The body of an unidentified man was found in a wooded ravine in Piedmont Park here. A hole in the back of the man's head indicated that he had been shot. Disarrangement of the man's wearing apparel and bruises on his body led the police to believe there had been a struggle, but today it was undetermined whether the man had been killed or committed suicide.

No letters of identification or cards were found. His linen showed the laundry marks, "P.G." The coat was tailormade and marked "T. M. C.Co., Chicago." He wore a gray hat marked, "B. N. Levy Bro. & Co., Savannah and Brunswick," the latter two being Georgia cities.

The murderer, it was thought, for a time, would cause a postponement of the marriage, but the couple went to Rochester, where they were married at Miss Clark's home by the Rev. W. A. Beecher, father of the murdered girl.

Washington, D.C., May 2.—Mexican Federals are reported to have attacked the water reservoir in Vera Cruz and General Funstan has sent a detachment to the aid of the outposts defending the city.

This information reached the war department late this afternoon through unofficial sources, but so much credence is placed in its authenticity that Secretary Garrison has forgone his dinner and is waiting a direct report from General Funstan.

JEWS VICTIMS OF ANOTHER CRUSADE

Kiev, Russia, Orders 580 Families to Leave City At Once

Chicago, May 2.—That a fresh anti Jewish crusade has been inaugurated at Kiev, Russia, whereby 580 Hebrew families have been ordered to leave the city despite the petition of many Christians, is contained in a cable received yesterday by the Chicago Daily News. The despatch, which is dated Kiev, May 1, says:

"After the closing here of three private high schools for girls, 580 Jewish families have been ordered to leave the city. Christian householders petitioned the Government in vain to revoke the order, as the expulsion of Jews would mean the ruin of many house owners. Notable citizens called on the local governor, General Sokoskin to get his help for the Jews and the community, but they received a curt refusal."

WOMAN LOST IN WOODS TWO DAYS

Discovered by Railway Man in Exhausted and Hysterical Condition

Halifax, May 2.—Alone in the woods for two days and nights and nearly driven insane by fear were the experiences suffered by Mrs. Owen, aged 60, when she tried to walk from Windsor Junction, N.S., to the home of some friends near Sackville, N.S., Mrs. Owen belongs, to the Maple Grove, near Hantsport, N.S.

After walking five or six miles, from the railway station at Windsor Junction, on Thursday, Mrs. Owen strayed off the track and during the night got lost in the forest. Without sleep wandered around, falling into a pond and getting out with difficulty. Her boots were torn from her feet, while her clothes were in ribbons. This morning, Mrs. Owen, hysterical with fright and exhaustion, reached a road near Fairview, where Rupert Purcell, employed by the I.C.R. discovered her and sent her to Halifax. Mrs. Owen was taken care of by the women of St. Paul's church here, and she will be sent to relatives at Truro as soon as she recovers from her experience.

1,400 YAQUI INDIANS DESERT REBELS; WANT TO JOIN U. S. PALEFACES

Nogales, Ariz., May 2.—Influenced by generous treatment they had received from Americans in Mexico, 1,400 Yaqui Indians, who recently deserted the rebels near Guaymas, sent a courier to the United States troops here with a message saying that the Yaqui tribe "is ready to join the American soldiers."

"All Yaqui ready to join paleface" was the laconic statement of the Indian who had reached the border only after days of walking over the desert hills. The messenger said the Indians had destroyed the rebels as soon as the news reached them of the taking of Vera Cruz by the American marines. He said many more than 1,400 were "waiting for the Americans to come."

With their bows and long arrows the Yaquis always have been an important factor in Mexican revolutions.

TEDDY WAS FAR AWAY FROM CHEERING CROWDS 48 DAYS

Ex-President Wires From Brazil--Outside Human Habitations for a Long While

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, May 2.—Theodore Roosevelt sent a despatch from Manos to Dr. Lauro, the Brazilian minister of foreign affairs, thanking him and the Brazilian Government for its generous solicitude during his stay in South America. Mr. Roosevelt reached Manos April 30th, at the end of an extended trip through the unexplored interior of Brazil, and he left Manos May 1st on the Dunskan on his way down the Amazon river. In his communication to the foreign minister, Mr. Roosevelt says: "Our journey was one of hardship and at times dangerous, but it was successful. For thirty-five days, we struggled with the rapids of the river, for forty-eight days we were out of sight of human habitations. We followed the course of the river for over 900 miles." Mr. Roosevelt will go down to Para at the mouth of Amazon, on the steamer Dunskan. At Para he will transfer to the steamer Paneran for Barbados.

Friends and relatives of Mr. Roosevelt were worried to-day over the message received from the one-time president and his party regarding his condition. Mr. Roosevelt has admitted that he is "pretty sick."

Mr. Roosevelt is suffering from an infected leg.

HIGHWAYMAN FINDS TARTAR WHEN HE TACKLES L. E. BER

Young Man Reports Conquering Bandit Near His Home.

New Orleans, May 2.—A would-be highwayman met with summary justice Tuesday night, when he attempted to waylay and rob Leon E. Ber, son of the Canal street clothier. Here's Mr. Ber's account of the occurance.

Mr. Ber was entering his home at Prytania and Roberts street when a man stepped out of the shadows.

"Give me a match, will you?" the man requested.

Mr. Ber felt in several pockets and found no matches. He explained that he had no matches. The stranger then suddenly thrust a revolver into the face of Mr. Ber.

"I don't care for your matches" he said. "Give me everything you've got and give it to me quick!"

There was a second of hesitation and then a flash of a fist. The fist was that of the intended holdup victim. Mr. Ber flung himself so quickly on the robber that the latter lost his balance. Before he could shoot he was knocked down. He leaped to his feet and ran.

SURRENDER ARMS IS WILSON'S ORDERS

Strong Arm Procedure Taken With Colorado Strikers—More Troops Next Week.

Denver, Col., May 2.—Activity in the Colorado industrial world so far as the state administration was concerned, hinged to-day on the arrival of additional United States troops probably next week.

Gov. Ammons was advised that Secretary Garrison had ordered troops to Louisville district in Northern Colorado. They will relieve the 2000 men in that district.

Under authority of the President, Secretary of War Garrison to-day issued a proclamation calling upon the people in the strike district of Colorado to surrender all arms and ammunition to the United States army officers now in charge at the various troubled localities.

WEALTHY COBALT MINER IS DYING

Duncan McMartin, One of Northern Ontario Millionaire is Dying

Toronto, May 2.—Word was received from Wellesley Hospital that Duncan McMartin, the millionaire of Cobalt and Porcupine, was dying. "He is sinking fast, and it is only a matter of minutes," was the statement of the hospital officials.

For some weeks Mr. McMartin has been in a serious condition. At times he was conscious, at times in a coma, and mining men on the exchange here and in other cities have been much worried over the matter, and have discussed the effect on the mining market should he die. There will be no effect on the mining market unless some of his large holdings are liquidated. He is the largest shareholder of several leading Cobalt connection with the Hollinger gold and Porcupine mines, but through his mines he became best known.

MANICURES HELP SPREAD FELONS

New York, May 2.—Manicure shops and the operators are responsible in a great degree for the spread of felons and various other forms of infection of the hand, according to statements made today by Dr. Edward Wallace Lee before the convention of the medical society of the state of New York.

"I know of over 100 cases that I can trace directly to the careless use of manicure instruments," said Dr. Lee. "There are a great many manicures who have no idea of the importance of sanitation and sterilization.

"Manicures should be more carefully trained in the use of the instruments [illegible] and in the importance of keeping them at all times absolutely sterile."

CLANCY MAY REMAIN AT SING SING FOR MONTHS

Albany, May 2.—Although Warden Clancy of Sing Sing prison recently tendered his resignation effective May 1, ge will not leave tomorrow, John B. Riley, superintendent of prisons, said tonight. Clancy will remain until his successor is chosen. Several names are now under consideration.

Riley explained tonight in a statement that he thought Clancy should remain at his post until he has carried into effect certain reforms instituted by him, and until several buildings at Sing Sing now in the course of erection are completed. Convicts are doing the work. In the light of this statement it is expected that Clancy may not retire for several months yet.

Since Oct. 1, 1903, the statement added, the population of the state prisons has increased by 500. Of a total of 5,024 there are 1,601 confined in Sing Sing.

GIRL SLAYS LOVER AND KILLS HERSELF

Boston, May 2.—A bull dog belonging to Maurice Conroy of Forest St, Watertown, began to froth and act strangely as 9-year-old Alice Conroy returned from school and approached the animal to pet him.

The animal was leashed and taken to the police station, where Dr. E. R. Wallace and S.J. Thayer of the Animal Aid Society made an examination, pronounced the animal suffering from rabies and ordered it shot. They expressed wonder that it had not attacked the little girl.

SIXTY PERCENT OF WHEAT SEEDING FINISHED IN WEST

Seedbed is in Superb Condition--Work is Several Days Ahead of Last Season.

Winnipeg, May 2.—"Prospects are better than ever before in the history of the Canadian West," is the consensus of opinion of all the farmers and grain men. The former are elated over the progress made with seeding, particularly throughout Saskatchewan. Fully sixty per cent. of the wheat is already in the ground in the large majority of districts. Germination is highly satisfactory and crops are showing up in many places. With abundance of moisture, greatly assisted by frost, which vanished so gradually this year, the seedbed is in superb condition.

A marked tendency towards more noted everywhere, the farmers having careful preparation of the seedbed is been educated by experience of the value of careful preparation by plowing and disking instead of slipshod methods of scratching the ground and seeding, used by some "farmers" in recent years.

Not in a good many seasons have spring seeding conditions been as favorable as this year. Last year the slow disappearance of the heavy covering of snow delayed seeding operations, which were completed by May 9, in Saskatchewan, but were a little later in Manitoba. This year the wheat will be sown a few days earlier. Spring cultivation and seeding is in advance of last year, though there is yet much spring plowing to be executed. No other grains have been seeded yet, with the exception of a few oats. Owing to the fact that more interest is being taken in mixed farming, there will be substantial increase in acreage in oats and barley this season, while a slight increase, due largely to new territory opened up, will be recorded in wheat.

COUNTESS DEFENDS ACT IN KILLING SOLDIER

Oneglia, Italy, May 2.—Countess Tiepolo Oggioni, a member of a noble Venetian family, was brought up for trial here today for murdering, on Nov. 11 last year, the orderly of Capt Oggioni, her husband. The man a private in the Bersaglieri, is said to have entered the countess' room and attacked her.

The mother of the dead soldier fainted in the court room when she saw the countess today.

In her defence the countess accepted full responsibility for the man's death. She asserted her right to kill him, as he had attacked her.

In the Senate, Hon. Mr. Edwards, strongly opposed the Georgian Bay Canal project, while Senators Casgrain and Cloran favored it.

"LOOK OUT," CRY OF FINANCE IS NOW FOR BIG BUSINESS

Year Ago Toronto Financial Authorities Were Issuing Warnings of Tight Money and of Troubles to Come.

Toronto, May 2.—With May-day over, thoughts naturally revert to the prospects ahead of the Dominion in a financial, industrial and agricultural way. A year ago Canadian financiers, why by reason of their positions have special facilities for gauging the future, were issuing warnings and advising caution. These were due to the fact that money markets of the world were strained owing to extraordinary developments and wasteful war expenditures in the Balkans. Canada with other nations had to retrench and only because of sound conditions has the year passed without bringing in its train the calamities predicted by some American critics.

At the beginning of the year, funds had accumulated to an enormous extent at London, New York and other large financial centres and bond and other securities issues were over subscribed. Canadian municipal debentures which had been forcibly held up for a long time were disposed of and the Canadian outlook appeared bright. But affairs were not long permitted to take a normal course as the Ulster situation and the Mexican imbroglio were precipitated on the world's attention.

A Spring Vacation

Most stomachs need a rest after the heavy work of the usual winter diet.

What is needed is easily digested food—food that furnishes plenty of nourishment, but with least tax upon the digestive organs.

KEEPING THE SKIN SOFT

An excellent cold cream may be made at home, thus ensuring that it contains no ingredients harmful to the skin. Time and use has shown it is much the best ointment for preserving and softening the skin that is known: White wax, one-half ounce; spermaceti, one-half ounce; lanolin, one ounce; sweet almond oil, two ounces; cocoanut oil, one ounce.

Take off the fire and beat until cold, adding, little by little, two ounces of orange flower water, to which five drops of tincture of benzoin have been added. Be sure to beat the ingredients constantly until quite cold. They must be of the best and purest quality, and the druggist from whom they are purchased must weigh them carefully.

After wiping off all the cream dust your face and neck with a pure powder.

A CLEVER BIRD

It Wakes Its Master Each Morning and Goes With Him to School

This pigeon goes to school! A little chap named Wicks, who lives in Reading, England, owns this clever bird. It is his constant companion, and shows signs of homesickness and loneliness when the boy is away from home, where it cannot follow.

Wicks and His Pet

Each morning, when Wicks starts out for school, the pigeon hops onto his shoulders and remains there until the journey is ended.

Instead of flying away home immediately, he waits to see whether the boy has a written message for him to take back.

Another favorite trick this sagacious bird does is to fly to the window sill of the boy's bedroom at 7 each morning and peck and coo until his master wakes and opens the window.

DECORATED MOTOR CARS

Pictures and Bric-a-brac Used in the Interior

A new mode has been started in Paris for decorating the inside of closed motor cars with tiny but exquisite oil paintings, mounted in suitable frames. There is, in fact, a marked tendency in Paris at present to evolve what may be called the drawing room car. Any fine afternoon will show one a dozen cars in the Bois, many of them painted in such unusual shades as heliotrope or lilac, of which the interior has been fitted to resemble as much as possible a tiny boudoir. This fashion, which began with one or two well known actresses, is spreading through society.

The windows of the cars are draped with little silk curtains and dainty lace blinds. Instead of the ordinary leather seats there are gilded armchairs of silk tapestry and brackets for scent bottles, dainty powder boxes and lip pencils. There are inlaid writing tables that draw out from the wall.

Flower baskets are everywhere and a tiny bookcase holds a miniature set of leather-bound volumes or light novels to beguile odd moments of waiting outside shops. There are footstools to match the chairs, and a hassock and cushions for the pet Pekingese of the car's mistress.

UNIVERSITY GIRLS TRAINED IN ECONOMY

Being Taught Marketing and Cooking and How to Make Clothes Cheaply

The chief aim of the Home Economics department of the University of Omaha is to teach members of the class how to purchase food at the lowest possible price and to cook and bake in the most scientific manner. The girls are taught the principles of economic marketing, what foods are best fitted for the different classes of working people, and the chemical composition of the staple foods. These things must be learned before the young women take cooking practice.

The students are taken to groceries and taught how to pick out bargains. They are also taught how to find bargains in newspaper advertisements and how to watch these announcements.

Then comes the teaching of the art of cooking. At first they practise on soups and relishes. Later come the more difficult foods.

After that comes the scientific study of foods. Chemical composition and food value are studied thoroughly.

How to combat the high cost of living still further is taught. The pupils are shown how to use substitutes for the foods which reach prohibitive prices. Cooking of cheaper cuts of meat is carefully taught.

Not only are the pupils taught how to purchase and cook food; they are shown how to take care of a home in the most sanitary way. Under this head how to have plumbing arranged and how to dispose of garbage.

The passions that moved men and women seven thousand years ago were much the same as they are at present. Some women were vain and jealous, some men were dishonest and covetous. Strange light is thrown upon their lives by the collection of relics which Professor Flinders Petrie brought to London from the Nile Valley, near Memphis. They represent a year's work of the British School of Archæology in Egypt.

Many of the exhibits come from the cemetery at Tarkhan, and they date back to the first dynasty and even before that—more than 7,000 years ago. Among them are little slate palettes on which the Egyptian beauties of the days of Menes used to grind the colors with which they adorned their faces. Some of them have traces of the colors still upon them, and one has scratched upon it the portrait of a man.

There is a case of jewellery of the twelfth dynasty which contains, among other things, a beautifully executed gold pectoral, which was probably made by the Royal goldsmiths for the king to present to a courtier.

This and other trinkets were found in a tomb which, when opened, disclosed the story of a crime which was committed thirty centuries before it was found out. The tomb shaft had been opened by a robber who made a hole in he doorway. He had got inside and had begun to strip the body when the roof fell in, and his crushed skeleton was found lying beneath the stones which had fallen on him.

Princess Mary's Handwriting

Although burdened with the cares and anxieties of a throne, the King and Queen, "Sunday at Home," states, always find true delight in being with their children, in guiding them in what they do, and in cultivating their devoted love. It is said that on Princess Mary's birthday she has to acknowledge every congratulation from friends with her own hand, the letters being handed to the Queen for inspection before being sent. The typewriter is appreciated for general use in the household, but is not requisitioned for private correspondence. Princess Mary's handwriting is like that of other members of her family, clear as print, and, though not yet quite formed, shows plenty of indication of what experts in handwriting call "character."

Magic of a Hen's Heart

The St. Clears magistrates fined Mary Bateman, a hawker, $2.50 for obtaining from Benjamin Davies $1.25 and a hen by false pretences. Benjamin Davies, a laborer, said the defendant told them if he gave her sixty cents to keep for five nights she would get certain money, $1,875, from his wife's father's uncle. The woman returned and said she had good news for them and that $200 was coming, but $20 was wanted for expenses. She offered to give $18 if they gave $1.25. Defendant said, "If you give me sixty cents and a hen, that will do"—(laughter)—and he gave them to her. Later she returned $1.30. Mrs. Davies said defendant told them she wanted the heart of the hen to "work on."

THE RICH SOFT SHADE OF THE EGG PLANT, AN ATTRACTIVE COLOR FOR STREET AND AFTERNOON FROCKS

Aubergine is the name of this modish color and it is being used in all materials; in chiffon for the bodice, in silk for the afternoon gown and in serge, gabardine and various other materials for the tailored suit. Green is smart too, in all its shades; also many tones of red and brown. When black is used it is usually in taffeta or one of the other soft silks; black, however, is employed for trimming purposes and often affords a striking contrast combined with one of the bright colors. Aubergine faille is used in the afternoon frock shown in No. 8294; there is an inverted V-shaped vest of cream white batiste, cream frills finishing neck and sleeves, and drop shoulders. The skirt, which is a two-gored model, is finished with an applied tunic, slightly gathered and set on at yoke depth.

Faille averages 42 inches in width and ranges in price from $1.50 per yard and up.

This costume may be copied in size 36 with 4⅜ yards of 42-inch faille, or 5½ yards of a 36-inch material.

A soft, pink voile is used here with trimming bands of silk-dotted mull.

This little dress requires, for a child of 8, 2⅝ yards of 36-inch material.

Hints for Bee-Keepers

Many a beekeeper has ordered hive parts from a dealer in suppl and received something that he d not want. A thorough knowledge bee hive parts as well as their nam is valuable.

The hive stand is the platform or foundation upon which the hive rests; this may be a brick at each corner, or several boards, or a specially made platform.

The hive body is the case that holds the combs of the hive proper.

The brood frames are the wooden frames in which the brood combs are built.

The follower board or division board is used beside the brood frames in the hive body to wedge over the brood-frames and keep them snugly together.

The supper is the case holding the one pound sections or honey boxes. The section holders are little frames upon which the sections rest in the super.

The separators are thin slats placed between each row of sections in the super to prevent the bees from making one comb fat and another lean.

The starter is the piece of wax comb foundation and tin sections and frames to guide the bees in building the combs straight in them.

The honey board is used over the frames in winter, and also over the sections in summer, being always beneath the cover. All hives are not supplied with honey boaords.

The bee escape board is the honey board equipped with a little tin container or trap so that when placed beneath a super of finished honey the bees can pass through it but not return. Honey may thus be removed without using a bee smoker.

Brood foundation is beeswax rolled into sheets for use in the brood frames. It should not be used in the section honey boxes.

Surplus foundation is beeswax rolled into thin sheets for use in the sections only.

FORCE OF EXPLOSION

Amazing Freak of Gelignite in British Columbia

It seems incredible that an explosion could be of such force as to cause an ordinary steel rail to wrap itself twice around the trunk of a large tree; yet there was just such a result from the discharge of gelignite at Nanaimo, British Columbia. Twelve workmen lost their lives by this explosion. The rail was lying on the ground fully thirty feet from the spot at which the explosion occurred; yet it was lifted into the air, sent in the direction of the tree, and twisted round the trunk, just as if it had been a piece of piano wire. It was so tightly wrapped about the trunk that it cut deeply into the green wood and caused great splinters to start out on all sides. The explosive responsible for this unique occurrence is one of the most powerful preparations known, composed of nitroglycerine, nitrocotton, sodium nitrate, sodium carbonate, and wood pulp.

One of the longest bridges in the world, if not the longest will soon be built by Germany. It will give railroad connection between Rugen, an island in the Baltic Sea, and the mainland of Germany. The length will be about eleven thousand feet, or a little over two miles, and the cost about five million dollars.

ULSTER'S ACCOMPLISHMENT

Munitions of war in sufficient quantities to equip an army of more than twenty regiments of ordinary strength were landed and distributed in the north of Ireland so swiftly and so efficiently that London did not hear of it until the work was done. The labor began at 9 o'clock in the evening. It was finished before dawn and absolute secrecy was observed in spite of the fact that 30,000 men had a part in it. Army officers are wondering if such a mobilization could be effected by the regular army in the same length of time.

It seems that the drilling of volunteers in Ulster has not been a mere bluff, says The News. It is also apparent that men of exceptional military capacity brought about the coup. Only by long training in the handling of men could any one carry out a plan so intricate in detail and so bold in conception. There were even pretended landings, to divert attention from the real base of operations. From a "collection of raw play-actors" as one Liberal newspaper called the volunteers, a practical example of efficient strategy and well devised tactics is given to the world. The Prime Minister left London on Friday evening for a week end in the country. Evidently he had no foreknowledge of what was about to happen. On Saturday morning after the guns were landed and distributed, the Ministers yet in London heard the news, and telegraphed for Mr Asquith. He returned, a puzzled, and no doubt, angry man.

"Insolent Ulster," growls a Liberal organ, echoing the feelings of a savage government, and voicing the eagerness of the Administration to proceed to bolder measures. Twice in two weeks the Government has been overmatched by the men of Ulster. It cannot be doubted that if troops are moved to quell the covenanters, the business of fighting will not be easy. All that organization can do has been done by the volunteers. If Ireland comes to civil war the Asquith Government will prove itself the blindest, most stupid English Administration since the days of Lord North. Indeed the advantage will rather be with North, since he had no similar instance in history to profit withal. Mr. Asquith undoubtedly has read the story of the American Revolution. Yet he forces an Irish Revolution solely to retain political power. The day may yet come when his name will be a bye-word "Asquith, the man who destroyed the British Empire."

A Generous Prince

The Crown Prince of Germany decided to spend the profits from the sale of his book, "From a Sportsman's Diary," in providing a three weeks holiday for one hundred boys attending the Berlin elementary schools. The boys were selected from the poorest class, and were quartered in the barracks of the Prince's regiment at Langfuhr, near Dantzic, which locality combines the advantages of country and seaside.

HOW TO DOCTOR WOUND ON HOOF

Cleanliness and Antiseptic Treatment as Necessary for a Horse as for a Man

Nature often repairs wounds on the horse's hoof without help from man. All man can do is to assist nature; but often he hinders the reparative process, and sometimes his interference is positively harmful. This is so when he soaks an injured foot in an old, dirty tub and forgets to change the water each time it is used. The foul soaking tub is a veritable abomination. It should be accounted a relic of barbarous days, not to be used by modern man.

This advice refers especially to the treatment of a nail-puncture case. It may, however, be admissible in some cases to treat sores of the coronet, or suppurating corns, by soaking in a tubful of antiseptic solution.

The average poultice also is an abomination, and positive damage in many a case. This certainly is so as regards the cow-dung poultice. Germs teem and multiply in it, and these germs induce pus or possibly may cause tetanus (lockjaw). Any hot, moist poultice in which an antiseptic is not mixed will harbor and grow noxious germs. If a poultice of any sort is used, it should be made up with a solution of a good disinfectant or germ-killer.

Modern treatment seldom employs a poultice in the nail-prick case. When a nail has been found and removed, the horseman often is contented to pour some turpentine on the wound and allow the opening to close. Germs may be retained, and in the absence of air they may cause tetanus; for the tetanus germ can live and grow only in the absence of oxygen. The right way to handle the case is to remove the shoe, cleanse the hoof thoroughly with soap and hot water, pare away all soiled horn of the sole and rinse it off with a 1-500 solution of corrosive sublimate (bichlorid of mercury) or five per cent. solution of coal tar disinfectant, lysol or carbolic acid.

Then cut down upon the puncture with a sharp, sterilized hoof-knife, removing enough horn to expose the wound and allow blood, serum or pus to escape. When this has been done the wound should be well swabbed with the 1-500 solution of corrosive sublimate and at once covered with a mixture of one part of iodoform and seven parts of boric acid, fresh absorbent cotton and a clean bandage, to be covered in turn with a square of clean gunny sacking, held in place by a strap around the pastern.

If there is objection to the strong odor of the iodoform mixture, substitute one part each of calomel and subnitrate of bismuth and six parts of boric acid as a dry dressing powder. Renew the dressing daily. Often the treatment will lead to a speedy and perfect recovery. If a fungus-like growth comes down through the wound in the sole, add an equal part of powdered alum to the dressing powder, and cover the dressing with a wad of oakum to cause pressure.

If joint oil (synovia) flows like liquid vaseline from the wound the synovial bursa has been opened by the nail. Such a serious case should have the immediate attention of a skilled veterinarian.—Farm and Fireside.

Thunderstorm Dangers

When clouds are driven past one another by wind currents, electricity of a frictional kind is produced. Lightning is caused by the passing of the electricity between the two clouds, or from a cloud to the earth. As it travels it expands and drives the air in front of it. When the lightning has passed the air that was driven away returns with a rush, and it is this rush which causes the noise of thunder.

It is not safe to stand under a tree during a thunderstorm, for the lightning usually strikes the highest object underneath it, so that the electric current may travel down the tree and strike the person who is taking shelter. The chief danger is standing under an isolated tree; to stand under one of a thick group in a wood is not so dangerous. It would be more dangerous indeed to stand alone in the middle of a field with no tree near, or in any isolated spot where we happen to be the highest thing amongst our surroundings.

RAND HIGH-GRADERS

Precious Metal Stolen After It Leaves the Stamps

Most people have heard of I. D. B. (illicit diamond buying), a crime which in South Africa is punished with penal servitude on the breakwater at Cape Town.

The Rand, however, has the lesser-known offence of I. G. B. (illicit gold buying). Considering that in the Rand mines only a few pennyweights of gold go to a ton of quartz, it is obvious that the miner does not get much chance of stealing the precious metal. When does the gold thief get his opportunity?

The pieces of quartz are ground into dust by powerful hammers known as "stamps." Water then washes the dust over inclined plates coated with amalgam. The gold instantly combines with the mercury in the amalgam, afterwards being easily separated by chemical process.

It is of this gold-laden amalgam that the dishonest employe will scrape off portions which, though small, will mount up to a good bit of gold in time.

The claim which was made by ship owners and others, and which has been confirmed to a considerable extent by official records kept by the Marine and Fisheries Department of the Dominion, that the level of the river and Great Lakes is being constantly lowered, principally by drainage operations on a large scale, is to be thoroughly tested by a Commission appointed by the Canadian Government. Gauges were placed at various points between Port Arthur and Quebec to make the required tests.

NEW ATLANTIC LINERS.

This season will see the Atlantic service of the Canadian Pacific augmented by the addition of two new steamers. These two vessels will be of the one class cabin type, which are becoming so popular. Barclay Curle & Company, of Glasgow, secured the contract for the building of the ships some months ago, and the construction is well under way. They are being specially constructed for the Atlantic service and will contain every possible convenience for the comfort of passengers. They will be of the "one class" type, with passenger accommodation for 520 second, and 1,200 third class. These new vessels have been named the "Missanbi" and the "Metagama." Their length will be of 520 feet, greatest breadth 64 feet, while the breadth of the passenger deck will be 41 feet. Each vessel will have a dead weight capacity of 7,950 tons with an approximate cargo capacity for 6,000 tons. The famous cruiser stern which is the feature of the new Empresses recently placed on the Pacific coast, is being introduced and the new ships will also have six complete steel decks. In order to ensure safety the hulls are to be subdivided by water-tight doors and bulkheads, so as to be capable of floating when three compartments are open. These water-tight bulkheads and doors will be automatically controlled from the bridge. The speed of each vessel will be 15 knots, with a draught of 27 ft. As for the interior of the vessels each second-class state room will be fitted with a wardrobe and chest of drawers folding lavatory with mirror, and other conveniences. The public rooms will be dining saloon, smoking room, lounge and drawing room. The refrigerating plant will be capable of making 300 lbs. of ice per eight hours The vessels will be heated and ventilated on the thermotank system, changing the air eight times each hour. There will also be a printing plant on board each vessel.

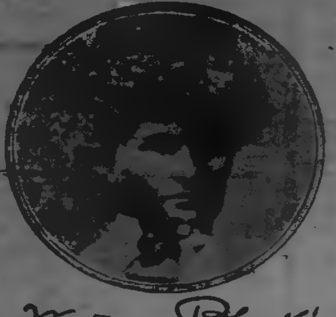
One End Is Inevitable If Principle Is Lacking

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

DEAD, by his own hand, the clever, erratic man of genius, who was too clever to be just plain good. Too clever to be just plain loyal. Too clever to be just plain decent.

The only one who came to fold his hands upon his breast and see him decently laid in the kindly, all-forgiving earth is the wife he scorned and threw aside.

The woman he left her for was too busy to be bothered.

The other woman who dragged him away from the second woman—they say she gave a party on the day of the man's funeral.

What an easy story it is to tell—the story of the man without the anchorage of principle. It always ends the same way. There's never any surprise in it.

He had the yellow streak—the man who committed suicide the other day. I wonder if he realized it and if that is why he couldn't stand it to live any longer.

Would there have been any use in trying to help him get rid of the yellow streak? Perhaps if one had begun when the man was younger. But it grows with what it feeds on—the streak of yellow.

Called it "Courage."

This man was a professor in one of the great colleges of the country. His lectures were so brilliant that his class room was always crowded to the doors, and every word he said was caught up and passed from mouth to mouth as a sort of message to the world. He was idolized—almost worshipped.

And then—he met a woman. Oh, he had a wife, a good wife and a true wife, but that didn't make any difference to the other woman—or to the brilliant professor.

He wrote a lecture about it. He believed in freedom, he said; he was a free soul and so was the woman who wanted to take him away from his wife; humanity had been crippled with shackles long enough, he would not wear them another hour. And so he broke them off—the "shackles" of principle and of honor and of fidelity—and he went away with the other woman and left his wife.

He didn't sneak away—there's that to be said for him. He didn't try to hide his "romance"; he blazoned it across the face of every blank wall in the country—he put out a placard and told all who ran to read—and if he could he would have written his story with a torch upon the open sky.

And many of those who loved him and believed in him were thrilled by his "courage." And many envied him the freedom of his soul; and many said, "So will I do when my turn comes to live."

Is the Woman Free?

But these were all young, very young. The older ones sighed and looked wistful, and said nothing at all.

And then there came the third woman—there always does seem to be a third, doesn't there, and, oh, so often, a fourth and a fifth. And the second woman was not so tolerant as the first, and there was trouble; and the man's brilliancy could not longer hold him a position of trust or honor, and he was poor; and he was sad—he whose heart had beat so high with happiness. So he died—alone—by his own hand.

And the only one to find him decent burial was the woman whom he had deserted and humiliated—so that he might be "free."

Is she free today, that woman of noble soul, I wonder. Or does her tired soul call to her from the grave of the man who broke her heart—because he thought [illegible] if too clever and too free to be honest and to be loyal and to be true.

Newest Chic Mantelets

By Madge Marvel

UNTIL the cunning little shoulder capes were revived this spring, the present generation knew the "mantle," as the manteau, or mantelet, was familiarly called, only by name, or as it was shown in some old-time picture.

Thirty years ago no wardrobe was complete without the shoulder wrap of silk, velvet, cloth or lace. Sometimes it was of the same material as the gown, when it formed what is now known as the "three-piece suit."

More often it was developed in some contrasting stuff and color which made it more useful, for it could complete as many costumes as the separate coat. For very elaborate occasions it glittered with jetted embroideries, and in that guise was the fitting accompaniment of the black silk gown, which was the last sartorial word in elegance.

Like the new edition of the basque, the manteau has improved by the long rest fashion has accorded it. The olden garment never possessed the charm of the wrap of the present.

It was never made in such delightfully quaint styles, with such effective lines, nor worn with anything like the chic which marks the wearing of the new wrap.

With the fascinating freedom fashion makers have indulged this year, the lines of the manteau have been modified and combined to form not only smart little capes, but garments which have the lines of the waistcoat and the kimono blouse as well.

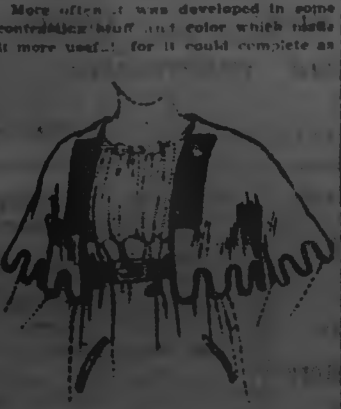
Lace, the same kind of lace which was used in creating the original cape, is generously used. This is the Chantilly lace, or the fine thread lace, with its patterning of leaves and flowers, of scrolls and arabesques.

Changeable taffetas and taffeta brocades are also used, and there are attractive innovations in the manner of trimming and combination of materials which make the manteau one of the really new and delightful style fancies of the season.

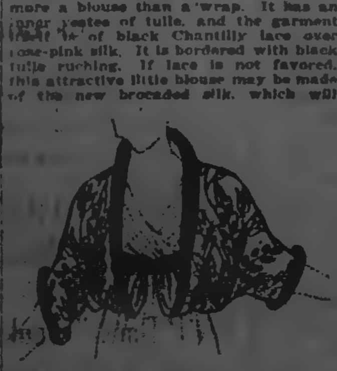
Two imported models are shown in the illustrations.

The manteau becomes in one of these more a blouse than a wrap. It has an inner vestee of tulle, and the garment itself is of black Chantilly lace over rose-pink silk. It is bordered with black tulle ruching. If lace is not favored, this attractive little blouse may be made of the new brocaded silk, which will form a charming contrast to a plain black taffeta skirt.

The kimono sleeve appears in the cape-wrap which is cut in scallops. The original model was of rose taffeta with the little revers in oriental embroidery and the scallops edged with black tulle ruching. The ruching can be easily omitted and the scallops bound with a bias silk strip or finished with a cable cord in the same or contrasting silk.



The Scalloped Kimono Sleeve.



More a Blouse Than a Wrap.

The Homing Instinct.

"Did that homing pigeon return after you sent it away to be released?"

"No, it went to Maine."

"How do you account for that?"

"Well, the egg from which it was hatched was laid there."

Proof.

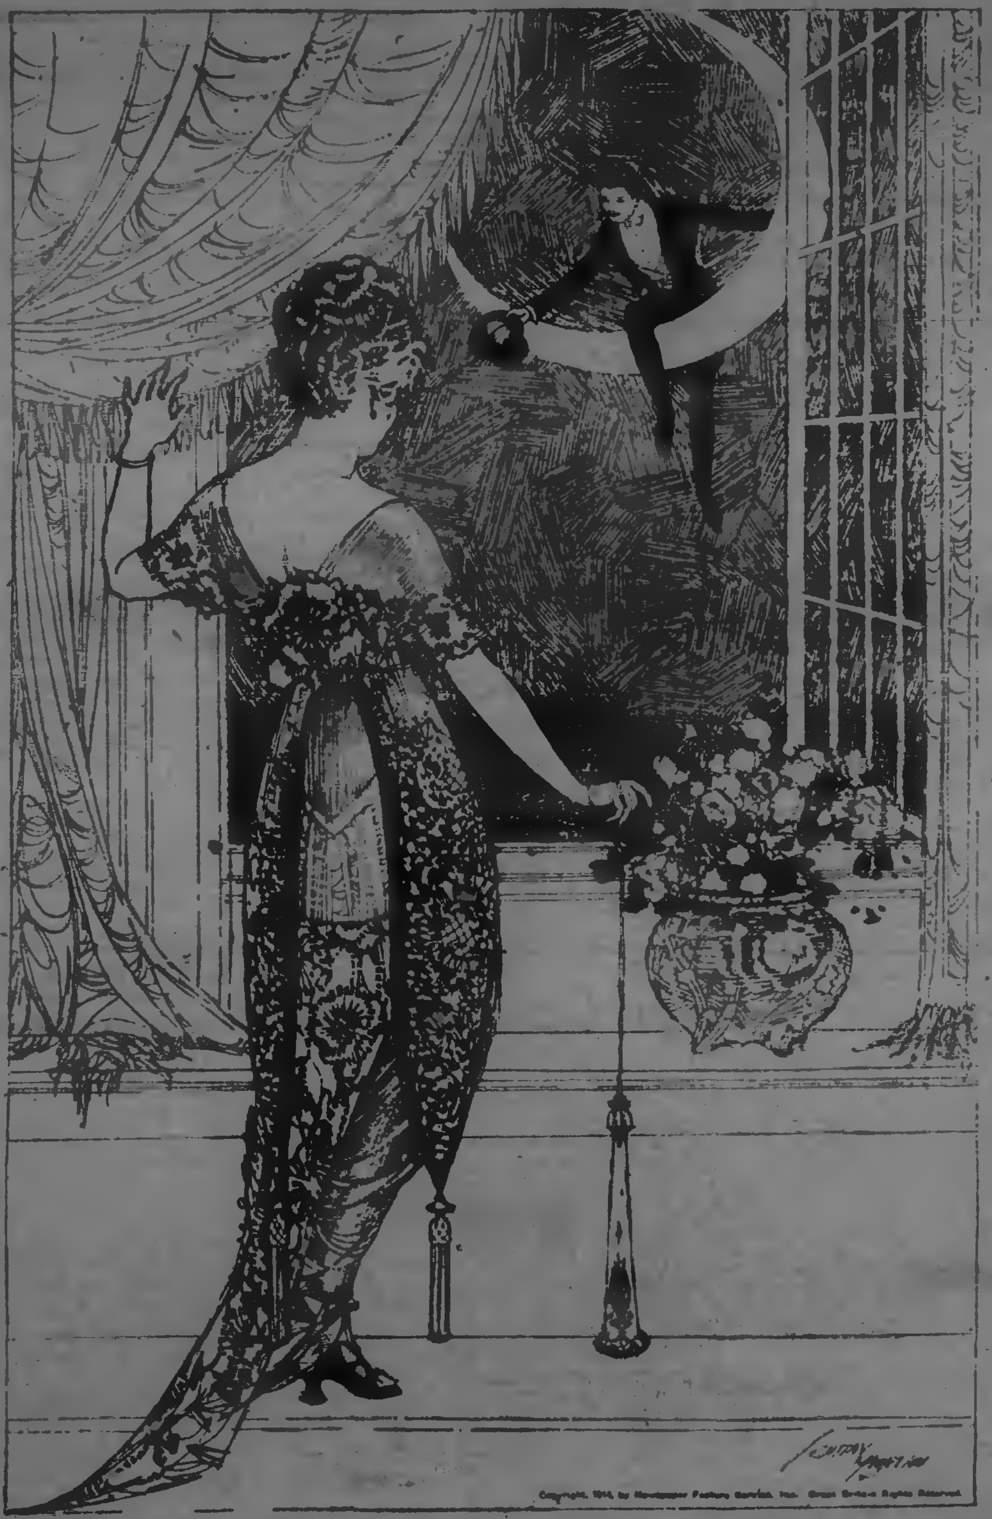
"[illegible] has actually written a new [illegible]. It is entirely original in theme and in treatment."

"[illegible] does he know that it is new and [illegible]?"

"No one laughs at it."

THE MAN IN THE MOON

By Michelson



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

GENERALLY there isn't much use looking for him unless the moon is all there. But there are times when you can see him even with a fragment of the moon in sight. It may depend on your having been with him most of the evening. In such cases the man is known to have been plainly visible when you couldn't see the moon at all—when he has been known to have wandered off distractedly to the Dipper, for example.

Such cases are very serious cases. Sometimes they are quite incurable. When you begin SEEING THINGS in this way you may know that, whether the man is in the moon or not, YOU are in LOVE. And when this malady gets started in May it is extraordinarily difficult to cure.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Miss Laurie:

Every night when my fiance comes some of my brothers come in. He tells me children make him terribly irritable, and so he gives them money to stay outside.

Do you think I could be happy if I married him, even though he may love his own children very dearly? He offers me every worldly blessing.

ISOBEL.

WELL, Isobel, I'd think a while before I married a man who says that children make him terribly irritable.

I know very nice people who do not like children—some of the finest men I know—yes, and women, too, are bored to death when they have to have children around—but I have always noticed that people of that sort are quite apt to be selfish and egotistical, and I have often wondered if that wasn't the reason they didn't like to be "bothered" with children.

I should be just the least bit afraid that that fiance of mine might some day be "bothered" with me—just because he had things of his own he wanted to think about and didn't like to have me always breaking in with my own ideas.

Such a man as that might love his own children very dearly—most egotists do love their own children. Didn't you ever notice that there are some men who think that anything belonging to them is just a little bit better than anything belonging to any one else on earth?

I used to think that no man who was kind to dumb animals could ever be unkind to human beings, and the other day a man who can't pass a dog in the street without stopping to pet him robbed a savings bank of the money belonging to hard working men and women and ran away and left his own family of little children without a penny in the world or a soul to take care of them.

So you see, Isobel, you can't always be perfectly sure, can you? If I loved the man and wanted to marry him, I'd marry him if all the brothers in the world told me that they hated the sight of him.

And then if he turned out to be what my brothers always said he was, I would take my medicine and make as few unpleasant faces over it as I could possibly manage.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

What "Charley Horse" Is; More Play the Remedy

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

A GAME of baseball is both an abomination and a blessing. To those who play it, it is Ponce de Leon's Fountain of Youth. To those who idly loll away an ill-spent afternoon looking at it, instead of playing, it is a Jonah, a hoodoo, a plague spot, a thorn in the side, a wrong unredressed!

In other words, every fan, bleacherite and patron of "the great American game," who trolleys or autos to the ball park, rides up in an elevator or otherwise climbs into a seat on a beautiful balmy, sunshiny afternoon, there to ensconce himself for two hours, is actually adding avoirdupois and beef fat to his anatomy.

This is storing up both fat and trouble for a stormy day. Like Macbeth's ghost, every afternoon which should be spent in ball play and other sweat-making exercise, thus wasted in a grandstand or a bleacher seat, will rise up to haunt you in later years.

Toilers in the fields, pavers in the streets, muscular workers at hard labor, as well as the sick, the old and those overworked physically, are exceptions.

Baseball Very Beneficial.

One afternoon a week spent in this type of spectacular, American laziness may be excusable to any one. More than this is a hissing and a mocking.

The merchant, financier, book-keeper, typist, secretary, stenographer or other quiet, indoor worker, who views a baseball game, instead of playing the game himself, will ultimately and inevitably pay the penalty of this encouragement of muscular degeneration.

"Quit your kidding, doctor," said my friends, Hughey Jennings, John McGraw, Joe Kelly and Wilbert Robinson, when they heard this. Yet it is absolutely the best physiological gospel. This very quartet, eternal youths that they are, bear out my teaching.

Nor are girls and women any exception to the rule. There is no doubt in the wide world but what Mary, Jane, Edna, Louise and Clara would all be the better, mentally and bodily, if they played baseball three or four times a week for two hours a day.

"Charley Horse" is the fearsome trifle which has lured many a promising girl and man candidate away from the free field and no favorites of the baseball sphere.

"Charley Horse" is the picturesque term applied to all the aches, pains, sorenesses and qualms of the flesh which ensue upon the first few trials on the bases, in the field, at the plate or in the pitcher's box.

Continue to Play.

The unusual exertion, the odd twists, turns, kinks and gyroscopic spins given to the flesh and blood so stretch and pull the parts from their ingrown, vegetative positions that a stiffness and soreness result.

This racks the body fore and aft. You must submit, now, to the tender mercies of the torments thus begun.

What to do? If this be "Charley Horse," how may you make the most of it? The answer is obvious. Like a spavined or a runaway horse, if you let it alone, it remains pretty bad. If you attempt to stop it, you are just as badly off.

Evidently, only one proper course is open to the victim of "Charley Horse." This, to wit, is to continue to play. The cure is homoeopathic; theory is bound to find many things to fit—namely, to work out the pain by producing more pain.

He who plays baseball, suffers with "Charley Horse," and runs away, may live to play another day. But he, or she, will refrain ever afterward from playing.

If, however, he or she goes right on playing the very next day, despite the halts, lamenesses and suffering, all will be well. The "Charley Horse" will become a game mare and carry you on life's longest journey.

Meanings of Odd Names

THOSE who are apt to regard with derision the Archibalds, Adolphuses, and Marmadukes of the aristocracy, real or otherwise, will learn with surprise that such high-sounding names have equally impressive meanings. The name Adolphus, for instance, means "noble hero," that of Archibald "extremely bold," while Marmaduke can pride himself upon being "a mighty noble."

It will interest Edwin's sweetheart to learn that his name means "gainer of happiness," while Aubrey's is a "ruler of spirits," though exactly what spirits is not stated. How Giles came to be evolved from "a kid" is not quite easy to understand, but the meaning of Hillary, "cheerful, merry," is, of course, quite obvious.

Lucky is the girl who marries a Jesse or a Lambert, for they mean "wealth" and "illustrious with landed possessions," respectively, while Robert is "bright in fame" and Owen "a young warrior."

William has quite an imposing list of meanings to his name—"resolute helmet, or helmet of resolution, defence, protector."

Turning to the ladies, one finds that Bridget, whose skill in housework is proverbial, has the appropriate meaning of "shining bright" attached to her name, while Florence is "blooming and flourishing." Evangeline is "a bringer of glad news," Eulalia one of "fair speech," and Eunice "happy victory."

Beware of Myra, "she who weeps or laments," and of Ursula, a "she-bear," and cultivate instead the acquaintance of Mildred, the "mild speaker," or Winifred, "the lover of peace."

Veronica is "uncertain," and many a Priscilla hates her name, for it means "somewhat old, ancient." A youngster burdened with the name Sophronia might find consolation in the fact that she at least of the family was "of a sound mind," while Urania and Olympia will be glad to know that their names mean "heavenly."

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

RHUBARB is such an everyday commodity that scarcely any one stops to consider how it is produced so abundantly at this period of the year. Rhubarb is at its prime, in a natural, outdoor state, during the months of May, June and July.

Unlike most plants, rhubarb flourishes best in the dark. In a natural way, when the plant is growing in the open ground, it early develops enormous leaves, which completely shade the root, thus enabling the stalks to grow in comparative darkness. Certain species of this plant attain quite a large growth, some of the sticks being as much as four feet in height and five inches to seven inches in circumference at their base. The leaves of this variety often [illegible] three feet to [illegible]

If you have burned something in a cooking vessel, fill with cold water, add a handful of washing soda and boil. Then wash and use some sand soap. It will come out as good as new and obviate the necessity of scraping.

To insure the best results in coffee making, thoroughly wash and boil the coffee pot after each using, adding a bit of baking soda to the water. Rinse and dry, and air by leaving the cover up. Half the bad coffee may be traced to carelessly washed coffee pots. Cold coffee should be strained off the grounds and never left standing in the pot.

• • •

Oily bottles are almost impossible to clean in ordinary washing. If the bottles are filled with ashes and placed in a pan of cold water which is heated gradually to the boiling point and then kept simmering half an hour and the bottles allowed to remain in the water till they are cold, the ashes emptied and the bottles washed in soapsuds, the oil will have disappeared and the glass be perfectly clear.

Where Racing is an Institution

One gains some idea of the performance, stability and international character of the turf in France from this standing advertisement in a Paris paper:

Human Chess Pawns

A strange game of Japanese chess, played with living men instead of ordinary chess men, drew attention at Osaka. Each man, wearing a white cap and gown, marked with the symbol of a chessman, took his proper place on a huge platform or board, and moved at the command of the two expert players matched against each other. The game was in progress for three days. Moves in chess require deep study and many hours often elapse between, so the strain on the human chessmen while waiting for something to happen may be imagined.

When Storing Linen

Never starch linen that is to be stored for a long time; it is apt to crack, and if left for many years will rot. Rinse the articles quite free from starch, dry and fold away, if possible, in blue paper. The blue paper always keeps them from turning yellow.

White straws are best cleaned with a cut lemon dipped in sulphur and rubbed on the hat. This should be allowed to dry, and when it is rubbed off the straw will have regained its whiteness.

THE DELAYED PUNCH

Not a Modern Invention According to One Who Should Know

Now it's the "delayed" punch. We had "Kid" McCoy's famous corkscrew, Bat Nelson's "whiskers," and someone's else "scissors" punches, and several others not copyrighted, and now, says James J. Corbett, George Chip comes to the front with his contribution to ring nomenclature.

Chip knocked Frank Klaus out with the "delayed" punch so we are told. The only thing tardy about the punch, it seems to me, is the story itself, the ex-champion writes. I am surprised it wasn't pulled long before, when we consider the number of talented young men engaged in grinding out prize ring literature.

What is the 'delayed" punch, asks Jim. An "authority" says it is a "bluff to lead, halting the blow, and then coming through with the slam." According to this it's simply a feint followed by a lead for the part of the body feinted at. Say, for example, a boxer feints with his left for the head. His opponent, and especially so if he is not overburdened with brains and a trifle heavy in the "dogs" puts up his guard. Then, realizing it is only a feint, he lowers the guard. The party of the first part has pulled his arm back, but seeing the guard lowered lets the drive then go through on the level. There we have the "delayed" punch. Wonderful stuff, isn't it?

SKIN WILL CHANGE

Scientist Declares That it is Growing Whiter

Professor Daniel Berthelot, the eminent French specialist, declares that the skin of the human race has undergone great changes since our primitive ancestors. He states that, while the whitest of modern skins reflect almost all the colors of the spectrum, the skin of the more primitive races absorb the colors of higher and finer vibrations and only reflect the stronger colors at the spectrum's lower end.

For instance, the skins of the primitive negro races reflected practically no colors at all. The red-skinned races reflected only the reds at the lower end of the spectrum, and the so-called yellow races only as far as the yellows in its centre. The white skins of the races of to-day are able to reflect not only the blues, but also the violets at the top of the visible spectrum, although the strength and clearness of the reflection varies with each individual skin. But no skin has been found so far capable of reflecting the ultra-violet rays, which vibrate at a rate too high to be visible to the human eye.

It is therefore believed that the past evolution of the human skin foreshadows the existence in the distant future of an ultra-white race, which, in addition to its other capacities, will have a skin capable of reflecting the invisible ultra-violet rays.

NEWCOMERS IN NOVA SCOTIA

British-born and Foreigners Combine to Make up a Big Total

Figures compiled by Mr. Arthur S. Barnstead, Secretary of Industries and Immigration for Nova Scotia, show that the total immigration in 1913 amounted to 5,438 persons. Of these 2,132 were of English origin, 542 Scotch, 127 Irish and 43 Welsh. There is an increase of 330 in these nationalities, compared with 1912. The foreigners who settled in the province during the year, of whom particulars are available, numbered 3,585. These are, for the most part, at work with the coal companies or with construction gangs. Of the newcomers there were 258 farmers, 575 miners, 298 craftsmen, 1,672 laborers, 621 housewives, 487 domestics, and 945 children. The farmers were either placed as farm laborers or purchased farms under the direction of the Department of Industries and Immigration. The total capital brought in by these farmers was $201,000.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4630, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

When the Kaiser Is Happiest

While the Kaiser is a keen man of business and a worker when he works, there is no man in the empire who plays with more zest and real enjoyment when he plays. When occasion arises when the imperial majesty can properly be laid aside and the real man can have free expression Wilhelm loves to become a German gentleman, and a very jolly, wholehearted, typical German. It is this faculty of joining heartily in the play of his officers which makes the Kaiser so immensely popular with both branches of the service.

A Remarkable Case

A remarkable case has been treated in Aberdeen Royal Infirmary. A married woman, who was a patient there was operated upon, when no fewer than seventy-three ordinary pins, eleven hairpins, and a small piece of steel wire were found embedded in the bowel. The woman is unable to account for their presence there, the only possible explanation being that for a considerable period she had, during sleep, extracted a pin from her nightdress and swallowed it. She is stated to be recovering.

W. H. Hill, Esq., Agent for Fidelity & Casualty Co., of New York,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir.—I beg to acknowledge receipt of the cheque of the Fidelity & Casualty Company of New York, for the sum of $5000.00, being the amount of my claim for double liability under my policy in this company, arising out of the accident which resulted in the loss of the sight of my left eye. I wish you would be kind enough to convey to the Company my thanks and warm appreciation for the prompt and entirely satisfactory manner in which my claim under my policy has been settled in full.

If may be of interest for you to know that when I first took this accident policy in your Company it was due solely to the very friendly and cordial relationship that has always existed between your agent, Mr. George E. Elliott, and myself, but when I received the Company's cheque this morning, through your office, I was deeply impressed with the fact that I, in common with the vast majority of people, never before realized how prudent and important it is to carry an accident policy in a company that settles so promptly.

Yours faithfully.

R. R. Hall.

EPISCOPALIAN CURATE COMMANDS COMPANY OF ULSTER VOLUNTEERS WITH HIS DOCTOR IN THE RANKS

Clergy of Several Protestant Denominations Are Active in Regimental Preparations in Tyrone, Where the Troops Are Organized on a Territorial Basis

Stratbane, County Tyrone, Ireland, May 4.—Linen making and grain milling are the industries of this little town, situated on the River Foyle and in the midst of a fine agricultural country. As usual in Ulster the merchants and other employers of labor are Protestant Unionists. Curiously enough North Tyrone, the Parliamentary constituency in which it lies, is represented by Mr. T. W. Russell, a Protestant Nationalist. Curiously enough also the man who most nearly defeated him was Mr. Dennis Henry, a Roman Catholic Unionist, with a strong position at the Irish bar. Mr. Russell's majority has several times not run beyond two figures or even one figure, and Unionists state that he has won only with the assistance of the church which threatened penalties after death to parishioners who neglected to vote the right way. As might be expected under the circumstances, the Ulster Volunteer movement is very strong here. The wealthiest man in the place is to be seen serving in the ranks, side by side with his own chauffeur. In fact in this case the servant is placed above his master, for while the rich man is only a full private his employe ranks as a transportation corporal.

In the village of Drumquin we find the Episcopalian curate in command of a company, with the local Presbyterian minister under him as a section leader, and his own rector in the ranks.

Other Clergy Active.

These are by no means the only clergy who are active in the County Tyrone regiment, of which we are now speaking.

The Board of Managers of the Stratbane Presbyterian Church, has placed the large basement of the handsome stone church at the disposal of the volunteers and even the sexton is drilling.

A THORNE IN THEIR SIDE

Once again the Grit press is trying their hand on Mr. Burnham, M. P., who appears to be quite able to take care of himself. He has been a thorn in the side of the Opposition since his appearance in the House and although personally popular with the Opposition, the Liberal press appear anxious to lessen his fighting power. Although the poor may not know it, Mr. Burnham stood up for their right to buy pure food, even if it is cheap enough for them to afford it. No one will think less of him for doing so.

KING TO PATRONIZE MENDELSSOHN CHOIR

His Majesty Will Be Present at the Concerts in London.

Toronto, May 4.—His Majesty King George has graciously consented to patronize the concerts of the Mendelssohn Choir in London. This pleasing information was conveyed in a cablegram which has been received by Sir Edmund Walker.

Dr. Vogt, leader of the choir, is at present on a tour of the Canadian West, but he has been acquainted by wire of the good news.

DURING WINTER MORE PRISONERS SLEEP ON FLOOR THAN IN CELLS

Overcrowding Has Become Intolerable and Immorality is Not Unknown

Toronto, May 4.—Condemning the Toronto Jail as the worst structure of its kind on the continent, Dr. Bruce Smith, Inspector of Prisons, in a report to the Provincial Secretary, which was submitted to the City Council this afternoon, recommends that the Government grant for maintenance be withdrawn until the city remedies the present conditions, and that, if necessary, the Grand Jury indict Toronto for maintaining a nuisance.

The jail, he declares, is a fire trap. It is overcrowded, ill ventilated, unsanitary. The lack of classification of the prisoners leads to immorality, and overrun with rats. The basement must no longer be used for female delinquents, and they must be searched in private.

The women's quarters are overcrowded.

More on Floor Than in Cells.

"The conditions as they prevail today are an absolute disgrace to any civilized community," Dr. Bruce Smith says. "During the past winter more prisoners slept on the floor than in the cells. The absolute necessity of providing sufficient accommodation is utterly ignored by the City Council. It is difficult to describe in words the overcrowding that has prevailed for years. The number of male prisoners is 330, and the number of beds 222. There has been a daily average above capacity of 78 men. There is no other jail in America where such conditions are tolerated. Fancy over 100 men under sentence having to sleep every night last winter on the floors on mattresses which during the day time have to be piled up at the end of the corridors. Every night these mattresses are pulled down and scores of men, according to the seasons of the year, have to lie down to sleep in exposed corridors in foul atmosphere.

Dangerous Fire Trap.

At dinner there were 144 men crowded into a room about the size of an ordinary school room. The men were so closely crowded together that one could scarcely lift his food to his mouth without jostling the one next to him.

"Attention has been repeatedly called to the matter of fire protection. With such overcrowding as has for years prevailed, the greatest anxiety must be expressed. The jail must be regarded in its present condition as a fire trap. Every prisoner who is in his cell has his door locked and instead of all the doors unlocking by a lever as in all modern jails, every door has to be unlocked separately. With all the straw mattresses lying around the corridors and the possibility that some of the prisoners may have brought matches in with them, the danger from fire must be apparent. The responsibility of the city in the event of a fire cannot be fully appreciated or the condition so long complained of would not have been allowed to continue.

HEARING DELAYED IN BI-LINGUAL CASE

Application for Enlargement For Two Weeks Was Granted by the Judge.

Toronto, May 4.—A legal struggle resulting from the Ottawa bilingual dispute was expected to have taken place to-day at Osgoode Hall in the action brought by Messrs. R. Mackell, H. F. Sims, James Brennan, James Finn, M. J. O'Neill, F. D. Henderson, W. J. Ryder and J. F. Lanigan against the Board of trustees of the Separate schools of Ottawa to require compliance with the regulations of the Education Department of Ontario and to restrain the majority on the Ottawa Board to raise money by a by-law until the rules shall have been complied with. Plaintiffs, Separate School Trustees and ratepayers have been granted an interim injunction, and the matter was expected to have been argued to-day before Mr. Justice Kelly. Application, however, was made on behalf of the plaintiffs for an enlargement for two weeks to enable them to produce further material. The application was not opposed by the defendants, and it was agreed that the case shall be argued on May 18th.

MR. GEO. LIPSETT NOT TO HAVE HOTEL LICENSE

Re Application of Geo. Lipsett for Liquor License—

Dear Sir,—Replying to your letter of the 27th ultimo enclosing the papers in this matter, I am of the opinion that the certificate of the electors is not in proper form, and that therefore the application is not valid, for the reasons set out in the letter of Mr. Moore to yourself, and which I need not, of course, repeat.

Herewith I return you the papers sent.

Chief Officer.

UNPREPAREDNESS OF U. S. FOR WAR IS BLAMED ON POLITICS

The Chicago Tribune in Editorial Exposes "Congressional Economy"--Mexico Has More Guns

Chicago, May 4.—The Chicago Tribune says editorially under the caption, "Caught Shirking Again."

"If the facts of our unpreparedness could be brought home to the American people, no congressman who has voted against necessary measures of defense and necessary supplies would dare to face his constituents at this time.

The political lives of those misrepresentatives depend upon the public's ignorance of the real facts, and some of these facts it is not well to discuss publicly in the present circumstances. But the friends of preparedness, in and out of congress, should not fail to acquaint themselves with the facts as far as possible and to press insistently the conclusions to be drawn from them.

The inadequacies of our means of dealing with imminent eventualities in Mexico are a disgrace to congress and to the country.

For example, there are known to be 253 pieces of field artillery in Mexico, according to the Army and Navy Journal. Originally in the hands of the Federals, many of these pieces Constitutionalists, but war may bring them together against us. There are forty-eight pieces of artillery on their way from Japan to Mexico. If they are not intercepted, they will bring Mexican artillery to 301 pieces—more than we have in the United States.

That is congressional economy.

As reported by the Chief of ordinance not long ago, we have not enough ammunition for our artillery to supply all of it during a single long engagement.

That is congressional economy.

Huerta, it is estimated, has 42,000 soldiers. We have 31,000 regulars in the United States. We have no reserve. We are about to make use of the sea coast artillery troops to make up for shortage in the mobile army. We are going to use the marines if we advance from Vera Cruz. Neither of these special forces should be used in this way.

All this is congressional economy—the traditional folly of our government, repeated in our day. Congress has learned nothing.

For another example, congress has just hastily passed a bill to facilitate the use of the national guard as a national force available without the limits of the United States. It works at the eleventh hour—a critical need made clear in all our wars and last illustrated so recently as our war with Spain.

"Complexion Secrets Of An Actress."

In a recently issued volume bearing the above title the author says: "Continuous use of grease paints, rouge and the like, had ruined my complexion. My skin was colorless, wrinkled, coarse and punctured with large pores. In England I heard of the virtues of mercolized wax; my first experience with this marvelous substance convinced me it was more valuable than all cosmetics combined. Now whenever my complexion begins to go wrong I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the nearest drug store, spread on a thin layer of it before retiring, washing it off next morning. The wax, after a few such treatments, seems literally to absorb the worn-out cuticle, when a brighter, healthier, younger-looking skin appears.

"For the wrinkles and enlarged pores, I've been using a solution of saxolite, one ounce dissolved in a half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this every day for awhile soon relieved the condition most wonderfully."

C. Donahue was fatally injured at Teeswater by being struck by a board which stuck in the edging machine in a sawmill.

THE C. N. R.

Mackenzie and Mann get nothing except the cold shoulder. The C. N. R. (lines and sub-lines all consolidated) get a guarantee for 20 years of forty-five millions of dollars. In return the Government gets the right to take over the road the minute default is made, besides forty millions in stock absolutely, after all the water was squeezed out. The road is under the control of the Government, but the responsibility for management still rests upon the C. N. R. Dominion and Provincial subsidies and guarantees (amounting one hundred and ninety-seven millions of dollars) are now safe. It is really a great triumph for the Government.

FEELING IS NOW GROWING AGAINST GENERAL HUERTA

Gen. Blanquet, Who Overthrew Madero, Said to be Behind Newest Coup

Vera Cruz, May 4.—American refugees continue to arrive from the Capital and to bring divergent stories of the situation there. Arrangements are being made to-day to send a naval vessel to Puerto Mexico to meet a large number of refugees due there next Tuesday morning.

Latest arrivals from Mexico City confirm the previous reports of a growing undercurrent of feeling against Huerta regime and tell of a rumor of a rupture between Huerta and Gen. Blanquet, Minister of War. It was the latter with the crack Twenty-Ninth regiment that took the military coup which resulted in the downfall of President Francisco I. Madero.

Huerta Afraid of Plot.

Some of the returning Americans who claim to have information from those close to Huerta declare he is reiterating to confidents that he will never resign but talks of the possibilities of a coup against him.

Several of the American business men say the foreign diplomatic representatives counselled them not to leave the Capital, that there was no necessity to do so as there was practically no danger and the whole situation would be clarified soon.

Refugees generally express disappointment at the lack of any indication of the advance of the American army on the capital. They say the best class of Mexicans share this view.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mostly fair and decidedly warm.

NEVER HAS U. S. SUNK SO LOW IN DIPLOMACY SAYS CURTIS GUILD

Boston, May 2.—"Never has the United States sunk so low in its relations with other countries," said Curtis Guild, former governor and former ambassador to Russia, at the annual Grant night dinner last night of the Middlesex club.

"We are the joke of the chancelleries of the world. Never in our history have we been obliged to ask or accept gratefully the offers of any foreign nation to save the United States from the results of the acts of their own president."

President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard criticised the Christian churches of the country for having made no attempt to prevent war with Mexico.

MAYOR WILL PROCLAIM HALF HOLIDAY FOR BASEBALL OPEN

City Fathers Met in Regular Session Last Night-- Voted Toward Entertaining 15th Regiment on May and 25th--Cleaning-Up Day to be Proclaimed b Mayor

The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night, his worship Mayor Buller presiding. There were also present Aldermen McIntyre, Anderson, Langford, Johnston, Green, Duffus, Dobbin, Stratton, Duncan and Saunders.

Ald. Stratton objected to the request of Barrie's Limited for permission to build a goods elevator in the sidewalk in front of their new store on George street, on the ground that George street is too much travelled to warrant such a privilege, which if granted would establish a precedent to be taken advantage of by many other business men contrary to the best interests of the city.

Ald. Stratton moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre that this question go back to the Board of Works for further discussion and that a concensus of the opinion of Peterborough's business men be taken on the matter with a view to furthering the best interests of the city.

Incidentally, Ald. Stratton offered that if this concession was granted Barrie's Limited, at least a dozen other business houses will demand the same privilege.

Ald. Duncan contended that as a similar privilege had been granted the Toronto Loan and Savings Co., in regard to the new Turnbull building, he could see no reason why Barrie's Limited should not be allowed a similar privilege.

In any event the conditions in both cases call for the removal of such elevators on demand of Council. He could not place a dozen business men requiring such an elevator; most of them have rear entrances.

Ald. Stratton replied that the argument advanced is that taking in goods from the main street is a good advertisement. Then any legislation made now should foster the city's general interest in view of its prospective growth.

Ald. Green inclined to the opinion that granting the concession asked might establish a precedent contrary to the city's best interests.

On division Ald. Stratton's motion carried, and Barrie's Limited request for a goods elevator in the sidewalk goes back to the Board of Works for further recommendation.

Property Committee.

Ald. Langford submitted the following:

Gentlemen,—Your Property Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That an account from John Taylor, amounting to $70.75 for work at the Queen Mary Hospital be paid.
2. That the Chairman of the Committee be authorized to purchase a couple of cords of slabs from the Charity Board for use at the incinerator.
3. That an application from J. M. Bound for permission to erect a house with a nine-inch wall on lot 63 George street be referred to the City Engineer.

This report was adopted as read.

Baseball Half Holiday.

Ex-Mayor Bradburn, E. G. Patterson and Herb. Stenson were a deputation asking that a half holiday be declared on Thursday, May 14th, the opening day of the baseball season in this city. This proposition was heartily endorsed by the Retail Merchants' Association.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Anderson, a holiday will be proclaimed for Thursday, May 14th, commencing at three o'clock in the afternoon.

It was generally conceded that league baseball is the best possible advertisement for Peterborough attainable.

To Entertain 15th Regt.

Col. Clegg and Major Eastwood of the 57th Regiment were a deputation asking a grant toward entertaining the 15th Regiment of Belleville, which will visit this city on May 24th and 25th.

On motion of Ald. Anderson and Stratton a grant of $100 was voted for the purpose asked. Ald. Anderson suggested that care be taken that no military attractions on May 25th conflict with the two baseball attractions billed for that day.

Our Sermon for the week

BY REV. BYRON H. STAUFFER

Pastor Bond Street Congregational Church, Toronto

That Beautiful Word "INASMUCH"

Text: "And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch—."—Matt. 25:40.

The great day is dawning when the sheep and the goats shall be separated, one from the other, by that magic word, Inasmuch. All nations shall be divided, not by color, nor by language, nor by flag, but by disposition, and the steel magnet which shall draw all the real followers of the Master out of the mixed masses of our race is the same Inasmuch which Jesus used nineteen hundred years ago.

Slowly but surely, in all lands, now, the sheep and the goats, though they mingle on the streets, in churches, in homes, are developing their distinctiveness until they shall be easily identified. Down Yonge street tomorrow, elbowing each other on the same sidewalks, entering the same stores, eating the same food, buying thesame goods, sitting in the same cars, are human sheep and goats mingled. Strange that I should not know them, you say; goats and sheep do not look alike. True, but they are similarly robed in fleshly bodies. Yet even now through the material disguise, you may sometimes see the horns and beard of a goat, or, thank God, the wool of a sheep. But in the great day ahead, the Inasmuch will easily and unerringly divide them.

The sheep on His right hand will be told how they fed the hungry Master, and gave Him drink, received the stranger Lord and clothed Him, visited the suffering Christ in prison or on bed of sickness. And the sheep will express unfeigned surprise, and ask when and where these things were done. They will deny the Master's testimony with the modesty and honesty of real Christians of all ages; they will assert that they did not live while the Master was on earth, and therefore could not have performed these generous acts.

And the King shall answer, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Inasmuch is the connecting link which brings Christ into the streets of Toronto. Suppose you were to receive a telegram:

"Meet me, Union Station, at nine to-night, Jesus." Would you not prepare? Would the mistress of your house not get ready the bed chamber? And you would read up the Gospels and post yourself concerning the details of Jesus' years on earth that you might intelligently converse with Him. Well, this word, Inasmuch, means that He is here now. Christ identifies himself with His neglected ones. There is a poem expressing the regret of a Twentieth Century maiden that she did not live as a Jewish girl when Jesus walked among men. She declared she would have nourished Him, helped Him, wiped away the tears of sufferers, cast her gold among the hungry, held palsied hands, opened her doors to bid the tired Jesus enter. The poet answers her:

"Ah, would you so? Without a recognition
You passed Him yesterday,
Jostled aside, unhelped, His mute petition,
And calmly went your way.

To-day the Saviour walks in our great cities,
And enters every street,
Whoever sees the least of His and pities,
Pours ointment on His feet!"

He identifies Himself with human misery. He suffered what poor mankind suffers in hunger, thirst, nakedness, imprisonment and sickness. He was hungry and thirsty in the wilderness, naked on the cross, parched were His lips when dying, yearning for love was His great heart derided. So He enters into the experiences of all sufferers, and is in your hospital, that prison, the busy street, the sad cemetery. Wherever a pillow needs softening, a tear needs brushing away, a wound needs dressing, a child needs a lullaby, a sufferer needs the moistening of parched lips, there is our chance to minister unto the Son of Man!

Beautiful as that thought is, the next is a more encouraging phase, Inasmuch brings Christian work within the reach of all. It gives us all a chance to be Christian workers. When I began my first pastorate, I had the misapprehension that all Christians should testify in meeting. So I forced every timid girl and raw youth to arise in prayer-meeting and declare for Christ. It was for some a pillory, for others an easy task. Soon I perceived that many who shrank from public testimony were engaged in the real Christ tasks of the Good Samaritan type. I entertained another misconception of the character of Christian service. I imagined that all my people must work in some church society or on some committee in order to do the Christly service essential to church membership. I soon discovered a subtle tendency to label all relief work done in Christian endeavor or King's Daughter circles as Christian; yes, even the baking of pies and cakes was not to lose its reward. On the other hand I looked askance at the charitable work of non-chuch members. I, and my people as well, felt that work for Christ had to be done within the pale of the church organization. Do not too rashly pronounce mine an isolated attitude. I am of the opinion that unconsciously many of our church workers hold similar opinions.

Church societies should be regarded as wholesome helps, bureaus of Christ—tasks as it were, clearing houses of opportunity, but as nothing more. It would be salutory if we had fewer church organisations and more individual effort. Only a few can hold office in the Men's Club or the Ladies' Aid. Not many can speak or sing in public. We should be satisfied to preach a Gospel which will stir up our folks to go out carrying the Christ spirit from the chuurch into their daily life. Bond Street Church is a preaching station, where the unending procession of newcomers and transient guests as well as our permanent families are to be rallied to the cause of Christian gentlemen and sent out to do something worth while!

"The little common things of life—
A kindly word, a little trust,
A friendly smile amidst the strife
That crushes souls into the dust;
A flower for some tired eyes,
Just little things, not any size—
But, ah, the sweetness they impart."

Samuel Smiles tells of two English navvies in Paris who saw one rainy day a hearse with its burden wending its way along the street unattended by a single mourner. The two lads fell in behind, accompanied the casket to the cemetery, uncovered and stood reverently during the reading of the burial service, just that a fellow being might have a decent interment. Just a little thing but intrinsically Christlike.

The Master's examples were merely suggestive. We do these things of charity in a wholesale way now. Our municipalities, our provinces, our dominion, assume the responsibilities of caring for many unfortunates. The spirit of the Christ has brought this about. This very sermon of Jesus' has prompted us to place our demoniacs into asylums, our palsied into hospitals, our Bartimeuses into institutions for the blind. And yet, with all these Christ houses supported by our common purse, the individual Christian finds great avenues of additional helpfulness. Our very civilization gives us opportunities far beyond those of Christ's day. The elevation of the masses changes the nature of our ministrations. No longer needing to care for sick people lined up along the thoroughfares, we turn our attention to the mental and spiritual needs of the people, giving them help which the lower classes of Christ's time could not have appreciated. We are advancing in our methods. There is only one thing better than feeding hungry men, and that is giving them every chance to keep from being hungry. There is only one holier task than clothing the naked, and that is removing of every handicap against their ability to clothe themselves. There is but one nobler duty than visiting men in prison, and that is studying the conditions which bring them into criminality and devising ways to lead them into paths of rectitude. Even visiting the sick, holy work as it will be to the end of time, is not better Christian employment than fighting causes of disease. These are the present phases of our Inasmuch work. To-morrow they may once more be wholly different in outward condition. But the principle of unselfish, loving service in the name of the Master will always remain the same.

Again, this beautiful word, Inasmuch, gives us all an opportunity to imitate Jesus. Not only should we do these things as unto Jesus, but as Jesus would Himself do.

What kind of employer would Jesus be in Toronto to-day? Study the question earnestly in the light of every incident recorded concerning Him, and be such an employer. You can be!

What kind of employe would Jesus be in Toronto to-day? You will be climbing to true success if you carefully answer that question and endeavor to be such an employe. You can be!

What kind of neighbor would Jesus be in Toronto to-day? How happy the community if all the folks on our street would solve that question and be exactly such a neighbor. We can be!

The "Servant in the House" gave me a new vision of Jesus; a manly yet gentle Jesus, a firm yet kind Jesus, a strong yet tender Jesus, carrying real religion into parlors and kitchens. That Jesus was the Bishop of Benares, and the result of his Inasmuch work is revealed in the drunkard Robert, when he stands, enobled and transformed, arms bared, begrimed yet majestic, exclaiming, "I'm the drain man; somebody must rake up the muck of the world!"

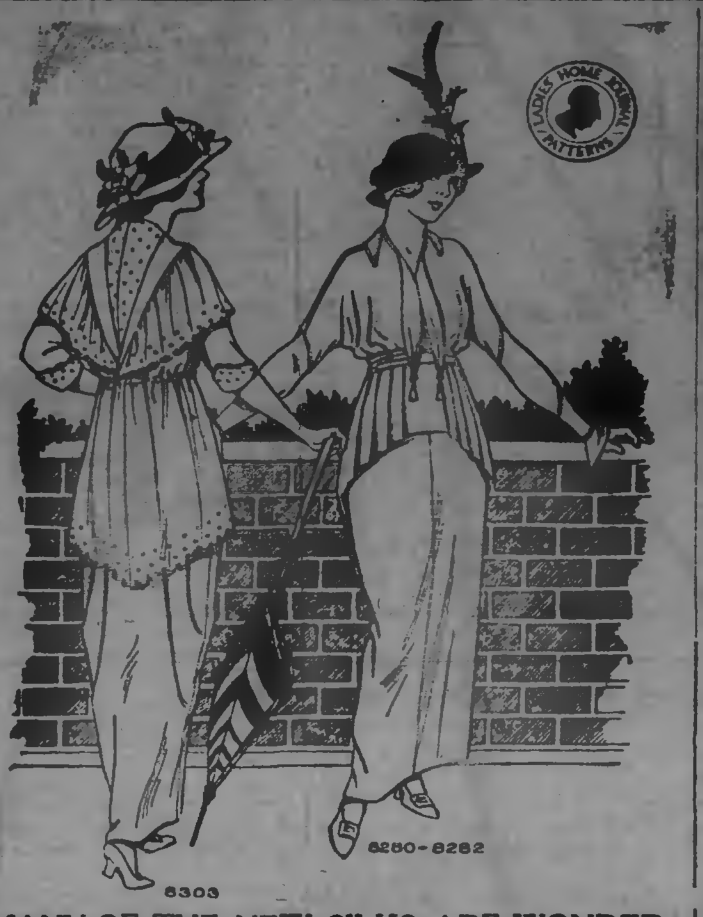
I love this simple rhyme with which I close:

I'd live for those who love me,
For those I know are true,
For the Heaven that smiles above me,
And awaits my spirit too;
For all human ties that bind me,
For the task of God assigned me,
For the bright hopes left behind me,
And the good that I can do.

I'd live to learn their story
Who've suffered for my sake,
To emulate their glory,
And follow in their wake:
Bards, martyrs, patriots, sages,
The noble of all ages,
Whose deeds crowd hist'ry's pages,
And time's great volume make.

I'd live to hail that season
By gifted minds foretold,
When men shall live by reason,
And not alone for gold—
When man to man united,
And ev'ry wrong thing righted,
The whole world shall be lighted
As Eden was of old.

I'd live for those who love me,
For those who know me true,
For the Heaven that smiles above me,
And waits my spirit too:
For the wrong that needs resistance,
For the cause that lacks assistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good that I can do.



MANY OF THE NEW SILKS ARE WONDERFULLY TRANSPARENT, YET DURABLE

Sweet, old-fashioned patterns and colors mark the new silks this season; the violent shades and large designs that were predicted late last season have not met with the expected popularity. Foulards are being used in quaint patterns, such as sprigs and leaves, tiny ovals, pin stripes, crisscrosses and charming black and white designs. Faille is a favored silk for afternoon dresses and for blouses and evening wear there are some very attractive chiffons, sheer to a degree, but remarkably durable. Some of these figured and checked chiffons might easily have been used in Marie Antoinette's day, they are so quaint and old-fashioned looking; these are used for draperies and panniers mostly, although now and then a blouse is made up in one of them showing a rosebud or odd little conventional figure. Taffeta is used for almost all purposes.

The afternoon costume shown in No. 8280-8282 is developed in black taffeta with bodice and plaited overskirt of chiffon cloth in a dull shade of blue. The odd cut to the sleeve and the collar are distinguishing features of this frock, and the two-piece skirt with the plaited overskirt in front and the peg-top effect in back is also attractive.

To copy this costume in size 36, 3 yards of 36-inch material are required for the blouse (8280), and 3½ yards of the same width for the skirt (8282).

For a girl of sixteen, 5¾ yards of 36-inch material are needed.

No. 8282—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8280—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8303—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

GROWTH OF LANGUAGE

English Dictionary of 1616 Contained Only 5080 Words

Roughly speaking, the English language may be said to grow at the rate of 5,000 words a year. At least, that is the average growth by the measure of the dictionaries. Bullokar's "Compleat English Dictionary," in 1616, the year of Shakespeare's death, contained 5,080 words. Thomas Blount's "Glossographia" (1656) improved on this and was superseded in its turn by Edward Phillips' "New World of English Words" (1658), a small folio containing 13,000 words; and by the time it reached its sixth edition (1706) the number had grown to 20,000 odd. Johnson's dictionary published on April 15, 1755, though it improved all predecessors off the face of the earth by the perfection of its system and the soundness and breadth of its wording contained only 50,000 words, and it remained master of the field, even at this modest total, until Noah Webster's came along in 1828, and Worcester's "Comprehensive Pronouncing and Explanatory English Dictionary," in 1830, with 160,000 and 105,000 words respectively.

The latter part of the nineteenth century kept the ball rolling. The "Imperial Dictionary" contained 200,000 words, and Dr. Funk's "Standard Dictionary" (1894) entered the field with half as many again—318,000 words in all. There have been half a dozen editions of this, and the next new one will reach the high water mark with a total of 450,000 words, most of which are English beyond question.

Baseball in Prison

The American passion for baseball has been turned to good purpose at a Delaware prison. The warden decided to gratify the inmates' love of the sport as a reward for conduct. All prisoners who obey the rules and observe the discipline of the institution are permitted to play or witness the games. While armed guards patrol the top of the wall about the exercise-yard where the sports are held, they have not been called upon to quell any trouble.

Our notion of a good way to settle the Home Rule question is to give it to that part of Ireland which wants it, and to withhold it from Ulster, which doesn't want it. Then everybody will be happy.

END OF THE COPPER STRIKE

General relief will be felt that the Michigan copper strike is apparently ended. Having obtained from the operators an eight-hour day, and a betterment of various working conditions, the miners, according to an announcement which though unofficial, comes from the district secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, have decided by referendum vote to be content with the concessions they have secured, and to waive for the present the main point of difference, the question of recognition of the Union.

This strike has lasted nearly three-quarters of a year. Affecting, as it did, an industry of national importance, it has commanded national attention and, aside from the many sensational incidents, has been associated with one exceptionally distressing catastrophe, the Christmas Eve fire panic at Calumet, when 70 persons perished. Though this dreadful disaster through mutual accusations became connected in the public mind with the industrial troubles in the copper regions of Michigan, the responsibility for it has never been placed nor barring surmise, is there sufficient to identify it with these disturbances, other than the fact that miners and their families formed the audience where the fire broke out and were the victims of the panic which ensued.

"I caught a cold last week while motoring," writes P. T. Mallery, from Linden. "My chest was full of congestion, my throat was mighty sore, and I had the fiercest stitch in my side you could imagine. As a boy I was accustomed to have my mother use Nerviline for all our minor ailments, and remembering what confidence she had in Nerviline, I sent out for a bottle at once. Between noon and eight o'clock I had a whole bottle rubbed on, and then got into a perspiration under the blankets. This drove the Nerviline in good and deep and I woke up next morning fresh as a dollar and absolutely cured. Nerviline is now always part of my travelling kit, and I will never be without it."

MANGELS FOR POULTRY

A Cheap Food to Grow Where There is Room

In the production of mangels as a poultry food, very small areas, or comparatively large ones, show a decided profit when given over to the culture of these beets. They have proved to be one of the best and one of the most popular of the roots used as poultry food, because of their ease of growth and of their very heavy yielding qualities. They grow to immense size, and will produce a good many tons of roots per acre on good soil, are easily stored with little expense and are highly relished as a part of the daily ration throughout the winter months.

Crooked Billet

The Crooked Billet—an inn which still stands upon Tower Hill, as it has stood for generations past—boasts itself as the oldest wine and spirit house in London. There is every reason to believe that the inn dates from the time of Henry VIII. Certainly no London inn is more romantic in the matter of sliding panels and concealed doors, secret rooms, and underground passages—one of these reputedly leads to the Tower—and thick walls richly carved. There is a tradition that Oliver Cromwell once lived (or lodged) at the Crooked Billet.

CANADIAN PLUMS

The Grower and the Value of the Home Nursery

The small quantity of plums entering into the export trade of Canada and the desire of the consuming public to procure fruit of the best quality have led W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist, to prepare an exhaustive work known as "Plum Culture." There is one thought brought out which might redound to the advantage of the fruit grower should he adopt the system of the Central Experimental Farm. This is the home nursery, where young trees may be developed and transplanted at any time. It is often more convenient to buy trees from the professional nurserymen, yet he who propogates plum trees by root grafting, crown grafting or budding for his own use should have a nursery in which to grow them until they are ready for the orchard. A good sandy loam soil, which does not bake, and is well drained, is best suited for this purpose and will grow the strong, healthy trees which are desired. The ground should be thoroughly prepared and the young trees planted about twelve inches apart in rows three feet apart. Cultivation should be thorough up to about the middle of July, when it should cease, as in colder climates especially, it is very desirable that the wood ripen well, and late cultivation would encourage late growth. It will be necessary the first year to cut off branches, if more than one develop from the graft, and at the end of the first year they may be transplanted into the orchard, if one-year-old stock is to be used.

EDUCATION IN IRELAND

Recommendations Which Show the Drift of School Management

Among the recommendations of the Vice-Regal Committee relative to Irish Primary Education there are several clauses of interest to Canadians, in showing the trend of education in the land of the Shamrock:

That the present system of grading and promoting teachers be modified, so as to provide for more rapid promotion of able and promising teachers.

That the present system of Merit Marks to schools and teachers be abolished.

That the reports of inspectors on the work and conduct of a school shall be communicated in full to managers and teachers with the least possible delay.

That every school from time to time, but not necessarily every year, be subjected to a thorough inspection, with notice of at least a week to the manager and teacher, to be followed by a full report; that the report be based upon a thorough investigation of (a) the methods employed in teaching; (b) the progress made by the children as tested by oral or written examination; (c) their general bearing and habits as formed in the school.

That such inspection be made in the last half of the school year, and as far as possible in the last three months of it. That in no case shall any record be made of the success or failure of any individual child.

That the use of observation books be discontinued

That in the interests of education in all parts of the country, all responsible proposals to vary the programme to suit the special circumstances of each locality, shall be met with a generous, as well as a careful and discriminating consideration. The Committee note that in England there is no such thing as a compulsory subject.

Lifeboat Dwelling

A famous Cornish lifeboat, after years of service, has been converted into a dwelling, and is to let for $3 a week. This old lifeboat has done duty at many wrecks. It was launched when the ss. Mohegan went ashore on the Manacles with the loss of so many lives, and also at the stranding of the American liner Paris.

AVIATIONATIS

Are we to have a new disease? Half a dozen well known aviators declare that five years' regular flying will shatter any man's nervous system.

The medical faculty are almost unanimous in their declaration that for a person suffering from heart disease to go flying is to court death. Despite the assertion of an experienced lady aviator that she has never had any "sensation" when up in the air, it is common knowledge that flying brings on a dangerous dizziness, and that frequently a flying-man has to exercise most strenuous will power to keep awake while flying. When surrounded by clouds, an aviator frequently has not the faintest knowledge of his position—a fact that is probably accountable for a number of "inexplicable" falls of machines. Most flying-men find eventually that they need to reserve all their nervous force to use when up in the air—they dare not excite themselves or perform any too great exertion otherwise. The toll of the air has been great, but it is a mistake to reckon only those persons who have met their death while actually flying. The number will be greatly increased if you include those who have become more or less physical wrecks through their devotion to aerial science.—Answers.

BUILDING MATERIALS

Valuable Resources Being Gradually Opened up in Western Canada

With the exception of British Columbia there is very little building stone produced in Western Canada. This is due to two causes. First the rocks which underlie the developed portions of the Prairie Provinces are of comparatively recent age, and are, consequently, soft in character and weather rapidly; second, there are very few rock exposures in the settled portions of these provinces, except in the Rocky Mountains and the foot hills. In British Columbia there are large potential resources of building stone. They have, however, been developed only in certain localities on the Pacific Coast, and have been confined to Cretaceous sandstone and certain volcanic rocks, situated on Vancouver Island and adjacent islands. Varieties of marble are also quarried on Texada Island.

WESTERN PIONEERS

Men of the Eighties Who Persevered in the Face of Difficulty

There is little left of the Winnipeg of the early eighties. Each year sees a diminution of the links which bind the days when Winnipeg was the stepping-off place, to the present, in which Winnipeg acts the part of the gateway to prosperity and affluence to all who seek diligently and perseveringly. Each year, one or more of those who formed the little band of pioneers who exhibited that diligence and perseverance in the face of almost insuperable obstacles, who stuck to the town of their adoption in spite of hard times, through all the vicissitudes of the growth of Winnipeg from trading post to metropolis, steadfast in their faith in its future, pass to their long rest having seen their judgment justified, their dreams of the city that was to be come true. The city of Winnipeg, and indeed, the whole of Western Canada, joins in paying tribute to the worth of those pioneer citizens of the prairies, whose unbounded optimism it was which made possible the Winnipeg of to-day, and whose prophetic vision outlined, in spite of the struggles in which they were involved, the glorious future of the west, which to-day is just beginning to be realized. The story of their careers is an object lesson to all in display of sterling character, of business integrity, and a wealth of human kindness.—The Saturday Post.

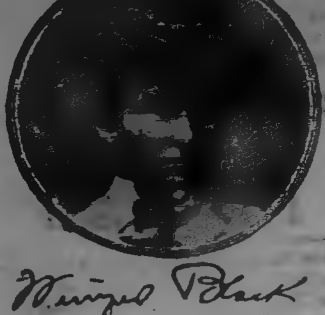
What Does Spring Mean to School Children Today?

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

THEY'RE building a brand new kind of schoolhouse out on the Pacific coast.

They have play yards like the old-fashioned play ground, and besides that they have great covered play rooms to be used in rainy weather; and there's another kind of play ground on the roof, a regular roof garden with pergolas and vines and trees in tubs, and everything but waiters to make it look like the real thing.

The children are going to eat their lunches up there—and have dances and singing games. What fun it will be to walk along the street and look up in the air high, high above your head and see Mary Jones doing the tango and Tommy Tucker practising the hesitation waltz.

They have sanitary lunches at the new schools, too—no, it's hygienic, you must say nowadays—sanitary has gone out. The teachers open the lunch boxes and see whether little Susie is bringing too much caloric to school with her in her luncheon and if it's true that Johnny Smith's mother still believes in cooking.

What fun it must be to go to school these days.

I hear all about it from some little tykes I know pretty well. They do tell me such interesting things, all about hygienics and onward and upward look-out-and-not-in classes and mottoes and reading without learning to spell. Not one of them can say the alphabet. Did you ever ask a perfectly good high school boy to find somebody in the telephone directory and have him puzzle over whether S came before Z or not?

Oh, there are so many things they know, these children in these schools today. They quite overawe me sometimes—until I begin to think how many things there are that they don't even suspect.

What We "Don't" Do Now.

They don't "pass the water" any more, even in hot weather. They have hygienic filters, and everybody brings a separate cup, and there's a set and determined time for drinking, and no other time at all.

Why, the teachers would die of horror to have thirsty little boys and restless little girls drinking every other minute or so.

They don't sharpen pencils either, not out of hours. Pencils are sharpened in a certain way at a certain time, and that's all there is to it.

You couldn't hunt up an excuse for whirling around in your seat, or stooping down, or bending over, or going to the board, or moving one inch out of the routine—to save every life in every class in the whole school building.

All fine, all splendid, all progressive, all something to be proud of, no doubt—and yet——

Do you remember the first day along in April when the hens in the yard next to the schoolhouse came out of the barn and walked around in the wet ground, and talked about the weather?

There was one old white rooster that I used to know who knew more about the weather than all the government bureaus in the world.

He told us about it, too, and we always understood what he said.

When he hopped up on to the edge of the sawbuck and made a few remarks, we knew that the Spring Beauties were coming up down in Churchill's Woods just as sure as anything. And when he flew to the top of the damp straw stack and called aloud to his flock and dared them to follow him there, we knew that Johnny Sheahan would come to school in the morning with a bunch of Pussy Willows for the teacher, and that the Barnard boys would have their pockets full of Slippery Allum to chew before the week was up.

April Fun in Other Days.

No, I didn't mean Slippery Elm. That's the thing we learned about in the botany class. I meant Slippery Allum that you stripped off the tree and chewed, just because you could. Of course, you pretended you liked it, but there was nothing to it but slipperiness after all.

What a lot of things we used to pretend we liked in those days when we went to the old-fashioned schoolhouse.

Sorrel—how hard did you have to work to keep from making a face when you chewed Sorrel and made believe to like it?

Cheeses—they grew on little weeds down close to the path, rather musty little things they were; and how wise you felt when you broke off the stem of a Milkweed and went back the next day and showed your city cousin what good gum it made, if you let it dry long enough.

Somehow that particular piece of Milkweed gum never was just exactly right. But the next time you tried it it was going to be.

That first day in April I was talking about—shall you ever forget it? Martha Claflin always was the first one to ask the teacher if she couldn't open the window. And when Martha Claflin did that all the girls came back in the afternoon with gingham dresses on or new ribbons in their hair, or something to make them feel "different." And all the boys appeared with a baseball or a bat or a glove, and somebody began to play "Andy Andy Over" at noon.

I wonder how they tell about spring in these new, hygienic, up-to-the-minute schoolhouses. I suppose they look at the almanac.

Somehow I suppose I'm frightfully unregenerated. But somehow I'm just stupid enough to be glad that I had another way of finding out about it.

I wonder if the Churchills still have a white rooster to tell the school children next door the news? I'd go a good many weary miles to sit again in my little seat at the end of the row in the little old-fashioned schoolhouse and hear him tell it.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

STRAWBERRIES and the styles of 1830 are contemporaneous events in American history. It was in the same year that women were wearing the quaint modes which have been revived this season with such charming success that strawberry market culture was first undertaken in the United States.

Was it Emerson or another of the New England immortals who said there might have been a better berry created than the strawberry, but if so, he had never eaten it?

Anyway the first true American berries came from Cambridge, Mass., being raised in the gardens of Charles M. Hovey in the year 1836 or 1837. At that time Mr. Emerson was living in Concord, and creating a distinct stir in the literary life of this country and Europe.

With the early shipments from the sunny southland and the late invoices from Nova Scotia and northern latitudes the strawberry season has been delightfully lengthened during the past decade, and extends from the New Year to midsummer with a short extra season in the fall.

Berries are growing more delicious each day—for the summer berries are invariably the best flavored—and different ways to serve the fruit are welcome to the housewife, though all the culinary skill of the world's cooks has failed to improve the original flavor.

It is to be questioned whether strawberries are ever more appealing than when piled, unhulled, au naturel, on a bed of their own leaves, accompanied by a snowy mound of powdered sugar into which each berry is tenderly dipped before being eaten. Nor is there any surer way to judge the epicure than by his manner of eating strawberries.

Preserved strawberries are the response to the natural wish of all friends of the fruit to prolong indefinitely the joys of the berries. There is a knack in successful preservation. Here is the rule of a famous New England cook:

Four pounds of berries and two pounds of sugar. Arrange berries and sugar in alternate layers in glass jars. Set jars on a trivet in a boiler two-thirds full of water. Cover and cook till the water in the boiler boils vigorously. Remove the jars, and if the berries have settled, fill from another jar and seal.

PREPARING FOR MIDDLE AGE

Jane Cowl.

"Learn How to Retire Gracefully," Says Jane Cowl

By ELEANOR AMES

THE pathos of growing old is largely a matter of temperament. Growing old gracefully is an acquired art.

Enjoy your triumphs while you may, and when, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for you to step down from the throne which youth occupies so majestically, do it with a cheerful heart and a smiling face and have a store of happy memories to brighten your life in another phase of existence.

That is the gist of some very wise and excellent advice which Jane Cowl, called "the most beautiful woman on the American stage," gave me in a recent interview.

It was advice aimed particularly at actresses, but it applies with equal wisdom to all women, for age is no respecter of professions.

Miss Cowl, now at the zenith of her success, says she will never remain on the stage to meet defeat.

"I am determined to have the good sense to retire when the time comes that it is best for me to do so," she said. "I have worked hard to succeed and I mean to go on working as hard as my mind and strength permit. I am grateful and happy for what has come to me. But I think it will be beautiful if I can retire before the public has the chance to say, or even to think, 'Jane Cowl is growing old.'

"It is far better to retire in the heyday of success than to face the inevitable disillusionment and heartache which come to those who hang on too long. There are few Bernhardts in any walk of life. Fadeless youth is the rarest thing in the world. It belongs only to the supreme genius.

"I know some women, on the stage and off, can never afford to retire from active business, but that is one of the tragedies of life. There are innumerable women in all professions and in business who must go on and on earning money whether they want to or not. They are the real heroines. If they can keep up the illusion of youth when youth is gone, they should receive all praise.

"No one can judge of another's position. So many women have responsibilities of which nothing is known. They are never in a position to save anything to make their old age lighter or brighter.

"But for them I would wish the philosophical state of mind which enables them to accept the inevitable and content themselves on the sidelines when another has the spotlight wherein they once basked. I would have them reach that stage of content where they can enjoy without a pang the fortune of their supplanters in the centre of the stage.

"But there are many women who have few responsibilities and good incomes.

"To those I would say: Take the advice I am giving to myself. Save your money and lay up for the future. Then, when the right time comes, step down and have a graceful and happy middle and old age.

"Mary Anderson de Navarro is such a delightful example of the actress who knew when to retire. She, of course, had the chance to make a brilliant marriage and took advantage of it. Hundreds of actresses—hundreds of business women—have good marital opportunities, only to throw them aside and go on chasing the great will-o'-the-wisp of popularity, or fame.

"I wish they might see the lovely English home of the actress who had so beautiful a place in the hearts of America. It has trees and gardens and flowers, surrounding a wonderful old house, and there Mary Anderson lives with her children, the happiest and most charming of matrons.

"I am not a pessimist. But I do believe in looking any situation in the face. And there is no concealing the fact that youth, with its fresh enthusiasms and its belief in the future, will take the strongest place in the hearts of the public.

"Nothing is more pathetic than to see a woman of more than mature years making a final desperate stand against the onslaught of time. How much finer is the one who can meet the years with a 'smiling face,' and tranquil manner, knowing that she has other work to do, and that the work she once did can be better done by the younger woman.

"By retirement I don't mean going into obscurity. I mean stepping out of the picture into some more secure and just as useful position, instead of standing with defiance when the hour of dominion has rightfully passed. And I DO believe in marriage. If the right man comes along, I say to any girl, don't refuse to share his name and his home."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

A Seasonable Excuse.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

"THE weather," said Mary with the air of a martyr, "is certainly getting on my nerves. I'm a wreck."

"You don't look it," I suggested with husbandly frankness. "Your color's good and you're not under weight."

"Did you ever see a man," demanded Mary superciliously, "who would admit that his wife was tired out?"

"Are you tired out?" I inquired incredulously.

"Well," exclaimed Mary indignantly, "I should think I am! You ought to know better than to ask. Haven't I done all my own work, Peter, for over a year, when I never had to do a lot of housework before I was married? I've even ironed the handkerchiefs now and then when Sarah couldn't get through."

"Well," I suggested modestly, "I've been working some myself." Mary flushed and turned the subject.

I didn't see just whither all this discussion of summer exhaustion was tending, but Mary showed her hand after a while, as she usually does if I leave her to her own resources. That's a singular thing about Mary. If I show a sincere appetite for information she yields it reluctantly in unsatisfactory segments that don't in the least explain. If I abandon the pursuit in disgust and take up my paper, she tells me the whole thing of her own accord. Another symptom of feminine perverseness, I take it.

"Mrs. Anthony has gone away for two months," said Mary in colorless tones. "She's very fortunate."

"Mr. Anthony's working nights to earn extra money," I said flippantly. "He's very unfortunate."

Mary frowned.

"Mrs. Corin goes next week and Mrs. Ray the week after. Odd, all the club members will be away, the card club, I mean."

"You'll be at home," I suggested absently.

"Oh—I—of course!" said Mary, shrugging. "I mean those who can afford to be fashionable. One judges so much by what people do. You can always tell—"

The voice and manner were enough. I put aside my paper.

"Does it bother you because you have to be unfashionable and stay home with me?" I inquired, a little hurt by the complaint in her voice.

"Oh, no," said Mary. "I'll get used to it."

"You don't have to," I told her warmly. "You can go away if you want to. I've money enough in the bank. When my vacation of two weeks comes I'll join you."

Now I was sure Mary would instantly refuse this offer, made in a spirit of wounded pride. It has always been my firm belief that no woman is entitled to more vacation than her husband, unless she has small children to whom the trip will be of healthful advantage, or because her own health demands it. In all other circumstances I can't see why she shouldn't stay at home and make live livable for him. He'll go with her when he can and that's sufficient. The woman who abandons her husband to town solitude, when he isn't one who waves a jubilant good-by to the train, makes me tired.

Just as soon as I had reluctantly repeated my offer to Mary, she flew over and kissed me most enthusiastically on the forehead. Mary's kisses are warmest when she has just gained a point. The warmth behind them, however, is not of the sort that coincides with my old-fashioned notions of wifely love.

"Peter," she cooed, "you are a dear! When can I go? Where's a time table? I've been getting my clothes ready for a week or so, but I didn't dare speak of it before. You won't be lonely, will you?"

"Oh, no," said I. "Certainly not. I can smoke and think and sleep and eat and read. Where are you going?"

"Up to Marner's Lake," said Mary happily. "Everybody we know is up there."

Do women flock to resorts because they're honestly tired, or merely because it's fashionable? Whatever the reason, I insist that it's selfish.

Both Militant.

"I understand they have fought ever since their marriage."

"Why not? He is a soldier and she is a suffragette."

Better Than No Reason.

"Those European monarchs always have to marry for reasons of state."

"Well, they have more reasons than the average American."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

The Tone of Your Voice Seldom Shows Your Vigor

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

EVERYBODY'S voice has a meaning all its own. The high-pitched, raucous voice of the harbinger of spring, calling "Strawberries! Strawberries! Strawberries!" cannot be mistaken for the old London street cry.

Ever since Mrs. Isaac put one over on the patriarch back in the days of Genesis, when the well nigh sightless chieftain said: "The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau," the tones from the throat have had a significance more than that of mere recognition.

When a dry, hoarse, metallic voice calls the alert physician on the 'phone, he begins to think of partially paralysed vocal cords, a laryngitis, an aneurism, or bulging of the aorta—the largest artery in your melancholy anatomy—or, bad 'cess to it, the last stages of tuberculosis.

A commoner fallacy does not prevail among the Great American People than the one which considers the otherwise well individual with a hoarse voice to have "tuberculosis" or "consumption of the throat."

When this ultra-Grand Marshal of the Military Chronic Maladies, to wit, tuberculosis, infects the woebegone victim, the poor chap is always between a hawk and a buzzard, but nowadays he rarely has such a degree of the infelicitous ailment as to cause throat and voice disturbances.

Hoarseness No Symptom.

In fine, there are hundreds of busy doctors who never have seen any one so far gone as to have "tuberculous laryngitis," as it is called.

Amazing, perhaps, it is, yet throat consumption occurs only in the most advance examples of this miserable disorder. A physician has yet to appear who ever saw an early instance of tuberculosis arise with a permanent change of the voice.

Happily, in the present great preventive eras, a crisp, soft, faint voice need not remain under the pall of your suspicions.

You may, to be sure, weep, as the lady with the thermometer under her tongue does, for the voiceless who have known the crown without the cross of glory, but luckily such tears need not be seriously shed for the still, small voice.

"A few can touch the magic string
And noisy Fame is proud to win them.
Alas, for those that never sing,
And die with all their music in them."

Each Voice Different.

The voices of turtle doves, the billing and cooing of the mother to her as yet wordless babe, has a richer meaning far than the language that comes later.

Even though a lion aggravates his voice like Bottom, so that he will roar you as gently as a sucking dove, you could scarcely mistake the jungle beast for a bird.

Your voice through the telephone over a thousand miles away cannot be mistaken for another's. Man is, after all, like the nightingale, whose feathers were plucked off by a Laconian, namely, "all voice and nothing else."

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been going out with a man for the last year who likes another girl not living in the same place. He has told me all about her, and he writes to her and goes to see her two or three times a year.

He is not in love with her. He wants to kiss me, and yet by doing so he thinks he is deceiving her. What should I do about it? Should I allow him to kiss me, or should I give him up altogether? I don't want to do that, but I want to do what is right.

ANXIOUS.

POOR little Anxious, I'm afraid this man of yours isn't yours at all. And no one else's—but his own.

He isn't telling you the truth, can't you see that, you poor little girl you?

If he is not in love with the other girl and doesn't pretend to be now can he deceive her by making love to you?

You're pretty, probably, and interesting, and he likes to have a nice attractive girl to take out with him, and so he takes you out and fibs to you about the other girl.

The only thing for him to do is to make up his mind which girl he likes the best—tell the other one the truth—and be done with it.

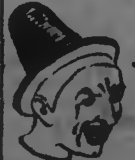
But that is what that sort of man will never do.

He'll go on fibbing to you and telling stories to the other girl, and by and by there'll be a third girl, and then a fourth, and the first thing all four of you know he'll be married to somebody you never heard of—and she's the one to pity, for that sort of man keeps that sort of thing up as long as he lives.

Give him up, Anxious, and give him up now.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.



As a Clown Sees Us

By Harry La Pearl

Premier Clown of the New York Hippodrome.

Slapsticks.

NO home today is complete without a slapstick. In a great many ways it is handier than a hairpin, because the man of the house knows but few of the several hundred possibilities of the instrument.

With a slapstick in the first and most important place, a man is certain to feel more comfortable; he has a handful of something, and he can swing hard and make a loud noise with it, even though he does no damage.

The hard swing will relieve his muscular tension—something the doctors are writing long screeds about now, and to which they are attributing most of the ills of the world—and he will make himself heard! For the moment he will make an impression. Success at last.

Of course, this is the prime feature of the adaptable slapstick. We clowns have long carried one home with us, and, as a class, we probably think ourselves masters of our own destinies with more reason than most men. There are other uses for the ancient funmaker—such as a burglar alarm, a cat exterminator, a pudding mixer, a nursery problem solver, a parlor entertainer, a prop for most anything, etc. But these are incidentals; the purchaser of a first-class slapstick will quickly discover its many uses.

What I must emphasize, in defence of my sex, is the beauty of the "success" noted in my second paragraph. With the rest of the household down to the cook gadding to morning hesitations, afternoon tangos and evening maxixes, it is high time the tired business man asserts himself. How else than with the handy slapstick can he do it with less danger to himself and less damage to his family and household furniture?

Take a lesson from the Phraternal Order of Phools, gentlemen slaves to the "everybody-else-is-doing-it" excuse. Purchase any one of several artistic designs of slapstick (some of them are folding in order to accommodate flat dwellers) march home and address the Morris chair with the business end of the stick. It will sound like the roof is falling in, but you will get some respectful attention.

Half the battle is won. With such an implement in your hand you will find yourself possessed of a nerve that would win medals from any Mexican general. Now say it and let the stick mark all your commas, periods and exclamation points.

If this procedure doesn't work, phools must have something you lack

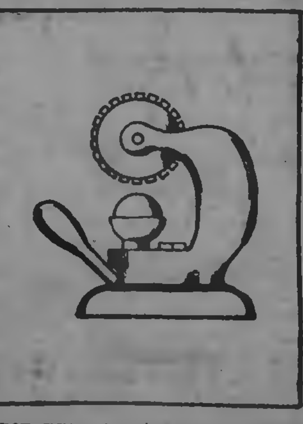
GOLF BALL MAKER

Sphere Rests on Plunger and is Pressed up Against Die

An apparatus for imparting to golf balls their peculiar pock-marked complexion has been designed. Arising from a metal base is a metal standard with an overhanging and bifurcated arm. In the bifurcations of this arm a rotary die is pivoted. Directly below this die is a vertically moving plunger that is operated by a little lever at the side and that has a spring attached to control its movements. On top of the plunger is a cup into which a golf ball is placed. By pressing down on the lever the plunger rises and the ball is pressed against the die. The force of the impact is sufficient to set the die revolving and it continues to revolve as the ball rises against it. This has the effect of turning the ball around in the cup so that it is stamped around its entire circumference.



DIE REVOLVES AUTOMATICALLY.

THE MODERN WONDER

It is surprising what a single cent's worth of electricity will do. Taking 10 cents a kilowatt hour as a basis, it will do any one of the following things:

Bring two quarts of water to a boil.

Run an electric broiler for six minutes.

Operate a twelve-inch electric fan for eight minutes.

Heat a luminous radiator eight minutes.

Make a Welsh rabbit in an electric chafing dish.

Operate a sewing machine motor for three hours.

Keep a four-inch disk stove hot for fifteen minutes.

Operate a seven-inch frying pan for twelve minutes.

Make four cups of coffee in an electric percolator.

Keep a foot warmer hot for a quarter of an hour.

Keep an electric flatiron hot for fifteen minutes.

Heat an electric curling iron once a day for two weeks.

Raise 250 gallons of water 100 feet.

Keep a dentist's electric hammer and drill running for one hour and a half.

SHREWD FINANCIER WAS THIS MANAGER

Hughie Jennings' Story of the Baseball Boomer Who Knew the Value of Publicity

In my career in minor and major leagues I have heard a million funny baseball stories, said Hughie Jennings, the famous manager of the Detroit Tigers, when asked to spin his best yarn. The funniest of all may read like fiction, but is fact. The man around whom the story hangs is now a prominent semi-professional manager in a large western city, and has a bank roll that is the envy of many a major leaguer.

This man received his start as a department store clerk. While working for a small salary, he learned that the firm did not back a baseball team. It was the only large store in town that was not backing a fast amateur club, as an advertising dodge. The clerk was a fan. He read everything printed about baseball, inside and outside, and believed he was just the man to manage a team backed by the store. And he helped the store manager to reach the same conclusion.

He decided he must be a first class press agent, so he never failed to tip off to the sporting editors any bit of news that came his way, especially about his club. He broke into the sport pages with the name of his firm so often that he soon received an advance in salary.

At the start he scheduled games in his home city only, but his club quickly made such a reputation that out-of-town teams were asking for dates, usually offering $25 to $50 inducements. Impressing upon his players that acceptance of this money by them meant the loss of their amateur standing, he pocketed the money himself. Before long his stipend from the games exceeded his salary, and he decided to back a club of his own, employing his brother as traveling manager.

If you wonder why this clerk succeeded as manager, let me relate two instances of his shrewdness. He wanted to get the results of out-of-town games, but hesitated about paying telegraph or telephone tolls, so he evolved a scheme to beat the companies. After each game his brother would telephone, asking for an imaginary person. Their code was simple, the initials representing the score.

If the call was for Mr. C. A. Smith, the clerk-manager knew his team had won by a score of 3 to 1, for the first initial meant his team and the second the opposing team, the letters of the alphabet being numbered.

He filled his grandstand one day by advertising on the sport pages a reward of $200 for a $400 diamond ring lost in the grandstand upon the occasion of the last game. Men who never attended the games invested in grandstand seats on the hope of finding that diamond ring—which, of course, never had been lost.

"HUGHIE"

PUGILISTS' PARENTAL AFFECTION

By the recent death of the mother of Fred Welsh, champion light-weight boxer, another instance was recalled of the strong parental affection shown by so many prominent fighters. Amid all his triumphs, Welsh's first thought was always of his mother, to whom for years he remitted half his earnings in the ring.

Packey McFarland, one of Welsh's greatest rivals, is another exemplary son in this respect. Two years ago he wished to return to England for another bout with the Cardiff champion, but his mother, who was in ill-health, begged him not to go while she lived. And nothing could tempt Packey to break the promise he then made.

Jim Jeffries, after losing to Jack Johnson, begged that the news of his defeat might be kept from his mother. Johnson, himself, out of his championship winnings, bought his mother a house, and invested a sum of money to ensure her an income for life.

Jim Corbett, immediately after winning his historic fight with Sullivan, cleared the mortgage on his father's home, settled other of the old gentleman's liabilities, and treated him to a long-desired trip to his native Ireland.

Caught Tame Bull Moose

A fisherman at Rossport, near Port Arthur, captured a bull moose swimming in Thunder Bay. The moose already was quite tame, and evinced no fear of man, and quietly ate from its owner's hand.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¾ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

RADIUM'S OFFICIAL LIST

Explained by Head of Berlin Imperial Institute

Like weights and measures, radium preparations are now officially tested as to their efficiency in Germany. This is the task of the Imperial Physical-Technical Institute, in whose custody is a so-called secondary standard, equalling the "normal" radium measure which is kept in Paris. Details of the process are given b. Prof. Warburg, the director of the institute, in the periodical Radium in Biology and Medicine.

The method of testing consists in the measurement of the gamma rays emanated by the preparation submitted for examination. This can only be done when the preparation has been kept for six weeks in a thin glass tube, as the radium only becomes constant after that period. After another week the preparation is retested, a differential of 1 per cent. being allowed for natural changes. The certificate of genuineness which is thereupon issued by the institute stipulates that the values stated therein must be understood to apply to radium only, not to any other radioactive substances which the preparation may contain, such as mesothorium.

The reason for this is that when the two substances are combined the radiation gradually increases for two months and then again weakens. Pure mesothorium preparations are similarly "hall marked" by their own standard, while for radioactive waters and salts the French "millicurie" is the accepted unit of measurement.

SMOTHERING OF ASTHMA STOPS QUICK THOUSANDS CURED BY "CATARRHOZONE"

Count Ten—Then Relief Comes From Chronic Asthma

Nothing yet discovered can compare with Catarrhozone in bad, ugly cases of Asthma.

Catarrhozone is the one remedy that can be sent quickly and direct to all parts of the breathing apparatus.

The effect from Catarrhozone is a quick one—you feel better in no time—keep up the good work, use Catarrhozone as directed and you get well.

Even though many other remedies have failed—even though you are discouraged and blue—cheer up and try Catarrhozone to-day. What is repeatedly has done for others it will surely not fail to accomplish for you.

Ex-Chief Gummerson in Trouble

Port Hope Guide: Our Ex-Constable A. W. Gummerson is again in the limelight. A few days ago the bailiff, Mr. Harry Merriefield, received a Division Court summons to serve on Gummerson, but the ex-constable could not be located. Yesterday, Gummerson refused to accept the summons and the bailiff threw it at his feet. It is alleged that Gummerson then assaulted the bailiff, and next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock he will have an opportunity of explaining his conduct to Police Magistrate White.

Boys in Narrow Escape.

Mr. Barley, of 211 Bethune Street, got a bad scare yesterday morning. It seems his little son Walter, with another boy named Art Loener, each about the size of a well-developed grasshopper, went out fishing at 6 a.m., They went to the C.P.R. bridge and got busy. The two boys, in their eagerness after the suckers they fished for, leaning over a boom on which they stood, fell into the cold and wet water. Their friends nearby caught them, as they floated down stream, by the Northwest corner of their respective nickerbockers and hauled them into safety, when the boys were almost all in.

A Fine Catch of Trout

Yesterday Mr. W. Gillott, the Millbrook undertaker, was in the city, a guest at the Snowden House. He brought with him some proofs of his science in the piscatorial art. These were three brook trout, caught at Millbrook. They were three trout, evidently grandfather, father and son. The largest measured 14½ inches, the next 10½ inches, and the little one 7½ inches. The grandfather, by actual weight made before a Times reporter turned the scale at 1 pound, 14 ounces. They were seen by over 500 people whilst on exhibition at the new Waverley Inn, at Millbrook, which is one of the finest hotels in an Ontario Local Option district.

Dead King's Visit Here Recalled.

Mrs. Georgina Gage, of Mark Street Ashburnham, who is, incidentally related to the Marchioness of Queensbury, was in conversation with a Times reporter yesterday. In recalling old events in Peterborough, she distinctly remembered the visit to Peterborough of the late King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales. She happened to be at Hiawatha the day the Prince crossed Rice Lake on the now demolished railway bridge. The Indians, on that occasion presented the Prince with a handsome birch bark canoe, whilst the squaws gave him some birch bark boxes and moccasins elaborately decorated with porcupine quills.

Sunny Jim's Mule Again.

Yesterday morning a recently joined member of the police force, walking the Hunter Street beat, heard a noise resembling that made by a steam riveter. He knew that no steel buildings were being erected on that street. He then evidently thought it must be a phonograph, and remembering that such instruments must not be used on the public streets without a license. He investigated and discovered Sunny Jim Wilson's ancient mule once more at large. The noise was caused by ribs on the East side striking those on the West side of this animal. He placed the mule under arrest. As he could induce no motion towards its Heavenly Home or even stable by pulling it by the forelock, he borrowed a rope. This was attached to the neck of this ancient warbler. The cop pulled until red in the face. At a late hour last night it is understood he had hauled this decripid mule two blocks. Magistrate Dumble, who saw the incident, inquired "Why don't you take that poor beast away and shoot it?"

The part of "The Dave of Aranza" was taken by Mr. Day, and that of "Juliana" by Miss Rose Osborn.

BI-LINGUAL OTTAWA SCHOOLS IN DEFIANCE OF GOVERNMENT

English-Speaking Inspectors Demand That Education Department Either Enforce Rule Seventeen or Else Destroy the Regulation

Ottawa, May 5.—Six of the English speaking Separate School Trustees of Ottawa issued a signed statement to-day, explaining their side of the controversy with the French over bi-lingual schools, and calling upon the Ontario Government to enforce at once regulation 17. The statement says:

"One word to the Ontario Government: The time has come to enforce Instruction 17, either in its present, or in a modified form. No self-respecting Government can any longer permit Government schools to be run in defiance of the Government, as are the Bi-lingual Separate Schools of Ottawa to-day. If the Government cannot discipline the bi-lingual schools that are defying the law, without penalising, as it has unjustly done, the English schools that are observing the law, then that simply shows that separation is necessary. We refuse to have our schools made the buffer, and crushed."

Schools are Different.

The statement goes at length into the history of the trouble over bi-lingual schools in Ottawa. The English-speaking trustees explain why they have asked the Ontario Government to form two separate school Boards in Ottawa. "We object to the present system, which permits the French voters of this city, who have a set of schools more different from our English Separate Schools than are the Public Schools from the Separate Schools, to elect our trustees, to control our schools and to spend our money. We maintain that, while temporary makeshifts may be found, the only satisfactory and permanent solution of the Ottawa Separate School difficulty, is complete separation of the English Separate Schools and the Bi-lingual Separate Schools. The French of this city have rejected this perfectly fair proposition with scorn and insults. Perhaps some day they may realize that it is also their only salvation."

"Insurrectionist" Plans.

"Meanwhile, as long as we are forced to remain in partnership with the bi-lingual trustees we are bound to see that our partners do not ruin us. Unfortunately, our partners have attempted, and are attempting, to ruin us by their insurrectionist plan of campaign and frenzied finance.

"Let it be clearly understood that we have no direct part in this quarrel between the Ontario Government and the French-Canadian Educational Association. As long as our schools and our children are not thereby affected, either directly or indirectly, the French may teach five hours a day of French in their schools, for all we care. That is their business, not ours."

LIBERAL CANDIDATE

As the Ontario Government elections are to be held in the near future, it is interesting to know those by whom Mr. E.A. Peck, M.L.A., for West Peterborough will be opposed. Prominent amongst possible Liberal candidates are Messrs. G. N. Gordon, the local barrister, G.A. Gillespie, a local merchant and J. J. Hartley, a Peterborough contractor.

MYSTERY SHIP PUZZLE GROWS NO NEWS OF BURNING STEAMER

Shipping Circles Without Further Details Despite Efforts to Learn Facts of Strange Events Radiographed in From Ocean

New York, May 5.—The North German Lloyd received to-day from the captain of the steamer Seydlitz, the following wireless message concerning the mysterious vessel on fire off Cape Sable:

"Large steamer burning all over. Passed close by. Convinced that she was abandoned. Name not recognizable. Foremast and funnel overboard. Position, 41.37 north, 59.07 west."

The Seydlitz is due here to-morrow.

Boston, Mass., May 5.—Further details regarding the burning steamer, sighted 300 miles south of Cape Race yesterday, by the Steamer Seydlitz Bremen, for New York, were anxiously awaited in shipping circles to-day. The meagre wireless despatches sent last night by the Seydlitz, and by the Sable Island Radio Station, indicated that it had been impossible to learn the name of the vessel, but that another steamer apparently had heard her call for help Sunday night.

REV. W. T. HERRIDGE, D. D.

Of Ottawa, who will conduct the Anniversary in St. Paul's Church, on Sunday next.

No Sign of Life.

As the Seydlitz could see no sign of life on board, it was hoped that the crew had been taken off by some other vessel.

The difficulty of obtaining news by wireless concerning the burning ship was increased by the fact that the Radio Station at Cape Race, which was disabled in an early spring blizzard, at present has a very limited range.

The Surest Way To Remove Hairs.

(Boudoir Secrets.)

The annoying growths of hair or fuzz can now be banished in a quick, painless manner and at a trifling expense by the following simple treatment: Mix into a stiff paste enough powdered delatone and water to cover the ugly hairs, apply, and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This will not mar the most sensitive skin, but you must be careful and see that it is genuine delatone you buy.

GOOD WAGES PAID AT WESTMINSTER

Aside From M. P.'s and Ministers Salaries Range From $25,000 Dolls.

London, May 6.—Not reckoning the salaries paid to M.P.s. and ministers, the two houses of Parliament have a permanent wage bill of over $500,000 per annum. A perusal of this wage bill shows that there are some lucrative positions in the two houses.

Taking the Commons first, the speaker, who receives $25,000 a year, has a chief clerk who is paid $10,000 year. There is also an assistant clerk with $7,500 a year, and several principal clerks with $5,000 a year each. The chaplain, who reads the prayers at the opening of each daily sitting, draws $165 a month. The train-bearer who carries the speaker's train in the daily processions through the corridors to the chair, gets $1,500 a year. The Commons has also a sergeant-at-arms, who draws $6,000 a year. He has two assistants, who get $65 and $50 a week respectively.

The sergeant-at-arms in the House of Lords is paid $5,000 a year, his deputy's salary is $1,250. The most notable institution in the Lords, however, is the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod. His duty is to summon the Commons to the bar of the Lords an occasion and also superintend 18 doorkeepers. He receives $5,000 a year for his duties; he has a subordinate who gets $4,000 a year; while the doorkeepers' salaries range down from $60 a week to $10.

GIRL IS POISONED HINDOO SEER HELD

Extraordinary Story of Occultism, Love and Drugs Comes from Milan. ...

Rome, May 6.— From Milan comes an extraordinary story of a drama of occultism, love and poison.

Among the best known people in the English colony in that town is Miss Gertrude Lewy, a charming girl, of independent means. Some time ago she made the acquaintance of a wealthy professor, a Britush-Indian adept in occultism, residing with his wife in the suburban hill town of Fiesole, and eventually went to live there as his honorary secretary.

The Tuscan peasantry tell strange stories about the professor's [illegible] that owing [illegible] fascinating eyes no woman [illegible] possibly resist him. Some weeks ago he was arrested on a criminal charge but was subsequently released on bail.

Miss Lewy, it is said, had fallen under the Indian's spell, and was madly in love with him. She had drawn a will bequeathing him $20,000, when, owing to the energetic intervention of English friends, she was removed, apparently dying, from the professor's house. The professor fled from the district, and it was ascertained that Miss Lewy was suffering from the effects of poison. She is now lying dangerously ill, [illegible] hospital.

A warrant was issued for the professor's arrest, and the police found his wife preparing for departure to England.

According to the information furnished the Florentine police, the professor was once arrested in London, on charges of victimizing women.

"WITHIN THE LAW"

"Within The Law" is the real underworld play of to-day" wrote Police Commissioner Geo. S. Dougherty to Mr. Bayard Veiller author of the tremendously successful melodrama which comes to the Grand Opera House on Saturday, May 8th matinee and night and which has had the almost unprecedented record of nearly two years run in New York City and in one theatre—the Eltinge. Before writing this play, Mr. Veiller was practically unknown. The day after its production, he received so many offers of contracts to write plays that he was forced to flee out of town to keep from signing away enough of his time to cover the remainder of his natural life. This is what inevitably happens to the dramatist who writes a big success. But only a few play wrights achieve such a hit as "Within The Law" during a century of dramatic writing. "Ben Hur" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin" are perhaps the two nearest modern instances of hits approaching that of the Veiller play both in the matter of interest created and money earned.

UNIONIST ULSTER DETERMINED READY FOR ARMED RESISTANCE

Complete Preparations Made—Movement is Backed by Every Class of Community—Presbyterians are Dominant Factor

Coleraine, County Derry, Ireland, May 5.—In the past few days I have seen enough of Antrim, Down, Armagh, Tyrone, Donegal and Londonderry counties to convince me that Unionist Ulster is set in its determination against submission to the present Irish Home Rule Bill. I am, [illegible] convinced that while the [illegible] propose, if possible, to retain "their full British citizenship" by peaceful means, they will not hesitate at armed resistance. They will not commence hostilities but neither will they submit to coercion.

They have a total enrolment of 110,000 men of whom it is estimated that 50,000 turned out during the Easter drills, manoeuvres, parades and reviews. I am pretty well persuaded in my own mind that arms and ammunition have been provided for the entire force, and that in Belfast district alone the Volunteers are in possession of no less than 2 modern machine guns.

The importation of arms and ammunition has been greatly facilitated by the existence of a chain of wireless telegraph stations along the seacoast—All linked up with headquarters at Belfast.

These stations, one of which I visited, are all situated on private property and are therefore free from Government interference. Secondly, the several regiments have effective corps of signallers and field telegraphers, who are sufficiently expert to transmit and accept messages by day or night. Thirdly, there are the corps of despatch riders constantly travelling from point to point with urgent messages. Fourthly, there is the secret service branch of the force, including ex-detectives, clergymen, prominent business men and even officers who have been attached to the British diplomatic service.

Bringing in Arms.

With such lines of inter-communication it will not be considered surprising if a good deal of successful gun-running has occurred. In addition we have even the women of Ulster bringing in rifles and pistols under capacious travelling cloaks.

Let me again emphasize the democratic character of the Ulster Volunteer Force. The section leaders are elected by the men of their section, the company officers by their section leaders and the battalion commanding officers by their company officers. Much has been made by so-called Radicals in Canada and elsewhere of the circumstance that the larger reviews and field manoeuvres are often held in fields owned by rich men or members of the aristocracy and that some of the regimental commanding officers belong to the peerage. The answer is that the grounds loaned by the landed proprietors are the only ones extensive enough for the movement of considerable bodies of troops, and that many of the nobility have had valuable experience as officers in the regular army and are therefore indispensable to the Force.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

The Rev. W. T. Herridge, D. D., of Ottawa, who is to preach the anniversary services of St. Paul's Church next Sabbath, is perhaps the most outstanding pulpit orator in the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He has recently conducted a mission in the city of Vancouver and the resolution which was passed by the Session of St. Andrews Church there, gives, in brief form, some idea of his pulpit power. The resolution reads:

"The congregat[illegible] Andrews Church desires to [illegible] appreciation of the service rendered to the cause of Christ in this city, during the mission conducted here by the Rev. W.T. Herridge, D.D., of Ottawa. The intellectual strength of his discourses their manifest literary distinction, the fervor of their delivery and the moral and spiritual power behind them, have given an uplift to the whole congregation. The large numbers who have attended the services from all parts of the city and from all classes indicate the wide range of Dr. Herridge's influence and show the great part his work will have in building up the spiritual life of our members and of all who have been privileged to hear him. To not a few among us his messages have brought a clarified vision, a wider outlook, and a new consecration. The congregation of St. Andrews Church, Vancouver, hereby express its profound gratitude to Dr. Herridge for the unique service he has rendered us, and desires also to express their deep appreciation to the congregation of St. Andrew's Church, Ottawa, for lending their distinguished minister to us for this period."

REPLACE EVERY IRISH TEACHER

French Majority on Ottawa Separate School Board Plans Drastic Action

Ottawa, May 4.—Until argument is heard on the Ottawa separate school injunction at Toronto two weeks from to-day, none of the teachers will receive any salary. The Board is enjoined from paying the salaries of any unqualified teachers and Chairman Genest to-day took the ground that he did not know who came under the classification and in the meantime would refuse to sign any salary cheques.

It was learned to-day also that the French majority of trustees would in the event of the board being compelled to live up to regulations, make every school in the city a bilingual institution, replacing all the Irish teachers who do not speak French. At present negotiations are underway with an order of Irish priests to come to Ottawa and take charge of the boys' schools under a year's permit from the department, giving them time to write on the qualifying examinations.

The French majority expects an important ruling to be promulgated by Cardinal Begin after his return from the Papal Consistory, by which Irish ratepayers who are transferring their support to the public schools will be denied the sacraments of the church.

The Board of Education met in regular monthly session last night, Chairman Dr. Morrison presiding. There were also present Col. Miller, V. Eastwood, W. H. Hill, J. Smith, and Dr. Burnham.

The Department of Education wrote advising the introduction of the subject, "Agriculture," into the public schools.

Tenders for coal and for text books and supplies will be invited.

Mathematical Substitute.

Owing to the unfortunate illness of Mr. Taylor, Mathematical master in the Collegiate Institute, Mr. W. H Adamson has been engaged to fill the position the balance of the term.

A New Move.

Mr. W. H. Hill suggested that as there is plenty of room in the Collegiate Institute, this school be opened to the county, in which event the county would contribute toward the maintenance of the Institute, and the Government grant would be considerably augmented.

This suggestion was generally acquiesced in, and on motion of Messrs. Hill and Miller, the matter goes to the Supervision Committee to report at next meeting.

Entrance Exams.

Miss A. Weir was appointed a member of the Board of Examiners for the entrance examinations.

Caps for Cadets.

On motion of Mr. Crane, uniform caps, to the number of 120 if needed, will be furnished the Cadets. These caps cost one dollar each. The Government grant to the corps will be appropriated for this purpose. The Cadet Corps will turn out on the day His Excellency the Governor-General visits this city.

REPORT OF INDUSTRIAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. V. Eastwood submitted the following:

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education,—

Gentlemen,—Your committee beg to submit a report from Mr. Hagerman the Supervising Principal, on the night classes conducted during the term ending April 2nd last, which we trust will meet with your approval.

Respectfully submitted.

Principal's Report.

Gentlemen,—As Principal of the Industrial Night School, I have the honor to report as follows:

Classes were resumed on January 12th, 1914, after Christmas holidays and continued four nights per week ending on April 2nd.

Owing to insufficient members the Tuesday drafting class was discontinued and a class in mathematics substituted therefor. Mr. W. Taylor of the Collegiate Institute staff was engaged and the attendance and interest show that Mr. Taylor's efforts met with the hearty approval of the class.

On the advice of Dr. Merchant, the nature of the work in the electrical class was changed. Mr. A. Gates, B.Sc. of the C.G.E. was engaged to conduct the practical work of this department. That this was a good thing was shown by a constant growth in attendance.

Miss E. Ferguson continued to conduct three classes per week in Domestic Science.

The dressmaking classes were all put under the management of Miss Welsh, Miss Howell not feeling in a position to continue in the work. In these classes (three in number) limited in attendance to twenty, some idea of the work may be gained from the fact that at least thirty-five dresses were completed, twenty separate skirts, eighty waists or blouses and a large number of other articles of apparel consisting of coats, kimonas, underwaists, fichers, etc., were made.

The class in millinery was conducted by Miss Dawson of R. Hall Co. In this class some twenty-six hats were completed besides twenty-one shapes in wire or buckram.

The total number of men in attendance reached 50.

The total number of girls and women reached 124.

The total fees paid in for all classes, $295.00.

The total fees returned for all classes, $266.30.

The total fees on hand for all classes, $28.70.

All of which we respectfully submit.

Yours faithfully,
A. F. Hagerman,
Supervising Principal.

These reports were considered highly satisfactory. To Mr. John Crane Mr. Eastwood replied that the cost of maintenance of these classes the last two terms was well within the Board's appropriation.

CONGO NATIVES REPORTED TO HAVE KILLED MISSIONARIES

Antwerp, Belgium, May 5.—Confirmation of a reported natibe revolt in the Portuguese Congo and the killing of [illegible] white men including some [illegible] missionaries was received here to-day. Many other missionaries are said to have fled from the affected district, according to a dispatch from Boma, Belgian Congo.

The natives are led by a chief from San Salvado. The Governor of Angola attacked them, but was forced to retreat and the natves continued their march toward the left bank of the Congo, burning all the stations on their way and causing the small the revolt would be extremely difficult to suppress. They said the Belgian Congo authorities were rushing troops to the frontier when they left in order to prevent the natives from crossing into Belgian territory and causing a rising there.

CRICKET IN ENGLAND

Some Sarcastic Comment by a Lover of Amateur Sport

When I come across a man who decries the glorious game of cricket, writes George Robey in "Answers," the warlike spirit of my gladitorial forefathers inspires me, and I want to slay him.

I don't say that first class cricket is an ideal game from the spectator's point of view; but, after all, it was fashioned for the players, not for idle onlookers, and I don't think I have met a practical player who has anything to say against the present condition of the game.

But, of course, if it is necessary that cricket be brought up or down to the business level of Association football; that the gentlemen and sportsmen who govern the game are to throw aside the old traditions and become keen seekers of dividends; and that "gates" are to be secured at any price, then the game must be forced upon the public.

First of all, the game must be discouraged at our schools and on our open spaces, because, once cricket is learned by the younger generation and "the seed is sown," I know of nothing which will turn a player into a spectator, and so secure gates.

But, before doing this, we must, at least, provide sport worthy of good patronage. Three-day matches are long-drawn-out affairs, and only made necessary by the fact that skill is opposed to skill. But if big "gates" are necessary, science is not wanted; the enjoyment of those who actually play is a something unworthy of consideration.

Excitement must dominate cricket completely; and so it will be necessary to curtail the time spent on a match, and crowd into, say, two hours, an International game, or a County Championship fixture.

We must condense the game by giving each man on the side an innings of five minutes, both sides fielding.

The eleven scoring the greater number of runs in the allotted period, would, of course, be declared the winners. At all matches played in fine weather a military band should be in attendance. I fancy I can see C. B. Fry and Jack Hobbs endeavoring to take a ball off the middle stump and place it to leg when a selection of "rag-time" is given.

I have always understood that "money talks;" so if we desire absolute success in cricket from the spectacular point of view we must talk and think in thousands, as they do in the more refined world of football.

But—and a very big "but"—why do we want to make the game more attractive to the spectator? Cricket is a game, and not a business; and as a glorious branch of sport I know of nothing so full of pleasure.

ASCOT REALLY ROYAL

The King Could Take Half the Receipts But It Goes for Upkeep

It was an interesting story which Mr. Upjohn, K.C., told a Select Committee of the House of Lords when they had before them the Ascot Authority Bill, promoted by Lord Churchill, as the King's representative, and Sir William Carington, Keeper of the Privy Purse, for the purpose of forming one legal authority connected with Ascot Racecourse.

Mr. Upjohn said the objects of the Bill were to form one authority for the management of Ascot races and to vest in that one authority all the property until now vested in two different bodies.

Private race meetings were originally held in the King's Park, and in those days the races were under the management of the Master of the Buckhounds. One reason for the bill was that the office of Master of the Buckhounds was abolished in 1902, and since that time his place had been filled by Lord Churchill, as the King's representative, and Sir William Carington.

Another reason why it was necessary to put things on a more legal footing was that from time to time leases had been granted by the King. Ascot Heath was a Royal domain. With one exception—the grandstand—all the properties had been brought together and were held by Lord Churchill and Sir William Carington.

Colonel Bulkeley, the senior trustee, said it was desirable that there should be some body which would act as a buffer between the King and the people, because that body would prevent any evil-minded person from taking the King's name in a wrong way.

Mr. Reginald Coventry agreed that such an arrangement would prevent any suggestions that the King was making money out of horse-racing. The King was entitled to half the takings at Ascot.

"What does his Majesty do with it?" asked Mr. Balfour Browne, K.C., and, amid laughter, Mr. Coventry replied, "I don't know."

Lord Churchill stated that every single shilling was spent for the benefit of Ascot races. Expenses were very heavy, and the whole upkeep of the racecourse had to be paid for out of the income.

The First Regatta

June 23 was the date of the first British regatta, held between Westminster Bridge and Ranelagh in 1775, to which Dr. Johnson appears to have taken Mrs. Thrale. It was suggested by Lady Montague's description of a regatta she had witnessed in Venice. The only rowing contest was "a race of wager-boats," after which a procession of boats manned by red, white, and blue oarsmen rowed from Westminster to Ranelagh, where various festivities followed in a Temple of Neptune. Some of the 200,000 who attended seem, says the "Westminster Gazette," to have supped "not wisely but too well," for on the return journey "many accidents occurred," and seven persons were drowned.

SPLENDID SPORT IN FLYING BOATS

All the Thrills of the Automobile, Aeroplane and the Motorboat But Not Nearly So Much Danger

Year by year, almost day by day, flying is becoming to the regarded more as a sport than what was once called "the art." Although flying is yet in its infancy, it is not too much to predict that the flying machine will become a strong competitor of the automobile and likewise, if not more so, the flying boat, to any other kind of sail pleasure craft. The landings from the aeroplane have not always been successful, but to alight with a flying boat after a flight is as easy as to guide a motor car to a standstill.

In the first recorded race of these craft, held on Long Island, the sight of three machines jockeying for position was inspiring, while the close finish of the return trip from the outer buoy would stir the blood of any sportsman.

Water flying is safe mainly because there is always a good place to alight. It is not necessary to guide the machine along a narrow course for starting or to pick one's ground in landing. The surface is smooth and level, and one may head in any direction with safety. Winds over the water are invariably much steadier than over land, and if, through carelessness or inexperience, the operator does make a bad landing, or plunges the boat at too steep an angle into the water, or strikes a wing too hard, the accident cannot be grave. The machine is not seriously damaged and the operator is none the worse, except for his "ducking."

The first development in water flying, the hydro-aeroplane, has these advantages, but the later flying boat with its large surplus of buoyancy has all the advantages of a motor boat and a flying machine combined. It is as seaworthy as any motor boat of its size, and flies as well as any aeroplane of equal proportions.

Now that we have a safe system of flying, the development of aviation is sure and unlimited. For racing nothing can compare with the flying boat. There is the same chance to struggle for position as in yacht racing, and every opportunity for the airman to exhibit his skill in rounding the buoys and making his starts and landings. No prettier or more impressive sight can be seen than a fleet of flying boats rising from the water at the start of a race, or coming down the course "neck and neck" at the finish.

On the water, the flying boat is handled like an ordinary motor boat, although the controls resemble those of an automobile. The rudder is operated by a steering wheel, which also operates the device for elevating.

TAX ON RACING BETS

German Government Proposes to Legalize Making of Books

The "bookmaker question" is one which has long agitated German sporting circles. For the last thirty years bookmaking, according to the strict letter of the law, has been "verboten," like so many things in the Fatherland. Yet the profession has contrived to run its business and prosper to a fair extent.

Now the whole position is about to be changed. The Government has been considering the matter, and a bill has been drafted which will have the effect of giving State recognition to the bookmaker.

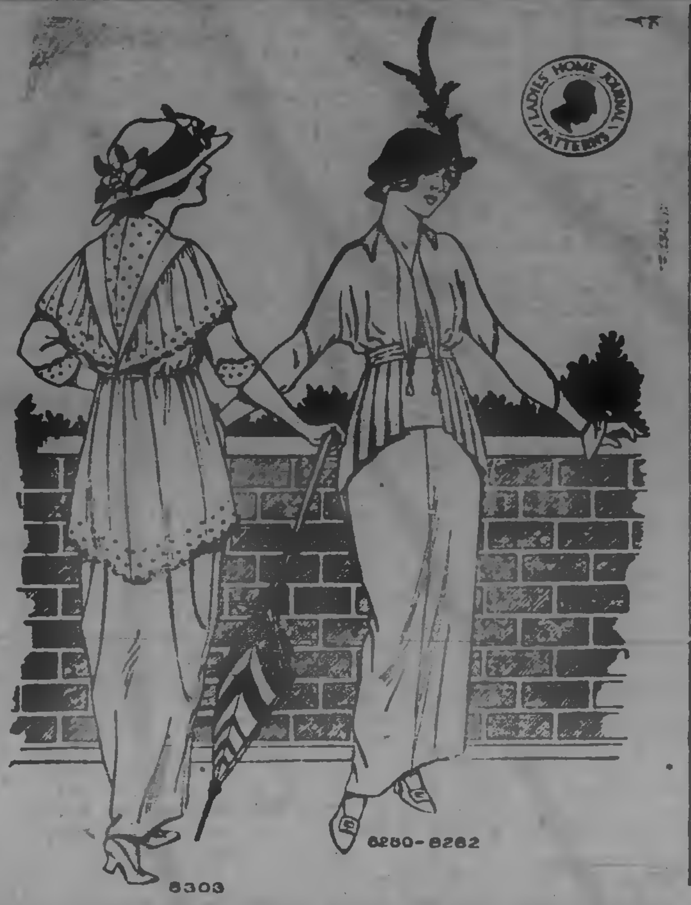
In Germany, as in France, the pari-mutuel system is in vogue, and the Government taxes all the transactions of that machine to the extent of 16 2-3 per cent., and realizes about $7,000,000 annually therefrom.

Now it is proposed to reduce that tax to 12 per cent. Of that the State takes one-half, the other 6 per cent. going to the various Rennvereine, or racing associations, for the purposes of horse-breeding. The Government hopes that it will lose no revenue by the decrease, as the bookmaker tax will preserve, and very possibly increase, the amount the State receives. As to the bookmaker, the bill provides for the recognition of a certain number in each large town, the figure to be fixed according to the population. He must pay a tax of 6 per cent. of his takings to the Government, and the Rennvereine will receive a small percentage of the winnings from the person betting. Small wins will be free from tax, which will afterwards rise as high as 10 per cent.

SUPERSTITIOUS CRICKETERS

Why cricketers should be superstitious is hard to say, but that the majority of them are very much so is a well known fact. Probably the most common belief in the cricketer's creed of superstition is that a bat which has made a good score can, if given a fair chance, repeat the performance. Hundreds of cricketers would give very large sums to possess themselves of a bat with which some famous batsman has knocked up a big score, and high prices have been offered for the bats of the leading cracks by amateurs who believed in the superstition.

Very frequently a batsman who discovers that he is unable to score with his own bat will borrow one with which some other man has made a big score. Another popular belief is that if a batsman places his pads on before the preceding batsman is out the bowler will almost invariably bowl him before he reaches double figures, and he will often ignore his captain's orders to be ready in that he refuses to put on his pads before he sees the retiring batsman well on his way to the pavilion.



MANY OF THE NEW SILKS ARE WONDERFULLY TRANSPARENT, YET DURABLE

Sweet, old-fashioned patterns and colors mark the new silks this season; the violent shades and large designs that were predicted late last season have not met with the expected popularity. Foulards are being used in quaint patterns, such as sprigs and leaves, tiny ovals, pin stripes, crisscrosses and charming black and white designs. Faille is a favored silk for afternoon dresses and for blouses and evening wear there are some very attractive chiffons, sheer to a degree, but remarkably durable. Some of those figured and checked chiffons might easily have been used in Marie Antoinette's day, they are so quaint and old-fashioned looking; these are used for draperies and panniers mostly, although now and then a blouse is made up in one of them showing a rosebud or odd little conventional figure. Taffeta is used for almost all purposes.

The afternoon costume shown in No. 8280-8282 is developed in black taffeta with bodice and plaited overskirt of chiffon cloth in a dull shade of blue. The odd cut to the sleeve and the collar are distinguishing features of this frock, and the two-piece skirt with the plaited overskirt in front and the peg-top effect in back is also attractive.

To copy this costume in size 36, 3 yards of 36-inch material are required for the blouse (8280), and 3¾ yards of the same width for the skirt (8282).

For a girl of sixteen, 5¾ yards of 36-inch material are needed.

No. 8282—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8280—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8303—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

WOLVES AND BUFFALO

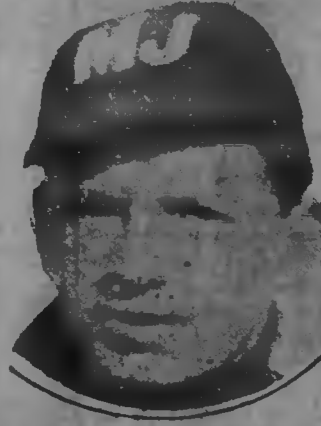
Extermination of Wood-Buffalo Threatened by Wolves

Investigations carried on by the Forestry Branch of the Dominion Government have proven conclusively that several large herds of wild buffalo are still to be found in the hilly country on the northern boundary of Alberta, in the neighborhood of the Slave River. A party working under the direction of A. J. Bell, the Government agent at Fort Smith, made a study of the habits, and obtained photographs of these buffalo, which are identical in appearance with the former buffalo of the plains, the remnants of which were forced to seek shelter in the timbered fastnesses of the north.

These wood-buffalo, when fully grown, are able to defend themselves against their natural enemies, but in the winter, before the young yearlings have attained full strength, they frequently fall victims to the timber-wolves. Bands of these wolves hover around the flanks of the buffalo herds as they pass in single file from one feeding-ground to another, waiting for the opportunity to cut off a young animal and drive it from the beaten trail into the deep snow, where it is unable either to escape or to defend itself.

Partly eaten carcasses were found by the investigating party, which clearly indicated that the wolves were the cause. These great timber-wolves are of large size, and are very numerous in this region, where they menace the existence, not only of the wood-buffalo, but of other game as well. The Dominion Government already offers a bounty of twenty dollars apiece for their destruction, but so sparsely inhabited is the region, and so clever are the wolves in avoiding traps, that the present bounty has had little effect in reducing their numbers. It is possible that the Dominion Government will raise the bounty here to forty dollars in the hope of ridding the regions of these pests and of preventing the extinction of the last wild bison in existence.

RUSSELL NORTHUP



BOB STEELE

Pitching a no-hit-no-run game is the ambition of every pitcher in baseball. Few have achieved the honor and that two youngsters on one team should break into the exclusive class within four days is but one of the remarkable things that make baseball.

Bob Steele and Russell Northup of the Moose Jaw Robinhoods, Western Canada League, are the youngsters who thus achieved fame. Northup performed the feat against Medicine Hat, holding the Hatters to a hitless, runless game for nine full innings and Steele duplicated the performance at Calgary. Northup hails from Des Moines, Iowa, but Steele is a Canadian his home being in Vancouver.

The Duke of Argyll

After brief illness, the ninth Duke of Argyll has died at Cowes, an event which will cause wide regret, especially to be felt by the older class in Canada, where, as the Marquis of Lorne, he was Governor-General from 1878 until 1883.

John Douglas Sutherland Campbell was a worthy representative of a famous Scottish family for centuries conspicuous in the history of the isles. As far back as 1513 the second earl, by name Archibald, was killed at Flodden. The eighth earl was beheaded after the restoration of the Stewart family to the British throne, and the ninth met a similar fate years afterwards, in 1685, both these being Archibalds also. The tenth earl, another Archibald, became the first Duke, and died in 1703. His successors gave various services under the British government and in parliament.

The late Duke was born in 1845, and in 1871 married Louise, the fourth daughter of the beloved Queen Victoria. He was a reasonably gifted writer of prose and verse, a patron of the gentler forms of sport, an amiable man, whose benefactions no doubt inspired numerous folk to exclaim, "God bless the good Duke of Argyll," for reason somewhat different from that which prompted the use of the term by the family retainers in Scotland a hundred years ago, more or less.

"Nerviline" Cures Cramps End Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure ?

Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the outside.

This isn't mere talk— it's a solid, truthful fact. No other remedy —not a single one— will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T. P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross my room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps—just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be earache, toothache or cramps. Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

Cut This Out

Famous Specialist's Receipe for Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises.

If you know someone who is troubled with head noises, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferers perhaps from total deafness. Recent experiments have proved conclusively that catarrhal deafness, head noises, etc., were the direct cause of constitutional disease, and that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporise with the complaint, and seldom, if ever, effect a permanent cure. This being so, much time and money has been spent of late by a noted specialist, in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic that would quickly dispel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The effective prescription which was eventually formulated and which has aroused the belief that deafness will soon be extinct is given below in understandable form so that anyone can treat themselves in their own home at little expense.

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist or granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose promptly ends the most distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are quickly overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh, therefore there are but few people whose hearing cannot be restored by this simple home treatment. Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.

Important—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength. Your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c. to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, P.Q., who make a specialty of it.

BRITISH INFLUENCE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Intermarriage Lessens Hate—English Literature Over-runs the Country

Mr. B. Ryan, of East London, South Africa reports that a great deal of intermarrying is taking place between Briton and Boers, that the country is being over-run by light literature all of which is published in English and the children become absolutely English. While the Dutch do not like the other race at the present time the country is surely becoming British in spite of Boer prejudice and customs.

Mr. Ryan then explained why South Africa was bound to be British to the end. Although the Government had spent a million and a half pounds on a magnificent Parliament building at Pretoria, evidently with the object of keeping it in the old Transvaal capital, Johannesburg with her 300,000 people and the Rand with its gold production of $300,000,000 per annum., will be in connection with the British influence in Cape Colony the ever-growing predominating power in the South African Confederation.

Novelist Gardener

Mr. Charles Garvice, at a meeting in London, claimed to be the only novelist that knew anything about gardening, and in support of this tribute to himself quoted a scene from a recent novel by a lady, in which the heroine in the month of March was made to "put up a snowy white arm and pick a pear from the wall beside."

SAVING THE SEALS

Only International Agreement Saved Them From Extinction

Russia, England, Japan and America agreed to suspend sealing in the open sea for fifteen years and sealing on land for five years. The need for this close season is explained by George Archibald Clark:

Pelagic sealing proved very destructive to the herd. It respected neither sex nor condition of the animals found, and the catch fell principally upon the nursing females, which were taken upon the summer feeding grounds in Behring Sea; for when the migration route of the seals had been covered the sealers entered Behring Sea and lay in wait for the mother seals as they visited the fishing banks one or two hundred miles distant from the islands for the purpose of feeding. As a result of the death of the mother, the dependent young starved to death on the rookeries. In the fall of 1896 sixteen thousand fur seal pups died of starvation on the rookeries of St. Paul and St. George islands.

As pelagic sealing developed through the increasing number of ships, its catch grew from 8,000 at the beginning to a maximum of 140,000 in 1894; but this could not last, and with the declining herd the pelagic catch also began to decline. In the season of 1911, the last of the industry, the catch numbered about 15,000 skins. From the known catch of the sealing fleets and from conservative estimates as to animals killed but not recovered it is apparent that more than a million breeding female fur seals and a like number of unborn and dependent young were destroyed during the thirty odd years the pelagic industry has been in operation. The result is the depleted condition in which we find the herd to-day. Our best information places the number of animals in the herd in 1867 at between two and three millions. It numbers to-day about 215,000.

FREAK PLANTS

Trap and Devour Insects, Digesting Bodies of Their Prey

Among the strangest of all nature's products are the insect-eating, or carnivorous, plants. They actually catch, eat, and digest various insects by a process practically as thorough as that of the animals.

The so-called Venus "fly trap" or "vegetable butcher" is one of the most remarkable of these. It grows in a wild state in the forests of North Carolina, where it creeps along the ground, presenting thousands of gaping mouths, into which the unsuspecting fly or insect is lured and imprisoned.

The leaves of this plant consist of two valves, shaped like clam shells, which, when closed, form a trap. The ends of the leaves are baited with a sweet juice which attracts the insect. The leaves are covered with minute hairs, which correspond very closely to the arrangements of the nervous system in animals. On the edge of the leaves are rows of long, fine teeth.

When the unsuspecting insect has been lured to the leaf by the attractive juice he steps upon one of the microscopic hairs, and the two valves shut with a snap, keeping Mr. Fly secure.

Still more curious are certain plants in Borneo, which distill liquors for the purpose of luring their victims. Many of these are miniature grog shops. In their leaves are little pitchers, which are filled with hard alcoholic liquors. Each of the pitchers has a tight-fitting cover which keeps the dew and rain from diluting the liquor. No scientists have yet succeeded in analyzing the liquors with any satisfactory results, but it is evident that they are of different kinds, since different species of the plants attract different insects.

The most unique of all the productions of nature is the plant popularly known as the "goose plant." It is a native of Guatemala, and receives its name from the bud, which has the shape of a goose floating along the water with its neck proudly arched. The flower is very beautiful, but repulsive. It has an odor resembling that of decayed meat. The plant attracts the carrion fly, which is the agent of fertilization.

PRESERVE THE BIRDS

State of Oregon Interests School Lads —They Build Pretty Houses

Exhibits of bird houses, built by boys of the schools in Portland, Ore., have attracted much attention and aroused no little rivalry among the boys themselves as to design and execution. They constructed charming little bungalows of rustic strips of bark; quaint reproductions of old-world thatched farm cottages; log cabins, and tiny homes wrought of silvery birch-bark and bits of moss on sloping roofs. Through the co-operation of the Oregon Audubon Society and the State superintendent of Public Schools a widespread movement for systematic bird study and bird protection was inaugurated over a year ago in the Portland schools. Each schoolboy in the intermediate grades constructed at least one bird house during the year. These were placed in public parks, residence grounds, and along the highways. This was the beginning of a State-wide plan to bring the children of the schools into closer relationship with their bird neighbors. William L. Finley, State game warden of Oregon, has done much to have the economic value of birds taught to school children. The crow and the kingfisher both have unnecessarily bad reputations, it is pointed out. To determine the economic status of the crow the department of agriculture examined nearly a thousand of them taken in every month of the year all over the country, and it was found that most of the corn eaten by these birds was waste corn, and the part destroyed while growing was only 3 per cent. of the total food. On the other hand the amount of harmful insects and mice eaten rendered the final verdict in favor of the crow. It was also determined that the kingfisher does not eat trout, but only fish that are of no value to man.

A Good Excuse

When a dairyman was summoned at Feltham for selling milk deficient in fat, he pleaded that the reason the milk was poor was because he overslept himself, so that the cows could not be properly milked.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Peterborough, April 30, 1914.

W. H. Hill, Esq., Agent for Fidelity & Casualty Co., of New York, Peterborough.

Dear Sir.—I beg to acknowledge receipt of the cheque of the Fidelity & Casualty Company of New York, for the sum of $5000.00, being the amount of my claim for double liability under my policy in this company, arising out of the accident which resulted in the loss of the sight of my left eye. I wish you would be kind enough to convey to the Company my thanks and warm appreciation for the prompt and entirely satisfactory manner in which my claim under my policy has been settled in full.

It may be of interest for you to know that when I first took this accident policy in your Company it was due solely to the very friendly and cordial relationship that has always existed between your agent, Mr. George E. Elliott, and myself, but when I received the Company's cheque this morning, through your office, I was deeply impressed with the fact that I, in common with the vast majority of people, never before realized how prudent and important it is to carry an accident policy in a company that settles so promptly.

Yours faithfully,

S. R. Hall.

THE NEW WELLAND

Twenty-five Miles Long With a Fall of 325 Feet

As finally located the enlarged Welland ship canal will conform closely to the route of the present canal from Lake Erie to Allanburg, a point about midway between Lakes Erie and Ontario. From Allanburg an entirely new location will be followed. This will cross the present canal twice, finally reaching Lake Ontario at the foot of Ten Mile Creek—three miles east of the present terminus at Port Dalhousie. The total length will be 25 miles. The fall of 325½ feet will be accomplished by seven locks, each having a lift of 46½ feet. Each lock will be 800 feet long and 80 feet wide, with a minimum depth of water over miter sills of 30 feet. The canal will be 200 feet wide at the bottom, designed for a depth of 30 feet, but excavated for only 25 feet for the present. This will permit dredging out the remaining 5 feet at any future time. At Port Colborne, the Lake Erie terminus, a new breakwater will be built on the west side of the entrance to insure quiet water in the harbor during storms, the present breakwater being insufficient for the purpose. The new breakwater will consist of an immense rubble mound of stone from the excavation north of Port Colborne, and will terminate in a timber-and-concrete headblock located some 2,000 feet farther out in the lake than the present breakwater.

Skirts Grow Shorter for Summer Days

By Madge Marvel

SKIRTS must be four inches from the floor. They may be, and sometimes are, twice as short without being conspicuous. There is frequently six or seven inches of space between shoe sole and skirt hem. Skirts are also fuller. Some have a decided flare about the feet. Others have the fulness at the hips, and the hem very little wider than we have been wearing. The slit is forgotten. Already it marks the skirt as hopelessly old-fashioned. If it exists at all it is a very decided opening in the back of the skirt with plenty of lace draping filling the opening.

When the skirt is very bouffant at the hips then it is apt to be narrow at the feet. When there is no sign of the bustle or hip drapery, there is the flare at the hem. Some of the newest skirts have the fulness of gathers at the waist, and there is a two-inch heading left as a finish, and below the material flows freely outward.

Frequently, where there is a comparatively narrow underskirt, there will be a fairly full tunic with a deep flounce edge of lace or tulle, which gives a strange effect of extreme width.

The tunic grows longer day by day. When it began to start on its downward way there was certainty that the time would come when it became the skirt itself, and that that skirt would be full.

Bustle Little Used.

The bustle causes scarcely a passing interest when it is worn, for it has been apparent on many of the gowns since the mid-winter. Some authorities ignore it. Paquin is one of these. Poiret, too, has no use for it, though he makes much of the tunic.

This brevity and fulness of skirt and this charming independence in the wearing of the bustle in any one of its hundred variations, has been accepted as the final decree after the spring openings with all their sumptuous showing of gowns in most gorgeous settings, and will probably last through the summer.

Also ruffles have come into their own. They are used on nearly all materials, and will continue to grow in favor as the season advances. I think there will be a tremendous liking for silk ruffles of voile and similar thin materials in a contrasting shade on the summer frocks. Also there is indication that silk and lace will ruffle the organdie gowns. On a stunning imported model of black and white striped voile there were five scant blue black silk ruffles used at intervals on the skirt fro mthe top of the hem to the hip line.

An apricot organdie with a shadowy blossom patterning it was ruffled with rose and gold-shot taffeta in the same manner.

Some of the dancing skirts in tulle and chiffon are made as full as the old-fashioned lamp shade, and show the glimpse of the petticoat beneath. This is the nearest approach that I have seen in real life of the much-talked-of pantalet which was worn at the openings by the mannequins or on the stage.

"Petties" Below Gowns.

Some way pantalets seem hardly to fit in the scheme of modern life, nor is there anything about them to appeal to the average eye.

However, petticoats were never so much in evidence, and they are purposely worn hanging below the gown in a way to make the [illegible] fear for the [illegible] of fastening on the outer skirt. And naturally when they are intended to be so generally seen they are elaborate enough to make them worth while being exhibited.

They are of the most delightful materials and colors. Crepe de chine and lace have the first choice, although the taffeta one with net or chiffon flounce is equally popular. There is also a silk jersey lace which is entirely new and most attractive.

Next to the short skirt the cape is the most pronounced garment of the year. Fashion makers say that it has returned to stay for the season and longer, and that next winter we shall see a perfect rage of capes in various materials and lengths.

I think this is so, for I have seen some most elaborate fur capes made in preparation for return to favor when the summer shall have fled.

THE SAMPLER

By Joyce Cobb

BESIDE the willow-pattern plate,
Above the old worn-out spinet,
It hangs, with cross-stitch alphabet
Which childish tears still punctuate.

Or is it fancy? Hue and line—
A row of figures, "ampersand,"
Bird, beast, and butterfly she planned:
"Priscilla Cole, her work, aged nine."

This Georgian great-great-grandmamma,
In later years, traditions say,
Applauded Garrick at the play,
Wore patch and paint at Ranelagh.

She played picquet, sipped elder wine,
But though (as arch young beauties will)
She had her beaux, I see her still Intent on crewel-stitch design.

Her golden tresses primly bound,
She sits on straight-backed chimney seat,
In stiff brocaded gown, with feet,
Perhaps, six inches from the ground.

Her nimble fingers knot the thread.
But sampler colors fade. Time goes;
The canvas ravels, and who knows
How many tears Priscilla shed?

DIDN'T she read the other day in the public prints that every girl should have a hundred proposals before making that momentous final decision?

If one must receive one hundred proposals, one must look over each proposal very carefully, for there is no rule that you have to take the hundredth man. You have the privilege of running back over the list and taking any one in the hundred IF he asks you again.

Of course this may be rather rough on the nice young chaps who belong to your hundred (and MAYBE to some one else's) and who may have to stand around like so many images on a toy counter while a fastidious customer picks them over.

And of course the right one MAY not ask you again—they have a way of dissolving, these toys have, and vanishing into thin air.

What the Normal Woman Wants

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

DEAR me, Reader, how very serious you are about the "normal" and the "abnormal" woman. You aren't a woman—that's easy to see. Women don't talk so much about the longing for a "mate and a home."

They may feel it—some of them undoubtedly do; but it's considered rather bad form to say too much about it. There are a great many things which the "normal" woman wishes she had and can't get.

Beauty, for instance. It's silly, I suppose, but I don't believe there's a woman in the world who doesn't wish she was beautiful. Does that wishing make her so, and ought she to sit down and cry her eyes red, if she isn't pretty?

Or doesn't she show a good deal more common sense to turn away from the mirror and go out in the kitchen and make a layer cake for tea; or in the living room and embroider a coat for baby sister; or down town and work for a living—than to stand in front of a looking-glass and weep because her eyes are not in the least like violets and her hair hasn't even the least resemblance to spun gold?

Of course, the average woman—and I suppose when you say normal woman you mean the average woman—wants a mate and a home and children, just as she wants a dinner and a fire to sit by and a bed to sleep in and comfortable clothes to wear and flowers to look at and books to read and friends to love.

Why not?

These things are the great pleasures, the great joys, the great opportunities of life—why shouldn't she want them? And why should it be a credit to her to long for them and a discredit not to care?

Does the normal woman crave for love?

What a silly question. Does she crave for light, for fresh air, for sunshine—for the chance to breathe and to live? Of course she does, unless she's feeble-minded—and then, my friend, she wouldn't be quite "normal," would she?

So you think the woman who has no "longing" for a mate and a home is a "freak," do you?

She isn't half as much of a freak as the woman who is so crazy to get a mate and a home that she'll marry the first man who asks her and thank him for the chance to get into any old kind of what he chooses to call "a home."

Wake up, brother Jehoshaphat—no, I mean Methuselah. Comb the knots out of your beard and brush the cobwebs out of your eyes. Your kind of a world has whirled by—while you were asleep in the hayloft.

Maybe the woman you married loved you when she married you—and maybe she didn't. The women of your generation had to marry whether they wanted to or not—there was nothing else for them to do. Perhaps your son's wife married him because she couldn't live another day without him—and perhaps she married him to spite the girl who was trying to get him. She knew she probably would have to marry somebody, for marriage was still the easiest way for a woman to get a living.

Your grandson, when he marries, will marry a woman who loves him—or at least a woman who thinks she loves him.

Women don't marry "for a home" or "for a man" these days. At least, not the women worth marrying.

How Sea Phrases Originated

PRACTICALLY every recognised language has been called upon at some time to help in building up the vocabulary of the sea.

"Davy Jones," for instance, might be taken to refer to some dead and gone Welshman, but the name is derived from quite another source. One should speak of "Duffy Jonah's locker," for that was the original, "Duffy" being the West Indian name for a spirit or ghost, and "Jonah" referring to the prophet.

Another expression gradually corrupted out of its original form is the "dog watch." It was originally the "dodge watch," because it lasts only two hours, and was intended to ensure that the same men shall not be on duty every day during the same hours.

The "jury mast" has nothing in common with the "twelve good men and true," except its derivation from the same French word, "jour," meaning "one day." The jury mast is erected temporarily "for a day," just as the jury, in its legal sense, meant a tribunal summoned for a short time.

"Port" is a comparatively new expression. In the old days they used to refer to "larboard" and "starboard." "Starboard" has nothing in common with the twinkling stars of the heavens; it is derived from the Anglo-Saxon, "steer-board" or "steer-side." In Viking times the galleys were steered by an oar, which the helmsman held with his right hand. "Larboard" was probably a corruption of "lower-board," the larboard side being inferior to the other.

The word "admiral" is Arabic, springing from "emil el bagh," or "lord of the sea." "Captain" comes from the Latin "caput," but "mate" is Icelandic, and means "companion" or "equal." "Coxswain" had a curious origin. The "coxswain" was a man who pulled the last oar in the captain's boat, which was described as the "cockboat." This, in turn, was a corruption of a small, round boat found on the rivers Usk and Wye, and known as a "coracle." Coxswain is therefore a Welsh name.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Long, Uncut Finger Nails Agents of Many Ills.

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

ALL the perfumes of Arabia and the incense from Cathay cannot sweeten manicured nails that have one lone microscopic microbe on them.

Be the finger nails ever so soft and polished, be the hands ever so fine and pretty, these arts are no protection against pimples, blackheads, open pores, boils or the barber's itch.

Typhoid Mary, Tuberculosis Tommy and Sore Throat Sarah are the names of a few kitchen maids, barbers, milkmen, cooks, breadmakers, hairdressers, beauty doctors and eye-glass fitters, who often have beautifully manicured hands, yet carry lurking disease germs beneath their varnished and tinted nails.

There are marvellously moulded hands, lovely to look upon, that are more venomous to the handkerchiefs, linens, faces and flesh they touch than is the bite of the deadly cobra.

There are claws and paws and flippers and fins which when they touch bits of wet cloth, pieces of unbaked dough, the dishes and utensils, become the sources of physical conflagrations, which seem mysterious and remote when they appear.

Unblushingly I mix the metaphors to prove that the prettiest, most envied hand is often the talon of a poisonous bird of ill omen.

The late learned rabbi, Dr. A. S. Bettelheim, traced the saying "cleanliness is next to godliness," to the sayings of Phinehas-ben-Jair, in the Talmud. The latter said: "The doctrines of religion are resolved into carefulness, carefulness into vigorousness, vigorousness into guiltlessness, guiltlessness into abstemiousness, abstemiousness into cleanliness, cleanliness into godliness."

How to Trim Nails.

Undoubtedly, then, there are some barbers, cooks or manicurists who are not godly. Or despite the shining glory of their finger tips, their nails are only at best clean to the eye. Actually, when tested for the bacteria of tonsilitis, carbuncles, itches, eczemas, erysipelas and worse, their finger nails turn out to be harbingers of unpleasant consequences.

There is no better sign of efficiency, capacity, morality and honesty than the adoption of the surgeon's habit of washing and also disinfecting the hands and finger nails before meals, before touching the eye, the cheek, the chin, the lips or the flesh of a stranger or of your own.

The second mother of man, habit, is either a true mother, or a Cinderella-like stepmother. If a child is raised up in the way it shall go as to disinfecting its hands and nails with soap, water, peroxide, or boric acid half a dozen times or more daily, when it grows up, it will not depart from this good mother, habit.

If, however, like the boys of the Queen of Sheba, whom Solomon distinguished from the girls merely by asking all the youngsters to wash—the boys, of course, washed only below the elbows—children are untaught about the dangers of a scratch from the clean nail, which is germ infested, the grown-ups of the next generation will be as destructive to health as the rest of us today.

Perhaps no more pernicious and death-dealing assassin stalks through civilised life and ultra-cultured castes of present day society than the long, uncut finger nails!

Where Germs Gather.

The tapering, untrimmed, Li Hung Chang type of finger nail, so popular with imitators and unthinking social climbers, is a bit of barbaric splendor on a par with eating chop suey, Yokami and the use of eastern chop sticks.

Far better wear poignards and poisoned dirks, to carry snuff boxes, or become a professional wrecker of the coasts of St. John's than to follow the cancer-causing, tuberculosis-spreading and diphtheria-inciting custom of uncut finger nails.

Hygienically and logically the finger or the toe nails should not abut upon the flesh. The margins or advancing edges of the nails should not project beyond the ends of the fingers.

Indeed, there should be one-eighth of an inch of finger flesh visible beyond the nail. When you tap, tap, tap upon the chamber door only the skin and pulp of the finger may touch the wood. The skin is always freer of germs than the pocket of the finger nails.

Then, from the body's purity, the mind will receive the quickening, secret, sympathetic aid which makes for physical health to yourself as well as to others.

Answers to Health Questions

D. M. S.—Can a red birthmark in the cheek be made invisible or removed?

Yes. Go to the X-ray department of the nearest hospital and have them look at it.

• • •

G. W.—Recently my ears began to ring, and I grew dizzy. My heart is O. K.

This comes from half a dozen causes, such as a mastoiditis trouble in the bone behind the ear, weak blood, high blood pressure, disorders of the semi-circular canals of the ear, and hyperacidity of the stomach.

READER—What will remove moles?

There are several different kinds of moles. A stick of caustic will remove some. An "ice pencil" of carbonic acid will remove others. The X-ray, or radium will destroy others. The knife is a simple, safe and sure way to take out moles.

The electric needle, acids, concentrated light and the scissors are also used.

Moles should always be removed, because one or more percent. of them become, in later years, cancers.

F. L. G.—What a lot of good you are doing for the people. Thank goodness some one takes the public into his medical confidence and sets us free from quacks.

What does standing in rubber boots cause, a cold in the hip? Do you advise aspirin or salicylates?

Thank you. Rubber boots, if worn often, are decidedly unhealthful. They remove the elasticity and adaptability of the skin, muscles and blood channels. It is much the same as spoiling and coddling your throat with furs. This causes sore throats. In this situation, aspirin and salicylates are inadvisable. The thing to do is to remove the boots as quickly as you can, wear them as seldom as possible, and massage the feet and legs with alcohol and vinegar three times a day to keep them fit to protect you.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

My Dear Miss Laurie:

My parents are dead, and, as I have no other person to go to for advice, I am writing you.

There is a young man who has been calling on me quite frequently for the past few months. I like him very much, and he is good company and of good habits. The only objection I have is that the nights he calls on me he will stay until 12 o'clock or half-past, and I think that he should go home about 10 o'clock. Can you advise me how to tell him to go home earlier, as I do not want to offend him or lose his friendship?

QUAKER GIRL.

OH you poor little "Quaker Girl" you, whatever will you do with the "stayer."

You must do something with him, there's no doubt about that; you can't have him set all the neighbors to gossiping by staying so late.

Where do you live, in a boarding house?

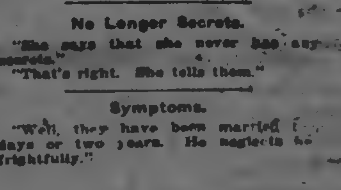
Can't you arrange to have some of the other people in the house come into the sitting room at 10 o'clock or half-past, and act as if they thought your "staying" friend was just getting ready to go?

Or there's the telephone. Can't you arrange to have some one ring you up at 10 o'clock and have a little talk with you, where he can hear it, and say something that will make him realize that nobody thinks you can possibly have company at such an hour?

And there's the good old-fashioned yawn—what's the matter with that?

Begin yawning at 10 o'clock, and when he jokes you about it, tell him you were up very early and are very tired, and that you simply can't get along at all without just so much sleep.

If he doesn't take any of these hints have a nice plain talk with him, and tell him the plain simple truth—that you cannot allow him to stay any longer than 10:30 o'clock. If he takes offence at that, then you are well rid of him. But he won't. He's just dead in love with you that's all and can't bear to tear himself away, so you must do the tearing, like a good, sensible, little girl.



One Effective Remedy.

"He says that he is compelled by his muse to write poetry."

"Why doesn't he get an injunction?"

An Advantage.

"She never blushes except when she wants to."

"How much nicer it would be if she could blush every time she wanted to."

Good for Kindling.

"Did his speech set the audience on fire?"

"No, it was too dry."

No Longer Secrets.

"She says that she never has any secrets."

"That's right. She tells them."

Symptoms.

"Well, they have been married [illegible] days or two years. He neglects her frightfully."

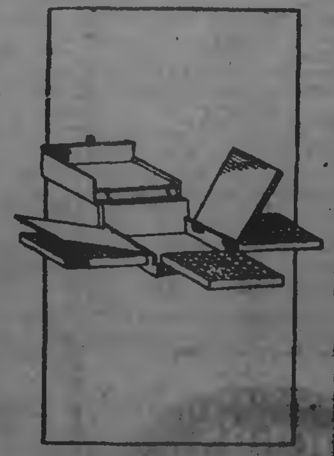
EGG CARRYING CASE

Layers With Many Compartments Fit Over One Another

Since the parcel post has been in effect, inventors have been busy turning out all sorts of carrying devices. A woman has planned the egg case shown in the illustration, and if it carries eggs as safely as she claims there will be plenty of use for it. Each side of this case is a different height and to each side is hinged a flat box that is divided into numerous cells, each just large enough to hold an egg. One side for example, is the full depth of the case, while the others are respectively three-fourth, one-half and one-fourth of the depth. So that when the different boxes are filled and their lids fastened down they are turned into the central space and form four separate layers, each containing a certain number of eggs and with each egg in a separate cell.



EACH EGG IN OWN CELL.

A GREAT YOUNG PITCHER

RAY KEATING

19-year-old spit-baller of the New York Americans. Frank Chance declares Keating is the best young pitcher he ever saw—and Chance has looked over some good ones. Keating uses a fast ball and the spitter. He has a near curve, but he seldom uses it. Keating's fast ball has such a hop and his spitter breaks so viciously that the batters failed to solve him.

IN THE LISTS

Women Compared With Men in Feats of Endurance

The athletic young woman of the twentieth century has shown that there are some sports in which she could give points and a beating to the men of her grandfather's time.

Take golf, for instance. Some few years ago, Miss Nancy Haslet did a 77 at Burnham on a rough day. It would take a very fine player of the other sex to equal this score, let alone to beat it. And, more lately, Miss Leitch showed that even an Open Champion could only just give her a half—that is, nine strokes in an eighteen hole round. This is all the more wonderful when you come to consider that the longest drive yet achieved by a woman is 234 yards, whereas a man has driven a golf ball a distance of 370 yards.

Mastering Ben Nevis

Men have run the hundred yards in under ten seconds, but no woman has done the distance in less than thirteen, and man can long jump nearly twenty-five feet as against less than fifteen by the best feminine athlete.

Oddly enough, when it comes to feats of endurance rather than short and concentrated effort, woman shows up to much better advantage. Take, for instance, the favorite race up Ben Nevis, which is a terrific strain even for the best trained man. The time taken by the champion runner was just an hour and a half. A woman has done it in under two hours.

In long distance swimming the case is similar, for while a man is one-fifth faster than a woman in swimming a hundred yards, when it comes to a mile race in the water man is only one-fifteenth-faster than his best feminine competitor. In other words, a man has only ten seconds' advantage over a woman in a mile swimming race. There is actually a case on record of a thirteen-miles swimming race, from Brooklyn to Coney Island, in which two girls came in ahead, beating no fewer than thirty-one men. Madame Icacescu, the Austrian lady swimmer, has done forty-eight miles in the Danube against the current in just over eight hours. Very few men could emulate such a magnificent swim, especially in fresh water.

In Shooting

Coming to shooting, we find that women can hold a rifle as straight as most men. A team of European ladies living in the Straits Settlements actually beat a team of marksmen by 19 points, the distance being 100 yards and the weapons rook-rifles. And with the gun, too, there are women who can bring down fast-flying birds with amazing accuracy.

The Duchess of Bedford has killed 115 partridges in a day's driving, and more than 300 pheasants in one day's covert shooting. She has also bagged 39 wild ducks with 56 cartridges, a record that any man might be proud of. A woman is not so quick with her cartridges as a man, but, apart from that, she is practically his equal as a game shot.

Mountain Climbing

At mountaineering, woman has showed herself to be able to bear the strain of climbing great heights. Mrs. Bullock Workman has climbed a peak 23,300 feet in height. Very few men alive can boast of having accomplished such a feat as that.

At long distance cycling man is hard pressed by the other sex. At a hundred miles on the road the latter is barely an half an hour slower than her male competitor.

There is just one game at which ladies can boast that they are equal to men. This is croquet. Miss Lilian Gower, after winning the Ladies' Championship, threw down the gauntlet to men, and proved victorious.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

FOREST RESERVES

Thirty-five Thousand Eight Hundred Square Miles of Reservation

Over ten thousand five hundred square miles were added recently to the existing area of Dominion Forest Reserves, making a total of over thirty-five thousand eight hundred square miles of reserved forest land in the Western Provinces under Dominion jurisdiction. Of this reserved area, three thousand seven hundred and eighty-two square miles are found in Alberta, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two square miles in Saskatchewan and four thousand one hundred and eight square miles in Manitoba. Over two-thirds of the total area is found in Alberta, owing to the fact that practically all the eastern slope of the Rockies has been set apart as a forest reserve, not only to perpetuate the supply of timber, but to preserve and equalize the flow of the large prairie rivers which have their source in this reserved area.

These western reserves are created by the Dominion Government as cited in the Act "for the maintenance, protection and reproduction of the timber growing thereon, or which may hereafter grow thereon, for the conservation of the minerals and the protection of the animals, birds, and fish therein, and for the maintenance of conditions favorable to a continuous water supply." To accomplish these ends the reserves must first be protected from fire, and under the direction of technical foresters and supervisors, fire-lines are being cut or ploughed, trails are being cut, telephone lines and lookout stations installed, "caches" of tools distributed in accessible places throughout the reserves, and efficient patrols established in accessible places throughout the reserves, and efficient patrols established.

Nor is the timber so protected allowed to die of old age. The foresters determine at what diameter in each section the maximum production is attained and when the trees reach this size, they are granted free or for a nominal sum to homesteaders who apply to the forest officials for cutting permits. Care is taken not to allow over-cutting, for it is the forester's aim to crop the forest perpetually and at the same time increase its producing capacity by proper methods of management. Thus, by this policy of forest reservation, instead of denuded hillsides, drifting sand and barren rocks and muskegs, these areas will in time be covered with great tracts of forest owned by the people and supplying their wants, not only now but to all future time, when countries with less foresight will be in the throes of a timber famine.

One Leg Cricketers

At the Cripples' Home at Alton, Hants, there is an inmates' cricket team. Many of the players have only one leg, but despite this disadvantage the team has won two matches this season. There is also a football team at the home, and although the team can only muster seventeen legs, yet of the seven matches played last season they won four and lost only one match, the other two being drawn.

Good Soldiers Here

"You have splendid material here in Canada, much better, I should say, than we have in Britain, but you are in more need of training, and I think you should have a sixteen days' period of military camp instead of but eight."

In these words Lord Brooke, the British territorial officer who was one of those who exchanged with Canadian officers through the plan for interdiffusion of the military experiences of both countries, expressed himself at Ottawa.

German Women's Bank

The first German women's bank, an institution for women managed by women, was founded at Berlin in 1910. The bank employs more than fifty persons. There are altogether fifty rooms and among the branches of business included is a legal department presided over by a woman doctor of law, where all information relating to laws and by-laws may be obtained by customers.

Fine Young Hogs.

Yesterday Mr. John Mervin, the Hunter street butcher purchased from Mr. Sam Long what is possibly the heaviest pair of hogs, for their age, ever seen in this city. The two, which are only seven months old, turned the scales at 703 pounds live weight.

Local Man For Bisley.

An Ottawa despatch says that Peterborough may be represented on the Bisley team this year. The fourth man on the waiting list is Private W. A. Moore, of the 57th Regiment, and it is quite possible that four of the qualified team may be unable to go which would give Moore a chance. The whole team will sail on June 21 on the Scotian from Montreal.

Lindsay Palm Readers

Lindsay Warder: Scores of citizens visit the gypsy camp near the Ops swing bridge. The gypsy women told fortunes, while the men loitered around the camp and talked horse. They appeared to do a brisk trade in revealing the future of their patrons during the afternoon. Many of Lindsay's young men took advantage of having a peep into the future and crossed the Spae woman's hand with the usual piece of silver.

Prominent Ladies Here.

Miss Mary Siddall, of Cleveland, who was formerly private secretary of the late Chief of Police, of that city, Chief Kohler, whom Teddy Roosevelt said was the "only perfect chief of police in the United States" is a guest at the Oriental Hotel. She is accompanied by Miss Lillian Barbour, a former prominent and respected member of the stage, who has just returned from a trip to Egypt, and the far East.

Police Commissioners Make a Wise Choice.

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners, the first matter dealt with was the resignation of P. C. Phimister. Harold Lawrence, 220 Park street, 27 years of age, weighing 200 pounds, six feet one inch in height, was appointed. The appointment of P. C. Downes as a probationer was confirmed. He will receive a salary of $850 per year. Mrs. (Adjt.) McElheney was appointed police matron. This would seem a wise choice.

English vs. Italian Labor.

Yesterday a gentleman who had seen a letter in the Times advocating the employment of English Immigrants in the city's street work, in preference to that of Italian Immigrants, remarked, but we do not take his story in its entirety, "I was coming down George Street yesterday. A number of Italians were working on the street. By actual count, it took an Italian five minutes and three seconds to raise his pick and strike the road. In a minute or two the same man raised his pick. I waited an hour and a half and the pick was still in the air." This we believe to be trifling persiflage.

Our Poobah Council.

The city is granting permits for the erection of nine inch brick walls, within the fire limits, which that body refused a local man on Water street a few years ago, and which the Council, within two months gave to a members of the Council, an Alderman, also within the fire limits. Truly, the Peterborough Council should, in the matter of brick walls, be called "Poobah." The Alderman referred to erected a complete residence with nine inch walls, whilst the citizen "turned down" was refused permission to rebuild a 9 inch 20x30 rear kitchen!

A Lindsay Scrap.

Lindsay Warder: A young farmer from Oakwood was found at the G. T. R. station on Saturday evening, where he had been lounging in wait for a train to take him home, and was very much under the influence of liquor. Becoming abusive, Constable Parkes was deputized to make the arrest. He found the Oakwood man full of fight and it became necessary to place the fellow on a dray to convey him to the police station. In the melee which occurred Constable Parkes had his clothes badly torn. The prisoner ripped the cell door open as easy as Sampson tore up the gates of Gaza, after being placed therein. He was fined $5 and costs, with an additional $1 to pay for the lockup and 75c for damages to policeman's coat.

Toronto Manufacturers Here.

Mr. P. H. F. Spies, of this city, accompanied by Mr. A. P. Clarkson, a son-in-law of Mr. D. J. Lundy, is in the city on business. The two gentlemen motored down from Toronto in a car equipped with a pneumatic starter and gear shift, made by the Canadian Turbine Co., Ltd., of which Mr. Spies is president. This firm has occupied a factory on Queen street west, Toronto. The Canadian Turbine Co., which controls the Canadian rights for Mr. Spies' invention of a water wheel, whereby "power" may be produced in any river without a "head" of water, has had thousands of enquiries from automobile factories and others concerning their exclusive "starters" and "gear shifts" for motor cars.

Good Vaudeville.

Only one or two discrepancies were seen by a Times reporter yesterday in the local moving pictures. The film under observation was a very pathetic one. Women all over the theatre shed tears. A deserted wife leaves the homestead with her eight year old child. The poor woman, succumbing to fatigue falls by the way side and dies. Does that poor woman wail for some one to place coppers over her eyelids to press and keep them down? Not on your life. That deserted wife has sense enough, as she had in the last film where she danced the can-can in the Moulin Rouge to close her eye lids when death or danger approaches. Still, did you see the contortionist at the Royal Theatre? He trims everything in his line ever seen here. At the Princess Theatre the vaudeville is also sans peur et sans reproche. Take it in an get $1 worth of fun for 10 cents.

Back From Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, of Charles, are guests at the White House. They returned on Saturday from an extended trip through Europe, where they were guests of Mr. Charles' brother Sir J. Charles in London. They are on the way to their summer cottage at Chemong Park. Mr. Charles was for years manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here, but is now a stock broker in Montreal.

ULSTERMEN ENCOURAGED BY DELAY OF HOME RULE BILL

r. Redmond's Plans Given a Two-year Setback--Hope of the North Lies in English and Scottish Electors

Londonderry, Ireland, May 6.—ost people have probably forgotten at in the Home Rule Bill, as introuced in the House of Commons in 912, clause 42 provided as follows: The Irish Parliament shall be sumoned to meet on the first Tuesday September, 1913, and the first lection of members of the Irish ouse of Commons shall be held at ch time before that day as may be xed by His Majesty in Council." lstermen no doubt find aworld of ncouragement in the three facts that e day named for the opening of the ublin Legislature is already seven onths past, that the bill has not et received its final reading, and hat even if it does become law, the overnment will allow a general ection to intervene before attempt- g to enforce it. At the worst, Ulsr's resistance will have delayed the alisation of Mr. Redmond's plans r two years. The hope of the orth, of course, is that the English nd Scottish electors will come to eir aid and destroy the present easure by returning the Unionists office. If the Britian constituenes fail the men of Ulster, well, there an army of 110,000 volunteers ady to support a separate Belfast overnment.

Main Issue Overshadowed.

For the present the main issue is vershadowed in the press and in the ountry by the accumulating evidence to the Government's plans for coercing Ulster last month, and as to e failure of those plans through the isinclination of the army men to ove against their friends on this de of the Boyne. For the time be- g we need not consider the justifibility of the Ministers' action in aking warlike preparations against arming Ulster. Mr. Seely has aleady paid the penalty for his action being forced to retire from the abinet. Just now the thing upperost in men's minds is the amazing ulty of His Majesty's present adsers for getting themselves into the melight as apparent economizers of e truth. As it was in the Marconi andal, so it is in this new business. first Mr. Asquith and his colleaes give a sweeping denial to all arges. By persistent attack and vance of incriminating evidence the pposition in the House of Comons forces the Minister into tardy d partial confessions. The Prime inister himself is evidently embarssed by his colleagues' lack of ankness behind the scenes. Some of em have acted rashly without his owledge, and probably have never en yet taken him fully into their nfidence.

TORONTO THE BEST CITY ON THIS CONTINENT

Manchester Men Here Studying the Police Methods, Pleased With Queen City.

London, May 6.—Councillor Thewlis, chairman of the Manchester Police Board, who with Chief Constable Peacock, returned to-day from a tour of Canada and the United States, where they studied police methods, declares the city which most favorably impressed him was Toronto.

"Coming back on the boat," said Mr. Thewlis, "we heard several discussions about Montreal's merits, but I like Toronto best. People who say nasty things about Manchester should see Chicago.

THIEF LEFT PRINTS OF FEET ON THE FLOOR

Detectives Are Seeking for Pearson Avenue House-Breaker.

Toronto, May 6.—Sherlock Holmes methods are being introduced by the police in the case of a burglar, who ransacked the home of Mrs. McDonald, 201 Pearson avenue. Nothing of value was taken by the marauder, who was so careless as to leave behind, not only what valuables were in the house, but also a very fine set of footprints on the kitchen floor.

The Detective Department, being notified, took copies of these prints, and, it is presumed, are at present engaged in a census of feet with the hope of discovering the daring burglar.

Mrs. McDonald was awakened at an early hour by the cries of her sick child. She heard a sound of someone roaming about in the kitchen beneath her room and went down to investigate. As she entered the lower room she heard some one scurring out of the rear of the house. The police were called at once. While many drawers had been pulled open and ransacked, nothing of value was found missing.

CAPT. SCOTT'S WIDOW TO WED PLAYWRIGHT

Sir James Barrie Was Friend of the Polar Hero—Hear Wedding is to be Soon.

Montreal, May 6.—A London cable to the Daily Mail says the name of Lady Scott, widow of Captain Robert F. Scott, the Antarctic explorer has been added to the list of women, who at various times have been reported engaged to wed Sir James M. Barrie the platwright. It is rumored that they will be married soon.

SHARP DECLINE IN IMMIGRATION OF GIRLS THREATENS FAMINE OF DOMESTIC SERVANTS NOW

Number of New Arrivals is Less Than Half What it Was a Year Ago and Serious Shortage of Help is Already Being Felt

Toronto, May 6.—"Little over half the usual number of domestic servants are entering Canada this year," says Miss Latham, who is temporary in charge of the Women's Welcome Hostel, Toronto's chief distributing agency. In the first four months of 1913 three hundred and ninety girls registered at the hostel, whereas in the corresponding period for 1914 only one hundred and ninety-eight done so. The April figures are particularly significant, being only ninety-nine this year, as compared with one hundred and ninety-eight last year. A very small percentage of the figures quoted should be put against escort cases and girls seeking employment as assistants in stores.

Shortage in the West.

Every effort is as present made to dissuade domestic servants from seeking positions in the west, and nearly all are placed with families in Ontario. According to Miss Latham who has recently visited Regina, Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg, these cities are extremely short of domestic help and are receiving scarcely any of the new-comers. Booking agents will cease to receive bonuses from the Ontario Provincial Government for the shipping of domestics from December first.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.
Good Digestion Follows Right Food.

Indigestion and the attendant discomforts of mind and body are certain to follow continual use of improper food.

Those who are still young and robust are likely to overlook the fact that, as dropping water will wear a stone away at last, so will the use of heavy, greasy, rich food, finally cause loss of appetite and indigestion.

Fortunately many are thoughtful enough to study themselves and note the principle of cause and effect in their daily food. A young woman writes her experience thus:

"Sometime ago I had a lot of trouble from indigestion, caused by too rich food. I got so I was unable to digest scarcely anything, and medicines seemed useless.

"A friend advised me to try Grape-Nuts food, praising it highly and as a last resort, I tried it. I am thankful to say that Grape-Nuts not only relieved me of my trouble, but built me up and strengthened my digestive organs so that I can now eat anything I desire. But I stick to Grape-Nuts."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

SAILOR HAS MILD CASE OF SMALLPOX

Swiss Cottage Hospital is Opened Again With One Patient.

Toronto, May 6.—A case of smallpox was discovered by the Medical Health Department on Claremont street last night. The victim was a sailor, 30 years of age, and was just preparing to leave the city on one of the lake boats. He had never been vaccinated. The patient was removed to the Swiss Cottage. Eight inmates in the house, seven adults and a child, were vaccinated and the dwelling placed in quarantine.

This is the first patient in the Swiss Cottage for a month. The case is reported to be of a very mild type.

PEACE ENVOYS GO ON WITHOUT REBEL

Carranza Left Out of Meditation Negotiations for the Present

Washington, May 6.—After a short session with Secretary Bryan, one of the mediators announced this after noon that they had definitely decided to proceed without Carranza. The possibility that the attitude of the Chief of the Constitutionalists was merely temporary was considered doubtful by the mediators.

Mexicans Tear Up Railways.

Washington, May 6.—General Funston, at Vera Cruz, reported to the War Department to-day that he had no definite information regarding the movements of the Mexican troops, and said he thought it probable that such concentration as the Mexicans forces has made was only for the purpose of defending the lines of railroads to Mexico City in case the United States troops should advance.

GOOD SPORTS WERE VICTIMS OF FAKIRS

Merchants Contributed to Support of Mythical Baseball Club

Toronto, May 6.—"We can't let a good name like that be spoiled," declared Magistrate Kingsford, in the police court when Harry Fagan and Thomas Clark were charged with fraud.

According to several business men in the west end, they were duped in a smooth way by the defendants. By resurrecting a defunct "Queen City" baseball club and presenting a petition, Clark and Fagan called on the storekeepers and received $8 in subscriptions, ostensibly to defray the expenses resurrecting the club.

The name of Edward Hartnett, who was manager of the Queen City Team some years ago, was forged to the document. Hartnett swore that he had heard nothing about it.

Fagan declared that he had accompanied Clark at the latter's request, but he did not collect any money. Magistrate Kingsford let him go, but sent Clark to jail for 30 days.

On the evidence of Clark, Frank Donohue was arrested in court, charged with forging Hartnett's name to the document used. Donohue pleaded that he understood that Hartnett was really at the back of the new team, and he did not know that the scheme wasonly a fake.

He also got 20 days in jail.

BRITISH PARTY LEADERS HAVE MET

London, May 6.—Conversations between the members of the Government and the Irish leaders in reference to a settlement of the Home Rule question, which were expected to follow the conciliatory speeches in the House of Commons on April 29, have apparently begun. It is reported that Premier Asquith, First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, Mr. Bonar Law, leader of the Unionists, and Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists, met privately to-day. The Irish Nationalists were not represented at the meeting. The reports in circulation altern cribe their absence to their unwillingness to participate in such a conference lest their followers should construe their presence as a sign that they had weakened, or to their ignorance of the Government's action.

SEND MURDERESS TO QUEBEC ASYLUM

Ottawa, May 6.—Mrs. Pacide Massie, the Hull woman who murdered her nineteen-year-old daughter, Marie, at Hull on April 12th while temporary insane, by striking her with an axe, will be transferred to the St. Jean de Dieu Insane Asylum at Montreal. This order for her removal to the asylum arrived from Quebec this morning, and Chief of Police Cavalier leaves for Montreal with Mrs. Massie on Thursday.

CANADA IS IN NEED OF TRAINED MEN

President Falconer Discusses Value of College Education

Toronto, May 6.—Need of trained men in the proper use and development of Canada's resources was emphasized by President Falconer, of Toronto University in an address given at a luncheon of the Toronto Ad Club, on the value of college education to a young man entering business."

Conditions in this country he stated were such as required all the trained men it was possible to produce. In competition with other nations of the world, canada would have to be a race of education, trained men if she was to hold her own. Other nations were beginning to study more deeply the best and most economic use of their natural resources. In Canada the wealth of the country has been so great as to give the young nation a splendid start, but if canada was to hold that start it would be necessary for the people to study how best and least wasteful to use the wealth nature has bestowed upon them. This required an educated mind; a mind which made the most of things which was exact in details, which recognized at once the main point, which was above all, thorough.

True education involved all these things, and the young man who possessed such qualities of mind would always find that there was a place for him in the realm of business.

PRESCOTT ELECTION BY END OF JUNE

Toronto, May 6.—Mr Gustave Evanturel resigned his seat as Liberal member for the county of Prescott on March 10,. A writ for an election must be issued before the expiration of 90 days after the death or resignation of a member of the Ontario Legislature. An election can therefore be expected in Prescott by the end of June. The time limit is up on June 10 for the issuing of the writ, and it is customary to hold an election within three weeks or a month after the writ is issued.

NIAGARA FALL IS MEDIATION GROUND

Canadian City Chosen as Spot Where A. B. C. Envoys Will Consider Mexico

Washington, May 6.—Renewed efforts of the South American envoys to bring Carranza, Constitutionalist chief, into preliminary mediation negotiations came as a swift turn of events that excited sharp interest in the Mexican crisis to-day. While it had appeared Carranza had been eliminated, temporarily, from meditaminated, temporarily, from mediation preliminaries because of his refusal to declare a truce, yet it developed to-day that the envoys were seeking to induce him to send an agent to conference between Huertistas and representatives of the United States to begin in Niagara Falls, Canada, on May 18.

No formal mediation of the broad Mexican problem could be attempted until an armistic had been arranged beewen contending factions in the Southern Republic, but the Mediator's present aim was said to to to meet a Carranza agent for a direct discussion of the situation.

"NO OUTSIDERS NEED APPLY"

Montreal, May 6.—Mayor Mederic Martin, who has delegated to himself supreme powers as employer of city help, introduced his policy of "Montreal for the Montrealer" for the first time to-day. He personally selected the men to go on the fire and police forces and insisted, as necessary qualifications, that no appointment should go to men who could not speak both French and English, and who were not Montrealers. He also refused to consider any applications for a position from a single man until the married men had been dealt with. He made every successful candidate swear that he had not offered money for his position.

COMBING ATLANTIC TO FIND THIRD OF COLUMBIA'S BOATS

Captain, Chief Engineer, Two Officers, Marconi Operator and Seven Seamen Found Early To-day Adrift in Small Boat

New York, May 6.—Vast stretches of the Atlantic ocean were being searched to-day by a score or so of liners in an endeavor to discover and to rescue the third boat from the British steamer Columbian, burned on Sunday night.

Two boats had been picked up, one late yesterday, one early to-day. Captain McDonald, a Canadian, the chief engineer, two officers and a Marconi operator were accounted for. Twenty seven men in all had been rescued. The body of the chief steward, who died in an open boat at sea, was being brought to Boston on the Franconia. Captain Miller's narrative to his chiefs in the Boston Cunard line offices was a simple varnished tale of how he moved heaven and earth in an attempt to find more victims of the fire and explosion on the Columbian. He "deeply regretted" he could find no more men though he had combed the ocean in the immediate neighborhood of the wreck. Wireless men were on the alert for further information. There was some doubt to-day as to whether the third boat had got safely away, and if it had whether it had not met disaster on th open sea. The forty-hour vigil of the men rescued by the Franconia was enough to try their mettle to the utmost.

Fourteen More Rescued.

Sable Island, N.S., May 6.—A second message from the Manhattan today says the boat of the Columbian, picked up by that ship, contained in addition to the captain, the chief engineer, two officers and the Marconi operator. There were fourteen men in this boat. The news of the rescue of the third boat containing two officers and eleven of the crew had been heard here early this afternoon.

URGES GREAT BRITAIN TO SHOW AT THE COMING PANAMA FAIR

Ottawa, May 6.—A suggestion that the Canadian Government should urge upon the British authorities reconsideration of their decision not to participate in the Panama Exposition at San Francisco was made by Mr. W. G. Weichel, of North Waterloo, in the House yesterday. He thought that if Great Britain would take part in the Exposition it would strengthen the bonds of friendship between the two Governments.

Bring Three Nations Closer.

In addition if Great Britain reconsidered Germany might do the same and it would tend to bring the three great nations closer together. Participation by Great Britain would be hailed with delight by all Canadians. He then read a resolution from the Berlin Board of Trade urging the Canadian Government to take some action.

Premier Borden said that they appreciated the observation made by the member for North Waterloo. Canada has already decided to participate in this Exposition and they were making thorough preparations for Canada to be adequately represented at San Francisco.

FOREIGN VOTE IS TO BE ELIMINATED

Hon. C. J. Doherty's Bill Will Make Five Years Residence Necessary

THE EDUCATION TEST IS SET

Empire-Wide Naturalization is Also Aim of Bill Minister Introduced.

Ottawa, May 6.—The wholesale naturalization of foreigners which has been one of the scandals of elections in Western Canada for years past when Hon. C. J. Doherty's bill in regard to Imperial Naturalization introduced yesterday becomes law. The bill not only provides for Imperial Naturalization but also repeals the present Canadian law. There are two provisions which will make it much more difficult for foreigners to secure naturalization papers. At present three years' residence in Canada is sufficient. The new law provides for five years residence within some portion of the Empire, the last year to be spent in Canada. In addition the bill will require a certain knowledge of the official language of the country in the case of Canada either French or English.

Empire-Wide Naturalization.

Mr. Doherty in explaining the bill said that its purpose was to provide the legislation necessary under the agreement arrived at between the home Government and the Government of the other Dominions to bring about an Empire-wide Naturalization. The first part of the bill dealt with the definition of natural-born British subjects. It modified the existing law he said only to this extent that whereas a person born out of the realm whose father or grandfather was a British subject was under the existing law a natural born British subject, under the proposed legislation it was only required that the father of such a man should be a natural born British subject. The bill, he said, was a reproduction of legislation introduced in the British Parliament.

LASH FOR ANOTHER WHO BEATS WIFE

Toronto, May 6.—"It's such men as you that the statute is made for," declared Crown Attorney Corley today in the police court when he urged that James Ritchie should receive the lash for beating his wife.

The woman testified in the box that her husband had struck her.

Ritchie pleaded that he was intoxicated at the time, and that he was very sorry for what he had done.

"She slipped in the kitchen and struck her face against the table leg" he said.

"Come now," laughed Crown Attorney Corley, "that's too old to expect us to believe."

Magistrate Kingsford sentenced him to 60 days in jail and 10 lashes.

Mrs. P. Griffiths, of London, aged 80, and totally blind, fell down the cellar steps and fractured her skull.

For Sallow, Wrinkled, Freckled, Pimpled Skin.

If you have any cutaneous blemish, don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often these only emphasize the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, blackheads, moth-patches, sallowness, red or yellow blotches or any surface eruptions. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple and harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles or crow's feet, a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel will prove remarkably effective.

EDUCATE THE PEOPLE

[illegible] Caskey Thinks Canada Should do More For the Immigrant

H. K. Caskey of the Layman's Missionary Movement, said that if the country could spend twelve million dollars annually on its military establishment of fifty thousand men to prepare for a possible armed defence, the Dominion should provide any sum necessary to properly equip mentally 400,000 immigrants who came here annually. Every armory in the country might well be a centre for supervised playgrounds and community work, with moving-pictures as an educational feature, musical events and pageants by the people themselves, addresses on sanitation, health, citizenship, laws and history.

"Canada," he said, "seeks immigration by advertising in the British Isles, the United States and at least ten continental countries, and has spent for that purpose in six years $6,842,598, and received fully 1,600,000 immigrants. Surely Canada should spend in special educational work for these honest people at least what she spent in educational work in getting them here. Chinese immigrants paid last year in head taxes $3,523,500, about $750,000 more than all the churches in Canada combined contributed to mission work at home and abroad. By a careful distribution of the work Canada is responsible for a population in the foreign field of forty millions."

QUEER OLD MART

The Caledonian Provides Many Strange and Amazing Contrasts

There are many queer markets scattered over the face of the globe, but London, among its many other unique features, is the proud possessor of what is perhaps the strangest and most extraordinary of them all. At the Caledonian market, Islington, whence the great metropolis draws a large proportion of its meat supply, the cobbled pavements, with their countless rows of white-fenced pens, are usually given up to the display of fat stock, but on Fridays "a change comes o'er the spirit of the dream." The cobbled pavements are there, the white pens still break up the wide expanse, but no cattle or sheep are to be seen. On that day, says a writer in The Wide World Magazine, the great market is given over to a throng of miscellaneous traders, whose wares provide the most amazing contrasts imaginable. There is nothing in the whole gamut of human devices and needs which one may not come across displayed in some odd collection set forth on the cobblestones. The traders use few counters or stalls; each of them, whether he has a stock worth three or four hundred pounds or a few rusty old bolts and spindles to purchase for a shilling or two, dumps his wares on the pavement of the market. Moreover, at this remarkable place there are markets within markets, each taking its regular turn and place during the day and then packing up and vanishing. The market was opened by Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's consort, about sixty years ago.

All these children will receive special prizes of medals.

CANADIAN MILITIA

Sir William Otter Points Out Its Weakness and Suggests a Remedy

Sir William Otter in the course of an address on the "Efficiency of the Canadian Militia," said in part: "The situation is briefly this—Canada, rich and prosperous, with a frontier extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the 49th parallel to the North Pole, vulnerable on all sides, requires by expert computation a force of 250,000 trained officers and men, with their attendant reserve, arms, equipment and transport to insure her safety from aggression under probable circumstances, while against these obligations for her safety her only present asset is a militia force of under 50,000, practically untrained, and barely equipped.

"The militia force itself has seemingly but little conception of its weakness, or is lulled into a blind belief in its efficiency by the plaudits of admiring friends at a ceremonial or church parade; yet a greater evil appears in that the public, busily engaged in private affairs, remains totally unconcerned and oblivious to the dangers which its own enterprise is creating." In offering a remedy for the conditions which he outlined, the veteran expressed the belief that "the most economical and effective mode of meeting deficiencies of personnel, training and discipline is by the adoption of the Australian system, that is, compulsory military training in schools and universities; because from these sources we can secure both officers and men possessed of a fair knowledge of the rudiments of drill and discipline, thus forming a solid foundation upon which to prosecute further advancement."

The speaker also urged the importance of keeping rolls of the male population liable for military service to provide a reserve, and the need for more extensive and suitable training areas. In regard to the latter he suggested that the several Provinces might be asked to assist in providing training areas. "The prominent weaknesses in the discipline of the Canadian militia," said General Otter "are not apparent on the outside, nor do they consist in the commission of serious crimes or exhibitions of insubordination, but rather in the evasion of duties and responsibilities, the performance of which cannot be avoided without disjointing the whole structure of military efficiency. The principal cause of this deficiency can be traced to ignorance of the danger and the laxness of youthful training."

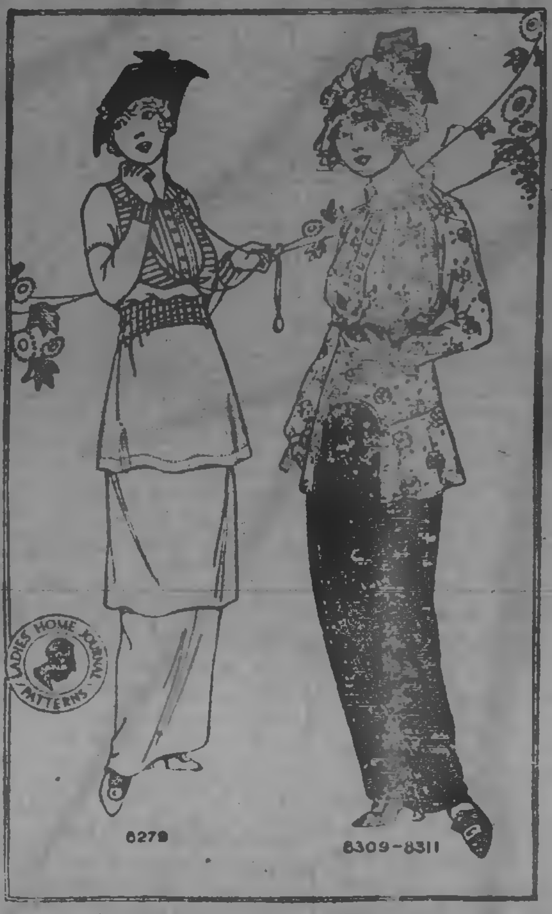
MAKING UP BOUQUETS

French Women Have a Particular Genius For This Art

There is more art than may be at first supposed in the process of making up a bouquet. It is essentially an art of the maitresse de maison who likes to receive and give bouquets, and to see her drawing-room adorned with a profusion of flowers. In short it is a woman's art, be the woman a grande dame or a simple fleuriste, whose trade is to ply deft fingers in the making up of bouquets. There is a certain deftness and a certain taste in this matter which seems to belong especially to French fingers, as they most certainly do to feminine ones.

To set a man to make up a bouquet would, in a general way, be very like turning a bull into a clover field. As the bull would trample down the clover blossoms, so would man's fingers and thumb crush the beautiful blossoms without being able to turn them into any account in the formation of a bouquet. Women easily become proficient in the art, without having learned it; and speaking in a general way, the Paris fleuriste surpasses them all. A certain faculty here comes into play, in which taste for combining and eye for color have place. Countless French women possess a distinct artistic sense, applicable in general to small things only.

Is this business of making up bouquets to be classed among the small things? Perhaps—as it might also develop into a matter of considerable importance. For artistic decoration for instance, what a resource is the ability for skilfully combining flowers? More than one street flower girl has made a fortune by the art. The well known "Isabelle," under the Second Empire, was one. From being a little fleuriste selling bouquets at two sous each, she came to be known to Napoleon III. and to the Empress Eugenie. No one could produce bouquets for the decoration of the salons of the Tuileries as she could. From owning a small street stall she came to be possessor of an immense shop on which the single word "Isabelle," in big letters, acted as a flaming advertisement. Others have followed her example and the trade of a Paris fleuriste sometimes brings in a large revenue.



THE NECK FINISH IMPORTANT TO THE FROCK

Collars have always been important to the frock or suit, but this season they are particularly so. There are several designs that are favored, among them the wide, flaring lace collar, the Normandy peasant collar, the Gladstone, which is wired or starched in stiff points on either side of the chin, the hood and the Japanese. The Japanese neck line flares away from the throat, and while it is perhaps the most up to date of all at the moment, is not as generally becoming as those coming to a V in front. Paquin shows on several of her frocks, a novel neck line; it is decidedly decollete in back while in front it comes up considerably higher. Conservative dressers will no doubt fight rather shy of this unless it proves to be unusually becoming.

In the gabardine street frock shown in No. 8279, there is a shawl collar of striped taffeta and revers outlining the U-shaped opening on the front of the bodice; these and also the girdle are of the striped silk.

Among the other smart features of this design is the vest of plaited batiste, the drop shoulders and the three-tiered skirt.

This dress requires, for size 36, 6⅝ yards of 36-inch material.

The Japanese collar is effectively shown in Nos. 8309-8311. The costume, which shows a blouse and tunic of figured silk crêpe and a skirt of black taffeta, is an attractive design for street or informal afternoon affairs.

It may be made up in size 36 with 3 yards of 36-inch material for the blouse (8309), and 3¾ yards of 36-inch material for the skirt (8311).

No. 8279—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8309—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8311—sizes 22 to 32.

On the day of his death the young man took out an accident insurance policy, of which he made his mother, whose address he gave as Inverness, Scotland, his beneficiary.

Never Had a Doctor

At a gathering in Portman street United Free Mission Hall, Glasgow, on the occasion of the celebration of the diamond jubilee of the Rev. SOME BRIDAL SUPERSTITIONS

Bride Should Take Thought as to Stepping into the Carriage

Superstitions regarding marriage are common in all parts of the world. One is that a bride on leaving her home for the wedding trip must step into the carriage right foot first. She should do the same when she first enters the home prepared for her after the bridal trip. A pretty custom which is tinged with superstition is that of the bride, as she is about to leave her home after the ceremony, tossing her bouquet among her female friends. The one who catches it, it is said, will be the next bride. A favorite wedding-day in Scotland is December 31st, so that the young couple can leave their old life with the old year and begin their married life with the new one. In Italy no sharp-pointed wedding gifts are permitted.

Good Fruit Cake

Dissolve a level teaspoon of soda in 2 tablespoons warm water. Add ½ pint thick, sour cream, stir, turn into a bowl, and add ½ cup New Orleans molasses. Mix well, then add ½ pint brown sugar, 1 tablespoon allspice, 1 of cinnamon, and 3½ cups pastry flour. Add nuts if liked. The batter should be very thick. Stir in 1 lb. stoned raisins, each cut in two, and all floured to keep them from sinking. Turn into a pan lined with greased paper, and bake in a very moderate oven 1½ hours, or steam for 1 hour and bake the other half hour. This cake grows better with age.

The People's Own

Could a City Solicitor for the City of Peterborough stand as candidate for Parliament? The reference is not to any particular solicitor or to any particular parliament. But a correspondent wants to know if it is the fair thing for the Solicitor for other interests to go to Parliament. Is he free? Our correspondent thinks not. He says that most of our troubles as a nation and a people arise from the people's having no man of their own to represent them. They have to take what is left, and they usually get left.

End Capital Punishment

Nobody will take Miss Katherine B. Davis, commissioner of correction of New York City for a weak-minded sentimentalist. But Miss Davis has already spoken out her mind on the subject of capital punishment. The reaction against the quadruple execution of the gunmen has come quickly. Miss Davis would end capital punishment. Her reasons are not given in the short article we have seen, but they are easily inferred and are, no doubt, quite like those which have been expressed in this column time and again. But it is pleasant to see a social worker and criminologist of Miss Davis's known ability come out straight for the most approved modern methods in correction. With her correction, not punishment, is the main thing. The proper punishment of the murderer, according to Miss Davis, is, therefore, incarceration and observation for the purpose of determining whether reform is possible. If in time the murderer is shown to be normal, not criminally degenerate, and not dangerous to society, Miss Davis would have him set at liberty on parole. Perhaps it would not be useless to quote her exact words, for they also give an indication of some of the causes of crime.

"Every feeble-minded child is a potential criminal, and should be placed in an institution before growing up to commit murders. There are many ways of discovering the feeble-minded child, but any way is sufficient. After the feeble-minded have been determined, there should be an institution where they can be placed permanently. In the case of men and women who commit murder, I believe that they should be incarcerated and placed under observation. This observation could be conducted by a representative body similar to the board of parole."

Magic "Nerviline" Cures Toothache, Earache

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN.

Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Tight Chest and Hoarseness

It's when sickness comes at night when you are far from the druggist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline—a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughing with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy.

Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nerviline's power to penetrate and ease the pain.

As a family safeguard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family, to cure pain anywhere, you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trial size 25c All dealers sell Nerviline.

FISH STORIES

Lightning Killed a Bass Weighing Eleven Pounds

From the Eastern Townships of Quebec there came a story of an eleven-pound black bass killed by lightning. That was pretty good. Nobody had ever seen an eleven-pound black bass before in the world, and nobody had ever seen a fish killed by lightning. The story was a double-edged stroke of genius. Next from the New England States there came a story of a lad who rammed his fist into the gills of a fish in diving and landed another big one. And this was followed up by a story from Baltimore where an old tar tells of having his ship lifted out of the water on the back of an enormous whale.

THE DAINTY "FLIPPER"

A Delicacy in Newfoundland Associated With the Sealing Season

A dainty peculiar to Newfoundland which so far has received little attention is the seal's flipper or fipper which is the paw with which the seal propels itself through the water. It is esteemed by the people of the island as one of their greatest delicacies. A flipper weighs about a pound, and when the seal ships begin to arrive in St. John's most people begin to talk about securing "a meal of flippers." Small boys and others swarm about the steamers, and the crews are importuned to supply these dainties to all who ask for them. In the olden times they were given away freely but latterly it is not uncommon for fifty cents a gad (six on a string) to be asked for them, while many among the crews now make a practice of salting quantities into barrels for their own consumption during the summer. A fresh flipper makes a most appetising meal. The method of cooking them is to wash them thoroughly in fresh water, then soak them in water in which salt has been dissolved; next transfer them to a baking pan or pot with slices of pork or bacon, and after being cooked over a hot fire they are as delicate of flavor and taste as the finest of veal.

Among all the capitalists in St. John's interested in the sealing industry, flipper suppers, with the accompaniment of champagne, etcetera, are the invariable rule as the ships come in, and owners, captains, and others indulge annually in these repasts at some of the hotels or inns near the city. Very many family parties also partake of the unusual dish, and among the poorer classes flippers are looked upon as a great and welcome luxury, a change from the usual dietary and one that is beyond all question nourishing and healthy. Roman Catholics likewise patronize flippers largely because, as the seal is an amphibious animal, it is not meat, and may be eaten during the Lenten season or on fast days. All round the north and west coasts, where the seals are often taken close in shore, they are a recognised item in the daily menu—not alone flippers but the carcases as well. These are perhaps even more appetising than the flippers because there is less fat permeating them, but, of course, space is too valuable aboard the ship to allow of carcases being brought home for consumption, they being worthless for any other purpose, and seal pelts being valued at $100 a ton dead weight.

INCONSPICUOUS CLOTHING

Dark Blue and Green Can be Seen the Farthest

Some curious and rather unexpected results have followed experiments in Europe for the purpose of determining what color in a soldier's uniform is the least conspicuous to an enemy. Of ten men, two were dressed in light grey uniforms, two in dark grey, two in green, two in dark blue, and two in scarlet. All were then ordered to march off, while a group of officers remained watching them. The first to disappear in the landscape was the light grey, and next, surprising as it may seem, the scarlet. Then followed the dark grey, while the dark blue and the green remained visible long after all the others had disappeared. Experiments in firing at blue and red targets, according to same experiments, proved that blue could be more easily seen at a distance than red.

It may be that khaki, which is the fashionable color now for army uniforms, will have to give way to grey, for in these days of long-range weapons inconspicuous clothing is vitally necessary for soldiers.

Light of Fireflies

It has been proved by experiments conducted by M. Ives, a chemist, that the light emitted by fireflies, glowworms and other insects is purely chemical and not in any way biological. Mr. Ives finds that this light is not extinguished by death. Of course after death some stimulus is necessary to excite it, but it can be produced in their tissues two years after their death, which makes certain that it it is chemical in origin.

Corrugated strawboard containers which fit closely all around their contents have been invented for shipping single eggs by parcel post.

Few Old Maids in Japan

According to the statistics of the Japanese Blue Book, there are very few Japanese women who do not marry. The majority of Japanese girls marry at twenty-one years of age. The men usually marry at twenty-six, but marriage at the age of fifteen is [illegible]. Practically every Japanese [illegible] who does not join a Buddhist monastery marries. The old bachelor and the old maid are almost unknown in the land of the chrysanthemum.

A REAL ESTATE YARN

Ex-Mayor Waugh of Winnipeg told a real estate yarn in a way that was as fetching as the story itself. A real estate agent, selling California city lots in the mid-West, entered a town when it appeared to be deserted. Discovering that the town was virtually paying its respects to one of its departed citizens, the agent, seeing no chance of doing business, joined himself to the company of mourners in the cemetery chapel. He entered as the clergyman was asking anyone who would like to say a word in memory of the deceased, let him now come forward. No one accepting the invitation, despite a repetition of the request, the real estate salesman rose and respectfully said: "Mr. Minister, as no one seems anxious to say a word for the deceased, and as I didn't know him when he was alive, perhaps you will permit me to tell you something about some California lots that I have to sell."

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Petty Busybodies.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

THE young doctor who attended my lame foot was a most affable, pleasant chap, and Mary and I took a tremendous shine to him. Thereby hangs a tale.

I remember when my foot was convalescing how cynical he was one morning.

"Hunt," he said, "you can't imagine what a hard road a doctor has to travel. If his patient is pretty and feminine, he's accused of visiting there twice as often as he needs. He never gets through life without a scandal. When he gets him a wife, she's invariably jealous. If she isn't at first other women see to it that she develops it in time. I never go into a house where the man is away but what I feel pretty sure that all the windows along the street are studded with eyes and I'm being rigidly checked up as to the time I spend indoors. If I stay too long, I'm certainly making love to somebody I ought not to. If I come away too soon, I'm neglecting my professional duties in order to get to the next place, which is supposed to hold more attraction for me."

I didn't realize how true all this was until Mary became the centre of intense neighborhood interest.

It happened very simply.

The young doctor had merely stopped his car one morning and run in for a minute to ask about my sprained foot, which had been very weak and troublesome even after I was able to use it. Mary and he had chatted pleasantly for several minutes—for we had made a friend of him—when the telephone rang.

"Is Peter home, Mary?" demanded our next door neighbor.

"No," said Mary innocently enough. "Why?"

"Why," said Mrs. Blake, "I saw the doctor's car out in front and I thought of course Peter must be having more trouble with his foot."

"Oh, no," said Mary.

"You aren't sick, are you?"

"No, indeed," said Mary again.

She was scarcely back in the library when the phone rang again. This time it was the woman across the street.

"I'm so worried about Peter's foot," she said sweetly. "Has it failed him again?"

"Oh, no," said Mary patiently.

"What is the trouble, then?"

"Nothing."

"Isn't the doctor there?"

"He is," said Mary, and rang off.

The doctor made a wry grimace.

"Well, Mrs. Hunt," he said, "I'd better be off. The neighborhood is pretty much stirred up already."

The climax came in the afternoon.

Mary went to a sewing club and the instant she entered there was the general hush which betokens guilty conversation.

"We've just been speaking about you, Mrs. Hunt," said one of the ladies, taking the bull by the horns, "and wondering who in the world was sick at your house. Your husband's foot isn't worse, is it?"

"No," said Mary.

"But the doctor was there this morning, wasn't he?"

"Oh, yes," said Mary. "Most every one in the neighborhood knows that, I'm sure." And Mary smiled and kept her patience, but there was fire and tears in her eyes when she told me at night.

"Just think, Peter!" she exclaimed. "He wasn't here two minutes before the whole neighborhood must have been stirred up about it. I—I—think it's perfectly terrible and insulting too. I wish we didn't live here."

What petty busybodies women are!

How to Breathe Correctly

By Maggie Teyte

WE really should learn to breathe with our brains as well as our lungs. That means we should understand why we breathe and how to breathe, and the best way to fill our lungs and purify our blood with fresh air.

Instead of breathing in the mechanical way nature has arranged for us, we ought to make our breathing a conscious function and direct it by the brain. There is no waste of time in breathing. It is an exercise which need not interfere with the regime of the busiest life. And there is nothing we can do which will pay so sure and generous a dividend. There is always time for ten or a dozen full, deep, well directed breaths in the morning before an open window. That empties the lungs of the accumulations of overnight poisons and begins the day with fresh fires.

When we go out in the open, there is the chance for some more intakes of fresh air. It will drive away any latent cold. It will cure almost any headache. It will solve many a mental problem. It will give us confidence in our own ability and courage to take up the cares of the day.

The Yogis of India have literally breathed themselves into fame and learning. They knew how to breathe over a thousand years before the Christian era. All their mysterious occultism has grown out of their knowledge of the laws of breathing.

And while you are breathing and growing cheerful—fresh air will expel blues—here is a simple and excellent cold cream which seems to suit all skins and which was given me by a great actress whose beauty has made her famous.

Take four ounces of rose water and an equal quantity of almond oil. Take one ounce each of spermaceti and white wax. Melt the oil, spermaceti and wax in a double boiler till they are creamy and well mixed. Pour in the rose water very slowly and beat the mixture constantly with a silver fork. Then add one drachm of tincture of benzoin drop at a time. Keep in closely covered jars.

The Value of Home Life

By Leo Slezak

IF you would sing well or flash your fingers across the pianoforte keyboard with effectiveness, see to it that your home life is pleasant. The musician who wears a glad smile away from his own fireside, but who sulks and finds undue fault when in the bosom of his family, is not the one who usually succeeds to an unusual degree.

Playing with the baby on one's knees may not be precisely dignified for public practice, yet it is good for tired nerves of even the greatest singer, pianist or violinist. There is something in this. I understand that the late E. H. Harriman loved his home and that his invariable rule was to quit business at 4 in the afternoon that he might be among those who meant more to him even than his thousands of miles of bright railroad tracks.

Distinguished musicians, artists, novelists and statesmen, whose names stand forth conspicuously as men of upright character, were all men whose home interests were not subordinated to their business. It is all very well to say that to succeed in a superlative degree one must be "wedded to one's art or business," but the statement needs qualifying.

Relaxation is essential to every man who labors [illegible] and this comes most naturally with wife and children. A game of chess or checkers after dinner is the most natural thing in the world for the average successful merchant. Many musicians, too, have discovered that their wives and children can win at the games they enjoy.

On the nights when I sing I always want to have my wife and son and daughter near me before going to the opera house or concert hall. I could not do myself justice if their strengthening influence were denied me. Somehow my voice would stick in my throat in the event of any domestic misunderstanding. The very fact that I have three souls near me to work for, spurs me on to do better things. During my big scenes I see their faces and almost hear their words of encouragement. There is nothing like that in all the world, not even the plaudits of the multitude.

Scores of men who have gained fame in opera and concert feel precisely as I do, and they follow the same lines in much the same way. One pianist, whose dazzling technique is always a matter for favorable critical comment, once fumbled the keyboard as the result of a squabble at home just before the concert. The inevitable moral is plain—keep cheerful at home—play with the family and the music one makes will be sweeter.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been going with a very dear boy since the first of the year. We have known each other much longer than this. Some of my girl friends have asked me to give him up; they say we can never be happy as I am a couple of years older than he is. Do you think that the difference of age can make any difference in our feeling for each other in after years, as we both care very much for each other now?

UNHAPPY.

DOES a difference of age make any difference [illegible] marriage? Well, that depends [illegible] the age and upon the marriage.

Two years isn't enough to make any difference at all, it seems to me—not if your husband, or the man who wants to be your husband, is a person of any sense or cultivation.

What sort of a chap is this that you think would make you so happy? That's the important thing.

The man who falls in love with a woman older than himself is apt to be somewhat immature in character—that's the type that usually wants to marry a woman who will boss him and tell him what to do and when not to do it.

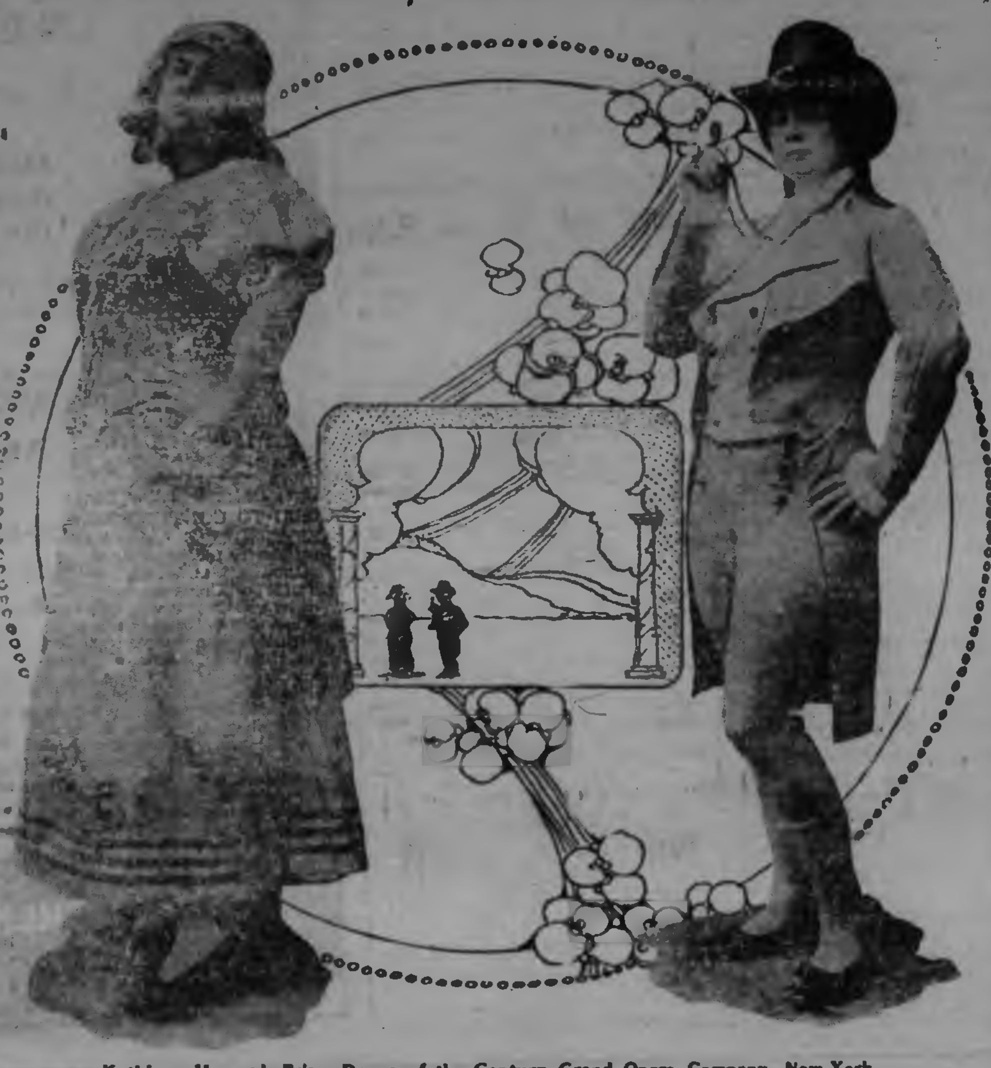
Such marriages are sometimes happy—and sometimes miserable.

You'll have to take your chances just as any woman who marries must—and I don't see why your chances are not, in this case, as good as the next one.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

HIGH AIMS HELP TO SUCCESS



Kathleen Howard, Prima Donna of the Century Grand Opera Company, New York.

"Fear Our Worst Enemy," Says Kathleen Howard

By ELEANOR AMES

AIM for the clouds, and you may at least attain unto the mountain peaks. Strive for the mountain heights and you may land in the treetops. But whatever you do, in whatever place you find yourself, let your aspirations soar, then work with all your might to catch up with them.

In other words, "He shoots higher that threatens the moon than he who aims at a tree."

Kathleen Howard gave me that motto and told me it had been a constant help and inspiration to her.

She is a splendid example of what high aim will do, if backed by ability and directed by hard work. She has sung her triumphant way in opera from Paris to Germany, to Norway and Sweden, to London and thence to her native America, and the end is not yet.

She has sung many a time and oft before royalty, by "command," and among the appreciative gifts she treasures the imperial arms of Russia, enclosed in a wreath of laurel which the Czar of Russia gave her after he heard her sing in Germany when he was [illegible]ng a visit to his brother-in-law, the Grand Duke.

"I believe more girls fail from lack of high aim than from lack of ability," said Miss Howard. "Fear is the arch enemy of success. It so many times keeps us from aiming high. Why should one fear until she has failed, and even then why fear at all? One never knows what she can accomplish until she has tried. It is her duty and her privilege to 'hitch her wagon to a star.' Some one is sure to reach the star, and it might as well be you.

"Between rightful ambition and blind conceit there is the world-wide difference, but it is better to have conceit enough to spur one on to great efforts than to have such a lack of self-confidence that one sinks without trying to swim.

"Just start out with the idea that one can accomplish anything, and work earnestly toward making good, and the chances of big success are excellent. But start out with the idea that after all you don't amount to very much, and you are just lucky to be alive and have the space to plod along with a thankful heart for a mere existence, and the chances of failure are splendid. If you succeed in doing some really great thing it will be a miracle. If you even get the mere existence which you feel is about all you deserve or are capable of doing, it will be grand good luck if you get that.

"There is no place so high that brains has not the right to work toward it. And by working toward it I don't mean picking out some one big triumph and saying, dictatorially, 'This thing will I do,' for perhaps it is not at all the thing for you to do, and that while you are bending all your best efforts toward that one goal, self-selected, you might overlook the right thing to do which would give you far greater success than you ever dreamed of.

"When I urge high aim, I mean feeling that you are capable of amounting to a great deal in some way, and doing each day's work the very best you can, and all the time improving on the previous day. Then you are making constant progress. If you sing well today, sing a little better tomorrow, and still better the next day, and have it in your mind that you will keep on going ahead as long as you can. Don't place any set limit on your accomplishments, for the limit you fix may not be the limit of what you can do.

"I speak of singing because that is what interests me more than anything else, but the same effort that makes a great singer would develop some other talent equally well. 'But I have no talent,' some girl is sure to wail. How do you know? You may have a talent for making crullers or lemon pie. Then make better crullers and better lemon pie each day and you will receive your reward. You may have the talent for making a restful and cheerful home. And just because you are not a genius who can paint or sing or write or make gowns or do some other of the wonderful things you think are the result of genius you will settle back and say: 'Well, I'll just dub around home and let the other have the success!'

"But every one of these other persons has to have a home, and if you have the genius of home-making you will find ready appreciation if you strive to make a perfect home."

Neckwear Models to Be Copied at Home

By MADGE MARVEL

WOMEN are judged by their collars when the style critic looks them over. Just the right kind of neck fixing will redeem a suit which has seen better days or a gown that is not quite up to the mode.

One fashion expert has said there is a distinct style of collar for each individual feminine neck. Unless one has a fiendish genius for figures she would rather not take issue with the statement and set out to prove it, but after a day's shopping the assertion seems much of its hyperbolism, for the articles of lace and net and ribbon and embroidery which have been made to fasten about necks and add to the charm of womankind is simply bewildering. It is likewise bewilderingly lovely and exquisitely expensive.

To begin with, the collar of the moment has an importance it never before possessed. It frequently becomes waistcoat, revers and guimpe, in addition to a mere fascinating and softening neck finish for the gown.

The flare collar is perhaps the newest form—and it has numerous variations. The flare style is often developed in muslin or organdie, and may have tiny tassels depended from its out-turned points or it may [illegible] tiny [illegible] [illegible] aristocracy, and is vastly becoming to the long and slender throat.

There are delightfully frilly, frothy, irresponsible bits of neckwear, and there are good, sensible, neat collars to wear with tailored suits.

But why begin talking of something which has no end?

The wise woman, and the lucky one, is she whose knowledge of sewing and leisure will permit her to copy the wonderful importations which are so adorable in the shops and so impossible to the purse of moderate capacity. "Handmade" is a magic phrase when one mentions neckwear, and really exquisite hand sewing is never cheap—very properly not.

The three examples shown give excellent ideas of what is newest and best in collars, and can be reproduced at home without great adeptness as a needlewoman. The chief requirement is to be exact in cutting the lace and fitting the collar, for fine materials will not make up for ill-fitting fripperies.

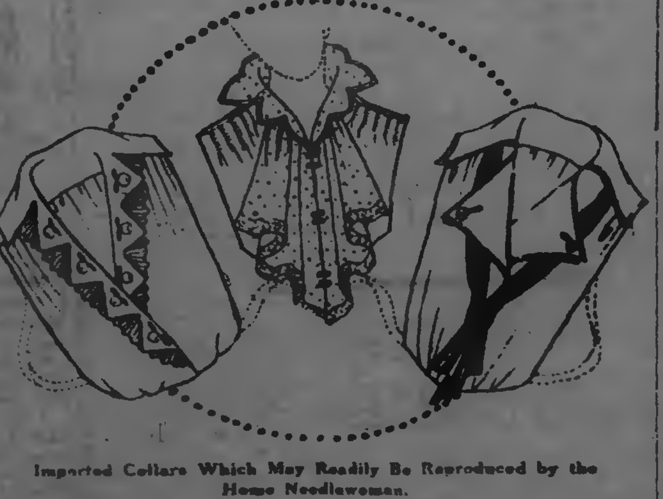
In the centre model the foundation is of firm white net. It is fitted over the shoulders with tiny tucks, and held to the figure with elastic bands. The flare collar and the jabot are of dotted lace and fine boning holds the flare in position. The seam in the centre of the middle pleat of the jabot may or may not be used. If desired the jabot may fasten over at the side. The buttons are fastened with tiny cord loops. About the edge of the jabot is a band of insertion.

The other models are made on net foundations. One illustrates the charm of the surplice and the other is delightfully thorough looking and will accord well with tailored garb.

In this the collar is of fine organdie. The revers have buttons of imitation jade and simulated buttonholes, and the ribbon is of black moire in the popular "oilcloth" shine.

The other shows little Futurist roses embroidered in purple and orange in the centre of each fine linen point. Underneath there is a frill of net.

The neckwear designers have been more than generous. It is quite "up to" the purchaser to be wise in her choice. What may be bewitchingly becoming to one woman may be wretchedly unbecoming to another. Remember, not all women can wear the same manner of collar any more than they can wear the same hat.



Imported Collars Which May Readily Be Reproduced by the Home Needlewoman.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Your First Duty in Life Is to Be Physically Fit

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

HAVE you done your duty to Mother Health? How can you know whether you have done your duty? Do you know what a duty is?

A duty is a moral obligation. It is your liability to another's right. For every right there is a corresponding duty. There is a correlative, reciprocal, complemental obligation placed upon you by a supreme law to do your duty and respect the rights of others.

Plainly, then, each individual has his rights to look to, his duties to perform. When you do not do what you ought to do, you are backsliding and pigeon-holing your duty.

On the other hand, when any self-anointed, self-delegated authority, individual, body, club, society, association, so-called power, or government, oversteps forgotten limitations and infringes upon your rights, you are in duty bound to protect them. Every man has a threefold duty to perform. These are, for my part, duties to a Supreme Being, duties to your neighbors and duties to yourself.

Paid secretaries of the uplift often place this last one first and the first one last. Utopians of the academic sort disregard the second one entirely.

You may take unto yourself the wings of golden dawn and inhabit the antipodes as well as Cathay, yet these threefold duties violated or performed will remain with you closer than your unpaid tailor. Duty to your physical well-being is intimately trussed and swathed in the symphony of your duties to God and your neighbor.

"So nigh is grandeur to our dust,
So near is God to man,
When Duty whispers low, Thou must,
The youth replies, I can."

Suppose, as a horrible example, you deliberately avoid doing your duty to yourself by refraining from vaccination? Imagine the argument. Here are the methods to prevent smallpox and also typhoid fever.

Evidently your duty to the Creator is to not take your own life. You must serve His ends first. Again your duty to others is not to murder, or take their lives consciously or unconsciously.

Most obviously, you are in duty bound to check the erring and reprove the tempters. If you, through some acrobatic and gymnastic twists of information or free thinking, conclude that you do not need to avoid typhoid and smallpox by two different types of vaccination "because it poisons you," then you still are to gain your only future reward by fulfilling your duty to God and man.

As a matter of fact a flock of one hundred crows does not make a winter, nor does a dozen flocks of bluebirds make spring.

Four-tenths of 1 per cent. of prejudiced persons do not prove that vaccination is a "poison" or a "menace." Furthermore, the case against the antis is a full and unanimous verdict by the jury best qualified, without pride or bias, to judge.

The paramount duty to our own fabric includes a gentle disposition without envy or hatred of any fellow man, the vigor of a clear eye and other sound senses, elastic, pliable muscles, a sweet breath, fine fluids in the channels of life, and wholesome thoughts in the bony dome.

Answers to Health Questions

FRANK S., Philadelphia—Even though I retire at 9 o'clock and sleep until 6 or 7 my legs feel tired in the morning. Can this be cured?

Evidently you do not have enough air in your room at night and you lead too quiet a life by day. You should exercise by dancing, skating or otherwise bestir your muscles.

J. R., Philadelphia—What is the cause of dark puffs under the eyes? I've had them since a spell of scarlet fever 40 years ago.

Often, but by no means always, a puffiness under the eyes after scarlet fever means that some trouble has been left in your kidneys. Have the kidney fluids honestly analyzed by some pathologist.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

Mice are especially fond of taking up their abode in a piano, and once they have contracted the habit it is difficult to persuade them that they have nothing in common with the instrument. Many suggest placing camphor all along the back, as they dislike the smell. One correspondent having found nicely baited traps of no avail against the charms of piano key felt finds that the only thing that keeps the vermin away is a thick line of cayenne pepper along the edge of the back frame. Another plan, if there are no small children or domestic animals in the house, is to smear the edge with phosphorus paste. Another suggests 20 drops of oil of peppermint on cotton wool placed in the lower part of the case.

A weak solution of chloride of cobalt makes a satisfactory "invisible" ink. On being exposed to heat the "ink" becomes green and visible.

Starch cannot possibly be made at home. It is a technical preparation requiring special appliances and special knowledge. A polishing iron is like an ordinary iron with an oval surface of polished steel. The size is a matter of personal choice.

Oak floor stain mixed with varnish can be procured ready for use so cheaply that it seems hardly worth while to make the stain at home. However, here is a recipe: Mix some Vandyke brown with liquor ammoniac, dilute with water to the required depth of shade, and add a little Bismarck brown. Stain twice. When quite dry varnish.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

FLUFFY, the little feathery ball of a chick, who had found a home under Mrs. Speckle's comfortable wing, awoke one morning and peeked out of her new found home.

"Peep, peep! Peep, peep!" began the little one. "Are you awake yet?"

"Yes, my dear, I am awake, but I did not stir for fear of waking you," replied Mrs. Speckle. "Get right out from under my wing and we will go out and get some breakfast."

"Yes, Mother," said Fluffy.

Soon they were out on the grass, under the Crabapple tree. One by one the little leaves of the blossoms were loosened by the wind and fell to the ground.

"What are those white things?" asked Fluffy.

"They are the petals of crabapple blossoms. As you leave your tiny shell and come out a chick, so the little crabapple leaves the budding flower or the flower leaves the fruit and a crabapple comes on the tree," explained Mrs. Speckle.

"Did I grow on a tree?" asked Fluffy, with wide-open eyes.

"No, my dear; you came from a tiny egg. You see, March is a windy month because then the buds and flowers are on the trees and the wind shakes the flowers from the trees so the apples, peaches, pears and other fruit can come out."

"And did the wind blow me out of the egg, too?" asked Fluffy.

"Of course not, my dear," began Mrs. Speckle. "You pecked your way out when it was time. Come, here is a dainty worm for you."

Fluffy ran after the worm as fast as she could and soon it disappeared.

"Here are some little blades of grass for you," said Mrs. Speckle as she began to scratch the earth. "You see the little blades break the earth and come to the sunlight."

"Does the grass come from eggs, too?" Fluffy looked up at Mrs. Speckle inquiringly.

"No, dear, grass comes from seeds. Now, don't ask any more questions, my head is tired," said Mrs. Speckle.

Modern Utensils

The modern store caters to the modern housekeeper, and so it should—for look what an important personage she is! Here are a number of things which she will be glad to know about.

Apple Corer

There is an apple corer that can do two things at once. It is a little wheel-shape affair of metal. The rim and spokes are rounded and smooth on the top, but ground to sharp knife edge on the lower side. When this is pressed hard into the top of an apple the rim will core it and the spokes will cut the apple into sections just ready for cooking. Both things are done "at one fell swoop." One can easily see what a convenient sort of thing this is.

Egg-slicer

Made in somewhat the same fashion, is an egg-slicer, which will cut up a hard-boiled egg into just the shape bits that are nice to use as a garnish for a salad.

Glass and Enamel Sanitary Covers

Glass and enamel sanitary covers which will fit twenty-one different sizes of bottles, glasses, or bowls can be gotten at a small price. The usefulness of these will be readily appreciated by the housekeeper, who delights in keeping an immaculate refrigator.

Vegetable Boilers

Another nice utensil is the vegetable boiler of heavy block tin or aluminum, containing a removable drainer. This can be raised and hooked onto the edge of the boiler until all the fluid has been drained off and the vegetables then slipped off into a dish. These drainers make a colander unnecessary and they are far nicer to handle.

British Immigrants

Mr. A. W. Smithers, chairman of the board of directors of the Grand Trunk Railway, stated in a recent interview, that the British emigrants coming out here were at once a gain to the Dominion and the Empire at large. When they come to you, he said, they are ready-made citizens. They have been brought up to conserve the laws under which you live. They have sentiments identical with your own. They are merely enlarging their horizon a bit. That is all. And under the old flag they are ready at any moment to render necessary service to the Empire in the moment of need. Moreover, they will leaven in any community, the other elements, and produce in time a wholesome citizenship. Therefore, concluded Mr. Smithers, encourage the British emigrant, who, although he leaves England, is not lost to the Empire.

WOMEN LEARNING TO BE GARDENERS

At Her Agricultural School Lady Wolseley Gives Her Students a Thorough Course

Lord Wolseley's daughter, Viscountess Wolseley, has devoted herself to an agricultural school for women, which she established at Glynde in Sussex. Her work attracted so much attention that the ancient London Guild of Gardeners bestowed upon her an honorary membership in their "worshipful company," the first ever given to a woman.

Viscountess Wolseley's school at Glynde covers about five acres. There are buildings for the school and her own little home is in the midst. She has christened the place "Ragged Lands," saying that it contains a little of everything in its natural state.

There are models laid out of the different styles of gardens, the formal Italian and the French, the old Dutch and the ancient English. There is a model of a sunken garden such as exists upon many of the English estates. There is also a terrace garden, a wall garden, a water garden, a rose garden and a rock garden. Every modern and ancient idea in gardening is illustrated even to "kitchen" gardens and several small orchards as well.

Lady Wolseley's own garden is full of roses, in which a tall, latticed wooden pillar is covered with them and surmounted by a carved wooden crest, the dog star of Wolseley.

The school was founded in 1906, upon the site of a corn field, which had been long unproductive because infested with a species of worms. The land was reclaimed by Lady Wolseley and her pupils, but it lies in such an unprotected situation upon the downs that their success is all the more remarkable, as heavy winds can reach it from all directions. There are only twelve students and each has her set of garden tools and has to work actively in keeping the land in proper condition. The pupils are often ignorant of the first principles of gardening and sometimes begin without knowing the difference between a strawberry plant and a potato sprout. The sum of $500 is regularly set aside for the crops which are ruined by the beginners.

During the winter months the students take lessons indoors in garden carpentry and the work of keeping the green house furnaces going day and night occupies a good deal of their time. The students are also taught the commercial side of their business and how to market the fruit, flowers and vegetables to the best advantage.

HINTS ON HOUSEBUILDING

The living-room ought to face the south or west, that it may have the benefit of the afternoon sun. The dining-room may well face the east, to secure the good cheer of the morning sunlight, that the day's beginning may be auspicious. It is therefore best, or, at least, most convenient, to plan for these things, if the house faces the south.

Cement cellar walls cost no more than stone set in cement, and are rat and moisture proof, besides offering a more agreeable wall in the cellar. There is no reason why cellars should be dark and disagreeable. Allow for considerable window space in the cellar wall, and group the windows in pairs. Thus sunlight enters, which aids in keeping the cellar dry.

The safe colors for a house, besides red, are white, grey, yellow, and brown. Yellow or grey with white trimmings suits many a plain pitch-roofed or square colonial house. Greys and browns are good for ugly, nondescript ones, the greys always being pleasanter on the yellow shades than on cold, blue tones. White suggests the formal type again. It is a very good color for a country house, showing it up from a distance in fascinating glimpses; for it needs trees about it, and flowers to sparkle against its walls. Such a house will be attractive when the leaves are gone from the trees, for the bare boughs will serve to soften the effect.

Unclaimed Medals

A motor lorry of the Army Service Corps passed through the streets of South London with several small khaki-colored cases. Not even the armed guard knew that the cases held more than 50,000 unclaimed South African War medals, 1899-1902, on the way to the Royal Mint to be melted down.

Turkey Luck

Twenty-six turkeys hatched at the same time by a turkey hen on a farm near Llanelly (Carmarthen) all survived, and in the fall weighed in the aggregate 400 pounds. The farmer claimed this as a record single hatch in number and weight.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

HAS BUT FIVE ACRES YET IS DOING WELL

A Leamington Man's Success in Vegetables, Grown Altogether Under Glass

About seventeen years ago, Roy Ellis, then r mere boy, with his father and mother, moved into the Leamington neighborhood. The family had been engaged in ordinary farming near Forest, Ontario, and made the change with a view to following up the fruit industry. They took a farm of some thirty acres, part of which was uncultivated, and part covered with apple orchard. Tearing out the aged and unfruitful apple trees ,they replaced them with a peach orchard. and for a time all went merry as the proverbial marriage bell. The trees grew, and the owners prospered, and all was well in the land. But there came aday which is still a painful memory to everyone around Leamington—the "freeze-out." A merciless season ruined the peach crop and, with it, many a peach-grower. Hard-smitten as the rest, the Ellis family "went out o" peaches almost entirely, and for some years afterward concentrated their efforts on the production of early vegetables.

"After a while I secured a two-acre plot for myself," said Mr. Roy Ellis, "and went seriously into the flower business. I put up a couple of very small greenhouses and was quite successful. I specialized in carnations and ferns, and developed a fine trade in these."

Goes Into Vegetable Growing

The success of the venture ini flowers demonstrated to the young gardener the greater money possibilities of the early vegetable trade. Mr. Ellis went extensively into this brnch of the work, gradually omitting the floriculture, till no flowers were raised at all. Starting with the growing of cucumbers, he soon introduced tomatoes, and the increase of his output of these two vegetables was phenomenal. Additions to the original houses brought his greenhouse area up to almost three acres, and the owner conceived the scheme of ultilizing the houses entirely, absolutely neglecting field culture. "Since that notion struck me, I have stuck to the plan," he said. "I have done no outside growing, winter or summer, for for a number of years. I have only five acres of land."

Asked why he has gone into indoor growing entirely, Mr. Ellis said: "I went into the work in response to the great and growing demand for early vegetables, a demnd to which no one seemed inclined to cater. There was awaiting the grower a great market; all that was lacking was the man with the stuff. So in I went. Everythin gdidn't work like a charm, either, not by any means. For the first three years after going into the work on my own account I made nothing. The trouble was that I started absolutely without experience and with very little capital. The market was calling for early stuff; I didn't have it, nor the money to go ahead and grow it. You can see for yourself that it was rather a risky venture. Now I am successful, I like intensive work. It is interesting and clean, and you see results for your labor. This requires more skill and attention than outdoor gardening and much more capital and outlay are involved. Naturally the rate of profit must be high in order to compensate for these things. I would advise anyone who contemplates taking up the work to have sufficient capital and some experience."

CITY AND DISTRICT

HAPPENINGS HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS.

Y.W.C.A. Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Y. W.C.A. will be held on Friday evening, May 8th, at 8 o'clock. Miss Drummond, who has been secretary of the Y.W.C.A. in Toronto for a number of years, will give the address. The annual report will be submitted. The public are cordially invited to be present. Refreshments will be served.

Lindsay Gypsies Inspected.

Lindsay Post: Inspector Scarth, of the Canadian Immigration Department, Ottawa, arrived in town today and in company with High County Constable Thornbury visited the gypsy camp at Ops swing bridge.

A Long Train

Lindsay Warder: One engine drawing 68 cars, many of which were loaded, passed through town today en route for Port McNichol. This was an exceptionally long train to be handled by one engine.

Gun Club Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Gun Club, of which Mr. Tivey, of Ashburnham is a prominent member, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—L. Ball,
Vice-Pres.—W. M. Lang.
Captain—B. Cook.
Secretary—C. Wood.

Port Hope Cop Got Off.

Ex-Chief of Police Gummerson who was charged with assaulting a bailiff as the latter was serving a summons on him, was dismissed by the Police Magistrate. The Port Hope Guide naively says, about the case: "Edward Milne evidently was suffering from defective eyesight and hearing, because when only standing a short distance away he heard or saw nothing unusual."

New Market Regulations.

The City Council will in all probability be asked to consider suggestions from the Retail Merchants' Association for changes in the market conditions and amendments to the regulations. The association is opposed to the weighing of fowl and the placing of names on baskets which were introduced some time ago on recommendation of the Sanitary Inspector.

Local Capitalist Escaped.

That the rich, equally with the poor, sometimes strike hard luck, was demonstrated yesterday afternoon at the corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie street. A local capitalist was giving a work-out to a new car he recently purchased. At the corner designated, the axle broke, the wheel fell off and the car was stalled. Fortunately neither the capitalist nor his son, who were in the car, sustained any bodily injury. The "Duke" referred to, has our congratulations.

Port Hope Man Drowned.

Cobourg, May 6.—Mr. Judd Kennedy, and others were surprised to discover the body of a man floating in the lake a little distance east of the town. It was removed to McArthur's undertaking rooms, and afterwards discovered to be that of J.W. McCaffery, of Port Hope, who has been missing for some time, having disappeared on the 17th of March. Deceased leaves a wife residing in Port Hope and a daughter in Toronto. An inquest is being held by Coroner Elliott.

A Serious Runaway.

Yesterday afternoon a serious runaway accident occurred. The team, attached to a rig belonging to a George street wholesale grocery house took fright at the C.P.R. station and fled for —— a benign Providence only could tell where. However, the team crashed into a buggy, occupied by L. Florence, a furniture dealer, on Charlotte street, with the result that Florence was seriously injured. He was carried into his store and received attention from doctors, after which he was conveyed to the hospital in Comstock's ambulance. The crowd stopped the horses. The buggy, possibly, will be sold for matchwood.

Charlotte Street W.M.S.

At the annual meeting of Charlotte street church W.M.S., the election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. A. Parker.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. W. C. Switzer.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Joseph Walsh.
Rec.-Sec'y—Mrs. J. K. Moore, with Mrs. Thos. Cruikshank assistant.
Cor.-Sec'y—Mrs. Mary B. Lyle.
Treasurer—Mrs. Allum, with assistant, Mrs. Clegg.
Supt. of Systematic Giving—Mrs. W. C. Austin.
Pianist—Miss Lightfoot.
President of Olive Mission Band—Mrs. A. F. Brooks, with assistant, Mrs. James Lillico.

Mr. A. F. Bookhout was appointed Auditor.

Here is a Short Sharp Statement

IT SHOWS THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ARE NO FAITH CURE.

Patrice Cote had Kidney Disease—He Sent for Dodd's Kidney Pills Just To Try Them—They Made Him Well.

Petite Vallee, Gaspe Co., Que., May 6.—(Special.)— Patrice Cote, well known here, makes the following statement:

"For five months I suffered from Kidney Disease. I sent for two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills to try them. They made me well."

Mr. Cote's experience is similar to that of scores of others in their neighborhood. They had Kidney Disease, they tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and they found health. They have proved for themselves that no matter how far advanced the Kidney Disease is, the cure is the same—Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no faith cure; neither are they any cure-all. Thousands of sufferers have tried them who had little faith in them. They found the cure just the same.

Dodd's Kidney Pills simply cure the Kidneys. To be sure you hear of them curing Rheumatism, Dropsy, Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Gravel and other diseases but that is because these are all diseases of the Kidneys or caused by sick Kidneys. The natural way to cure them is to cure the Kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidneys.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW ON THE DIAL OF A CITY LIFE.

Lindsay barbers are going to have an early closing by-law passed

Lindsay's baseball club held an organization meeting last night.

Lindsay has given a grant of $300 towards the "Citizens" Band of that town.

The town water supply of Port Hope, still, according to the Guide, shows signs of infection.

There will be no canteen at Petawawa this year. There are still, however, hip pockets.

The Ottawa "Free Press" a Liberal organ, in recent issue, pays a strong tribute to Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., for West Peterborough.

Mayor Buller asks that house-cleaning be applied to the whole city. This might apply in respect to chickens on George street at 10 p.m.

At yesterday's police court, ex-local fireman Stevens was in the limelight, charged with creating a disturbance. He was allowed to go with a warning.

A sum of money has been found on George street, by P. C. Hayward, between Hunter and Simcoe streets. The property is at the police station and may be had when proof of ownership is made.

At a session of the County Police Court, before his honor Judge Edmison yesterday, George Taylor, of Chemong Village was fined $29.81 for tampering with the (to Indians) forbidden fruit.

Its a dollar to a cancelled postage stamp that Charley Carroll, whilst in Erie today seeing the ball game will unload a corner lot on some confiding Erie man.

It is doubtful whether any city of equal population to that of Peterborough can show, what is daily seen in the yard of Ald. Duffus' garage, from 14 to 21 automobiles, all of the same make, viz. Ford.

An umbrella mender, charged with having been drunk, at yesterday's police court, was asked by his worship, "How much money have you got?" The reorganizer of defunct umbrellas replied: "$2.00." The magistrate replied "That's just your fine."

Tenders for Clothing

Sealed tenders addressed "Ald. G. Walter Green, Chairman Fire, Water and Light Committee," and endorsed "Tender for Clothing," will be received up to 4 o'clock in the afternoon on Friday, May 15th, 1914, for uniforms for the firemen. Copies of specifications may be obtained from the Chief of the Department. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted

S. R. Armstrong,
Clerk.

Sporting Column

THE TIMES invites the use of this column by its readers who may wish to make any announcements or publish reports of sporting events.

A large number of local citizens took in the game in Erie to-day and the "Petes" will be encouraged by the lusty cheers of the loyal fans who took in the trip to the southern city to see the Blountmen in action.

The Times is now completing arrangements with one of the most competent baseball experts in the city to report the games this season, and our readers will be given the best possible service this summer.

While Manager Blount has given out no line-up for his opening team, it is generally thought around training quarters that the following nine will fill the diamond:

Creswell, p.; Ryberg, c.; Gorman, 1b; King, 2b; Price, s.s.; Byrne, 3b; Swartz, Blount and Fox, field.

The opening games in the various cities will be attended with fitting ceremonies. In Erie, where Curly Blount's squad play their first game, a procession headed by a band, will march to the park, and a gala day will mark the opening. Other cities are observing the occasion in a like manner.

This afternoon the Canadian League season will open according to schedule, when the following games will be staged:—

PETERBORO at Erie
Toronto at London
Ottawa at St. Thomas
Hamilton at Brantford.

As the Ball season for the Petes opens today at Erie, Pa., our poet got busy and handed us the following:

Each day the papers tell us
With the oft repeated line
"Hot fighting at Tampico"
And "Huerta won't resign."
We read of strikers fighting
And of soldiers raising cain
But the head we want to often see
Is, "The Petes have won again."

The Petes will be in Erie for four days—Thursday till Sunday. Monday they move to St. Thomas. Thursday they arrive home, and the citizens will be given an opportunity to see the team in action. The semi-half holiday declared by the Mayor should bring out the fans in large numbers. Keep next Thursday afternoon open, and follow the crowd to Riverside Park!

Yesterday afternoon the first game in the Canadian League for the season of 1914, was played at St. Thomas, when the Ottawa Senators visited that city, a day ahead of the schedule to play the opening fixture before H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught and Princess Patricia. This was the first professional baseball game Their Royalties have ever witnessed and the Duke has looked forward to the game with keen interest. The game stood tie at the end of twelve innings, no runs having been scored by either team.

Below will be found a list of the "Petes" games at home and away from home. Paste this in your hat for reference; it is brief, and will serve to keep you in touch with the movements of the team. For results of the games, see The Mornin Times each morning.

It is reported that the delay in the issuance of the order for the Provincial elections is due to the refusal of Hon. Adam Beck to follow Hon. W. J. Hanna. NO-TIP SENATORS GET POOR SERVICE

Lobby Started Against Bill in Upper House to abolish the Practice

SENATOR DAVIS' HAS TROUBLES

Before Now Has Had to Invoke Legal Aid to Recover Trousers.

Ottawa, May 7.—In the House of Commons restaurant are exceedingly indignant waiters at the legislation which has been introduced in the Senate to abolish tipping and have started a lobby amongst the Senators to kill the Bill at the third reading. The bill got the second reading yesterday. Senator Tom Davis, father of the bill, has begun to put his principles into practice. The result is that he is having difficulty to-day in getting his daily rasher of bacon and braces of eggs. The bill, if it ever reaches the Commons, will die slow death there, as members there think it impossible and impracticable.

Senator Davis a year or so ago sent his trousers to a local pressing and cleaning establishment. Upon a claim that he had not paid an earlier bill they held the trousers and the Senator was forced to enter action to recover them. The case was finally settled through the mediation of the local Magistrate. The Senator finally recovered his nether garments.

BECKER'S 2ND TRIAL NOW ON, COURTS BUSY SELECTING JURORS

Former Police Lieutenant Fails to Get Change of Venue --Selection of Jury Begun

New York, May 7.—Charles Becker, once a lieutenant in the New York Police Department, was yesterday on trial for the second time for the murder of Gambler Rosenthal, in July, 1912. Notwithstanding that the crime was committed nearly two years ago, public interest in the case appeared hardly less acute than at the first trial when Becker and the four gunmen were found guilty. They died in the electric chair, Becker was granted a new trial by a higher court.

At the outset of the proceedings today the defence attacked what it characterized as District Attorney Whitman's practice of "talking to the newspapers" to the detriment of their client's case. For this reason they ask for a change of venue. This the court denied, and the selection of the jury was begun.

New Home Treatment For Removing Hair.

(Modes of Today.)

The following formula is now almost universally used by beauty specialists for banishing hairy or fuzzy growths from the chin, lip or cheek: Get from a druggist a small original package of delatone and mix enough with water to cover the hairs not wanted. Apply and in about 2 or 3 minutes remove and with it comes every bit of hair. The skin should be washed following this treatment to remove the remaining delatone, otherwise you might be disappointed.

A FINE HOTEL

When the Canadian Pacific Railway erected the huge Hotel Royal Alexandra at Winnipeg in 1899, there were many who shook their heads, saying that the city was too small and the prospective growth of the West was not sufficient to warrant such a magnificent structure. Winnipeg at the time was the size of Calgary to-day. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the then newly elected president however opened the hotel amid most propitious circumstances declaring that the development of the West would far exceed even the most optimistic dreams of those who knew it best. ...

Sir Thomas' statement has not only been proven to be absolutely correct but the judgment of the C. P.R. directed by him has been shown to be faultless. Today several hundred artisans are rushing to completion an addition to the structure which when finished will make the building one half as large again. It is the desire of the company to open the new portion to the public on May 1, of this year. Everything points to this being accomplished.

The new portion will consist of 7 stories with 177 guest rooms and 129 baths. It will be fire proof throughout and, in that as well as in all of its other details, will conform with the older portions. It will rise 105 feet above the ground. It is of steel frame construction with floors of hollow tile and roof of cement. Buff pressed brick will form the exterior facing of the walls. This will be trimmed with native stone from Tyndall, Manitoba.

WHITE PLAGUE WAR PLANS ARE REVIEWED

Washington, May 7.—Progress of the campaign against the "White Plague" was reviewed to-day at the convention of the National Association for the prevention of tuberculosis. More than two thousand anti-tuberculosis agencies now are well established in the United States compared with 150 ten years ago, according to a report submitted. It was declared that at least a part of that movement had been stimulated by the Association.

Problems to be discussed during the two days sessions include the medical examination of employes, protection of school children against tubercular infection, and home precautions to guard against the disease.

CROP OF SCANDALS WEAKENS CHURCH IN RUSSIA

Country Swarms With Self-Appointed Saints, Healers, Blasphemers

St. Petersburg, May 7.—The trial of the "Okhta God's Mother" has served to concentrate once more Russian public opinion on the crisis through which the Orthodox Church is passing. The Okhata scandal is not by any means the only one of its kind. Orthodox Russia is swarming with self-appointed saints, miraculous healers, and blasphemers of every kind and the church itself is ailing from a partial dissolution of discipline and even morals.

Every day almost brings its crop of various scandals. At one time Russia is startled by a monk named Innocent, who proclaims himself to be John the Baptist, and gets an enormous following in the southwestern provinces, working miracles, curing cripples and preaching the impending end of the world.

Peasant Appears As "Virgin Mary."

At another time a simple charlatan named Brother Jacob crops up in the Tver diocese almost in the heart of Russia, and in association with a peasant woman, who proclaims herself as "The Virgin Mary," engaged in driving out devils from the sick and in preaching the most blasphemous doctrines. Then again the ecclesiastical authorities discover at the great Alexander Nevsky Lavra (monastery), near St. Petersburg a most terrible state of affairs, and the police have to intervene to cut short the immorality and crime.

Of course, the authorities are doing their best to fight these phenomena and restore the slackened discipline. Some of their measures in this direction are undoubtedly wise, but they lack homogeneousness and system, and leave the ground free for experiments of a more doubtful character.

It is certainly not conducive to the welfare of the church, but probably the reverse, when the bishop of Russia, for instance, issues a decree forbidding his clergy not only to smoke, but also to wear starched collars. His brother, the bishop of Vologda, goes one better and prohibits even the wearing of starched cuffs. Or what should we say when the bishop of Dvinsk forbids the clergy to belong to any co-operative society, and another punishes a priest for using such foreign words as "opposition," "protest?"

Barred Colored Skirts.

The other day the diocese of Tobolsk received a new bishop in the person of Father Barnabas, and in the very first sermon delivered to his flock he proclaimed that no woman should come into the church in a hat or in colored skirts or in a tight dress or stand near the men, and one of his first circulars to his clergy contained an injunction against smoking the wearing of silk church robes and against visiting kinematographs. A priest who, nevertheless, ventured to set his foot in a picture palace was degraded to the rank of a deacon and sent to a distant monastery where he was to perform divine service every day for a period of two months. This latter punishment called forth the protest of the entire clergy of the diocese, who lodged a complaint with the Holy Synod, arguing that the compulsory conduct of divine service was opposed to the morals of the church.

FISHERMEN OVER THE FALLS

His Oar Broke, and He Was Swept to Death—Waved Mute Farewell.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., May 6.—Richard Snyder, a fisherman, 28, whose home was at Chippewa, Ont., was swept to his death this afternoon. One of Snyders oars broke and his boat was carried down the river and went over the Horseshoe Falls. Snyder tried his best to make shore, guiding his craft with one oar but his efforts were wasted.

He was noticed by crews on two trolley cars on the Canadian side of the river, well filled with passengers who beheld the thrilling spectacle of a man swept to his heath over the falls. Eye-witnesses state that when Snyder saw his fate was inevitable he stopped his struggling against the current and stood up in the boat. Then he waved his hands giving mute expressions in his actions to a farewell message. A few moments later he took the awful plunge. That was the last seen of him.

Fragments of his boat later were picked up at the Maid of the Mist landing below the cataract.

BRITAIN THANKED BY UNITED STATES

For Aid in Getting American Refugees Out of the Danger Zone

London, May 7.—The warm thanks of the United States Government for the assistance rendered by the British naval officers in getting American refugees out of Tampico, Mexico, were conveyed to-day by Ambassador Page to Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey. The British cruiser Hermoine has been at Tampico for some time past. She had been instrumental in helping American refugees in leaving the city. On several occasions she sent her boats to the shore to bring Americans to safety in the harbor, conveying them to the cruiser herself or placing them on board merchant vessels which took them to American ports.

DOGS FEAST ON A NEW BORN CHILD

Polish Woman Arrested Following a Horrible Discovery.

Cochrane, Ont., May 7.—Two dogs were discovered late yesterday eating the body of a newly-born female child on some vacant land near the residence of Mrs. Cadabeck at the east end of the town. At the time of the discovery the animals had eaten both arms away. Constable Wilkinson was called to the scene, and as a result of his inquiries, Frances Chapeskia, a Polish woman, was placed under arrest. The accused woman woman, who is about 30 years of age, came to Cochrane on March 13 from Killaloo, and since that time has been employed at the Nipissing Coca Cola works. She made a confession to the police in which she stated that the child was born shortly after midnight on Monday at her place of employment. The child was still-born and she wrapped up the body in paper.

Cyclones did much damage in Grey township and in a small district north east of London.

The Duke and Princess of Connaught were given a royal welcome at Windsor yesterday.

Lifford, County Donegal, Ireland, May 7.—Although Donegal is listed by Canadian Home Rulers as a Home Rule county, it has a strong Ulster Volunteer regiment, under the command of the Earl of Leitrim, with headquarters at Raphoe. There are five battalions with an enrolment of 3,000. The other day a sudden emergency order was issued through dispatch riders on motorcycles and in a few hours no less than 2,444 effectives were at the appointed rendezvous. The regiment is well organised and equipped, although all the drills are watched by the Government police. Many of the men walk five or six miles to drill after the day's work, and then back again the same distance after dark, with constant danger of being "beaten up" on the way. One man, a Presbyterian of the grim kind, has to come seven miles and ferry over two rivers, but this does not deter him, though he has to labor in the fields till six o'clock, and return in the darkness.

Shortly after he began drilling, his own rowboat with which he crossed the first river, disappeared, and he has never got track of it to this day. Prior to the theft, supposed by Nationalists, who abound in the district this patriot occasionally missed a drill, but he has never been absent from one since. This is the stuff of which Ulster Imperialists are made.

Mexican Rebels Defeat Government Troops and Continue the Policy of Gathering Around the Capital and the Dictator's Forces

Washington, May 7.—Carranza's attitude towards mediation, which temporarily at least, has eliminated the Constitutionalist chief from general negotiations aimed at settlement of Mexico's ills, was declared to have been revealed to-day by his official report of a vigorous rebel military campaign marked by significant victories. His declination to submit his country's internal troubles to preliminaries of mediation is based in part at least on revel successes in a sweeping southward movement. Constitutionalist representatives said here to-day.

While Carranza parleyed with the South American envoys over details of their proposals, three powerful forces were hurled against Federal strongholds. His agents' reports says:

Defeat of 3,600 Federals at Penazcos, near San Luis Potosi, with the capture of 1,800 prisoners and quantities of arms anh ammunition.

Capture of Acaponela, Tep,e, 1,700 men surrendering; one million rounds of ammunition and quantities of arms taken.

Capture of field guns, artillery, and ammunition from fleeing column that evacuated Monterey.

After receipt of his chief's report, Minister Zubaran was emphatic in a forecast that within the next month the rebel armies would be investing Huerta's capital.

A CLEAN KITCHEN

Some Easy Rules For Keeping it Sanitary

In these days of applied domestic science, and when hygienic living is being emphasized, it behooves housekeepers to see that some simple rules for cleanliness, especially as regards the kitchen, are enforced.

Take the matter of the kitchen sink. It should be kept scrupulously clean, for drain pipes not in good condition breed disease. Flush the sink often with boiling water and soda, and if at any time the water fails to run off freely, use one of the vacuum pumps and remedy the stoppage immediately.

See that the hands are clean before touching cooking utensils.

Pots and pans need careful attention. Not only should they be carefully washed in soap and water, but they should be rinsed in scalding water and then wiped with clean cloths.

Too little attention is given by many housewives to the matter of dish cloths, dish mops and dish towels. These washing helps should themselves be washed after every meal and the dish mop and dish cloth should be scalded at least once a day.

Not only should all fruit be washed before it is used, but one should be sure that vegetables are clean. It is difficult to be sure that such vegetables as lettuce, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower and cabbage are clean unless they stand in salted water for some time. The salt water will draw out the insects lodged in the vegetable.

Pay careful attention to the refrigerator, within and without. Use plenty of hot water and soap in washing the refrigerator; flush the drainage pipe thoroughly and scald out the drip pan daily. Slime in the drip pan means disease.

In putting away food, put it away in the right way. Do not leave soups or other warm vegetables closely covered. If you do, they will sour. Use the screen tops when close-fitting ones are not practical.

Do not leave bottles or pitchers of milk uncovered. If you have not the celluloid, metal or paper tops, put an inverted glass or jelly tumbler over the bottle.

To aid in keeping the air of the refrigerator clean, keep a saucer of powdered charcoal on one of the shelves.

Make it a rule if anything is spilled in the refrigerator to clean it up at once.

BY RADIUM TO THE MOON

Around the World in a Very Few Minutes

M. Ernest Archdeacon, writing of the marvellous progress made in aerial science, expresses the conviction that in a few centuries aerial navigation as we know it will have become as out of date as the horse is to-day as a means of transport. It appears unlikely that flying machines will ever considerably exceed 125 miles an hour. At this rate we should take 200 hours, or a little more than eight days, to make a circuit of the earth. It is evident that we shall soon discover something infinitely better than the aeroplane. It is certain that our children, he says, will girdle the earth (25,000 miles) in a time of which we at present can have no idea. One sees at once what a fantastic revolution this will cause in the world's commerce. All the peoples of the earth will then form a sole and single nation.

"According to the mathematical calculations of M. Esnault Pelterie," says Archdeacon, "the new means of interplanetary transport will be Jules Verne's cannonball transformed into a continuously self-propelling rocket. The problem is to give this rocket a self-contained velocity of 11 kilometres (nearly seven miles) a second, which would be sufficient for it to leave the circle of terrestrial attraction. At this velocity our planet could be girdled in 66 minutes, and the journey from Paris to Nice covered in under two minutes.

"There will be no more wars, for our needs will be reduced to a minimum. Esperanto will have become useless, for we shall communicate by the transmission of thought through space. To terminate my anticipation I am convinced that in a certain number of centuries the inhabitants of all the planets will have made acquaintance with one another, and I forsee the day when a world's interplanetary congress will be held."

UNABLE TO SPEAK ENGLISH

Foreigners Who Have Lived Years in London Still Without the Key

That a man should live 27 years in London and still be unable to speak English seems astonishing, yet it was an admission made by an Italian tradesman in a London police court the other day. The incident throws an interesting sidelight on the number of aliens resident in the capital of the empire, and it is estimated of these foreigners no fewer than 5,000 cannot speak English. Aliens, for the most part, affect a particular district to live in—Chinamen for instance inhabit Limehouse; Italians, Saffron Hill; French, Soho; and Germans, Tottenham Court road. As they dwell among their own countrymen, many of them find they can jog along successfully without being called on to master the intricacies of English grammar. For example there is an Italian greengrocer in Newington, who is doing an extensive business, and yet can only say "Yes" and "No" in the English tongue. He has conducted his business there for nearly ten years, but a remarkable fact, however, is that he understands thoroughly the value of English money. A prominent police officer recently testified that in the east end, Saffron Hill, and other parts of London there are practically foreign towns. As a rule, the people there engage in trade with others of their own nationality. They, therefore, find it unnecessary to trouble to learn more than a few stray words. When a more liberal knowledge of English is demanded, they obtain the services of an interpreter, and there are hundreds of men who will act in that capacity, in the poorer districts, for a few coppers.

Postman's Mileage

A postman named Mr. T. Anderson who has had charge of deliveries in the rural area of Carlisle, gave some statistics of the ground he had covered in acknowledging a presentation made to him on his retirement. Mr. Anderson stated that during his thirty-six years' service he had walked a total distance of 183,600 miles. His periodical crossing of the wide bridge spanning the Eden at Carlisle had amounted in the aggregate to 6,000 miles.

Tips in Paris

A painstaking statistician has estimated that tips of one kind and another paid daily in Paris to waiters, janitors, cabmen, and the thousand and one others whose income is largely derived from this source amount to $41,500 a day. The grand total of all the tips given in France is placed at $64,000,000 a year.

Cottage and Bath

Four cottages erected at Little Gaddesden, Herts, at a cost of $300 each, will contain hot and cold baths. They are to be constructed of wood and wood pulp, roofed with thatch, and mounted on wheels.

Cheap Living

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus M. Wood, who celebrated their thirty-second wedding anniversary in their cottage at Webster, Massachusetts, for years subsisted comfortably, they declared, on a daily outlay of five cents per head.

Stockholm's Telephones

In Stockholm there are about 80,000 telephone subscribers for a population of a little over 400,000, or one for every five inhabitants.

A Bird Pledge

The children in Chicago schools are asked to sign a bird pledge, in which they promise not to rob the nest or wear the plumage of birds.

FAT BUT NOT LAZY

Enormous Bus Driver Works Hard Every Day of the Year

Sam Irwin of Three Rivers, Mich., is perhaps the largest man on this continent who is engaged in active work. He is 44 years of age, 6 feet tall, and weighs 480 pounds. He drives a transfer 'bus and makes on an average of 14 trains a day every day of the year. He also makes about 30 private calls daily. During 18 years he has not lost a day because of sickness or for any other reason.

SAM IRWIN BESIDE HIS 'BUS

His waist measurement is 70 inches, chest 67 inches, thigh 32 inches, biceps 22 inches. He wears a No. 13 shoe and a No. 10 hat.

USE THE "TRIMMINGS"

Beef Tenderloin—Part of it should go in the soup kettle. The lean meat will help out a vegetable casserole dish for dinner.

French Chops—To eight "trimmings" add one pound of meat from neck. Serve with dumplings. A fine dinner dish for five people.

Mutton Stew, Breast—The "trimmings" for this will make mutton broth with barley. The famous home diet of Scotland.

Roast Beef, Last Cut—The "trimmings" can be served as short ribs, or stripped from the bone and run through the meat grinder and made into Hamburg steak or croquettes.

Roast Beef, Chuck—"Trimmings" make a splendid beef casserole.

Pork Roast and Chops—Pork "trimmings" can be put through the grinder and used with veal for veal loaf. If very fat, part of the fat can be tried out for lard, and the remainder can be put into the "soap fat" kettle.

LORD DURHAM PLANNED BETTER THAN HE KNEW

"He Built an Empire," Says Mr G. G. S. Lindsey in an Address

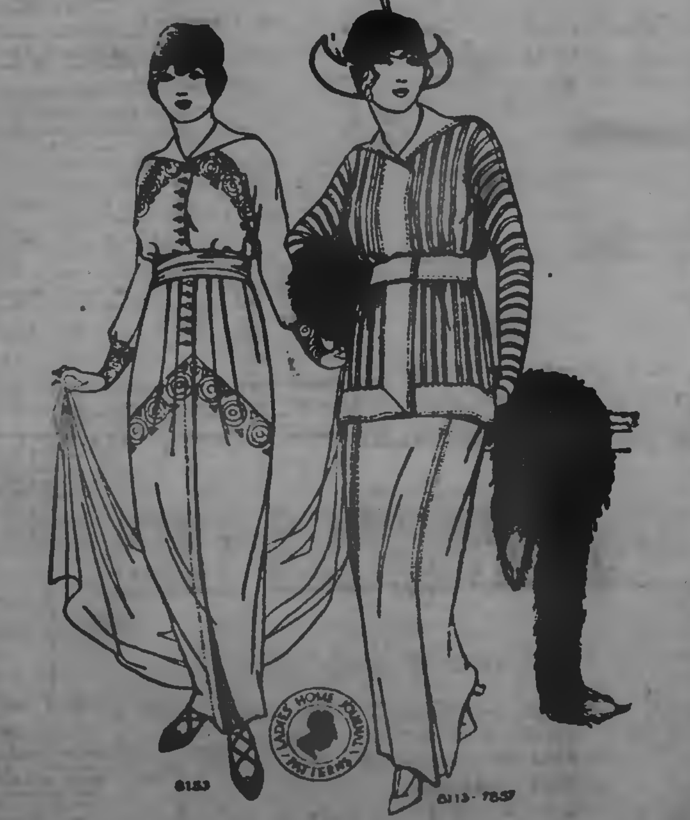
Large credit was given to Lo Durham, who reported on the co ditions in Canada that led to Rebellion of 1837, for the present measure of self-government enj by Canada, by Mr. G. G. S. Lind who reviewed the development of sponsible government in Canada the passing of the Constitutional in 1791 to the present day. It was the policy of allowing the various Dominions to govern themselves, that was the strength of the British Empire.

"The British Empire is built up on the foundation rock of self-government and lives," said Mr. Lindsey. "The Roman Empire was built upon the basis of centralization, and though it ruled the whole world, it died. Gone are all the older empires of the world, and for the same reason. Canada blazed the trail. Durham's doct was a recognition based on knowledge inspired by sympathy that the auth ity of the mother country rested other than material ascendancy. appealed to the sentiments and ideals of men, and laid four-square to all the winds that blow the foundations not only of a great Dominion, which he did not live to see, but also of that passionate loyalty which served E land well in recent years of warfare and peril. 'That Government alone is strong which has the hearts of the people,' said Fox. 'Canada will one day do justice to my memory,' were the dying words of Durham. The day has surely come, and the hearts of Canadians, strong in his faith ever keep his memory green. and large as were his plans, he better than he knew. He buil empire."

DEFECTIVE CHILDREN

Social Worker Deplores the Lack of Training in Many Homes

"The Cry of the Children" was the subject treated by Mrs. Wm. Duncan of the Children's Shelter, Toronto. "A babe," she says, "is a bundle of potentialities and possibilities, and should have the right to be well born, the right to live and the right to live under as favorable conditions as it is possible to obtain. It may be the chattel of the parent, but it is also the asset of the State." She told of some of the cases that have come under her care. Five thousand children were cared for in one year at the shelter. Feeble-mindedness was increasing at such a rate as to appal the social worker and those engaged in trying to better conditions. Girls were brought to the shelter decked in jewelry, but with a paucity of underclothing. They frequently did not know how to comb their hair, they could not sweep, or wash a dish so neglected had been their home life and training.



CHINESE INFLUENCE NOTED IN TRIMMINGS FOR AFTERNOON GOWNS

If you would be strictly up to the mark tack an aigret or bit of ostrich feather to the back of the bodice of your evening gown and let it wave gracefully above your head. Outline your tunic or the hem of your skirt with aigrets or bits of ostrich. They are doing this in Paris. It is promised for the coming season that feathers of this description will take the place of fur for trimming purposes. Marabout aigrets dyed to match the frock and tiny ostrich tips will trim the skirt as well as the chapeau.

For afternoon frocks borders and motifs wrought out in wooden beads or colored pearls will be popular. These are curious, but if wisely chosen are very chic and effective.

Dark tints are more or less favored for day-time wear.

One of the most favored silks is taffeta, in a quality as soft and supple as the old fashioned taffeta was stiff and hard.

No 8153 is developed in a mossy green taffeta trimmed with a conventional border design worked out in silver thread and colored wooden beads. This design is well suited to a border trimming or a bordered material.

To copy this frock in size 36 it requires 4⅞ yards of 36 inch material.

The costume shown in 8113-7857 is a Russian design made up in taffetas, striped and plain.

This design may be made in size 36 with 3 yards of 36 inch material for the blouse (8113) and 3¼ yards of 36 inch material for the skirt (7857).

No. 8153—sizes 34 to 46.
No. 8113—sizes 34 to 44.
No. 7857—sizes 22 to 30.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

Queen Eleanor of Bulgaria has postponed her visit to America until the Mexican trouble is settled—or indefinitely.

With hundreds of indignant agitators on his trail, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is finding out that being a rich man's son often has its disadvantages.

M. Caillaux and a political enemy fought a duel near Paris. One fired in the air, and the other made two misses. Query—Who got the satisfaction?

The Ontario Government is said to have fixed the next election for the middle of the hot season. Sly trick this, when the cry of the Opposition will be "abolish the bar."

Winnipeg clergymen have decided to invite Billy Sunday, the ex-ball player evangelist, to campaign there. If Sunday accepts he should go South and start training right away.

The tour of this continent by Cyril Maude, which has just ended, was a huge success in every way. This is gratifying to note, since the plays presented were all such as could offend not even the most exacting. On the stage, even yet, decency is the best policy.

Ferdinand or Savoff

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has succeeded in securing the impeachment of Gen. Savoff, the commander of the army that so swiftly effected the conquest of Thrace all the way from Adrianople to the Marmora. He is to be tried for high treason on account of his attitude during the second Balkan war. The accusation betrays the vindictiveness and effrontery of the King. Outside the court before which he sends the gallant general there is a greater court, the Bulgarian people, that will decide the real question, which is simply this—whether Ferdinand, who made the war on Greece and Servia, or Savoff, who refused to make that war, shall be punished for the humiliating defeat and loss which the unjustifiable conflict brought upon Bulgaria. That is the actual issue, strange as it may seem, which engages the attention of the people, and on which the popular verdict will be given. For everybody sees through the effort of the court clique and its master to make Savoff a scapegoat for the crime of the King.

Do Long Breaths Hurt?

DANGEROUS PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGINS THIS WAY. ...

Speediest Cure is Nerviline.

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs!

Probably got overheated—cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy.

Pleurisy is far too serious to neglect a single instant.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I thought I had pneumonia. I always carry Nerviline in my grip and at a destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

Confirmed at Autopsy

The infallibility of typhoid vaccination as a preventive has received confirmation from an unusual New York case. A member of the coast artillery recently died of an illness diagnosed as typhoid. As he had previously been inoculated, his death attracted much attention. The anti-vaccinationists, who extend their opposition to all serums, made much of the case. They cited it in contradiction of last year's army records that show but two typhoid cases, in both of which inoculation had been doubtful.

A post-mortem examination obtained with difficulty, showed that the New York private was not a victim of typhoid. The autopsy revealed an unusual vegetation in the heart which has caused the symptoms closely akin to those of typhoid. The error was purely one of diagnosis by the attending physician. The value of anti-typhoid vaccination remains unshaken. The incident illustrates, moreover, the duty of relatives to allow an autopsy when the interests of science demand it.

CITY SOLICITOR REPLIES.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Dear Sir:—Under the heading of "The People's Own" an editorial is written in your paper in which the question is raised as to whether the Solicitor for the City of Peterborough could stand as a candidate for Parliament, and the question is raised as to whether it would be a fair thing for the Solicitor representing a municipal Corporation to become a candidate for Parliamentary honors. As the correspondent who made the inquiry evidently had in mind the fact that it would be a chance to take an objection being raised to my name if the Liberals were so disposed to nominate me as a candidate for the Legislature, I feel that I have a right to reply to that editorial.

I am Solicitor for the City of Peterborough, and as such I am willing to admit that my interests to some extent are the interests of the City of Peterborough, but you must remember that Mr. Peck is the Solicitor for the Townships of North Monaghan and Otonabee, and he is the Solicitor for them in their action against the City to compel the city to discontinue the contamination of the waters of the Otonabee, and yet I have not yet heard it suggested that Mr. Peck has been influenced in his Parliamentary duties to the injury and loss of the City of Peterborough. It seems to me that the thing is as broad as it is long and if it is suggested that the Solicitor for the City of Peterborough could not watch the interests of the rest of the riding, then the same thing it appears to me, would apply to Mr. Peck.

I remain Yours truly
G. N. Gordon.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

The Literary Bee.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

"I THINK," said Mary, "that I really should be more literary. What do you think, Peter?"

"You mean write poems?" I queried dubiously.

"Not exactly," said Mary vaguely. "Papers and things. I think it would be great fun."

"Sounds a little aimless," said I.

"Oh, dear, Peter," exclaimed Mary illogically. "You never get what I mean immediately. I'm going to join a club."

"Hum!" said I with increasing doubtfulness of tone, for Mary already belongs to several clubs and I get my worst dinners on club nights. I couldn't conscientiously look overjoyed at the prospect of adding another cold-meat night to the menu and yet I wanted to be perfectly fair and generous.

"What sort of club?" I ventured.

"Literary," said Mary decidedly. "They have wonderful meetings once a week and papers and discussions and it is truly very instructive. I really feel that it is my duty to know a little more about the literature of the world, don't you, Peter?"

"Well, I can't say I feel the need strongly," I said, "but do as you please, Mary."

What "Pretty" Means.

"They had a cycle of meetings that were very interesting," said Mary timidly, "spring—summer—autumn and winter and read poetical references to the seasons and had appropriate music. Isn't it wonderful, Peter?"

It surely is—wonderful what women fuss about. I marvel at some suburban conceptions of what is literary and what is not. Imagine a pretty, anemic discussion of the seasons passing for a literary afternoon. I'm afraid I smiled. I hate that sense of prettiness that guides a woman's judgment. It vitiates her taste for good books and good music.

Wo[illegible] pretty books and pretty plays [illegible] and "pretty" is merely in [illegible] a synonym for too much sentiment and in my mind an antonym for strength. The big virile things get [illegible] the average woman merely because of that feminine sense of prettiness that blinds her with its sickly, emotional charm.

Mary joined the literary club, another cold-meat night crept into the menu and, in course of time, Mary wrote a paper.

I shan't forget the night that she began it. I took up my newspaper and was conscious of a most tremendous energy on the part of my little wife. She was bustling about opening the drawers of a desk, getting ready pens and ink and paper, humming happily and making altogether a very pretty noise and stir. I knew very well that she wanted me to look at her and make some comment. Therefore I did.

"Well," said I, smiling, "what's up, dearie? You're the busiest person by far in the family."

Encyclopedic Essays.

"Well, Peter," glowed Mary in one of those delicious bursts of naivete that make a man smile, "I just hoped you'd realize how very busy I am and you have. I'm about to write a paper."

"Dear, dear," I mocked. "What on?"

"Sidney Lanier," said Mary very proudly.

"A critical analysis of his work, I suppose?" I ventured.

"Oh," said Mary with vague airiness, "likely it will run into that."

Whereupon she hauled forth various books and encyclopedias and went to work with a vim, scratching busily until past 11.

Mary read her article, was featured in headlines in the daily paper, and advised to take up literature immediately as a profession. This, I understand, is the invariable procedure in a literary club. A great deal of incurable fiction fever springs up out of an encyclopedic essay read before a literary club.

Mary was so delighted at the way she had improved her mind that she talked of it for days. A month later I asked her in a spirit of good-humored malice just how much of her article she remembered.

"Well, Peter," she confessed, "I—I don't remember much, and that's a fact. To tell you the truth, I've forgotten most of it. You see, I just copied great chunks out of the encyclopedia, and really it was most convenient, for I don't have to remember it. It's there any time I want to read it."

The ways of a woman's literary club are many and devious.

HARD WORK SECRET OF SUCCESS IN MUSIC

Bertha Shalek

Helen Stanley

"Talent Backed by Will Power Wins," Say Noted Prima Donnas

Bertha Shalek's Advice to Students.

Keep alert and watchful for opportunity.
A glorious voice deserves a strong body.
Eat simply; drink nothing stronger than pure water.
Eat good food. The body must be well nourished.
Rich foods are not for the young singer.
Get plenty of sleep when you need sleep.
Be happy and cheerful and calm.
Fretting and worry act directly on the vocal cords.
Be willing to see the "other fellow" get ahead.
Don't try to make all see things as you do.

Helen Stanley's Singing Creed.

I believe in temperament—but not in temper.
Keep the body in harmony to retain your voice.
Try always to strike chords in your daily life.
I believe in tuneful thoughts as well as tuneful song.
I believe in looking for good in your neighbor.
We shall be accountable only for our own shortcomings.
Keep so busy that there is no time for mischief.
Do the best you can all the time.
Look ahead, not back. Hope instead of regret.
Try again and again when you don't succeed.

By ELEANOR AMES

LAZINESS and singing success have nothing in common, according to Helen Stanley and Bertha Shalek, both of whom have won their laurels in the operatic world through hard work and a never-faltering belief in their right to succeed.

An interview duet is always interesting, for it adds the spice of two personalities to the "lead" of one interrogator.

"No girl has the right to expect fame and fortune unless she is willing to work for it," declared Miss Shalek.

"Hard work and determination are the two best aids any girl can bring into her professional life," announced Miss Stanley.

"Music is a jealous art," said Miss Shalek. "It shares energy with nothing else. When a girl is sure she has a voice she wants to determine whether she is willing to give up everything in the making of that voice—whether she would rather be a singer than to be anything else in all the world, whether she would ever hesitate at any sacrifice of time or pleasure or comfort when it came to an issue in which her art was involved."

"Girls who want to succeed in any profession must learn to take themselves seriously," came from Miss Stanley. "By that I don't mean that they should cultivate a lot of selfish eccentricities and become boresome nuisances because they are 'wedded to their art,' but I mean that they should realise that they are the makers of their own fates. 'Pull,' influence, whatever help you may receive will be thrown away unless one is a living example of appreciation of one's own talent. Genius so great that it will increase by its own momentum is so rare we almost never find it.

"A young girl told me the other day that 'she simply could not and would not plod.' 'Then,' said I, 'you need never expect to be a great singer, for all great singers have the capacity for plodding.

"And speaking of plodders, if they are made of the right stuff I think they nearly always reap their reward. I know a woman who worked for 10 years in a little general store in a small town. She was really the backbone of the business. I wondered why with her ability she remained in such a place. But she always said she was investing experience, and that her time for greater endeavor had not come. Frankly, I felt or feared that it never would come, but, when the proprietors of a leading factory wanted a welfare manager, they chose the plodder instead of the many other brilliant women who had applied for the position. They felt that she had accomplished so much in running a complex business in a peculiar community and had been so faithful and competent in the face of many discouragements they would give her the chance to try her luck in bigger fields. Plodding means keeping everlastingly at it. Which is the secret of accomplishment."

Miss Shalek nodded her plumes in hearty agreement.

"And plod pleasantly," she added. "As long as it is the truest fact in the world that we all have to work, why not work in the happiest spirit. Why not make ourselves love our work and make others love us for the love we have in our hearts? Is that complex? What I mean is that we none of us have genius enough to give us the right to make others uncomfortable or unhappy. Many singers are terribly one-sided individuals. Just because you are a singer is no reason why you cannot also be an intelligent human being. I have small patience with the 'eccentricities of genius.'"

"Nor I either," chimed in Miss Stanley. "Why should the possession of a voice give any one the right to tramp rough shod over the rest of the world? Let the sweetness of your singing tones set the standard of harmony for your entire life. If we all made that determination what a glorious world this would be!"

During the course of the interview Miss Shalek spoke of opportunity.

"Did you ever think how small are the hinges upon which the door of chance swings open?" she asked. "My own life illustrates it. I was born in Bohemia, and went to New York when a baby. My earliest recollection is a desire to 'make music.' I was a child prodigy as a violinist. I never thought of singing. One day when I was in my teens I went to the Metropolitan Opera House and sat next a woman who commented on the opera. Eager to discuss music, I listened and talked. She asked me if I sung. I replied with some pride that I was a violinist.

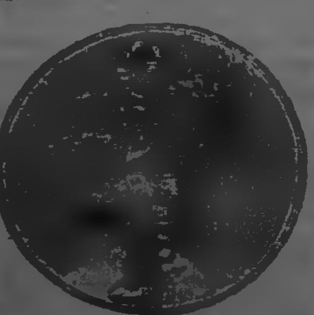
"'Then be a singer, too,' she said. 'Your speaking voice tells me you can sing.' That woman was Elenore Broadfoot, now the Countess de Cisneros. She set me thinking. I began to study singing. My voice was first a contralto, but it grew higher and developed into a dramatic soprano. When I speak about the way to succeed I have experience to back me up. I would not ask a girl to work any harder than I have done myself."

"Nor would I," said Miss Stanley.

Real Stories in Everyday Smells

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

AND now they're all talking about smells. Rudyard Kipling started the talk, when he began to say things about the smell of wood smoke and how it made him feel. And so, after the ancient fashion of the world and the people who live in it, we're all sitting around the fire and telling what smells we like and what smells we hate and what smells make us think of.

There's nothing in the world that sticks so close to the memory as a smell. I wonder if it's because the nerves of smell are the closest of all to the brain.

The more highly cultivated we are, the less we seem to know about smells.

Primitive people are very much like dogs. I've seen an Indian trace a man through the thicket by the smell he left behind him, and negroes can almost always tell which is your hat or your own particular pair of gloves, even if they have never seen either of those particular articles before, just so long as they know you and the peculiar perfume you most elect to fancy.

What do I like best in the way of smells?

First of all, lilacs, the old-fashioned kind, thick and purple and dewy and fragrant. I never smell a bunch of lilacs without feeling as if I were 10 years old in a gingham frock with my hair braided down my back.

Odors of Nature.

That's because I always took the first bunch of lilacs to the school teacher, and was very proud of it.

And then I love lilies-of-the-valley and the way they smell. It's always a surprise—the perfume of the delicate little things.

You think it is going to be faint and delicate like the perfume of a lily, and, lo, it's spiced and piquant.

And then how about the smell of wood, just kindling into flame; and don't you love the perfume from burning leaves, early in the spring or late in the fall, out in the garden when the sun's going down and all the world seems to be turning over and giving a sigh of content?

And the sea, the salt, salt sea, why, half the glory of it is in the whiff you get before you even see it. Shut your eyes now and there it is, blue and cool and flecked with lacy white, a-dance along the sandy shore.

The cities have their smells, each one a different odor.

Chicago smells of smoke; New Orleans smells of molasses; San Francisco smells of flowers and fruit and of tall eucalyptus and its oil. Los Angeles smells of roses and violets—and of petroleum.

Pittsburgh smells of coal; Washington smells of lilies and of melting asphalt—and of moth balls.

In a Great City.

New York? Oh, New York smells—of money. All sorts of money, paper and silver and gold, but always money, always money. Sh—I can fairly hear it—smelling—can't you?

And then there are the ferryboats, and police courts and hospitals, [illegible] with a separate and distinct smell of its own.

I sat next to some one from a hospital at a concert the other day and all of the singing of the sweet violins was of a sudden hushed to me, and all I heard was the weird, monotonous chant the blood makes surging in the ears—when the surgeon nods to the assistant and says, "She's going under," and you're afraid they'll think you're farther "under" than you are and will begin to work before you can speak.

How full it is of sensation, this world of ours and the strange, subtle, complicated life in it.

I knew a burglar once who was going to kill a woman that screamed when she looked up and saw him in the room.

"But she had a bottle of camphor in her hand when she saw me," said the burglar, "and the scent of that camphor kind of came over me, and I couldn't do it.

"My mother had headache a good deal and when I climbed into her lap I used to get a whiff of camphor, and when I smelled it again that night—I couldn't strike, that's all."

In and out, back and forth, up and down, wreathes the shifting shuttle of human destiny. How many strange threads are woven in it—after all.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Overhaul Your Habits If Your Eyelids Puff

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

THE schoolboy's copy-book quotation, about the bullfrog who envied the bull and puffed and puffed and puffed himself up until he exploded, has a lesson in it for everybody with puffy eyelids.

Alice in Wonderland, when she puffed herself up as high as the table in the underground cavern, where she met the mouse, did so unconsciously. She was not like the vain bullfrog.

Puffiness under the eyes is usually of the Alice in Wonderland type. No matter how wilful you may be, you cannot voluntarily, at your own sweet pleasure, puff your eyelids.

The puffy, bloated appearance beneath your eyeball comes willy-nilly, like a thief in the night. True enough, it is due to definite physiological causes, but these come on silently and insidiously, independent of your own control.

What, then, may be justly blamed for this condition? Why do some, free of all serious ailments, have puffy eyelids, while others, with malignant maladies, lack this "oedema" of the optic cups?

When watery fluids issue forth from the human vermilion streams and the straw-colored lymph channels of the body into the adjacent, soft tissue, these textiles become boggy, puffy and swollen.

Suppose the analogy, which you often see, of a garden hose broken and leaky. Over the leak there is tied a piece of linen, a handkerchief, or a rubber balloon. It is tied above and below the leak.

Why Eyelids Puff.

What happens? Why, the water which bubbles forth wells into the bandage. It swells and puffs up.

Exactly the same thing happens in the eyelids and below the eyes, partly for this reason and partly for others. It is not due so often to a leak in the veins and arteries as it is to various other physiological disturbances.

If the blood and lymph become thinned by disease; if the tissues, outside of and adjacent to the vital fluid, become saturated with salt; if the blood pressure is too high; if the heart pumps too rapidly; if you receive a blow in the eye, the lower part of the eye and lids may become puffed.

Overeating, overdrinking and undersleeping are among the iniquities that predispose you to puffy eyes.

Waterlogged eyelids are also due to "black eyes" and bruises. The lymph and serum, which drain away from the injured structures, collect in the lower part of the eye socket. Thence they filter into the flabby, lower eyelid.

The Best Cure.

Bright's disease of the kidneys, diabetes or the sugar sickness, pressure in the eyeballs, internal eye troubles, anemia and other blood disorders, overexertion, heart infirmities, fat-making victuals and certain brain troubles all contribute at times in causing puffy lids.

It must be plain from all this that to avoid the ills of puffy lids, all you need do is to prevent the distempers which produce that condition.

Perhaps this is not such a simple matter. Indeed, even the skilled physician himself may discover the presence of a hidden malady by the observation of puffiness under the eyes!

Be this as it may, as soon as this puffiness is noted, a complete overhauling of the internal textures, as well as an all-around change of habits, will be necessary.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Miss Annie Laurie:

I live in the country and have an unknown correspondent. We have corresponded for about two years, but have never met. He is a traveling salesman, and when convenient he wishes to stop off at my home town and meet me there.

How should I entertain him?

COUNTRY GIRL.

WELL, little Country Girl, what in the world am I going to tell you?

How did you become acquainted with your "unknown correspondent"? What do you know about him? Are you sure he is a single man?

There are a good many men in the world who amuse themselves by writing letters to girls they do not know.

Some of these men are fools—some are just plain men with too much time on their hands—some are lonely fellows who are trying to find a sweetheart and really trying honestly—and some are scoundrels who have gone half-crazy on the girl question and who can't keep up flirtations enough with girls they do know.

Which one of these is your "unknown correspondent"?

There's just one thing for you to do to entertain him if you really insist upon seeing him when he stops off at your town.

Ask him out to your house—oh, of course you don't want to do that.

Your mother will object, your father "won't understand," and your brothers will make it so disagreeable for him that you'll wish you had never heard of him.

Nevertheless, that is the one thing and the only thing that you can do and be sure of keeping his respect—and your own.

Besides, he'll never know a thing about you—really—until he sees you in your own home among your own people.

And you'll never know a thing about him—really—until you sit down at the table with him in your own home and see how he looks beside your father, and what he acts like when your brother is looking at him.

But no slipping out to meet him somewhere, no secret rendezvous—from such things as these can come to you nothing but misery and despair; keep away from them as you'd keep away from a coiling rattlesnake.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

HERE are two recipes for serving fresh strawberries, both of which have stood the test of time:

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE.

It has been said the delights of this dish cannot be described save in the song of a poet.

Remember, nothing but the real biscuit crust makes the genuine shortcake, and that all substitutes are shams and delusions.

Into two cups of flour sift three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. To this add three tablespoonfuls each of butter and lard and chop it with a silver knife till it is thoroughly blended. Add a cup of milk. Mix it all thoroughly and divide in halves. Put each half in a buttered round cake tin and pat into place with a floured hand. Bake 12 minutes in a hot oven. Separate the upper and lower portions of each cake with a silver fork—the use of a knife is an epicurean crime—butter generously and spread with berries which have previously been hulled, crushed, sugared and left standing for several hours. Alternate with berries and biscuit crust, and pour the remainder of the berries and juice over the completed cake, top with whole berries and serve with whipped cream.

STRAWBERRY WHIP.

Two cups of strawberries, one cup powdered sugar, tablespoonful lemon juice, whites of two eggs, fourth of teaspoonful salt.

Crush the berries and add to them the sugar and lemon. Beat the whites of the eggs and the salt till the eggs are a froth and add the berries, beating constantly. Serve with custard or whipped cream in frappe glasses with a whole berry topping the cream.

WOMEN ARE PROVING THE EQUALS OF MEN

Prof. Earl Barnes Gives a Reason For Falling off in Marriages

"The man with no social hunger is dead," said Prof Earl Barnes, Toronto, speaking on the subject of "Family Life as a Career." The home is the centre of organized activity. Society will go backward or forward according to the number of good homes in its midst. The home has not made the progress it should because it has not given woman her proper place. The ancients believed that women were part devil, and the monks took vows to avoid even gazing on a woman. In later times women have come out of their seclusion, and the old superstitions have been cast away. The reason so many young women do not marry is that women are proving themselves equal to earning a good living, and hesitate to enter into a life less varied in its interests. Another reason is the difference between the men she meets in her social life and those in her business life. She becomes dissatisfied with the man "back home." Men, on the other hand, are demanding that the woman they marry shall be of the same race, creed, social position, etc., and it is difficult to fill his requirements. A marriage for political reasons, or for any other secular reason, is a failure, and the family life proves it.

SUBSTITUTES FOR MEAT

A Subject Connected With the Cost of Living

There are many persons, perhaps, an increasing proportion of thoughtful people, who eat no flesh meat when they can get a vegetable diet that comes up to their ideal of life-sustaining capacity. Under ordinary economic conditions the number of out and-out vegetarians has always increased slowly, and a long time must elapse before human beings cease to be more or less carnivorous. But the present economic conditions, so far as food products are concerned, are very extraordinary, and it is a matter of the most profound practical importance to know what other substances may safely be used as substitutes for or supplementary to flesh meat as part of the dietary of adolescent or adult human beings.

Assuming that the use of meat in good condition and in moderation is defensible in theory as well as satisfactory in practice, it is necessary to know which of its essential elements are assimilated by the body when taken into it as food, in order to ascertain what vegetables contain the same elements to be in like manner assimilated. The elements are proteids, fats, and carbo-hydrates. The fats and carbo-hydrates are easily disposed of in this connection, because vegetable oils may readily be made to serve the same purpose as animal fats, that of fuel to keep up the animal heat of the body. Sugar may be freely used with the same object in view, perhaps all the more effectively if it is left flavored by the taste of the maple tree or the sugar cane. Many fruits in their natural condition contain sugar, and very many of them are best preserved by being cooked with sugar before being put up in vessels impenetrable by atmospheric air. Starch is abundant in such vegetable products as rice, Indian corn, and potatoes.

The most interesting, if not the most essential elements in food products are the "proteids," which, besides the oxygen, carbon, and hydrogen of the fats and carbo-hydrates, contain nitrogen, which is indispensable to the formation of blood, muscles, tendons, and nerves, and to the production of energy. Fortunately proteids occur in great abundance in both animal and the vegetable kingdom, and as animals derive their proteids from vegetable sources it is fair to ask why human beings should not obtain them directly from vegetables instead of getting them at second-hand from animals slaughtered for food consumption. The vegetables containing the largest percentage of nitrogenous matter are the leguminous plants, the most important of which are peas and beans, but wheat contains it in the form of gluten, which serves more than one useful purpose besides the making good the waste of muscular tissue. The presence of gluten in oats adds value to oatmeal as a food.

The importance of these proteid substitutes for meat is so great in relation to the high cost of living that it is well worth the while of the housekeeper to make herself acquainted with their nature and the various ways in which they may be utilized without resorting to baker's bread for a supply of gluten. The value of peas and beans is well known to the habitants of Quebec, and to the men who work during the winter in the lumber camps of Canada. It is quite safe to say that meat would be comparatively little missed if these, with whole wheat and oatmeal, were allowed a more ample place in the dietary of Canadian households.—Toronto Globe.

Similarity of Wood

In Southern Russia and Transcaucasia, the forests are very similar in composition to those of southern Canada and the United States. Of the hardwoods, beech and oak are the most important species, the former forming vast forests on the slopes of the Caucasus Mountains. Scotch pine, Oriental spruce and Nordmann fir rank first among the conifers. The latter sometimes attains a height of 150 feet and a diameter of eight feet, being much superior in size and quality of wood to the balsam fir, or "balsam," of eastern Canada.

The old fashioned feather duster with its long handle is no doubt a great convenience to those housekeepers who are unable to do much stretching or stooping, but it does not accomplish its purpose. It only scatters the dust from one article to another because the feathers cannot hold it. A substitute for the feather duster that will do the work better is a child's broom, the head covered with a bit of cotton flannel or an old stocking cut open finished off with two ruffles made from the material doubled. With this aid tops of windows and doors, also baseboards and all places difficult to reach by the hand may be thoroughly dusted. Since the fabric will hold the dust it is permanently removed, not changed from one place to another.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SHOULD BE COMRADES OF THEIR CHILDREN

Parents and Children Should be Loving Friends For Life—Some Observations on Subject

Friendship between children and parents at all ages is the relation that should always exist between them. Unfortunately it is too seldom found in Canadian families after the children have passed a certain age, and often not even before. The want is due partly to circumstances beyond the control of either party and partly to the fault of Canadian parents. Time wipes away from the parents mind the recollection of how they thought and felt and acted when children, thus removing a bond of natural sympathy. In addition, parents then fail in reverence for the rights of children as human beings of independent individuality, fail in self-control and self-respect, and fail in wisdom of family government.

All of us who are blessed with children want their trust, respect and companionship, not only when they are little, but still more when they are grown and capable. Something can be done by parents to bring this about, so that an ideal relation shall be enjoyed so long as child and parent live.

Parents need as much as possible to put themselves in the child's place and try to become as children again. Fathers and mothers who best remember their own childhood as a rule are those who meet with least failure in rearing the child.

Germans insist on respect from children, and this discipline helps to hold the German family together all its life in friendship between parents and children. The Japanese and the French work on their children through love and comradeship, and among both peoples grown sons and daughters stand more closely beside fathers and mothers than among Canadians. Parents and children are not all their lives bound together in this country with such lasting bonds of family affection as in France, Germany and Japan.

What has here been laid down does not mean that there should be no parental authority nor family government. Children must learn lessons of obedience if they are to be qualified to become members of society and the State. This article simply advocates such a union of the head and the heart between parents and children, such a blending of authority and love, sympathy and wisdom, as shall make parents and children loving friends for life.

When Boiling a Pudding

When boiling a pudding, put plenty of orange peel into the water. It collects all the grease, making the pudding-cloth clean. Never turn out boiled puddings the moment they are taken from the saucepan; they are very liable to break if this is done. Let them stand for a few minutes until some of the steam has evaporated, and you will find they will turn out easily.

To Turn Balloon

A series of hangars for the British army's dirigible balloons is proposed that will radiate from a central turntable, like a railroad roundhouse, the turntable being provided to receive a balloon from any angle.

To Move Pianos

For transporting pianos a California dealer has built a two-wheeled trailer to be towed behind his automobile.

A Lindsay Improvement.

Lindsay Warder: Information was forwarded today to Mr. T.H. Stinson, Barrister, of town, from the Railway Commission, granting him an order for the removal of the G. N. W. poles on Kent Street. No doubt the news will be hailed with delight by every ratepayer of Lindsay.

Chief Thompson Busy.

Police Chief Thompson is busily engaged writing a paper to be read at the Police Chiefs' convention in Winnipeg on June 23rd, 24th and 25th. "Crime Investigation" is the subject under discussion, and the views of Chief Thompson on this matter will doubtless be a great help to those who have the pleasure to hear it.

Two Fine Diamonds.

Mr. Frank Clarke, the local jeweler, yesterday received two fine diamonds from England. The stones weight, respectively 4¼ and 3¼ carats. Mr. Clarke has taken the local agency for the "last word" in automobile clocks This clock, about 3 inches in diameter, runs for 8 days with one winding and is guaranteed not to be affected by the car's vibration.

A Dainty Little Lady.

One of the slimmest, daintiest girls ever seen on a Peterborough stage, who has a charming voice, ranging from Mezzo-soprano to deepest contralto, is now singing at the Royal Theatre. Her Spanish song is worth many times the price of admission. The Pathe Weekly and other films are also most interesting. A comedy film there would bring tears of laughter to the eyes of a brass statue.

Local Factory Interested

In view of the fact that we have a local marble factory it is of interest to note that the new tariff regulations include: Marble, sawn or sand rubbed, not polished; granite, sawn; paving blocks of stone; flagstone and building stone, other than marble or granite, sawn on not more than two sides. The new duty on such goods is British Preferential Tariff 15 p.c., Intermediate Tariff 20 p.c., General Tariff 20 p.c.

Too Much Bait.

Four Lindsay men went fishing for suckers at the dam there. They were very well provided with "Bait." At 3 a.m., they had all fallen asleep beside the slide. At 3.11 a.m. one of them fell in the very wet and exceedingly cold water. He let out a yell that awoke the other three. Whilst trying to fish the luckless one out, the other three fell in. Moral Go slow with the "Bait."

Gypsies to be Deported.

Lindsay Warder: Detective Scarth, of the Dominion police force and County Constable Thornbury, after paying a visit to where the gypsies were encamped south of town, found the dusky skinned gang had fled, going further south. The Dominion officer has been after the tribe for some time, who are of Mexican extraction and are getting them close to the border, when the authorities will deport the undesirables.

The Boy From Harvey.

Yesterday a Times reporter waiting for a car at the corner of Simcoe and George Streets overheard the following conversation between a lady and her ten year old son. They had just arrived from Harvey. The boy, as a car approached remarked "Maw what makes that car go?" The same remark was made about an auto. Just then the first slit skirt of the season passed by. The boy exclaimed "Maw can't we wait over until tomorrow? I am very much interested in the sights of Peterborough!"

A Handsome Brougham.

What is possibly the handsomest Brougham that Peterborough ever saw was brought here yesterday by Jones' Livery. The body of the carriage is painted black. The wheels are red and black. The doors and front have bevelled plate glass windows, that are covered with self-acting shades. A telephone connection enables the occupants of the carriage to communicate with the driver. Mr. Jones has displayed his proverbial enterprise by adding so fine a carriage to his equipment.

Spring Skin Blemishes

ARE REMOVED BY ZAM-BUK.

Why suffer the humiliation of unsightly skin blemishes, such as pimples, boils or eczema, when they are so easily cured by Zam-Buk? Even the most advanced cases of eczema yield to Zam-Buk's great healing powers. Mr. Joe. Johnson, of 584 Broome Street, New York, writes: "I suffered untold misery for twenty years from eczema. Medical treatment was of no avail. I spent hundreds of dollars on salves and treatments, and all I got was mere temporary relief. At last I tried Zam-Buk, and I am pleased to say that perseverance with this remedy and Zam-Buk Soap has effected a complete and permanent cure."

Mr. Jack Shaw, the Scotch comedian, of 47 Abbott Avenue, Toronto writes: "I have used Zam-Buk for boils, and found it very soothing, and a quick healer."

You want to end your suffering? To remove those unpleasant face or body sores? Then buy Zam-Buk Sold by all druggists or store-keepers at 50c per box. Zam-Buk Soap 25c. per tablet.

Zam-Buk is also best for cuts, sores, bruises, piles, and as an embrocation for stiffened muscles, rheumatism sciatica.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW ON THE DIAL OF A CITY LIFE.

Bobcaygeon is to spend $7000 on cement sidewalks.

The contract has been let to G. H. Lindsay for Lindsay's new $16,000 school.

Spring is here. Two men were seen yesterday wearing straw hats. They belonged (the hats) to the vintage of 1913.

The Union Jack, has, for two days floated at half mast over the City Hall. This is out of respect to the late Duke of Argyle.

Chief Howard, head of the local Fire Department, yesterday expressed his approval of the project of having a "Clean-up" day in this city.

Messrs. Trebilcock Bros., yesterday received a large number of lacrosse sticks, which, to encourage Canada's National game, will be sold at cost.

Now that a by-law is being considered to compel local bakers to wrap loaves in paper, why not pass a by-law to compel lumber-jacks to wear clerical collars? This would not cause the poor man, outside the lumber-jack any extra expense.

It is absolutely untrue that local bread wagon drivers are to be made wear dress suits whilst on duty delivering the "staff of life" duly wrapped in perfumed paper. The tails of a dress suit, with their cute little pockets might lead to a loaf being purloined.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, sent their decorator to St. Catharines yesterday, to decorate the city in honor of the Duke of Connaught. A considerable sum of money is being spent for that purpose.

It is rumored that the local firemen are to be supplied with shears so that, in rescuing a lady in the present style of hobble skirt they will be able to provide for contingencies when a fire escape is used. This however is only a rumor.

Local

Sporting Column

THE TIMES invites the use of this column by its readers who may wish to make any announcements or publish reports of sporting events.

ERIE, Pa., May 7, 6.30 p.m.—Erie cracked open its first season in the Canadian League this afternoon, when Heinie Smith's aggregation faced Curly Blount's squad on Perry Field and in a fast and well contested game, went down to defeat before the invaders from the Dominion by a score of 3 to 1.

Every man on the two teams has been training to the minute during the past few weeks, and were just itching for a chance to get out on the field. Peterborough has a team that the citizens may well feel proud of, and are going to be a first division team if not champions. Every man is a star at his position, and when the team is going full strength and with a few games to get into the run of things, they are going to take some beating.

Erie is regarded as one of the strongholds of the league for patronage, and Manager Smith has gathered around him a team that he is confident will also make a strong bid in the pennant chase from the beginning. By the form displayed in today's game they are a team to be feared and can be reckoned on to give the Petes a chase in the remaining three games here. Erie is carrying eighteen men, all of whom are good men—too good for Manager Smith to decide in a hurry who he will let out. Brown, who was on the mound in today's opening fixture, is a slab artist with speed, and a nice delivery, and has lots of stuff on the ball. McNeil who is well-known to Peterboro' fans, having played there last season, did the receiving, and played a splendid game.

For the Petes, Louie Schettler the Ex-Erie twirler, was the star of the day, his work being nothing short of marvellous. He had the Yankees guessing all afternoon, and received splendid support. Ryeberg did the receiving and held Schettler up in grand style. The rest of the team were in fine shape, and an idea of the quality of ball dished up can be formed when we say that the error column was blank for the Petes and two for Erie. Manager Blount, at centre garden, is a great field manager, and kept his men on the move. He is a tireless worker, and Peterboro has a man at the head of her team who can be depended upon to go the limit with his men.

Judge Emory A. Walling started the season by throwing the first ball. Prior to the game a parade of fifty automobiles formed up at the Chamber of Commerce building, and proceeded to the ball grounds, the route being up State street, to Eighteenth to Peach, to Twelfth, and thence to the battle-ground. At the head of the procession, in a huge motor truck, was the Moose Band. Behind the band came the players and officials of the two clubs, and following them was a large delegation of the city's best known sport lovers in gaily decorated autos. When Perry's Field was reached the officials, players and band formed up in a long line and marched to the big flagstaff in deep centre field, where, amid patriotic airs Old Glory was unfurled to the breeze. Umpire Miller announced the batteries, and the game was under way.

The two teams lined up as follows:

PETERBORO:
Blount, c.f.
Price, s.s.
Gorman, 1b.
King, 2b.
Ryeberg, c.
Byrne, 3b.
Swartz, r.f.
Fox, l.f.
Schettler, p.

ERIE:
Harris, r.f.
Dawson, c.f.
Gygli 1b.
Schaeffer, l.f.
Smith, 2b.
Behan, s.s.
Wiltze, 3b.
McNeil, c.
Brown, p.

Umpire Miller. Attendance 7,000.

Peterborough Well Represented.

Among the Peterborough fans who attended the game were the following: W. H. Denham, E. G. Patterson, ex-Mayor Bradburn, Mayor Buller, Fred Roy, C. J. Carroll, Roland Deane, Herb. Stenson, T. H. Hooper, E. T. Carr, G. L. Hay, C. G. Graham, Alex. Elliott, Jas. C. Skinner. Mr. W. McIlroy joined the party at Hamilton.

President Fitzgerald of the Canadian League was a spectator at the Peterboro-Erie game yesterday.

At the opening game yesterday in Brantford between Hamilton and Brantford, Mayor Spence of Brantford, pitched the first ball, and Mayor Allan of Hamilton, was catcher.

A record that will stand for some time, was made in Montreal on Wednesday, when Montreal and Jersey City played a sixteen inning game to a tie—2 all. The game was called at 6.45 owing to darkness.

The Duke of Argyle who died on Saturday saw much of Canadian sports when he was Marquis of Lorne and Governor-General of our Dominion, and he did not lose his interest when he went out of office and returned to England. Every Canadian touring team found his support and patronage in England, and he was particularly keen about lacrosse, never failing to seek out and encourage the visitors from the country he had learned to love.

Thirdbaseman Eddie Wright, the former Canadian Leaguer this year with the Providence Grays, is making good in the big league.

Caldwell, a new pitcher of the New York Americans, pitched his 25th innings without a score yesterday.

In St. Louis on Wednesday, in the seventh inning, out of seven men that faced the pitcher in the inning, two secured home runs and one a two-base hit. Some slugging, eh?

Osborne, the first year twirler of the Petes, was a familiar face at Erie yesterday, and received numerous handshakes from old friends. "Ossie, old boy" was a favorite with the local fans.

Considerable comment was heard on all sides at Erie yesterday on the Petes' new "jackets." They gave a classy appearance to the boys, as well as being decidedly warm and comfortable.

MOBILIZATION IN ULSTER READS LIKE A FAIRY TALE

Astonishing Coup Has Been Effected by Volunteers in the Face of Elaborate Precautions Which Have Been Taken by the Government

Belfast, Ireland, May 8.—The start- ng events of the past week-end jus- fy all that I have said in previous ters concerning the preparedness l efficiency of the Ulster Volunteers one but a highly organised body of , led by experienced officers, and sisted by remarkably expert secret rvice and signalling corps, could ve effected such a coup as their in face of the elaborate precautions by the Government. The as- nishing mobilization of tens of of troops, the virtual sei- of an entire province, the block- of highways, the paralysing of and coastguards, the landing 25,000 rifles and one million five thousand rounds of ammuni- ," the distribution of these de- supplies by means of 600 auto- , in small quantities, into the portions of Ulster—all in darkness of a single night—it like a fairy tale.

The cables will have already infor- Canadians of the striking de- ils of this cleverly-conceived and ly executed achievement.

In the House of Commons, Mr. As- th has denounced the whole pro- ing as an "unprecedented out- ." Even Unionist papers admit the holding up of traffic, the wing of cordons around the police coastguards' barracks, and the terruption of the telegraph and tele- service, was illegal. But what the use of talking of illegality to loyalist people, driven to despera- by a coalition Ministry bound to do the bidding of the Nationalists, or go out of office.

Ulster's Defence.

The unlawful acts committed by the volunteers are offset by, and have even resulted from, the immoral proceedings of a Ministry, which is using its purchased power to force a Protestant minority under the heel of the Nationalist Parliament at Dublin. It is pursuing this discreditable course without a mandate from the British electorate, and in gross violation of a promise that it would not do so. On the very eve of the last general election (1910), Mr. Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, made this public statement:

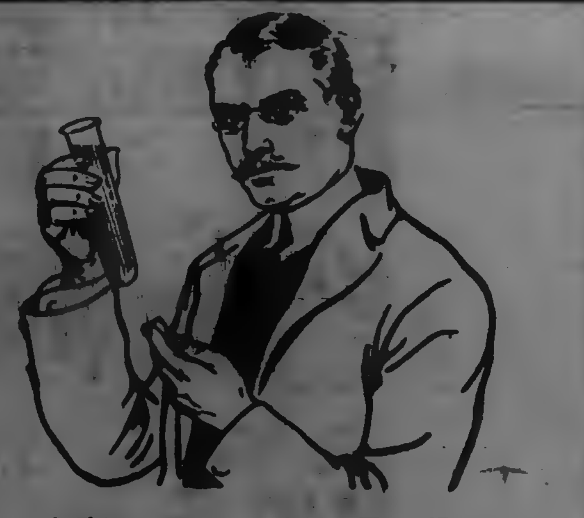
> "Home Rule ought to be left, and should be left, to the judgment of the whole people. There it was and there it would be. If they thought that they could smuggle a Home Rule Bill through the House of Commons in the three years following, all he could say was that their ignorance was beyond conception."

REBELS GET ANOTHER

Washington, May 8.—San Luis Potosi has fallen into the hands of the Constitutionalists, according to information which Secretary Bryan transmitted to one of his callers today.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Cooler with showers.



There It Is!

Chemical analysis of an ordinary cup of tea shows that it contains about 1½ grains of the drug caffeine (coffee also contains caffeine).

Actual Government test has demonstrated that 5 grains of caffeine were sufficient to kill a rabbit.

Of course, human beings are stronger than rabbits, but there are few people who can drink tea or coffee regularly without sooner or later feeling the effects of cafeine poisoning, commonly shown in headache, indigestion, biliousness, sleeplessness, heart agitation and other ills.

Thousands of people, tired of tea and coffee troubles, have found relief by changing to

DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS

A Citizen Suggests That Their Names be Published.

Yesterday a prominent and esteemed citizen suggested that The Times publish the names of those who have not yet paid their taxes of last year to the city. This is being done in Woodstock, N.B., but with what effect we are unable to say.
chased

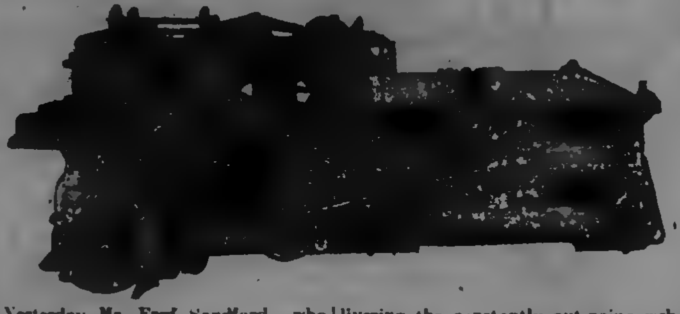
Our local contemporaries have published the assessment roll, and the result has been somewhat disappointing to those who expected to find considerable inequalities. In the matter of unpaid taxes, however, there might possibly be some surprises.

CAUGHT ON THE LAST LAP OF HIS JOURNEY

Toronto, May 8.—Frank Farrell has paid no railway fare on his way from California as far as Toronto on his way to his home in Oshawa, according to the story which he told in the police court to-day. He was arrested in the York street yard of the G.T.R., as he was waiting for freight train to take him to Oshawa. He considered it most unfortunate that he had been caught as he was on the last lap of his journey. As the prisoner did not have $2 and costs he will spend 30 days in jail, despite the delay which it will cause in his home-coming.

NEW DUPLEX FLAT BED PERFECTING PRINTING PRESS INSTALLED BY THE TIMES

Installation of New Outfit was made to Take Care of Fast-Growing Circulation—Press Prints 6,000 Papers an Hour



Yesterday Mr. Fred Sandford, who has been installing The Times' big Duplex Web Perfecting Press, completed his work. This press is of the most modern type. The purchase of this kind of press has been under consideration by The Times for several months, the paper's circulation having outgrown the possibilities of the former press used in this establishment

A Massive Press

The Duplex was built in the Duplex Printing Press Co's mammoth factory at Battle Creek, to the specifications made in the contract. So well has the mechanical work been done that the machine, composed of nearly 4,000 parts and weighing over 24,000 pounds, has been erected with little difficulty, every part fitting in its place with the exact nicety which is absolutely necessary in a perfect working machine.

Press Room Remodelled

The foundations for the new press were built of concrete, the dimensions being 16 feet, 9 inches long and 8 feet wide, and 3 feet deep. The new press mounts these foundations, and beneath the press is built a pit extending its entire length, so that the pressman can have excess to all the working parts of the machine.

It Feeds Automatically

The new Duplex is what is known as a perfecting press. Instead of the sheets being fed by hand into it, the feed is continuous from rolls of paper. The roll of paper is automatically fed into the machine, where it is printed on both sides, cut, pasted, folded and counted, all at one operation.

The Duplex prints 6,000 papers per hour of 4, 6 or 8 pages at one working. These are all folded in neat form counted and made ready for the carriers, or the mail, before leaving the press. The Times is printed from a roll of paper four miles in length, the rolls being 35, 52½ and 70 inches wide, according to the size of print required. An eight-page paper, for instance, is printed from a 70 inch roll, which weighs about half a ton

Occupying a floor space 10 x 14, weighing, as we have said, 12 tons, composed of nearly 5,000 parts, this great machine turns so easily that one scarcely realizes the speed with which the papers are printed until the delivery box is approached, and the complete print is seen to drop out at the rate of a hundred a minute.

The paper is fed from a roll and passes over the feed rollers near the centre of the press, thence over a looping roller, operated by equalized cams and levers, thence it is guided by rolls suitably placed to the printing cylinders, which print both sides of the paper, then to and under the other looping rollers, operated by the same mechanism. The looping rollers perform a very important function, that of receiving the rapidly incoming paper and at the same time delivering the constantly out-going web, while the paper between these two looping rolls remains stationary in its path of travel during the time it is being printed upon the two impression cylinders. Immediately after the impressions are taken and the printing is done by cylinders in their travel in either direction, that portion of the web which has been stopped is moved forward the proper distance to bring sufficient blank paper for the next impression, or the printing of the next paper.

After the printed web of paper leaves the upper equalizing roller, it is slit by a revolving cutter, passes into the folder, into the delivery box already for the mail, while a small counting machine tells at all times the actual number of papers that have been printed.

The delicate as well as heavy task of putting the press in order, after arriving here in a large number of crates and boxes, was in charge of Mr. Sanford. Mr. Sanford knows the press like a top and did his work with accuracy and despatch.

The installing of the new press, while at a great expense to the Times will enable the management to not only give a better service to their advertisers, but to the large list of subscribers who daily receive the paper.

Will Meet All Demands

With the Duplex it will now be possible to publish a paper that will meet the demands of advertiser and reader at all times, in the busy season.

It will also give a better arrangement of the features that are constantly appearing in the Times.

The new press installed is the most modern in any printing office outside the big cities, and is as much ahead of the common flatbed, as the latter is ahead of the old hand press.

Later on the Times will make other important additions to its plant, which today is the most complete found in any printing office outside the big cities.

INJURIES PROVED FATAL

Toronto, May 8.—James Humphrey aged twenty eight 72 McMurray Ave. a C.P.R. switchman, died to-day in the western hospital as the result of injuries received yeqeterday when he was knocked down by a yard engine at the foot od Bay street. The body was removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be opened tonight.

BLOOM OF YOUTH NOW EASILY ATTAINED

You no longer need to "doctor" that sallow, freckled, blackheaded, rough, blotchy pimply or over-red skin. You can remove it, instead—easily, painlessly, inexpensively. By a new scientific process, which anyone can use without assistance, the dead and fear-dead surface skin, with all its imperfections, is gently, gradually absorbed—and a radiantly youthful and beautiful complexion comes forth! Go to your druggist, get an ounce of pure mercolized wax; at night apply enough of this to completely cover the face; don't rub it in. Next morning remove the wax with warm water. The result after a few days is astonishing. You wonder why this secret wasn't discovered long ago.

Let the wrinkled folks also take hope. Put an ounce of powdered saxolite into a half pint witch hazel, bathe the face in the solution and—say!—there's nothing that will so effectually, so promptly, smooth out all those hateful lines.

SIR EDMOND BETTER, IN TORONTO SUNDAY

News of His Illness Confirmed at Offices of Osler and Hammond in This City.

Hot Springs, Va., May 8.—Sir Edmund Osler of Toronto, member of the Canadian Parliament, who has been ill here for more than two weeks with congestion of the lungs, has practically recovered and will leave Saturday for home. Sir Edmund's illness was due to a cold contracted while playing golf in the rain recently with Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, Premier of Canada.

CHILD WAS MANGLED WHILE STEALING RIDE

Toronto, May 8.—James, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Moore, 235 Salem avenue, died in the Western Hospital last night as the result of fatal injuries received when he became entangled in the rear wheel of a delivery waggon, driven by William Elliott, Dundas street, driver for the Moses Hunter, flour and feed merchants.

The little boy left his mother's side unnoticed while she was hanging out the washing and straying into the street in front of his home, attempted to steal a ride on the slowly moving waggon. Unknown to the driver one of the child's legs became entangled between the hub and the axle and was terribly crushed. It was not until the driver was hailed by a horrified pedestrian that the wagon was stopped and the child was extricated in an unconscious condition. He was hurried to the hospital by a passing motorist and died a few hours later prattling cheerily to his father almost until the moment of his death. The body was conveyed to the morgue, where an inquest was opened to-day.

Toronto, May 8.—What promises to be one of the largest gatherings ever held in the City of Toronto, is that called) for to-morrow afternoon by the Canadian Unionist League, to be held in Queen's Park, at which formal protest against the Home Rule Bill will be made by the Unionists of Toronto.

A list of prominent speakers has been prepared and a resolution will be drafted to present to the meeting. His Worship Mayor Hocken will preside, and will read a cablegram sent him by Sir Edward Carson, bearing a message to Unionists this side of the water.

Preparations are practically complete, and include a competent police patrol, both of the parades which will march from east and west to the Queen's Park, and of the meeting itself.

The programme outlined is as follows:

MISS LENTON IN JAIL AGAIN

Leeds, Eng., May 8.—Lillian Lenton, a militant suffragette, was sentenced to-day at the Assizes here to a year's imprisonment on a charge of setting fire to Westfield House, Doncaster, in June last year.

Miss Lenton, while waiting trial for the crime, which she confessed, was released owing to her serious condition of health brought about by a hunger strike. She disappeared and remained in hiding for almost a year and was re-arrested only a few days ago at Brighton.

MORE TROOPS FOR VERA CRUZ U. S. TOLD OF DANGER THERE

General Funston Fears Attack From Mainland--Desires Big, Mobile Force

Washington, May 8.—The Mexican situation assumed a more warlike aspect to-day. Activities in the War Department which began last night on the receipt of long confidential advices from General Funston, were renewed through the morning and were brought to the attention of President Wilson and the Cabinet when the regular session began at 11 o'clock.

Say U.S. Made Blunder.

While this activity disclosed that every preparation was being made for possible eventualities, Secretary for War Garrison said just before entering the Cabinet meeting that "No additional troop movement had been ordered."

In the midst of the military preparations, came definite word that the mediating envoys had received from General Huerta, and submitted to the United States Government, complaint that new landing of American troops and war material at Vera Cruz amounted to a breaking of the armistice which had been arranged by the South American diplomats after their good offices in the Mexican crisis had been accepted by General Huerta and the United States. This also was one of the subjects before the Cabinet.

Consider War Situation.

Washington, May 8.—It has been learned on high authority that the War Department had under consideration early to-day an adequate reinforcements of the command of Gen. Funston at Vera Cruz, to carry out any movement that be necessary into the interior of Mexico. The question of placing a large force of Americans in Vera Cruz that would be strong enough to defend that port against any attack, or to undertake a possible campaign against Mexico City was later laid before the President and his Cabinet by Secretary of War Garrison.

DYING, TAKES BLAME FOR CHICAGO FIRE PAUPER MYSTERY IN OHIO MANY YEARS

Woman Inmate of County Infirmary at Lima Tells of Wild Flight to Excape Wrath of Holocaust Victims in Eighteen Hundred and Seventy-one

Lima, O., May 8.—The legend that Miss O'Leary's cow kicked over a kerosene lantern and started the fire which swept Chicago in 1871 is challenged by the death-bed declaration of Miss Rebecca Thrift, who died in the country infirmary here last night, aged about 70.

"I started the Chicago fire," gasped strange old woman, "and fearing arrest, I fled while the flames raged."

Further details, whatever those details may have been, were sealed by death and will be buried in the potter's field to-morrow along with the body of the woman whose life story has for more than forty years been an impenetrable mystery.

Coincident with the burning of Chicago, in 1871, this woman was found secreted like a hunted animal in a straw stack on the Booth farm south of this city. With her was a man The vigilante spirit, rampant in those days, asserted itself in the form of a mob which, after a parley spared tar and feathers, but warned the man to leave the country. He fled and no tidings concerning him have ever come.

The woman, sullen and dazed made no explanation at that time, except that she was homeless and sick. She gave the name of Rebecca Thrift. She was at that time apparently a little less than 30.

The authorities not knowing what else to do with the odd charge thus thrust upon them, committed her to the county farm.

Here for forty years, she has remained a county dependent and never once has she consented to give the names and addresses of relatives or to reveal other family history, and no one has ever claimed her.

ULSTER AFFAIR STIRS COMMONS

Attack on Col. Hughes by Maritime Member Resented by Conservatives

CAPTAIN TOM WALLACE HIT

Offer of Services by Centre York M.P. No Affair of His Says Minister.

Ottawa, May 8.—There is considerable indignation amongst Conservative members to-day over an attack late last night by Mr George Kyte, of Richmond, on Captain Tom Wallace, of Centre York, for having offered his services to Sir Edward Carson, and Col. Sam Hughes for permitting him to offer his services.

"The Minister of Militia," said Mr. Kyte, has control of the men who hgve sworn to his Majesty on all occasions, and yet one one of the officers of the Militia, who occupies a seat in this House, sitting beside the Minister, offered his services a few weeks ago to Sir Edward Carson for the purpose of leading an armed rebellion against law and order in the province of Ulster.

"The minister is very loyal when the interests of a certain element in this country are concerned, but the Minister would permit every officer of the Militia to bear arms against law and authority if it is on behalf of the Orangemen of Ulster.

THE SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE

Fishing in British Columbi Has Become a Great Industry

Probably no city in the world has been born in such magnificent potentialities as Prince Rupert. It is fed from the silver spoon of good fortune and is heir to a goodly portion of the world's treasures. As the converging point of international and world-wide traffic it has the basis of a moderately sized city.

CLIMATIC CONDITIONS: The climate of this northern country is really an asset of no mean proportions. Its mild winter and cool summers are going to be an attraction ere long to world-wide tourists. Prince Rupert is in the 55th latitude with a mean temperature of 44 degrees in the month of February and about 60 degrees in the summer. During the 12 months ending August 1912, the rainfall was 73.38 inches, with 96 clear days, 36 partly cloudy days, 114 rainy days and 4 days with snow.

RESOURCES: Prince Rupert is surrounded by a country whose natural resources are more rich and varied than those of any other country known to the present generation. It is the natural shipping centre for an immense mining territory, the fishing banks right at her very door are the best yet known, and farming has been proven very successful in her vicinity.

FISHING INDUSTRY: There are at the present time four Companies engaged in the fishing industry in Prince Rupert, to wit; The Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., The Atlin Fisheries, Ltd., The Alliance Fish Co., and The Ocean Fish Co. About 25 vessels are at the present time engaged in the Halibut trade out of this port. They use principally dories. The depth of the bank where the Halibut is caught is from 5 to 200 fathoms. These Halibut banks are located from 20 to 250 miles from Prince Rupert.

The fishermen are usually paid by the pound of the catch, 1 cent and a quarter a pound, and other facilities free. At this rate they are making an average of about 1500 dollars a season.

The accompanying photographs will give an idea as to the class of vessels and the equipment employed in this trade.

The annual report of the President of the Prince Rupert Board of Trade shows the following figures as to the catch for 1913:

Salmon, 161,3000 cwts.
Halibut, 75,768 cwts.
Cod, 1,055 cwts.
Herring, 93,390 cwts.

The fishing industry as far as Prince Rupert is concerned is still to be considered in its infancy. With the opening of the Transcontinental Railway and thereby greatly improved transportation facilities this item is bound by the natural conditions to become one of the chief industries of this Port.

SALMON fishing and packing is the biggest industry in Prince Rupert today, but it is only one part of the great adjacent fisheries. There are now in operation 12 canneries on the Skeena River, 4 on the Naas, and 8 among the Islands. The Skeena is 15 miles South of Prince Rupert and the Naas 30 miles North. About 3000 persons are employed in the industry on the Skeena River and 1,000 on the Naas. The companies operate from 4 to 8 months.

Of the great number of people now engaged in the fishing trade out of this Port a good majority are Norwegians. They are always found to make the best fishermen as well as Captains and Mates. Norwegians will also be found in almost any other line of business, Mining, Farming as well as commercial lines.

In the fishing trade on the coast of British Columbia Cap. Peter P. Rorvik is to be considered as one of the pioneers. Having passed through the different stages at sea as a sailor, Fisherman, mate and master for about fifteen years, Capt. Rorvik now owns and operates a company of his own known as the Ocean Fish Co. of this City. For about five years Capt. Rorvik was a master of fishing steamers out of the Port of Vancouver, B.C., prior to his coming to Prince Rupert. (Born near Aalesund, Norway.)

Another Norwegian who has gained prominence in Prince Rupert is Alderman John Dybhavn. In January 1912 he was elected a member of the City Council and was re-elected in 1913 and 1914. In the early days of the history of Prince Rupert he entered into the Real Estate & Insurance Business. In September 1913 his business was formed into partnership, that of Dybhavn & Hanson.

Messrs. Larsen & James are engaged in the business of Painting Contractors in Prince Rupert.

Taking the natural as well as the climate conditions into consideration Prince Rupert and vicinity is bound to become a natural place for Norwegians. A great number of our countrymen have taken advantage of the new regulation relating to Home-Stead lands and have taken up free government land in the vicinity of the City.

CURIOUS FISH

Remarkable fish have been captured in depths of from one thousand to two thousand fathoms in the Atlantic, and brought to the surface. The majority of those living at great depths were jet black. Their luminous portions which light up the dark regions which they inhabit are marvellous.

These fish plough through the dark waters like flaming torches. Some have elongated snouts, with luminous tips emitting great volumes of light. Others have rows of luminous cells on top of and below their bodies, with reflectors and lenses which serve the function of projecting light in definite directions. This light serves the purpose of illuminating the surrounding water to avoid foes, to recognize their own kind or to capture prey.

The greatest depth found by sounding was until lately 5,269 fathoms, or 31,614 feet—nearly six miles. This is a point in the Pacific ocean off the coast of Guam, about 100 miles or so. But a surveying ship of the German navy has recently discovered a deeper spot in the ocean near the Philippines, about forty [illegible] miles off the north coast of Mindanao.

ETON "ALFINE" FEAT

Boy Fixes Hat on Lightning Conductor Above Buildings

High above the street, pierced by the lightning conductor on top of the Eton memorial buildings, Windsor, England, was visible a soft grey hat, a challenge and a defiance to the powers that be.

It was placed there by a boy who had first to attack the top of the massive dome, then to surmount a number of pillars and ornamental work, and finally at a dizzy height above the street, to "shin up" the lightning conductor.

How the climb—which to the ordinary man looks an utterly impossible one—was accomplished remains a mystery.

A local builder was called in to remove the hat. He engaged the services of an expert climber, who with the aid of ladders and other appliances succeeded in getting it down amid the cheers of the boys—but the dare-devil boy who fixed it had no ladder for his 100 foot climb.

NON-DRINKING SHEEP

Apparently Thrive Without Water Except Dew and Plant Juice

Sheep on the Nebo national forest range, Utah, go four and a half months without water except for such moisture as they get from the dew and the juices of forage plants.

Grazing sheep on a range entirely destitute of water is a recent innovation due to the increasing demand for forage and the efforts of the forestry officers to find a way to open the forest ranges for all the stock that can safely be admitted. The area on the Nebo which has proved usable by sheep is high and rocky, a portion of it being above timber line, and it has neither springs nor streams of sufficient size or accessibility to be used for such watering purposes. The grazing season lasts from June 15 to October 1, and during this period of four and a half months the sheep do not get a drink.

Under such conditions, however, the sheep do extremely well, and the lambs from this range have an average weight at the close of the season of 68 pounds on the Chicago market, which is rather above the normal weight from that vicinity.

In one area on the Targhee forest in Idaho sheep get water only twice during the four-month summer grazing season. There is no water on the range, but the sheep are driven to a nearby stream lower down the mountain side.

RULES FOR HUSBANDS

L. C. Dillman, a Seattle millionaire, as the result of eighteen years of marital bliss promulgated the following rules for husbands:

Keep all promises made before and at the time of marriage. Keep a joint bank account. Go to your club no oftener than one night a week. Have no dogs or cats of any kind. Call her up on the telephone at least three times a day. When away from home write or telegraph every day. Take her with you on business and pleasure trips. Be more polite to her than to any other woman you meet. Remember that she likes flowers, candy and books. Make it a business to be comfortable [illegible] is happy. Do not criticize her dress. Be a gentleman to all women, but a husband to one only. If you have only a dollar you are not wasting it by spending it on her. When she is dissatisfied get a divorce. Life is too short to waste any of it in trying to please an abnormal woman.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

An anti-home rule meeting is now in order for Peterboro'. The Protestant Federation should get busy.

The Globe says: "Let us be honest with ourselves." All right, try, and find out how it feels.

If Huerta were to unbosom himself now no doubt he would admit that he regrets his failure to go when the going was good.

John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, says that Sir Edward Carson will leave a "trail of woe" in Ireland. And John is some authority on woe too, let it be known.

When the "horse editor" of a newspaper suffers from insomnia his friends find some consolation in the fact that he cannot be troubled with the nightmare.

There is nothing truer than that the Parliament of Canada is one of the greatest deliberative bodies in the world. A member gets up and talks for two hours and sinks wearied into his chair. Then some other member takes the floor and makes him still more tired by talking for another two hours.

Restricting Political Campaign Contributions

It has long been recognized that one of the growing evils in connection with our present party system has been the large contributions to political funds from interested parties, and for some time past efforts have been made to have the matter dealt with by law. There can be no question that in the past both parties have received large contributions from individuals and corporations, and these contributions were understood on both sides as entitling the contributor to special governmental favor, and it is not hard to imagine that whenever the time came to repay the debt it would be hard for the party who had received the money to keep a wholly unbiased mind. And it is even asserted that in order to make things absolutely safe subscriptions were given to both political parties. Ontario has now passed legislation aiming to lessen the evil, and both Conservatives and Reformers supported the measure. The new act prevents any contractor with the Government from making any contribution to campaign funds, and provides a heavy penalty for soliciting or receiving such a contribution. Contributions from holders of liquor licenses or from liquor organizations are also forbidden, and joint-stock companies too, come under the ban. Most of our readers will see at once the need of such safeguards and will heartily approve of them. Of course it can hardly be expected that the individuals and corporations who have axes to grind will not be able to find some way of helping their political friends, but the law will certainly make it a little more difficult. We welcome it as one step towards greater purity in our provincial elections.

Joints Quit Aching
Soreness beats it away

NO MORE STIFFNESS, PAIN OR MISERY IN YOUR BACK OR SIDE OR LIMBS!

Wonderful "Nerviline" is the Remedy A marvellous pain reliever.

Not an ordinary liniment— just about five times more powerful, more penetrating, more pain-subduing than any thick, oily or ammonia liniment, Nerviline fairly eats up the pain and stiffness in chronic rheumatic joints, gives quick relief to those throbbing pains, and never burns or even stains the skin.

"Rheumatism kept my joints swollen and sore for ten years. My right knee joint was often too painful to allow me to walk. In this crippled tortured condition I found Nerviline a blessing. It's warm soothing action brought relief I had given up hoping for. I rubbed on quantities of Nerviline and improved steadily. I also took Ferrozone at mealtime in order to purify and enrich my blood. I am today well, and can recommend my treatment most conscientiously.

(Signed) C. PARKS,
Prince Albert.

Not an ache or pain in the muscles or joints that Nerviline won't cure. It's wonderful for lumbago and sciatica; for neuralgia, stiff neck, earache and toothache. Nerviline is simply a wonder. Best family liniment known and largely used for the past forty years. Sold by dealers everywhere, large family size bottle 50c., small trial size 25c. Refuse a substitute, take only "Nerviline."

THAT NO TIP LAW

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir,—I see in your paper that a Senator at Ottawa, from the far West is introducing a law to forbid tipping in hotels. I'll bet a dollar and a quarter that this Senator has worried the life out of hotel clerks and bell hops and never roughed up a cent. Does the Senator in question know what hotel employes are up against? To give an illustration. A few days ago a man who was ill arrived at the hotel where I work. He kicked over the different rooms. When he got settled, he wanted me to get a thermometer to test the temperature of his bath. Then he wanted to have his sheets removed so he could sleep between the blankets. Then he wanted a jug of hot water. Half an hour later he wanted another jug of hot water. Then he rang again and wanted the name of "that pretty little blue-eyed dining room girl who has the cute spit curls on her forehead. Surely answering such calls is worth a tip.

MR. PECK AND MR. GORDON.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—I notice in to-day's issue a letter from Mr. G. N. Gordon on the subject on his eligibility as a candidate for Parliamentary honors. I have not had an opportunity of perusing the editorial to which he refers, but I quite agree with Mr. Gordon that his occupying the position of Solicitor for the City of Peterborough should not be regarded in any way as a bar to his being such a candidate if a Liberal convention should request him to become such.

Yours truly,
E. A. PECK.

Crystolis is almost a household word in Europe, where it is called "the most marvelous scientific discovery for promoting hair growth." It has won gold medals at Paris and Brussels.

Better yet it has won the warmest words of praise from those who have been fortunate enough to test its remarkable qualities.

Crystolis has been tried out in America for over a year now. Hundreds of men and women from every state unhesitatingly hail it as a true hair grower.

Here is a statement of just a few of those who have tried —who have been convinced— and who will swear to the virtues of this marvelous preparation:

Mr. Kelly of Memphis, bald for 20 years, says: "My head is now covered with hair, nearly an inch long, friends simply astounded."

Mrs. Evans of Chicago writes: "Since using Crystolis can report new hair an inch long coming in thickly all over my head."

Mr. Macklain of St. Louis reports: "One treatment made my hair two inches longer."

Mr. Morse of Boston declares: "I lost my hair eighteen years ago. Have used less than one treatment. My head is now entirely covered with a thick growth of hair of natural color. No more itching, no more falling hair, no more dandruff."

Mr. Boyd of Chicago says: "My bald spot was as shiny as a peeled onion. It is now all covered with thick new hair. The grayness is also disappearing."

Mr. Mourer of Cleveland declares: Crystolis is the only thing which actually grows hair."

Mrs. Morris of Philadelphia writes after only three weeks' use: "I can see new hair in plenty and it is now a half inch long."

Mr. Arnott of Cleveland reports: "Itching scalp stopped the second day, dandruff gone, no more falling hair."

Mrs. Rose of Rock Island writes: "Was almost wild for five years with itching scalp. Two or three applications of Crystolis stopped this. Now I have a fine new growth of hair."

You may be acquainted with some of these people or some of your friends may know them. Write us and we can give you the full address so that you can prove every statement.

But the best way to prove it without the risk of a penny, just what Crystolis will do in your own individual case, is to cut out the free coupon below and mail it to-day.

The same dear ved me a won- derful placque hung with de- lightful effect a rose brocade wall of the drawing room.

It was bound in a dull gold frame and showed a cobweb of rose point lace on a bit of pale yellow brocade. It is a bit of Great-Grandmother's wedding veil and the brocade is part of the gown she wore when she danced at the ball given by her great-aunt for the Marquis Lafayette.

In another home a large photograph frame of deep purple satin, embellished with tiny roses in gold thread and edged in silver, was a piece of the waistcoat some illustrious ancestor of the owner wore when George III. was King, and the waistcoat appeared at some court function.

It is no longer a distinct novelty to have baby's first shoes, or the ones in which he took his first step, preserved forever in bronze, though it is delightful to have one of the little half-worn bootees with a missing button and the creases made by the restless little feet, and perhaps even one toe worn through, bronzed for a paper weight.

Uses for Old Jewelry.

Wedding invitations, or rather the copper plate from which they are engraved, are frequently made into souvenir candlesticks so deftly that not a word of the script is destroyed or marred. Or they may be used for trays, and I have heard of one bride who had the plate utilized for one side of a vanity case, the other being of black enamel. However, it is said to be more bizarre than attractive, and comparatively few women would care to dangle the invitation to her wedding continually before the eyes of a curious and unsympathetic public.

If one has some heirloom in the form of a ring which she does not care to wear in that form, there is the delightful plan of straightening the ring, leaving the setting exactly as in its original form and adding a pin for a brooch.

A unique jewel case was made from a section of an antique bead bag which was so old it was almost falling to pieces and entirely beyond repair, unless it was remade, which would take the fine sentiment away from it. It was fitted over the generous top of a round box and a glass top was slipped over the beads and held in place by a beaded band, which copied in strong, new materials the colorings of the ancient bag.

It seems to be the rule of fashion not to let the moths have a chance at heirlooms, but to bring them forth into the light of day and "get some good of them."

Pla for Shady Gardens

Buy strong roots of these and plant them as soon as possible; than you may look forward to obtaining a bright, flowery border in summer.

The best of all plants for an odd shady corner are hardy ferns. Ferns, indeed, are most interesting plants to grow, as their fronds are so beautiful in form and so pleasing to the eye. To grow them well raise a mound of good soil about a foot or so high, and embed some pieces of burr or stone in this to form a series of small beds or necks.

In the surface soil of each nook fork in some leaf-mold or well-decayed manure to encourage the ferns to root freely and thoroughly establish themselves; then procure the following hardy and easily grown kinds and plant them forthwith: Asplenium Filix-foemina (lady fern), Nephrodium Filix-mas (male fern), Lomaria spicant (hard fern), Onoclea germanica (ostrich feather fern), Osmunda regalis (royal fern), Osmunda cinnamomea (cinnamon fern), and Polystichum angulare proliferum (lace fern). See that these have an ample supply of water in summer.

Poor little girl, it's all going wrong with you, isn't it? The days are just one long misery after another, and you can hardly wait to be to get a chance to cry it out.

wish I could really help you, but I'm aid I can't do much.

ou see, I don't know either you or ur sweetheart. How can I tell what the matter with him?

t takes a big man to keep on loving someone when he is sure of her. It ght not to be so—but so it is, and so always has been.

Your sweetheart is probably just an erage man, and the only way to hold m at all is to pretend you don't nt to.

h, yes, it's very tiresome to have to p on pretending. So tiresome that many women have decided that won't trouble to do it—and they are the women who get on quite comfortably without being loved in the old-fashioned way at all.

The next time your sweetheart takes you out, don't be so absorbed in him that you can't see anybody else at all. Open your eyes and see if there isn't some good-looking chap right in the same room with that indifferent sweetheart of yours.

Say something about the good looks of that young man to your sweetheart, and if the young man speaks to you don't answer him as if you were talking in your sleep.

Wake up, and be agreeable—have a little fun yourself—and the first thing you know your indifferent sweetheart will do one of two things. He will either show you that he is glad to have you interested in some one else or he will begin to lose his indifference so fast that you can see it melt like the frost on a sunny morning.

Perhaps you've just spoiled him—and now you must go to work and unspoil him, if you can. I wish you success in your undertaking. Do write and tell us how it all came out.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Pandering to Men.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

WHEN does a man get to know his wife? Does he ever honestly know her? I'm wondering considerably! Doesn't a woman's life-long instinct tend toward a certain sex reserve where a man brutally dissects his emotions with a candor wholly masculine?

Every once in a while I find myself peering appalled into some hitherto unsuspected characteristic of Mary's, and the characteristic, I must say in all honesty, is not always to my liking.

Mary, I find, panders eternally to the men in a room! Why? Do all women do that? I've begun to watch.

Tonight at a bridge party there was a technical bridge discussion under way. Likewise there was a good-looking young chap who very civilly took it upon himself to explain the point for Mary's express edification. She listened very attentively—Mary is at her best with a certain rapt expressiveness in her eyes—and there was a delicate deference in her attitude that would have flattered many an older and wiser man. Finally she shook her head with a distracting little frown and gazed soulfully up into her partner's gaze.

"You know," she said with beautiful sincerity, "it takes a man's brain to ferret forth a thing like that—it really does!"

Now, knowing Mary's mental limitations, there have been times when her remark would have seemed to me but the careless and logical thing for her to say, but tonight I gazed at her with honest amazement. For, in the first place, Mary had explained that point in full to me once before—in the second, she knew more about bridge than the young fool she was so subtly flattering. That, by the way, tempts another digression of wonderment.

How is it that women who have seemingly but little brain and no memory can apply themselves with such marvellous aptitude to the technical points of a real game like bridge? Mary never can remember when we're out of soap and matches, but I've known her to remember an astonishing sequence of cards without a quiver. Incidentally, she plays bridge with a shrewdness that, put to better purpose, would attain splendid results.

A grow of satisfaction had leaped electrically into the young chap's eyes as Mary spoke. His secret sense of sex superiority had been tactfully encouraged by a pretty woman, and it pleased him mightily, though he didn't know why. I realized grimly enough that Mary had deliberately played a card to arouse his glow of self-satisfaction, for out of that self-satisfaction would issue an inevitable tender deference for herself! Thereafter I watched my diplomatic little wife very curiously.

I found that whenever there was a point to be settled—no matter how simple—Mary invariably turned appealingly to a man for information. She never asked a woman. Her glance at such an instant swept a woman's face with the most casual indifference. Once when some topic of civic interest had come up for a moment she passed with charming insolence a young teacher—a woman who had the subject at her fingers' ends—to ask a man from out-of-town. And the man turned with quick respect and asked the teacher!

Why? Pandering always to the men about her! Mary comes of that class of woman who deliberately plays her helplessness to the front to arouse the protective chivalry of the male. Whether or not she does it consciously, I don't know. I think she does. To me the inexplicable thing is that she is willing to appear helpless, weak, inane and utterly devoid of intelligence merely to have some man smile down with gentle admiration into her eyes and pat her, figuratively, on the back in tribute to her physical prettiness. No wonder the race of men fling such superb egotism into the faces of women. It's fostered in them by women like Mary.

And what did Mary gain? At the expense of a vitiating spasm of petty hypocrisy she won a glance of admiration and a slightly more intimate tone of deference—all born of the gratifying stir of self in the heart of the man. People glow and sparkle most in a spasm of self-gratification.

And she probably won the added distinction of having the young man say she was "an awfully good sort," and thereafter having a slightly less exalted opinion of women.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Typhoid Easily Prevented by Vaccination Treatment

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

TIME was not so long ago when the great hospitals were kept full of victims of the dread malady, typhoid, from the town and other neighborhoods where sailors and foreigners lived closely hundled together. But no more! Now the beds of those same places are kept filled with patients from the more refined and better kept suburbs. Instead of typhoid striking low the ignorant foreigner or benighted laborer, who innocently drinks filthy water and worse milk, it now attacks the very flower of America's sons—natives born and bred in the garden spot of the country.

"Why is it, doctor," asked a patient the other day, "that there is always such a howl about one instance of yellow fever, leprosy, or smallpox when it shows its head in a town or even the whole state, and no one notices the presence of two or three dozen cases of typhoid fever? Is typhoid such a harmless ailment?"

The answer to him is warning to the guardians of the health. Typhoid is much more insidious, dangerous and serious to a community than yellow fever, leprosy or smallpox, because these latter are tensely dramatic in their appearance; they cannot be masked or concealed; they are feared by virtue of the biblical and profane account of scourges handed down unto the third and fourth generations.

Yet such dramatic troubles as the black plague, yellow fever, Asiatic cholera, leprosy and smallpox are literally jokes alongside of that hidden, creepy disease, typhoid fever. The total deaths of all the former scary maladies in 100 years in the whole United States does not equal the yearly deaths today of typhoid fever. Deaths of these diseases, to state cold facts, were little over 15,000, while in 1911 there were 250,000 cases of typhoid fever, with a quarter of a million families thrown out of work, and near 3,000,000 weeks of idleness for those attacked. Worst of all, 40,000 wage-earners died last year of typhoid fever.

Where Germs Lurk.

What has all this to do with the epidemics now raging, say you? Well, it has much to do with it. Silently, like a thief in the night, slowly creeping, no one knows whether you may be stricken three weeks from today. The feeling, like the old woman in the Mother Goose rhyme, whose little dog barked at her, and who cried: "This cannot be I," that you cannot fall ill is nonsensical. This very minute you may be the picture of health, only to be down next week with the easily prevented ailment—typhoid.

Dr. Osler repeated a wise slogan when he said: "For every person ill with typhoid there is a contaminated well, a filthy milk and butter dairy, or a fly-ridden house." And I will go the Regius Professor one better by saying that for every individual down with typhoid, a health officer, a politician, and a county commissioner should be jailed. For when God has placed the weapons of prevention in our reach, the knowledge and power of warding off the evil in our hands, and the apathy, indifference and sinful ignorance of the powers that be fail to make use of that which Providence has provided, then say I, those same incompetent officers should suffer the same penalties as other felons.

In Germany, if one case of typhoid fever appears in towns, the commissioners, health officers and town councilmen are haled to court, fined and sent to prison. Berlin, Hamburg, Dresden, Munich and Vienna have altogether in 1914 only had 21 cases.

There are physicians who fail to report their cases; still others who err in making a diagnosis, and again some who call typhoid a "touch of malaria," a "little fever" and "stomach colds."

Publicity Best Remedy.

Allow me to warn both the physicians and the public that the only fever that is very common that lasts more than a few days is typhoid. By any other name it is just as bad, if not worse.

All talk about "big business" and "hurting a town" in exposing cankers like malicious maladies is idle rot. The towns that try to hide the presence of unsanitary conditions and wicked ailments are going to reap a whirlwind of despair and sorrow. Exposure and admission of faulty conditions are the first aids to the injured, the earliest steps in a remedy. Until the young open their eyes they are defenceless before the wicked world. Unless a municipality sees its faults it will become more and more rotten to the point of stagnation and uninhabitability.

What's to be done then if the proper authorities are supine or inefficient? How can the intelligent press and public rid their beloved place of the sore members? It is all very simple.

All drinking water should be boiled and filtered through cotton, blotting paper or sponge. Every dairy, stable and barn should be sterilized. Pasteurise the water used, as well as that fed to the cattle. Any one who has had typhoid should never be allowed to work near milk. Often persons who recovered years before from this fever carry the germs about with them for life. If their waste, perspiration, or hands touch drinking water or milk the typhoid microbe gets busy and multiplies over the face of the waters.

What Vaccination Does.

Flies, next to water, are the accessories to the typhoid crime. A man just feeling a bit ill with the first symptoms of the disease, will milk millions of the germs into the milk of a whole dairy. Flies will drop them into the salads, fruits and exposed dishes of the household, even after the milk is boiled.

Greater and better as a preventive than any of these hygienic measures, however, is typhoid vaccination. This procedure, simple, harmless and sure, is in general use all over the world. In the United States army and navy there has been no case of typhoid since Jan. 1, when over 100,000 enlisted men were given three hypodermic injections of cooked typhoid germs. Before that there were hundreds of cases every year.

An epidemic in Memphis, Tenn., recently reached such proportions that typhoid vaccine was brought into use. Fifteen thousand people accepted the vaccine and only one of these was taken with typhoid.

In Baltimore nearly 3000 persons have been thus vaccinated against typhoid. Generally, the public is still falling sick with typhoid rather than adopt this simple, safe and sure means of preventing death or 10 weeks' incapacity.

Answers to Health Questions

JULIUS S.—1. Is hot water before bedtime and breakfast good?

2. What would you advise as a diet for indigestion?

3. Is physical exercise good?

4. Gas forms and I have headaches.

1. This is a good way of washing out the alimentary canal.

2. "Indigestion" is not a disease or diagnosis. Hence it would be rash to suggest a diet.

3. If your heart and circulation are sound it is good for those who live a quiet, city life.

4. Charcoal, bismuth, bulky foods and oxide of magnesia alleviate gas if there is no other reason against it.

ANXIOUS MOTHER—Kindly advise me how much I should deny my unusually well and athletic daughter the sports she so enjoys—tennis, bathing, swimming. She is 16, and has a leaky heart valve. Your articles are of great value.

This is as difficult for the medical art as for maternal love. Each individual is a law unto herself; even with a slight heart defect. I should advise her to do as the Japanese do. The instant a Japanese athlete feels his heart beating over 80 a minute, notices any palpitation, shortness of breath or the slightest fatigue—the last is the least, because excitement is apt to hide it—he stops everything and lies flat on the back until rested.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

DANDELION WINE.

Gather five pounds of fresh dandelion flowers, put them into a large pot with nine pints of water and boil for 10 minutes. Strain, take one gallon of the liquid, put it back in the pot, add four pounds of sugar, and the rind of two oranges and one lemon, and boil for 20 minutes. When lukewarm add a cent's worth of yeast. When fermentation ceases strain, pour into a dry jar, and cork well.

COLLEGE PUDDING.

Mix together a quarter of a pound each of fine breadcrumbs and well-chopped beef suet free from skin or gristle, a handful of currants and sultanas, a few glace cherries halved, two ounces of sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt, and the same quantity of mixed spice. Beat two eggs, add to the dry ingredients, stir well, pour into small buttered mould, and steam for 35 to 40 minutes.

APPLE FRITTERS.

Sift a quarter of a pound of flour into a basin; make a "well" in the centre. Pour in a quarter of a pint of tepid water, a large tablespoonful of olive oil, and the yolks of two eggs. Stir in the flour from the sides, and continue mixing until the batter is perfectly smooth. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth; add to the batter. Dip in the slices of apple, and fry in boiling fat.

BANBURY CAKES.

Beat two ounces of butter to a cream, add four ounces of cleaned and dried currants, two ounces of finely-chopped mixed orange and lemon candied peel, and a teaspoonful of allspice. Make some rather rich pastry, roll it out thinly, and cut into rounds. Spread half the rounds with the currant mixture and cover with the other half. Moisten the edges with white of egg, and press them well together. Beat the white of an egg, mix it with a large dessertspoonful of castor sugar, brush the cakes over, and bake in a good oven to 20 minutes.

PROTECT THE BIRDS

An International Understanding May be Effected

William S. Haskell of New York, general counsel of the American Game Protection League, wants an international treaty that will prevent migratory birds in Canada being ruthlessly slaughtered similar to the way they are protected in the United States under the federal law passed at the last session of congress. Under the law all migratory and insectivorous birds are placed under federal control. "A treaty," said Mr. Haskell, "is much more effective than a statute. It is a guarantee of the law. The protection of insectivorous birds is as important to Canada as it is to the United States. When the experts tell us that insects inflict a loss on the United States estimated at $300,000,000 it will be readily understood how necessary it is to protect such birds as ducks, bobolinks, flycatchers, grosbeaks, meadow larks, thrushes, woodpeckers, wrens, swallows, warblers, etc., all of which are great devourers of all kinds of insects that destroy foliage and vegetable matter."

MODERN JERUSALEM WEALTHY JEW'S DR

Nathan Straus Hopes to Bring H and Sanitary Conditions to Pe
of the Holy Land

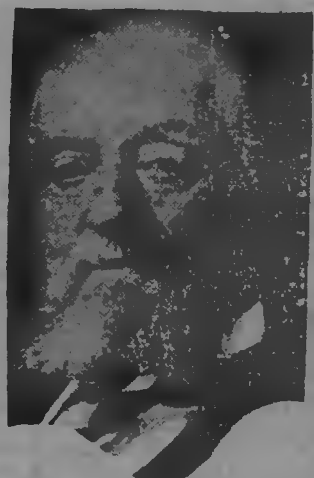
To recreate the Holy Land is immense project to be undertaken Nathan Straus, one of the grea of New York merchant princ Straus, with his two sons, Nath jr., and H. Grant Straus, retired fr the firm of R. H. Macey & Co., New York, to devote all their ene gies to bringing Palestine into t full realm of twentieth century pro gress. Nathan, jr., will go to the ancient home of the Jewish people to take up there one part of his father's new-planned philanthropy—to try by installing modern sanitation systems there largely to prevent sickness among the people. Father and son are both ardent Zionists.

A great suite of offices has been equipped in New York for the carrying on of the commercial end of this great project and hundreds of letters and applications for aid are received weekly. The senior Straus will divide his time between the New York office and the Holy Land.

In his plans for rehabilitating Palestine Straus includes the establishment of complete sewage systems, a totally new water supply, the most modern health and sanitation bureaus, milk stations and soup kitchens as well as clinics for the treatment of various scourges.

The urgent need of such work is shown by an article in a leading medical journal, which says: "Jerusalem is a city in which one out of every five of its 70,000 inhabitants carries the parasite of malaria in his blood and three-fifths of the population give evidence of enlargement of the spleen. These facts, so striking because of the enormous amount of preventable disease and so pathetic because they mean so large a loss of human usefulness, are not hearsay figures. They are facts.

"In the light of present-day knowledge the pictures of the primitive sanitary arrangements that still obtain in ancient Jerusalem would furnish an interesting object lesson. As might be expected, malaria-bearing mosquitoes reign supreme. Their chief breeding places are the cisterns which provide the water supply from the rain on the housetops."



NATHAN STRAUS

Straus' philanthropies in Palestine have not in the past been restricted to persons of his own religious faith, and have not been conducted in any sense of the word as religious or racial undertakings. His concern has been, and will continue to be, he says, with humanity and the alleviation of its sufferings through proper preventive and curative health measures. In Palestine the Jewish, Christian, and Mohammedan population alike has shared and will continue to share in the benefits of his works.

Tango Supplants Reel

The neglect of national sentiment was deplored by the Rev. John Wallace in an address at Dunedin. He said in the average ballroom it was often difficult to secure sufficient dancers to make up a set for the eightsome reel. This national dance was neglected, while there was a regular craze at present to learn the tango. In the average concert room the "auld Scots sangs" were seldom heard. Sentimental ditties or music hall parodies were often substituted for the gems of the past.

The Birch Revived

For the first time in five years the birch was brought into use at the Marylebone Police Court, London. The victim was Sidney Carthew, a lad of eleven years, who was found guilty of stealing two rubber mats, and selling them, after tearing them into pieces. He was ordered six strokes. At first it was thought that a birch would have to be sent for, but an old one was eventually found in a remote corner of the gaoler's room, and the punishment was inflicted in the presence of the boy's mother.

MANITOBA WATER POWERS

The Importance of Hydro-electric Energy in the Province

Owing to the great and ever-increasing cost of good steam coal, the great distance of the province from anthracite coal fields, and the constant growing demand for hydro-electric energy in and around the city of Winnipeg, the development of water powers in Manitoba possesses a peculiar importance. The main sources of power in commercial quantities are the Winnipeg river, Grand rapids on the Saskatchewan, and the large rivers of the northern hinterland, including the Chuurchill, Nelson and Berens. The great strides made in the electrical industry in recent years have brought the present commercial centres of the province within easy transmission distance of the basins of the Winnipeg and English rivers.

Of the eight possible power sites on the Winnipeg river there are three now under development, representing a total power capacity of 199,000 (twenty-four hour) horse-power. One site is completely developed by the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company on the Pinawa channel, and produces about 36,500 horse-power under favorable conditions. Another site at Point du Bois falls, developed by the city of Winnipeg, produces about 20,800 horse-power but is capable of extensions to a maximum of 77,000 (twenty-four hour) horse-power. Development at the third power site at Great falls, having a maximum possible development of 95,500 (twenty-four hour) horse-power, is a bout to be commenced.

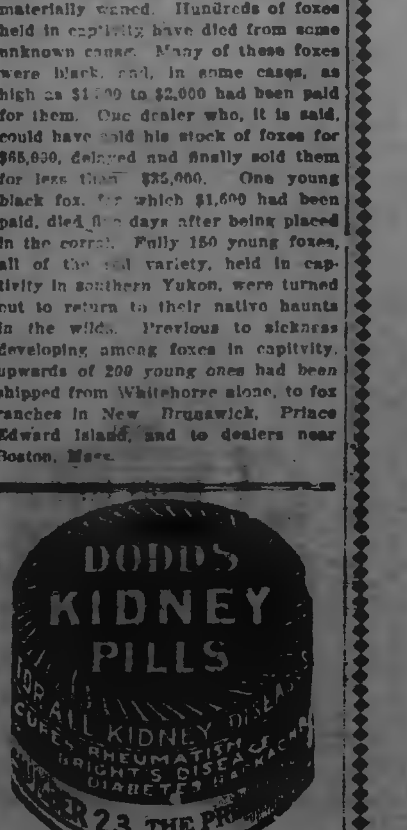
FOX FARMING IN YUKON

Animals Dying in Captivity—Shipments to Eastern Dealers

The enthusiasm concerning fox catching and farming in Yukon has materially waned. Hundreds of foxes held in captivity have died from some unknown cause. Many of these foxes were black, and, in some cases, as high as $1,500 to $2,000 had been paid for them. One dealer who, it is said, could have sold his stock of foxes for $65,000, delayed and finally sold them for less than $35,000. One young black fox, for which $1,600 had been paid, died five days after being placed in the corral. Fully 150 young foxes, all of the red variety, held in captivity in southern Yukon, were turned out to return to their native haunts in the wilds. Previous to sickness developing among foxes in captivity, upwards of 200 young ones had been shipped from Whitehorse alone, to fox ranches in New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and to dealers near Boston, Mass.



A lamp chimney is one of the most difficult things to get perfectly clean without a lot of trouble. Here's a way to lessen the difficulty. Put a stick through a rubber ball and cut slits in the ball. Use this to wash out the chimney. The elastic surface of the ball will fit tightly against the surface of the glass, but will not stick and can be rubbed as hard as any one wants without breaking the glass.

The Local Bread Question.

Local bakers will meet the Board of Health on Tuesday next. It is rumored, but it is only a rumor that the bakers will ask that, instead of paper being wrapped round the loaves as delivered, that the city shall demand that each loaf shall be covered with Araphoe Indian blankets. This would the bakers claim, give the council a chance to put another mill on the dollar. The bakers claim that Araphoe blankets can be made for $4.13 each and that each might contain a design of the Lift Lock and pictures of aldermen who want to raise the price of bread in Peterborough. The bakers will, it is understood ask that all horses drawing baker's waggons fined in nets.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

To Cure Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrh or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c. worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist or granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one teaspoonful four times a day.

The first dose promptly ends the most distressing head noises, dullness cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are quickly overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh; therefore there are but few people whose hearing cannot be restored by this simple home treatment. Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c. to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, P. Q., who make a specialty of it.

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel all tired out —just try "TIZ" It's grand—Your feet will dance with joy; no more pain in corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.

Sporting Column

THE TIMES invites the use of this column by its readers who may wish to make any announcements or publish reports of sporting events.

The opening day, last Wednesday, in St. Thomas, proved a disappointment to the 3,500 fans who turned out, and to the Duke of Connaught and Princess Patricia; a steady downpour of rain cutting the game short with a score of 0—0. Worse luck still was in store for the Senators and Saints when their game of Thursday had to be postponed also, on account of rain. Yesterday (Friday) they succeeded in finishing their first game of the season.

What's the matter with Lindsay? The printers of Peterboro can put a nine in the field that would give a bunch of Lindsay type slingers the time of their lives. The chip is on our shoulder, Tom, what will you do?

On all sides yesterday were heard expressions of praise of the Petes showing in their opening game, and Curly Blount's squad came in for many eulogies from the fans in this city, who have been waiting with keen expectancy for the day when the pennant race should be started. That the team played errorless ball, and hit where hits were most needed, and fielded their positions like seasoned veterans, is a tribute alike to both Manager and players Peterboro has in Curly Blount, a general who will make his mark in the Canadian League circuit this season. The results of his progressive system of training were ever in evidence in Erie on Thursday, and the control he exercises over the men, and the way they receive his advice and profit thereby, shows his natural adaptation to the position he holds. The fans are behind you, Curly and are pleased with your work—immensely so. Here's luck, and may the best team win!

Lindsay Souls Detained

Lindsay Warder: "Riverside cemetery is looking fine this spring, and Manager Sabin has the grounds in very presentable shape. Two or three men are busily engaged cleaning up and levelling the grounds, and ere a week passes Riverside will be a very attractive spot. It is understood that the City of the Dead has now a population of over 3,000 souls." When these poor souls have been detained so long in that cemetery, why not name it Purgatory?

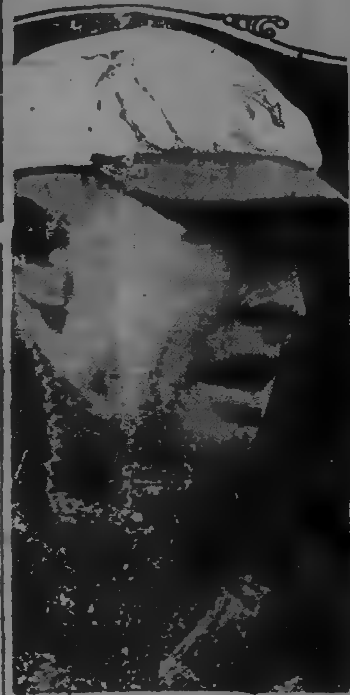
Ten thousand shade trees are to be planted in 192 streets in Toronto under the direction of the property department. The trees will be 6set thirty feet apart.

TOWNSHIP SMITH

COURT OF REVISION.

The members of the Council of the Township of Smith will meet as a Court of Revision of the Assessment Roll for 1914, in the County Council Chamber, Peterborough, on Friday, May 29th, at ten o'clock. All those having appeals will kindly govern themselves accordingly.

J. W. KELLY,
Clerk Tp. Smith.
Bridgenorth, May 5, 1914.



FRANK CHANCE

New York, May 9.—Frank Chance, manager of the New York American League team, went to Boston last night, fully recovered from an illness of a week, to resume active direction of his team. His appearance on the side lines ends the active managerial career of Captain Roger Peckinpaugh, who has directed the team in six games, only two of which were chalked up in the lost column.

Irwin Trout, the well-known catcher last year's Petes was at that position on the Toronto team in their initial performance in The Canadian League against London. Trout put up a great game; his throwing and fielding being errorless. At the bat he secured two hits—a double and a single. The game ended 4—3 for London.

"WILL CANADA HELP US?" CARSON'S CRY ANSWERED BY GREAT QUEEN'S PARK THRONG

Park Was Packed at 4 o'Clock in Afternoon by Monster Crowd of Demonstrators--Two Parades of Orangemen Meet on Avenue.

Special to the Times.

Toronto, May 10.—The Anti-Home Rule demonstration in Queen Park yesterday was a notable event, as itdemonstrated innouncertain way the attitude of Canada on the Home Rule question. Prolonged cheers that re-ecjoed and broke out again and again greeted the message from Sir Edward Carson. The last four words of the cablegram, "Will Canada Help Us?" were answered by "Yes" from every one of the 16,000 people when Mayor Hocken asked for an answer to the appeal from the Ulster leader.

A notaqle gathering of speakers and patrons were on the platform, including Mayor Hocken, Hon. Dr. Pyne, Controller Church, Captain Thomas Wallace, Sir John Willison, Dr. Chambers, Rev. John Coburn, Dr. Alan McKay, M.L.A., Hon. Thomas Crawford, Hon. Wallace Nesbitt and representatives of all the Orange Lodges in thecity.

The two processions that left the Orange Halls, one in the west and the other from Broadview avenue, did not come up to the expectations of the organizers, each mustering barely two thousand men and children. Uneventful trips were made over the advertised courses and except for an occasional taunt of "home rule for Ireland" from a riled Irishman very little notice was taken except by the usual line of curious, sympathetic and otherwise that lined the route.

The procession from the east was headed by a fife and drum band, and before the whole line had quieted it was more like the 12th of July than early spring. "No Home Rule For Ireland" was the motto that flared out from a hundred banners. and it was wildly cheered as it passed through the streets. A warm demonstration from the waiting crowd greeted the arrival of the speakers, and the first procession, when they mounted the band stand in the park.

Flag-waving and patriotism galore with a medley of Cook of the North and other Celtic tunes filled the air. Badges bearing the inscription "Oh, You Ulster," "Ulster Will Not Be Coerced," were distributed among the assembled thousands.

The following resolution was moved by Mr. W. D. McPherson, K.C., M.P.P., and seconded by Sir John Willison, and carried amid prolonged cheers:

"That this mass meeting of citizens of Toronto publicly assembled and presided over by his Worship the Mayor of Toronto, recognizing that the peace of Ireland, and indeed of the Empire, is in great and imminent peril by reason of the anticipated passage by the Imperial House of Commons of the third reading of the Government of Ireland Bill, and believing that the final enactment of such bill will inevitably lead to extreme dissension in Ireland and disaster to the Empire; the degradation of the citizenship of those citizens of Ulster and the other Provinces opposed to the said bill, and do irreparable injury to their material prosperity and harass them in the exercise of their civil and religious liberty, hereby enter our most emphatic protest against the establishment in Ireland of any form of government, different from that possessed by the other component parts of the United Kingdom, and particularly any institution, legislative or executive, which would mark Ireland as a nationality distinct from Great Britain. To such policy, whether called Home Rule or by whatever name it may be known, we remain unalterably opposed, and in view of the provision of the Parliament Act and the constitutional change created thereby, we believe the only course the Government can take which will command the general approval of the Empire will be a mandate from the British people following a general election. Until this question is dealt with in such fair, proper and constitutional method as to deserve the general assent of the citizens of the Empire, we assure our loyal fellow subjects in Ireland of our united and determined support, both moral and financial. in their struggle to maintain their rights of full citizenship under the flag of the great and glorious British Empire, of which we, as Canadians, are justly proud to form a part."

INSURGENTS RISE AGAINST HON. DR. REID ON REDISTRIBUTION, HE WAS TOO EASY

Conservative Members Complain That Ministers Agreed to Concessions They Will Not Stand For--Deadlock Within the Government.

Ottawa, May 10.—Hon. Robert Rogers, Hon. Dr. Reid and Mr. Fred [illegible]rdee of the House Redistribution Committee held a conference last night, and while no formal announcement followed, it is generally understood that a hopeless deadlock hasarisen respecting the Parliamentary Redistribution so far as Ontario is concerned. It isnot a deadlock between the two political parties, but an insurgent movement within the Government ranks against Dr. Reid. The Conservative members complain thatthe Minister of Customs, who represents Ontario on the Redistribution Committee, has been entirely too easy and has agreed to many concessions for which they will not stand.

The gossip is that the principal difficulty ranges around the Middlesex riding, North York and in Eastern Ontario. In Eastern Ontario there must be several districts disappear and the Conservatives had decided upon eliminating Brockville and Russell. Now it is reported that Russell is toremain and that a new Brockville riding will becreated, in which Hon. George P. Graham will have a chance. In the case ofNorth York it is said that Stouffville is to be put back into the riding to please the Liberals and give a betterchance for possible success to Hon. Mackenzie King.

There is no question but that there was something like an indignation meeting held Thursday night, in which a great mnoy Ontario Conservative members participated. They are said to have charged that the minister of customs, in order to retain intact his small riding of Grenville, had made many concessions to Pardee and the Liberals. They therefore called upon the Conservative members of the redistribution committee representing other provinces to intervene in their behalf in the case of the Ontario redistricting. One complaint is the division of Middlesex so as, to give Duncan Ross, Liberal, and Mr. Glass, Conservative, safe seats. Some of the Conservatives from that part of the province say that Middlesex should be so divided as to secure the return of two Conservatives, assuming that Mr. George Elliott, M.P., had a chance to contest on anything like equal terms the re-election of Mr. Ross.

The situation is a serious one and will result in either greatly prolonging the session or in shelving parliamentary redistribution till the next session.

ONTARIO CABINET HOLDS LONG MEETING OVER THE ELECTIONS

Altho No Official Statement Was Given Out, Generally Understood Either June 29 or July 6 Will Be Date

Toronto, May 10.—Early in the week, Ontario will know the date of the provincial elections. Following a protracted meeting of the Cabinet on Saturday, at which every minister with the exception of the Attorney-General was present, it was stated that the deliberations had reached the stage where an early announcement could be expected. The concensus of opinion on the part of those immediately conversant with affairs, apart from an authoritative statement, is that either June 29 or July 6 will be the date. The first of these will be selected if campaign incidentals can be arranged in time.

The usual fact of a council being called on Saturday afternoon, immediately following the session, gives ground for the belief that the Government is striving to open the polls in the summer season. The only matter which is understood to be delaying the announcement is the printing. The ballots have been on the press for some time, but much extra work is called for by the preparation for distribution of the election act. In some of the departments work is being rushed to allow a clean sheet when the campaign opens.

WILSON TO SELECT THREE MEDIATORS

List of Men Which He Will Choose From Given Out—No Hitch Expected

Washington, May 9.—President Wilson it was stated on high authority this afternoon, would select three representatives from the following list to confer with the A. B. C. mediators when they meet at Niagara Falls, Canada, on May 18.

Associate Justices Charles Evan Hughes and Joseph Rucker Lamar of the U.S. Supreme Court; Frederick W. Lehmann of St. Louis and Newton Diehl Baker, Mayor of Cleveland, Ohio.

Mayor Baker already has accepted a proffer from the president to act as a representative, and it is expected that Mr. Lehmann will accept by tomorrow. He was a luncheon guest at the White House to-day.

It is possible the president will name four representatives. The tentative selection of representatives and the announcement by the mediators that despite the developments of the last three or four days, they will proceed with their conference, and entertain high hopes of its being successful, were the most important features to-day in the mediation of the trouble between the United States and Gen. Huerta.

ANXIETY IN B. C. OVER C. N. R. CRISIS

Ottawa Asked That Province's Deal With Railway Be Not Repudiated.

Vancouver, May 9.—Wires between Victoria and Ottawa were kept warm yesterday while political leaders were trying to make some arrangements between the provincial and federal governments to avoid a very unpleasant crisis that is facing the administration in British Columbia. Friday the Board of Trade passed a resolution calling on the British Columbia Government to do something with Ottawa to see that the deal between Mackenzie and Mann and this province was not repudiated. Yesterday Sir Richard McBride and Hon. W. J. Bowser, the attorney General, took up the question with Premier Borden. If any result has been obtained it is not yet known here.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mostly fair and not much change in temperature.

PUT AN AGE LIMIT ON OPIUM SMOKING

Pekin, May 9.—Persons under 40 years of age are to be shot if found smoking opium at Chengtu, in the Province of Szchuen, after the expiration of a period of 21 days from to-day, according to a government announcement issued to-day. Those over forty are to be sentenced to terms of penal servitude.

The campaign against opium smoking has reached such a point that all opium smokers in the province are compelled to submit themselves to a course of treatment.

NO LIBERAL CANDIDATE

The Times is informed that there is not likely to be a Liberal candidate forthcoming at the approaching election for the Legislative Assembly. The record of the Conservative administration has been so satisfactory that many believe there is no chance for a Liberal, and it is said that the fight will likely be between a straight Conservative and an Independent if there is an opposition at all. The Liberals of this riding are not very well organized, either for candidates or for a fight.

TRIED TO BRAIN MAN ON KING ST.

Crowd, Horror-Stricken, Saw Two Men All But Murder Another Man in Broad Daylight

Toronto, May 9.—With blows being rained on his head from iron crowbars in the hands of Tony Jurch and Jim Pary, Macedonians, Dimitor Exajieff, a Bulgarian narrowly escaped being murderd when he was set upon by the two men on East King street near the corner of Power street, late Saturday afternoon. The assault took place in broad daylight and in the presence of a street full of people. The two Macedonians are now held on a charge of attempted murder, which may be changed to the more serious charge of murder if the condition of the Bulgargarian who was rushed in the Police Ambulance to the General Hospital does not improve.

The two men had become enraged at Exajioff following an attempt on their part to steal twelve dollars from the till of a Macedonian restaurant kept by Gebynoff Mitoff at 318 East King street, over which all three men room. The two men had obtained the money from the till and were walking out when the attention of the proprietor was called to them by Exajioff, and they were forced to give the money back again.

In the presence of scores of people who stood by, too horror-stricken to interfere, the two Macedonians set upon the Bulgarian on King street on Saturday afternoon with an iron crowbar more than three feet long. They struck the man on the head repeatedly with the heavy pieces of iron, knocking him to the ground, and when he would rise to his feet, struck him down again before he had a chance to escape.

Seeing what was taking place, W. Sienoff, a Servian butcher of 405 King street, directly opposite where the assault took place, rushed out of his store with a butcher knife and attempted to rescue Exajioff, but the Macedonians seemed not to take any notice of the waving butcher knife, and would undoubtedly have killed their victim had it not been for the fact that Sergt. Lydiatt of Wilton avenue police station, who was passing dashed in between the struggling men, and grabbing the two assailants held them until the arrival a moment later of Police Constable Williams.

SIXTY SHOCKS IN TWO DAYS GAVE WARNING TO THE FOLKS

People in Quake--Stricken Districts of Sicily Had Abandoned Homes and Fled Before Final Catastrophe

Catania, May 9.—Earthquakes and eruptions, followed by fire, destroyed many villages, and according to official reports caused the deaths of 135 people besides injuring 283 others. It was regarded as probable that the figures of dead and injured would prove to be much greater, as it is thought many were buried in the ruins. It is believed that a greater catastrophe was prevented by the fact that the final severe shock of earthquake had been preceded by 60 others during the past two days, and that many of the population had abandoned their houses and fled into the open country.

Railroad traffic was suspended, churches raised to the ground, houses shaken to ruins and telegraph poles overturned within a radius of several miles of Catania at the foot of Mount Etna, which displayed a very active mood. Terror stricken people rushed from the villages into Catania, bringing stories of ruin and disaster and relating that the damage was as great as during the earthquakes in 1908.

These reports caused the authorities to take steps, to start measures of relief. The army, the navy and the civil authorities received orders from the government to render mutual aid in the work of rescue and in giving surgical assistance, and their efforts were aided by those of the red cross. The difficulty of communication owing to the interruption of railroads and telegraph made it impossible to obtain an accurate estimate of damage and loss of life.

In the Village of Cosentini 20 bodies were discovered and at Santa Maria another 60. Several hamlets in the neighborhood of Acireale were devastated and a number of people killed and injured.

RUSSIAN IS HELD FOLLOWING FIRE

Oil-Soaked Rags Caused Suspicion of Police—Charged With Incendiarism

Toronto, May 9.—The arrest of Samuel Poncer, aged 43, a Russian Jew, was made on Saturday, following a fire which occurred at 47 Chestnut street at midnight on Friday and which the fire department claim to have been of incendiary origin.

An early discovery of the fire and the prompt response of the brigade resulted in the fire being put out before it had gained much headway and the damage was slight, but an investigation of the premises made afterwards revealed the fact that oil soaked rags had been set ablaze in three parts of the house.

The house was owned by Poncer's father, who a short time ago left on a trip to the old country and during his absence the son had been left in charge of the house, which is a brick front structure. Being found in the house on the arrival of the firemen, Poncer was later arrested on suspicion. In the meantime, Detectives Strohme and Koster are investigating the case.

UNITED STATES WILL NOT LACK SHIPS

Washington, May 9.—On receipt of information from American Consul Rogers at Havana that munitions consigned to General Huerta on German ships would be returned to Germany as a result of action by agents of the vessels. Secretary of State Bryan announced that apprehension concerning shipments of arms to the Huerta Government had been averted.

Washington, D.C. May 9.—Reports from all sections of mexico indicate that the Constitutionalists are gradually breaking down the Federal lines and that Gen. Villa soon should be in aposition to mobilise all his forces for an attack upon Huerta's stronghold.

MANY SAILINGS OF BIG OCEAN LINERS

Montreal, May 9.—A long string of the biggest ships in the St. Lawrence River route went down the river this morning. The Megantic cleared for Liverpool with a good load of passengers and freight. She was followed by the Cunarder Ausonia, en route for London and Southampton. Then the Allan Liner Grampian sailed for Glasgow and the Canadian liner Willehad for Rotterdam and Antwerp. The Donaldson line ship Athenia also sailed for Glasgow. Tomorrow the Sicilian will leave for London and the Montcalm for Liverpool.

London, May 9.—Lord Cadogan's horse, "The Curragh," won the great Jubilee Handicap at Kempton Park to-day. Blue Stone was second and Drimore third.

TWO JURORS QUIT IN BECKER TRIAL

New Panel on Hand Monday to Deal With Murderer of Rosenthal.

New York, May 9.—With eleven jurors in the box, the trial of Chas S. Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal was halted to-day until Monday morning. Twelve jurors were in the box last evening, but two were excused to-day and work was begun to select two talesmen to fill their places. One man—Jesse G. Velie—was chosen, but the panel was exhausted before the twelfth man could be agreed upon. A new panel will be on hand Monday morning.

YOUR MOTHER'S APRON STRINGS

The phrase provokes a smile, for it has been used as a twit of sarcasm. It is flung at some brave youth who shakes his head when they ask him to take a walk into the by-paths that incline towards the precipice. "Come along! Come in and take something. No? Huh, you're still tied to your mother's apron strings, are you?" And the young man hangs his head as if half sorry that it is true.

Hold up your head, young fellow; it is a compliment they are unconsciously paying you. Never mind, those apron strings belong to the most beautiful raiment on earth. Your mother's apron deserves a place at the Toronto Exhibition. Some of our money kings could point to it and say: "That was what held me as a piece of scaffolding." Mother may have been poor, she may have been rich. She may have done all the work, or had the assistance of one, two or three maids, but the time you thought her handsome was when, in the early morning, you found her downstairs with her apron donned, ready to work for you. That apron was her insignia of office, her toga as queen of home. It may have been a great piece of architecture, reaching from the chin to the feet, with ruffles and frills; may have been made by her own fingers or bought at a Ladies' Aid bazaar at famine prices. It may have been dainty and small, to match her quaint head-dress, just large enough to hold your tired head. But it was beautiful, whether made of cheapest calico or finest silk. It was grander than all the robes of King Solomon's palace, more luxurious than Cleopatra's choicest gown, richer far than the coronation robe of the Empress Josephine. Worth never made such a garment. Mrs. Howard Gould's endless array of dresses are soiled rags beside it. For that apron was a badge of your mother's goodness.

What a good woman your mother was! What good people mothers are, the world over! You didn't altogether realise it then. You were so used to mother's goodness, you never fully appreciated it until you had gone out into the world, and you are to be forgiven for not quite knowing your own mother's heart. Some folks live together a life-time without knowing each other's real virtues.

Chaplain McCabe, the great Methodist money-raiser, used to tell of a well-to-do old couple who entertained him over Sunday in a flourishing rural community in Ohio where he was raising money for frontier church work. On Monday morning the old farmer's wife called him out into the kitchen to say, "Now, Chaplain, you know we gave you $10 for your good cause yesterday, but I do feel that that isn't nearly all we ought to give. But my husband never was much of a giver. Now, I've saved $50 from butter and eggs without his knowin', and I want you to take it. Here it is, but don't tell him, for he's stingy, you know, though he has a good heart." The chaplain had hardly put the bills into his vest pocket when the old farmer himself put in an appearance, looking just a little glum. Dr. McCabe was fearful lest the conversation had been overheard, and his suspicions were seemingly confirmed by a rather embarrassing silence during breakfast, and an invitation, shortly afterwards, to step outside.

"Chaplain," whispered the old man, when they had reached the woodshed, "I want to tell you something. I feel I ought to do something more for these Nebraska churches. This $60 is for a dug-out chapel, but for goodness' sake don't say a word about it to Betsy, for she's drefful close-fisted."

Now, you see, they had lived with each other forty years, and yet had never seen the best room in each other's hearts. But time has given you a perspective view of your mother's graces, and you know her better to-day than you did when you were daily with her, though you have not heard her voice for years, even though oceans sweep between you and mother's cottage door. To-day it all comes back to you.

Mothers are the best policemen on earth. God keeps the world orderly by giving people children to love and nourish and guard. The moment that heretofore care-free young maiden holds in her arms her firstborn babe, she becomes the guardian of the morals of the street.

Mother knows, by instinct, what is harmful. She does not need to have a close acquaintance with the great world's sins. The mother hen need not know the hawk's nesting-place, nor fly as high as the sharp-clawed enemy of her brood, in order to warn her chicks when an ominous shadow flits across the barnyard. Neither need your mother be familiar with grill-room and gambling-hall to advise you against questionable resorts and wicked companions.

These apron strings are durable. They wear a lifetime. There never will come a time when you can do without them. It is a mistake to try to shake them off, even after you leave home.

Is she still alive? Then let me congratulate you; a man is never old while his mother is in the flesh. The finest letter you will get this year of grace will come along about stubble time. It will begin with some comparatively trivial matters and then hurry along to where the plot begins: "We heard from John's folks the other day. They are all coming to see us over the holidays. So we are fattening two turkeys for Christmas dinner." Enough said! She need not even ask you to come, in so many words. But has made a trolling line of her apron string, tied the letter to it as a hook, baited the hook with turkey, and is flinging it at you across a dozen counties or a half-dozen provinces. And at Christmas time, she'll haul it in, with her boy at the other end. You'll go down to the depot and stand in the long line of people buying holiday-rate tickets, and your heart will almost leap out of your body, for mother's apron strings are tugging away. They will tow you on the train, along the track, pull you off at the little country station, hurry the sleigh over the snow to the old homestead, draw you into your mother's arms.

Oh, my boy, my boy, let her throw her apron string like a lasso from where she is, out in the country, to your boarding house in the great city. It is her right, it is your privilege. Let her advice be honored. Her counsel is for your good. Of all admirers, she is the one most interested in your welfare. She may not be strictly up-to-date, but she is your very best friend, young man.

Long after she is dead, those strings will still endure. They give you a sort of long-distance telephone connection with the House of Many Mansions. Crossing a Canadian lake one summer evening, we were singing old-fashioned songs as a sort of safety valve to the enthusiasm of vacation time. One chorus ran:

"Sweet Belle Mahone, sweet Belle Mahone,
Wait for me at Heaven's gate, sweet
Belle Mahone."

A fine old gentleman with swarthy beard sang heartily. As we finished, the tears were streaming down his cheeks; he grasped my hand and leading me aside, said: "Pastor, I sang that song at home forty years ago. Mother liked it, and used to hum it at her work. One day, after I went west, I got a letter saying, 'Mother died last night. Her message to you was, "Tell Ben I'll wait for him at Heaven's gate, like sweet Belle Mahone."' And, pastor, I've tried, ever since, to live so that I could finally meet her there."

So to-day you have the memory of her goodness, as the fragrance of roses distilled in a vial long after the flowers are chilled by Jack Frost's breath. Is it not worth while? You may miss her physical presence even now, but you can never be robbed of the holy influences that her life has shed upon your way. And I care not how uncouth, how unlettered, your parents may have been, if they were faithful to the children over whom they were appointed guardians by the great Father above, your best heirloom is the memory of their life.

Then, besides being durable, mother's apron strings are strong. "Tied to mother's apron strings" is a significant phrase, for no tether ever held a colt more securely.

One summer day I saw a little chubby baby boy literally tied to his mother's apron strings. It was in front of a little shack, and the young English housewife had tied the wee fellow to the railing in front of the house, giving him about six feet of tether. There he was, with the apron string stretched tight, for he seemed bound to get away. He was vainly endeavoring to grasp a broken bottle just out of his reach. A little further on was a mud puddle that would have made a fine addition to his morning's play—and also to the family washing. And still further was a flight of hard street steps over which he might have fallen, if left untied. I thought, "There's the point; mother's apron strings keep us from the broken glass of improper appetite, from the mire of wallowing associations, and from the precipices of headlong wickedness."

Ah, there are holy tethers that bind a man to decency!

What keeps you as good as you are? Did you ever stop to think? There are some trespasses that from the point of desire would not be distasteful to you. Why is it that you have avoided them? Perhaps for the highest reason, you love the good! Or almost equally high is the thought that goodness is well pleasing to God. Perhaps you are not that far on; you simply remember that it pays to be good. Or you may say, "I am walking in the eye of God. God sees me and I must behave myself." Or lower still, yea, lowest of all reasons; you are afraid of police, jail and hell. That motive of itself never kept many people good very long.

But outside of the entire gamut of these reasons, there are girders that hold a man steady, like the girders that keep together the framework of a house. You are a beam in a social structure, and social girders bind you to goodness, and confirm you in virtuous habits.

There is the respect of a community, for instance. One of the advantages of a permanent residence is that the good opinion of his neighbors will hold many a man in check, who, if he stood entirely alone, might go into excesses. Then, there is the "burden of a family" as some very thoughtless folks call it. The ballast of a family would be far more expressive. To be kept steady by the burdens of mouths to feed and bodies to clothe is really a blessing to many of us.

But somebody's love is the strongest and best tether of all. O man, the love of a wife, the love of a mother, the love of a child, hold you in check. These are the tethers that bind a man to decency.

I know a man who, years ago, had been leading a dissipated life. He suddenly changed his habits, quit drinking, began to work hard, saved his money, went into business and has become comparatively wealthy. One day I met him on the street about lunch time and he took me into his auto, saying, "Parson, you'll break bread with me to-day." So we went sailing out to his house.

On the verandah was an invalid's chair, from which stretched two long, thin arms to greet that man. The poor hunchbacked girl had settled so low in the pillows that I almost thought it was an infant lying there, until those disproportioned arms were lifted up. But what a face of love was hers! That big man let his neck be squeezed and his cheeks caressed, until his voice became soft as he whispered, "Papa's treasure!"

As we passed into the house, he said, "Brother Stauffer, that poor child has been the making of me. It is seven years ago now, and she was ten years old. I came home one evening, sullen from drink and discouraged with business cares. I noticed that she was depressed, and I urged her to tell me what was worrying her. She said, 'Well, papa dear, I've been praying for you all day. I've been asking God to change your heart and take away the taste of drink. And oh, dear papa, don't be angry, but I've been so afraid you would become a drunkard, and then what would happen to your poor crippled girl?' Then she cried, 'I can't walk, you know, and I can't work. Oh, dear, why did God make me crippled?' 'To have you love me and make me a good man,' I cried. And from that day on, I have never touched liquor. I started out to save my money in order that my motherless child should never come to want. I can see it all now. My crippled girl is here to keep me straight; I couldn't live without her; she's my guardian angel."

* * *

They are long those strings of mother's apron. You would almost think they were made of elastic. What is the longest line in the world? The C.P.R., you answer. It extends from Halifax, Nova Scotia, to Vancouver, British Columbia. Wrong. The longest line in the world is mother's clothes-line; it stretches from pole to pole. The young fellow who inflicted that riddle on me might have guessed again, for on that clothes-line waved his mother's apron strings, stretching from the cradle to the grave, from childhood's merry days to the decrepitude of old age. They reach across continents, and are as cables beneath the seas. They stretch to the summit of the loftiest mountain and dangle across the lowest hell.

"If I were hanged on the highest hill,
I know whose love would follow me still,
O, mother o' mine, O, mother o'
mine.

"If I were drowned in the deepest sea,
I know whose tears would come down
me,
O, mother o' mine, O, mother o'
mine.

"If I were damned of body and soul
I know whose prayers would make me whole,
O, mother o' mine, O, mother o'
mine.

At the end of those strings is sometimes tied a Bible with this written in stiff handwriting on the fly-leaf: "From mother, to James." Somebody tells of an English boy who journeyed to far-off Australia. He grew careless, and never even took from his trunk the little Bible his mother had given him. Work being slack, he had to write home for money. His mother's letter, in answer, was full of news and counsel, but without the remittance he so much needed. A postcript said: "Be sure to read your Bible, James." He wrote again, chided his parents' neglect and pleaded for immediate help. Another letter told of home incidents, the friendly enquiries of old neighbors and the love they all sent him. Then another postcript, reading: "See Psalms 119: 18." He threw down the letter and burst into tears. His parents were deserting him. In his extremity he fell on his knees and prayed. It reminded him of his religious neglect, and he rose to reach for the Book. In curiosity he sought for the verse to which his mother had referred him. He read, "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things—" He turned the page for the next word, and there pinned to the leaf, was a twenty-pound bank-note!

Open it to-day, my friend, and in mother's Bible you will find the counsel that will in the end bring to you all the help you require.

Can mother's apron strings be broken? Yes, but you will have to deliberately cut them. Satan furnishes the shears for that awful task. But if you once sever them, I fear that nothing else will ever hold you to decency. There is a law of character, says good old Austin Phelps, whereby the wickedness of a man is proportioned to the holy influences he has overcome. When the son of good parents completely breaks the tether of his goodly tutelage, he falls even lower than the children of the religiously indifferent. Simon Legree was offered his last chance to come back to goodness when he received the letter telling him of the death of the mother he had struck in his anger on leaving home. She forgave him freely, the message said, and had directed that a lock of her hair should be sent to him as a token of her love. Simon tore up the letter with an oath and threw the white curl into the fire. From that day his heart grew harder and his life more depraved. He had cast from him the last life-line of maternal love.

Oh, my brother, your mother's apron strings dip down from Heaven to-night; grasp them now. Mother's love is an earnest of the love of mother's God. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you." The Heavenly Father says it, and He is even more compassionate than any mother can be. He wants you to come home. You have often heard of mothers leaving the door unlocked and the light lit, hoping year after year that the prodigal would return. It is not difficult in the light of those evidences of unquenchable love, to believe that Heaven's gate will stand open, waiting for the last sin-stained, grief-laden, repentant son of grace to stagger in.

I have a brother living in a suburb of St. Louis, Missouri. The 'Frisco Railway skirts the back end of his five-acre lot. His wife's brother was brought to his home to die of a lingering disease. The sick man had with him his patient wife and an unmanageable boy of thirteen. Scolding and whipping had little effect on the lad, and one day, after cutting up afresh, he ran away. The neighborhood was scoured in vain. The newspapers helped in the search; circulars describing the missing boy were mailed to the postmasters within a hundred miles, but all of no avail. Conjectures ran all the way from drowning to kidnapping. The poor mother could do little but hope and pray.

Finally, from far-off Indian Territory came a postal card reading:

"Dear Ma: I ran away with tramps, but am all alone now. I am willing to come home. If you won't scold and Uncle Stauff won't whip me, I'll come. I'll ride into St. Louis on a 'Frisco freight train, or walk. If you promise, hang out a white sheet from Uncle's back porch, and I'll see it.

"Your son,
"Arthur."

Think you that mother lost any time? Can't you guess right now that there were sheets enough out there on that porch next morning to start a Jarvis street boarding-house? And don't you suppose that those sheets looked radiantly beautiful to the penitent as he was hanging on to the brakes of a freight car whirling into town that day? Why, these sheets were the tokens of his mother's apron strings. They said: "Come home, sonny boy!" They said: "No spanking to-day, my boy." They said: "Uncle's whip is broken, laddie, and your mother has cried so much, she's forgotten how to scold; come home, come home." And those sheets kept on flopping their welcome until the little prodigal was in his mother's arms.

So calls mother's God through the voice of mother's love.

Like us, Nature must have her washing days, hence there is no use to complain about the April rains.

The Globe remarks that "a woman no longer stoops to conquer." Of course she don't. She would rip her skirt if she did.

A Weak Plea

Roman Catholic journals upon this continent still keep up their bitter onslaught upon ex-Mayor Nathan, of Rome, who has been appointed Italian Royal Commissioner to the Panama - Pacific Exposition of 1915. So far as we can judge from the Freeman's Journal. Mr. Nathan's chief offence is that he has taken occasion to refer to the Pope and the papal authorities as opposed to national enlightenment and progress; but this objection would lie against very many other Italians also. Does it not strike our friends that the right way would be to appeal to the Italian Government, to the one which is Roman Catholic, rather than to the United States Government, which is not Roman Catholic. If Nathan is satisfactory to the Roman Catholics of Italy, why should the Protestants of America object?

Decrease in Canada's Trade

For some years Canada's trade returns have been remarkable for their rapid and sustained advances. It has been Canada's "growing time" and the growth has been phenomenal. Even this year, i.e., the year ending March, 1914, there is really an increase, the expansion over last year being $27,697,554, the total trade reaching $1,073,766,098. But the increase the preceding year was about $218,000,000, so that this year fails to maintain the pace hitherto set in our trade expansion. And there is this significant fact that this year:s increase is due to the early months of the year, the latter months showing a decided falling off. and March 1914, falling behind March, 1913, to the extent of over $22,080,000. The exports for the year increased to the extent of over $78,000,000, while the imports declined by over $51,000,000. The decrease in trade began to show itself in October last, and has been steadily been steadily becoming more pronounced. No one dreams that his drop in trade returns can be anything more than temporary, but it is well that we should recognize the fact. and that we should meet it by prident management and, where necessary, by wise retrenchment. Most of us hoped that by this time trade would have regained its customary buoyancy, but we are face to face with the fact that it has not done so. and that international conditions exist which to say the least, are not favorable to the hope that it will do so for some months to come. and wise men will do well to well to bear these facts in mind. There is no need of panic. But there is need of caution.

Knee Joint Stiff Three Years

CURED BY NERVILINE

Anyone would marvel at my recovery, writes Mr. Leonard Lotham, a young man well known about Chatham. I had inherited a rheumatic tendency through my mother's family, and in my early days suffered frightfully. About three years ago the pain and stiffness settled in my left knee joint. I was lame and walked with a very distinct limp. Nerviline was brought to my notice and I rubbed it into the stiff joint four or five times a day. It dispelled every vestige of pain, reduced the swelling, took out the stiffness and gave me the full use of my limb again. I don't believe there is a pain-relieving remedy, not a single liniment that can compare with Nerviline. I hope every person with pains, with sore back, with lameness, with lumbago, with neuralgia— I do hope they will try out Nerviline which I am convinced will quickly and permanently cure them."

If Nerviline wasn't a wonderful painless remedy, if Nerviline didn't quickly relieve, if Nerviline wasn't known to be a grand cure for all rheumatic conditions, it wouldn't have been so largely used as a family remedy for the past forty years. No better, stronger, or more soothing liniment made. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; small trial size 25c; sold by any dealer, anywhere.

Some Statistical Facts About British Columbia

British Columbia has an area of about 253,000,000 acres, of which about 1,600,000 acres is composed of lakes in the interior. There are over 100,000 acres of timber land of no value for farming other than for stock purposes, and while it is estimated that 3,000,000 acres are either under cultivation or partly so, statistics show that the actual yielding acreage, other than for grazing purposes, is not more than 50,000 acres.

It is stated that with the exception of Siberia, Brazil and the Northwestern United States, British Columbia's timber wealth is unparalleled in any other country. The investigations of the forestry branch show that there are not less than 100,000,000 acres of forest land in British Columbia and that the total stand of commercial timber amounts to about 300,000,000,000. Taking the present lumber out of the province as a basis of figuring, which is about 1,250,000,000 feet per annum, and making no allowance for annual growth, it would take nearly 150 years to use up merely the mature timber now standing.

In the production of copper British Columbia stands first among the provinces, the output amounting to more than a third of that of all Canada. Fishing is one of the province's chief industries, and the vessels of all kind which enter Vancouver total up to over ten thousand per year.

THE WESTERN SPIRIT

This Philosopher Ready to Prove There is no Blood in a Stone

The following letter to an eastern loan company from a Saskatchewan client, was published in a leading financial publication. It speaks for itself:

"Dear Sirs:—In reply to your letter I must say that I can not pay you the interest on your mortgage this year.

"You seem to think you can make me pay this as you state in your letter that you will not allow it to remain. How shall I pay when I have not got it? You can make extension till next year or not just as you please, there are millions of acres of unoccupied land out here. And what good is it to us farmers anyway, we only get a poor living from it, and if you are not satisfied with the way I am running your property out here come and run it yourself. You threatened before to foreclose; why did not you? I am getting tired of waiting for it.

"I would advise you to wait till next year as you will get at least one more year's interest.

"Why is it that you fellows that produce nothing and do nothing useful own everthing, and we that produce everything own nothing?

"You seemed to think that my last letter was too short, perhaps this will suit you better.

Yours, etc.,

"P.S.—You can answer this letter or not as you please."

Canadian Grape Fruit

A fine specimen of grape fruit and weighing 29 ounces was produced at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, and the horticultural department there proved that this article of diet can be successfully produced here in green houses. While an occasional specimen has been grown by private people, it was not generally known that it could be grown here. This fruit equalled the flavor of that grown in southern latitudes. The plant from which this fruit was grown was bought in the nurseries in New Jersey ten years ago but went nine years without bearing.

Shooting Oil Wells

Keen interest is being taken in the development of the Manitoulin oil fields by Senator Poirer and representatives from all the chief centres on the Island assembled at Green Bay to witness the shooting of some of the wells. E. A. Stokes, of Petrolea, was on hand, and a fuse was lighted and a sharp shock was felt and the earth trembled, from the mouth of the pipe a greyish liquid shot into the air to a height of about eighty feet and fell gracefully to the ground. This was followed immediately by a second gush of a watery liquid which ascended to a height of about a hundred feet. About fifteen quarts of nitro-glycerine were used in shooting the well.

STUDENT WAS GUILTY

Yale Student Tells Court He Had Been Drinking—Mind Blank—Fined $200.

New Hanen, May 9.—Stanhope W. Nixon, a former prominent Yale student, and a son of Lewis Nixon of New York, was late today found guilty, in the city court, or a technical charge of breach of the peace, in connection with the assault upon Edward W. Everit, chief engineer of a telephone company, on Oct. 21, 1913. Juhge O'Meara imposed a fine of $200 and costs. Notice of an appeal was filed.

Nixon went on the stand in his own behalf and frankly said that on the night in question he had been drinking with other students and his mind was a blank to what had occurred He declared that his alleged statement to detectives was in no sense a confession.

He could not deny that he made the assault, he said, because he could not remember anything that had happened.

Counsel for the defense sought to have the alleged confession excluded, but the judge admitted it. Four students testified that they had seen Nixon near a fraternity house at the time the assault is said to have taken place.

Throughout the trial today the court room was crowded with Yale students, many sitting cross-legged on the floor. Nixon, until his recent withdrawal from college, was a member of exclusive societies and a varsity oarsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Nixan were in court and were visibly affected by their son's testimony.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

Hints on Beauty Culture

Popular Droop Figure Injurious to Health

By MAGGIE TEYTE

Prima Donna of the Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company.

MAGGIE TEYTE

IF YOU find that you are growing short, it is high time that you began to exercise. Age manifests itself by shortening the stature of its victim as quickly as by the lines in the face and the "silver threads among the gold."

If you would fight the approach of age, and it is the present day idea to deny every state of being but youth and the prime of life, you must stand correctly. If you want to droop in the foolish way of the moment, why do so, knowing that you will have just so much more work to do when the fad passes, as pass it will, and feminine backs retain the position of uprightness.

Do you know the secret of the everlasting youth of that famous beauty, Ninon de l'Enclos?

It was her perfectly erect carriage which made the lines of her figure always young. So delightfully youthful was this interesting lady that her rivals, driven desperate by her perennial charms, circulated the report that she was somewhat bewitched and that she had made a secret compact with the devil by which she was to retain her youth fadeless to the end.

You must have a straight line for your back. The present day spine awakens compassion. It looks so like a bad case of double curvature. It may be tolerated in the very young miss, whose bones are supple enough to be remoulded before any permanent injury is done. But for the mature woman it is the foundation of old age, likewise of no end of discomfort and needless fatigue.

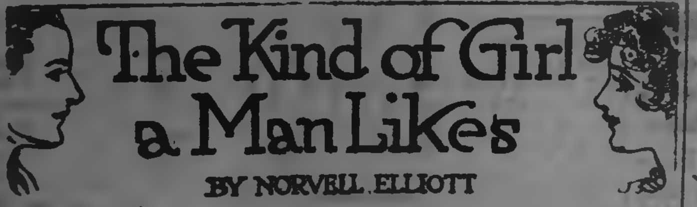
The instant you let your chest drop, you lessen your efficiency. The chest is the seat of courage. Drop your chest and you lose faith in yourself. Expand it, pull it up and out in the place it has a right to be and you are by 50 per cent. gainer in belief in your ability. It also makes you look taller and it fights old age with its natural droop as nothing else will do.

When you have your chest raised, raise your head. Let the faddists stick theirs out like a stork, or a crane, or in any way that pleases them, but please, dear sister of mine, find your own balance and keep it.

This is the time of the year when you want to take special care of your health as well as your good looks. Dress warm enough for comfort and not have that half-frozen look which would arouse pity if we noticed it on some poor waif, but is quite as distressing to unprejudiced eyes when it comes from no petticoats, gauze stockings and thin pumps.

For the woman who has her heated motor whenever she goes out, this way of dressing is all right. But I am talking to the girl who has to walk or depend upon the cars, and who is exposed to the weather every day, and whose living depends upon her health. Such girls need clothes enough to keep them warm. Woollen underwear is a great comfort and a great beautifier. And you may sniff in disdain and turn up your pretty noses all you please at the statement. But if you think there is any beauty in blue lips and red noses and bodies that are all hunched up in spite of the furs about the neck and hands, you are mistaken. You can't be comfortable with cold shivers running up and down your spine, even if the buckles on your shoes are solid gold.

And you can't feel pleasant when you are shivering. And you can't have any radiant beauty when your body and mind are both in discomfort.



The Kind of Girl a Man Likes

BY NORVELL ELLIOTT

The Business Girl.

I GLANCED at my tiny ivory clock. The hands pointed to 7. Then I looked expectantly at the 'phone. It was his time for calling—either to make an engagement, or to talk over the occurrences of the day. Prompt to the minute the bell rang. My bachelor friend's voice came clearly over the wire.

"Hello: that you, lass? Anything to do this evening?...Just where I'm going myself...Wanted to take you along...Burt beat me to it?...Bad luck to him! Had a busy day?...That's great!...My cold?...Getting along pretty well...that rock and rye fixed me up in good shape. ...Mother kissed me when I came in and from the look in her eyes I knew she thought I'd done something shocking... Yes, I told her you were responsible—when she calmed down immediately...

"Me?...I've spent a hum-drum day of it—little out of the ordinary...One incident you'll appreciate...Dropped in at the Flemmings late this evening to deliver a package from mother. You know the Flemmings, widow and two daughters. Since they lost their money Mrs. Flemming and Hazel have been running the home end of things and Mary Flemming has been bringing in the money for the family...When I ran by this evening I found Mrs. Flemming and Hazel in great distress...No, not greatly dressed—great distress...

"It seems Mary insists on their keeping a family account book—she gives them a budget for expenses and they are expected to 'live' within it...This week things haven't panned out well—and Hazel and her mother were almost crying because it was time for Mary to come in and the accounts were not balanced. They asked me to help them get their bills straightened out, for it seems Mary gets thoroughly provoked unless everything is O. K...Harsh in her?... Now, lass, you know that isn't true—Mary is right. She has learned by hard experience what it means to go out and work and have her little salary wasted because Hazel and her mother refuse to put the home end on a systematic basis...

"Mary came in a minute or two after I did. She was calm, resourceful, with a wonderful reserve of patience. In less time than it takes to tell that girl had added up the collection of bills, checked them off, and found the flaw in the machinery...Mrs. Flemming complained she would be ill if Mary continued to insist on balanced accounts; Hazel asked me if I thought it was necessary...What did I say?...What any sane man of today who knows the value of dollars and cents would—that Mary was right, of course...Mary gave me a very grateful look and laughed understandingly.

"All the way over home I've been thinking what a great girl Mary is...A knowledge of business nowadays is as essential for a woman as it is for a man. Mary will make a fine wife...when the right man comes...She knows the value of money, and through her business career has learned one of the great lessons of modern life—the importance of system in even the smallest things.

"Speaking of business, lass, did you get the bids on your furnace today?... Good!...Which?...Of course...I forgot you were going out...I've been thoughtless to keep you so long. Wear that soft, goldy thing of yours. I'll enjoy looking at you across space, even if I can't be your escort...Good-by..."

As I brushed out my hair and massed it into its conventional coil about my head I thought over that scrap of a telephone conversation with my bachelor friend. It used to be men only cared for the doll baby, butterfly type of girl. And the doll baby, butterfly type flourished amazingly under their approval. Funny how ideas change. Little did my bachelor friend's great-grandfather, the famous Gen. LaRue, dream a descendant of his would not only approve of but thoroughly admire a woman who could earn her own living, manipulate her own railroad stock—and find it easy work handling a bank account!

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have the nicest brother in the world. He is very intelligent, and just as good as he can be, but he's always trying to show off. Whenever I introduce him to any one, he tries to be funny and say smart things, and I get so mad at him I could shake him. I do wish you'd say something about people like that, and I'll get him to read it. Maybe he'd pay some attention to it if it was printed in a newspaper.

SISTER.

HOW old is brother, sister—somewhere between 21 and 27? If he is, I wouldn't worry about the "showing off." Every man in the world has a showing-off side in his life—that's the old primal male of him getting to the front. Haven't you ever seen a rooster strut around the barnyard, just to make all the hens cluck excited comments on his glory and splendor?

That's what brother is doing, sister. He wants all the ladies to cluck over him; he doesn't know it, but that's all that's the matter with him.

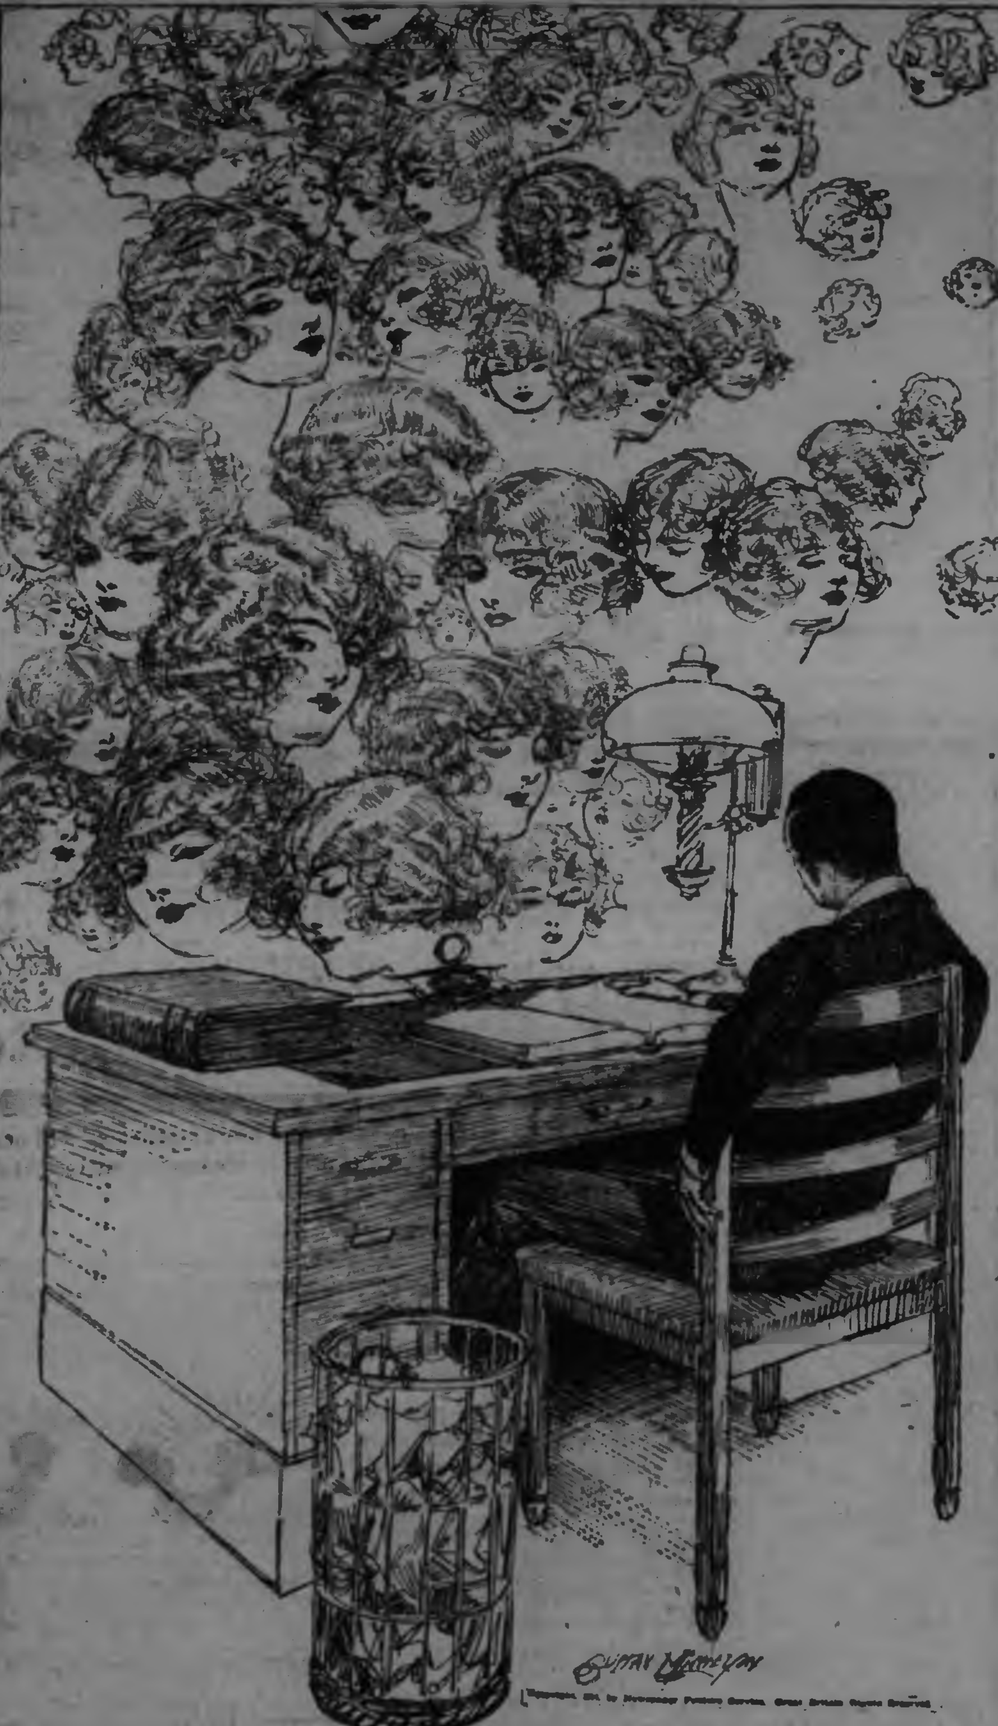
Poor fellow, some day he'll get over the "rooster" period of his life. Then he'll turn red all over every time he thinks of it.

In the meantime the only thing you can do is to grin and bear it—and be sure you grin all the time you're bearing it. That's the important part.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiries on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her care this office.

HARD STUDY :: By MICHELSON



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

SHOULD you be sorry for this young man? Or should you congratulate him? You should sympathise, certainly, with the torture of his effort to concentrate on that law book with such distracting visions in his mind.

On the other hand, you can't but feel that he is well off to find such charming spectres before his mind's eye.

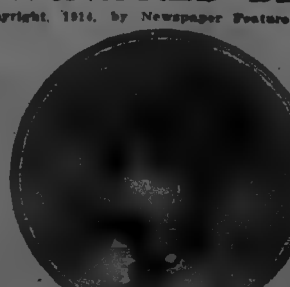
Rich young man! Dreams of wealth could have no such tantalizing fascination. Yet to realize on this sort of riches he must dig into the law book and WIN OUT. Rich visions like these COST MONEY sooner or later. That one face that is there somewhere will mean obligations, effort, steadfastness, conquest—and the kind of home that rightly frames that sort of face.

So you may guess the conflict in the mind of this young man. He has HARD STUDY ahead of him. He knows it. Yet the faces WILL keep floating into his thought. He is up against the eternal problem.

One of Nature's Successes

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service.



Winifred Black

ONCE upon a time the poet married the business woman—and all the friends of both the bride and groom threw up their hands in horror.

"How can that woman ever stand living with that man," said the people who had known the bride ever since she put pennies in the savings bank, and loved to count how many of them there were—just for the jingle.

"He's always in debt, he never knows where his hat is; he'll bring home the queerest kind of people to dinner; and she'll have to hang on to his arm all the time to keep him from stumbling while his head is in the clouds. Poor thing, what a mistake she's making."

The friends of the poet were chilled with horror at the very idea of the marriage.

"What!" they whispered thrillingly, each to each. "What! Our genius mate with such a plodder! Why, it's Pegasus yoked with an ox of the field; it's a skylark mated to a spotted quail. What happiness can he find in such a frightful slavery as will be his? She'll go to sleep when he's reading her his verses; she'll take one of his sonnets to light the fire; she'll expect him to add and subtract like a bank clerk—poor fellow—poor poet! His heart will break in six months."

And, strange to say, both sets of friends were perfectly right.

The poet was absolutely miserable with his practical wife, and the practical wife was bored almost to madness by her visionary husband.

They lived together, somehow, anyhow—for 10 years. And then they separated, each so glad to get rid of the other that there wasn't even a pretense of regret at the last meeting.

A failure—an utter and complete failure, that marriage? Not the least little bit in the world—a success, a splendid, shining, magnificent success in the only sense in which nature cares to reckon at all.

The poet was miserable, his wife was wretched—but I met the three children of the pair the other day.

A tall boy with the eyes of a saint and the resolute mouth of a practical man of affairs. A sweet girl with her father's dreamy smile and her mother's bright look of practical ability. A chubby little rascal with the brow of the dreamer and the square set shoulders of the man who will make his own way in the world with no one to hold him by the arm to keep him from stumbling.

A success, that marriage, as nature calls it, a great and splendid success.

Nature knew what she was doing when she called those two absolutely unlike people and said to them, "I need a new type—yours is outworn in your family and generation—come and be miserable together for my sake and for the sake of the splendid children your very unlikeness will give to the world.

"Happy—why should you be happy? Who are you, anyway? Nothing but individuals.

"It is the race I care for—and the race alone. Come. The race needs your sacrifice."

I wonder if that isn't what nature is trying to do so many times when we look at what seems to be an ill assorted match, and can't imagine what on earth induced those two particular people ever to marry.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

"Snow Blindness" Seldom Comes from Real Snow

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins)

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg.

DR. L. K. HIRSHBERG

HAVE you ever had snow blindness? The winds may blow and the sun may shine, yet you may suffer this annoyance.

Like many other complaints, such as "malaria," which has nothing directly to do with either bad air or badness, snow blindness is not necessarily associated with either blindness or with snow.

Odd as it may sound, snow blindness is a lamentably neglected ailment in America, the land of the great medical achievements. Ask the next man you meet whether he ever heard of snow blindness. Ten chances to one he will think you are jesting. If he happens to be that one, he will say: "Huh! we only have snow two or three times around our way. Nobody ever has snow blindness."

Many ocular maladies in the winter which pass in medical coinage for "pink eye," "conjunctivitis," "inflamed lids," "sore eyes" and a horde of nomadic maladies, are really acute infections induced by the reflected glare of snow or ice.

Snow blindness is the scourge of the arctic explorer and the dread of the far northerner. It is not, however, unknown in the far South. Wherever a thin sheet of ice or a white coating of snow may form; wherever hoar-frost, or a hail and ice storm has prevailed, there the eye inflammations known as snow blindness may appear.

Goggles Often Used.

Even despite the danger of snow blindness, no small boy can be suppressed from his song of:

"A cheer for the snow—the drifting snow;
Smoother and purer than Beauty's brow;
The creature of thought scarce likes to tread
On the delicate carpet so richly spread.
With feathery wreaths the forest is bound,
And the hills are with glittering diadems crowned;
'Tis the fairest scene you can have below.
Sing, welcome, then, to the drifting snow!"

White, the shimmer, and mirrored glow does not truly blind, the reflected glare contains so many ultra-violet rays that there lurks almost the same capacity for visual mischief in the dazzling snow as in the ultra-violet rays from certain arc-lights.

Those who have read the Canadian snow stories of Jack London, Leo Crane and George Bronson-Howard may recall that the sensible northerners use hood-winks, eye-covers and smoked glass goggles to protect their eyes from snow blindness. Ordinary eyeglasses and spectacles cut down the strength of the ultra-violet rays, because plain glass always does this. Ruby glass or pale garnet glasses would be decidedly better. Just as a photographer cuts out the chemical rays of light by having red windows and red lamps in his dark room, those who are much in the winter sun should wear red spectacles.

It is now plain for the first time that the noonday sun itself on a cold wintry day may induce "snow blindness" by virtue—or vice—of the invisible ice particles and fragments of moisture in the air.

Germs Multiply Fast.

In some Canadian districts goggles made of fur or horse hair woven loosely are a clever means of preventing the eyeglasses from receiving a coat of frozen moisture.

There are legions of eye disorders called "snow blindness," but there is no doubt that the ultra-violet rays so numerous in sharply returned sunlight, do irritate the eyelids, the ball of the blood-shot eye and the tear gland, that source of so much wailing and lamentation.

Once the textures of the eyes are thus worried, the various pus-making germs and inflammatory eye microbes begin to settle down in their comfy winter quarters, and the eye specialist must be summoned to lay siege to these doughty foes of vision.

Answers to Health Questions

M. M.—What is a good remedy to cure redness of the hands?

Beau Brummel used naively to hold his hands high above his head every five or ten minutes. This is not a bad exercise and certainly allows the blood to leave the extremities.

Washing the hands in benzoin tincture or peroxide of hydrogen will also help. A tonic is an additional aid. In massaging the hands always rub them toward the heart and never away from it.

J. G.—Open windows in the fall and winter give me colds in the head and a choked-up nose. Why?

Because you grow timorous at the first signs, instead of boldly defying the cold, fresh air. No doubt you fail to provide extra heavy bed covers. Many persons who wisely try open-air sleeping foolishly neglect to use several blankets and comforters on their beds.

It is also a mistake to get up and dress in a room where the windows are open. It is better to close the windows and heat the room slightly in the morning while dressing.

A. M. B.—You say that telepathy has never been proved? I say that it has. Your denial of telepathy is no greater than Sir Oliver Lodge's and Sir William Crookes's admission of it!

When I say that there has never been any proof of telepathy adduced—which is accepted and which has stood the test of truth—I state a fact which the personal opinions of all the Lodges, Crookeses, Freuds, Eddie Foys and Thayers in the world cannot counterbalance.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

"COCK-A-DOODLE-D-O-O!"

"I wonder what that terrible noise is," said Dobbin one day, as he looked all around his stall, and then he exclaimed:

"Oh! it's you, Mister Bantam. I shall have to call you the Rooster with the tin horn voice."

"Pshaw!" exclaimed Mister Bantam. "You are angry because you can't crow like that."

"You should remember," began Dobbin, "the smaller some things are, the more noise they make. Besides, my ears are very sensitive. A horse's ears and eyes are very important. I can see in the dark, and I can hear farther than my master. All there is to a Rooster is his crow. A horse is very useful. What earthly use are you?"

"I greet the morning with a crow and I scratch worms for Mrs. Cackle," answered Mister Bantam, squinting one eye.

"Don't squint your eye at me like that," said Dobbin.

"How did you know I was squinting my eye at you?" asked Mister Bantam in surprise.

"I can see behind me as well as in front of me," said Dobbin. "My master puts blinders on me so as to keep me from seeing what is going on behind me. I do not like it much, either."

"I did not know that about a horse," said Mister Bantam. "When your master rides you, why don't you have blinders?"

"Because there is nothing behind me—my master is on my back."

"I see," replied Mister Bantam. "But you have iron on your feet and you never could scratch for worms in the garden as I do."

"No, it is not necessary for me to dig worms in the garden, for that is what those feet of yours are made for. Those hard things on the ends of your toes are just like the hard things on the end of my legs. You see, we have such hard roads I have to keep iron on my feet to keep from wearing them out."

Mister Bantam flew up on the manger and Dobbin jumped. "If I am so small, why did you jump?" asked Mister Bantam.

"A horse is always afraid of anything unusual and I did not know you were coming," said Dobbin.

"What wonderful eyes you have," said the Little Rooster.

"Yes," began Dobbin, "they make you look twelve times as big as you really are."

"Cock-a-doodle-do-o-o!" crowed Mister Bantam. "I have always wanted to be bigger than the Red Rooster," and with that he flew away.

SELECTION OF RUGS

Beauty of Color and Design Is Not Monopoly of Oriental Rugs

For years after tacitly accepting the innovation of rugs, the great majority of people bought them with little judgment and discrimination. That day, however, is past; and one is supposed, now, to know rugs and runners even as they know Chippendale from Sheraton, Cloissonne from Satsuma or Lowestoft from Spode.

In the home library a large center rug is usually chosen upon which to place the booktable; but in drawing rooms with polished hardwood floors we more frequently see several ones distributed over the space. When one large rug is used it is usually a fine Kermanshah, Sarouk or Khiva rug, if Oriental; though a reversible Smyrna rug is frequently used with good effect, as are other rugs in Wilton, Body Brussels and Axminster. These latter rugs are woven by a prosy machine instead of a picturesque worker in a fez and flowing garments who ties the myriad knots on his time-hallowed hand loom; but when the best foreign models are copied the machine-made product is very satisfactory as a floor covering, and lends itself to artistic furnishing. Not only is this true of Smyrna, Wilton and Axminster, but rugs of other weaves, even less expensive, such as ingrain and the like, have reached a standard of the highest excellence in design and coloring.

These for bedrooms are in the softest tints and tones imaginable, mostly plain centers with subdued almost invisible borders; and these make perfect backgrounds for furniture of the eighteenth century types, with hangings of English chintz.

NOW GETTING HIS DUE

The Goat Has Now Outlived Peculiar Superstition

Out of the ages steeped with superstition came the legend that the goat was created by a fiend, and its peculiar pranks and fondness for strange tricks have supported the cry. Medical men have, however, always upheld the hardy little animal. It is an indisputable fact that goats' milk is richer, more nutritious, and more easily digested than cow's milk, and as a food for children and invalids it cannot be surpassed. An eminent physician has proclaimed his championship fo the maligned goat, which he declares is more satisfactory and profitable as a milk producer than a cow. But the great point in its favor is that it is free from that taint that even the purest of our cows barely escape—tuberculosis. To use the physician's own words, the goat is "the only dairy animal immune from tuberculosis." The animal itself costs very little to buy, and very, very little to keep. The wandering tribes of Eastern Africa practically exist on the milk of goats and camels.

The Inside of a Teapot

The following is an excellent way to clean the inside of a silver teapot. Put a large piece of washing soda into the teapot to be cleaned and fill with boiling water. Then boil it for one hour over a spirit lamp, when it will become as bright inside as out. This does not injure the silver in any way.

Reheating Meat

The best way to warm up a joint is to wrap it in thickly greased paper and keep it covered while in the oven. By having it covered thus the steam will prevent the meat from becoming hard and dry, and the joint will get hot through in less time.

If vegetables are cooked in a steamer over hot water and sprinkled with salt when nearly done, then served in a very hot tureen, they will be found better and are said to be more nutritious than when boiled in the ordinary way.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Other preachers are trying to get you into heaven. I am preaching to keep you out just as long as possible.

Legislators are beginning to find out that the citizens of a country are more important than any measures.

There is no such thing as a brain food, or a nerve food, or a toe-nail food. Food nourishes all parts of the body equally.

Cooking is the highest of fine arts. Let us have fewer pianos and more cook stoves. If there were more good cooks there would be fewer divorces.

The new rule is not "Let the buyer beware," but "Let the seller beware." The seller must gaurantee his goods.

The further north you grow a sugar beet, the sweeter it is. So it is with human beings; the further north the race, the better they are. You Canadians could not help but excel, except you moved away from your northern zone.

Heredity and environment are the two important things in the life of a nation or an individual. Canada is blessed in her northern location. If her glorious climate was spread over hot little Mexico, it would be pacified within 24 hours.

NATURE'S DIARY

A clear stretch of red close along the horizon, surmounted by yellow, at sunset, denotes fair weather next day. But a lurid western sky at sunset, with the colors spread above the horizon on cirrus clouds, indicates a coming storm, and if the sunset is dull and "dirty" with clearer sky in the east, the storm is nearer.

Rainbows in the east and hence in the afternoon, foretell clearing weather, as these are usually formed on the rain of retreating shower, but if seen in the west and, therefore, in the morning, rain is approaching.

In the winter when the air sounds "hollow" it denotes a thaw. When in the winter there is a yellow-green color in the sky over the setting sun, it usually heralds colder weather.

The Industrial Exhibition of Peterborough, each year, offers a large amount of money as prizes to farmers in this county, producing the best crops of oats, barley and potatoes. This year $225 is being distributed.

Too Much Water

Some complaints have been made that too much water is sprinkled on the pavements by the local carts. It seems that as pavements, unlike the old style streets, do not absorb the water and are thus made slippery and muddy.

Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows.

The Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows will hold their May open meeting on Thursday evening next. There will be a entertaining programme and a lecture on the Upper Canada rebellion of 1837. All Oddfellows and their friends are welcome. No charge.

Poor Fido.

When a gentleman residing on George Street, returned home Saturday his newly wedded bride was weeping. She exclaimed "Oh George" I just made a pie all by myself and Fido has eaten it." Her husband comforted her by saying "Never mind Sweetheart, I'll buy another dog."

Enterprising Lindsay Firemen.

The Lindsay Fire Brigade and Citizens' Band are making big preparations for the annual tournament of the Northern Association of Firemen and Bands, which takes place on Thursday, July 30th. To-day a subscription list is being circulated and readily signed.

St. Paul's Church.

The anniversary services at St. Paul's church yesterday were most interesting. The special preacher was Rev. W. T. Herridge of Ottawa, one of the most eloquent divines of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He recently conducted Mission services at Vancouver where his fine addresses were most favorably received. The music at St. Paul's yesterday under the able organist Mr. Allan, was particularly good.

Any information concerning the competition will be cheerfully given on application to the Secretary, Mr. J. Roxburgh.

A Strange Find

On Saturday morning Contractor Tom Rutherford began work on the handsome residence being erected between Dr. Scott's house and the Conservatory of Music. As he pulled out a stake in the lot to move it to another site, Mr. Rutherford saw two blackened, but genuine quarters fall from the mud clinging to the stake. The 25 cent pieces are dated 1880, and must have been buried many years.

Illicit Fishermen (?) Caught.

Fish Inspector Thompson caught two Beaufort men with a lunge several days ago. The fishermen were slowly paddling around Kent's Bay near the Beaufort Bridge when they saw two lunge. The men paddled to shore and tied the fish to a tree, leaving them in the water. They paddled to the wharf and, on returning failed to find the fish. While they were hunting around Inspector Thompson arrived.

Had His Pants Re-Shingled

Lindsay Warder: A torn pair of trousers and several marks on the right leg of the popular Lindsay baker, "Bobby" Wells, tells the tale of his encounter with a collie dog in the afternoon, when the aforesaid distributor of the staff of life was catering to the wants of his customers. "Bobby" was met at the entrance of a residence when he was delivering his produce by an angry dog, who seemed anxious to taste of a piece of English beefsteak and sink his teeth into the baker's thigh before he could be driven away.

Hairdressing is Significant

Yesterday when coming per express train from Tokio, says a traveller in Japan, we sat near a Japanese matron whose beautiful, glossy black hair was done up elaborately with a very peculiar portion of it resembling an eccentric teapot handle at the back. She was a yellow, hard-featured lady, with a big boy in a petticoat by her side—presumably her son. The meaning of her headdress was: "I am a widow, and have determined not to marry again." Every female can fly headdress signals denoting her state, condition and wishes. There are styles for "married," "engaged" and "single." The sweet debutante can be at once recognised, and it must be admitted that inconvenience and loss of time can conceivably be prevented by adopting this Japanese system.

Toronto at Brantford.
Ottawa at Hamilton.

NOTE.—The Times, at considerable expense, and trouble to the operators at the Bell Telephone office could not obtain an accurate account of the game at Erie yesterday, so if our score as published proves wrong, we crave the indulgence of our readers and all fans.

Our E.E.C., the Examiner, in its issue of Saturday, makes reference in its sports columns to a "local paper's" account of the opening ball game at Erie. For the benefit of our readers who may have trusted to our account of the game, and who may have seen the article above referred to, we wish to state that the George street publication in no way applies its remarks to this journal's report of that game.

In the O.A.L.A. groupings as announced on Saturday, the Peterboro City Lacrosse League has been named as Group 18 in the Juvenile series. In the Intermediate series group 21 consists of: Beaverton, Cannington, Sunderland, Lindsay, Group 18, Intermediates, consist of Peterborough, Havelock, Campbellford, Hastings and Norwood.

The Erie Dispatch, commenting on the opening game in the Yankee City on Thursday says: "Louis Schettler was back at his same old tricks, and played a grand game, but he had nothing on our own Mr. Brown, who had, if anything, a shade the best of the argument." But a dozen Mr. Browns could not win a game against the stellar work that packed up our own Mr. Schettler on Thursday.

At the request of a number of fans a full list of the teams in the Canadian League, as they stand at present, is herewith published, together with the names of the managers and population of cities in circuit.

GEORGE SISLER

Phenomenal young pitcher of Michigan University. Joe Sugden, the Detroit scout, says of him: "He has the best curve of any left-hander I ever looked at." Few college players know how to run bases and not many slide properly. Sisler is an aggressive runner and has the hook slide down to perfection. His one fault seems to be over-anxiety to hit. He is almost as brilliant as an outfielder as in the pitcher's box where his specialty is the spit ball. It is generally thought that Sisler will be seen in a Toronto uniform in the Canadian League this season, Manager Kelly of the Leafs, having made bids for this star, and if he succeeds in landing him he may be turned over to the Beavers.

Norwood, May 9.—At a meeting held here last evening the organization of the Norwood Lacrosse Club was completed. The following gentlemen are the officers elected:

Hon. Pres.—Col. Russel.
President—Capt. Neilson.
Captain—Alex. Kempt.
Coachers—Dr. N.F. Sutton and M. H. Minore.
Manager—Chas. I. Puffer.
Sec.-Treas.—James Hency.

In their game against Hamilton, on Friday the Brants had four costly errors, and the game went to Hamilton, 5—1.

SUCCESSFUL DAIRYING

Depends to Large Extent Upon Knowing Individual Worth of Cows

There are such excellent concrete examples now and again outcropping of men who prove that it pays to take up cow testing, that their records of success make stimulating reading for dairy farmers all over the Dominion.

Here is a good example of what one man at Cedar Hall, Quebec, in the Gaspe Peninsula, accomplished by carefully watching his fairly good cows and feeding them better. The first year his eight cows gave him 32,511 pounds of milk, an average of 4,188 pounds, at a feed cost of $32.50, netting a total profit of $76.83, an average of $9.60 profit per cow. Two of the best cows in the herd the first year were lost accidentally, two heifers made up the herd to eight again; a pure bred sire is kept.

The next year his eight cows gave him 41,408 pounds of milk, an average of 5,176 pounds, or 1,000 pounds of an increase per cow. The feed cost $4.12 more per cow, but the total profit was $177.39, or an increase of 130 per cent. in the profit. It pays to give additional feed if the cows kept are of the type to make use of it profitably.

The forcible realities are these: The gross income from milk increased by $133.43 from the same number of cows, the profit far more than doubled, and the owner has received every encouragement to try for still better results. That is where a trial cow testing trip generally lands the herd owner.

Laying a Ghost

When we hear of anybody having seen a ghost our first impulse is to explain the matter away. There are more explanations of supernatural visitors than records of their visitations. We are not allowed to believe in ghosts, says the "Medical Press and Circular." A certain house was haunted in the best sense of the word. Horrid shapes and shrieks and sights unholy were its nocturnal lot. The inhabitants enjoyed a pleasantly terrified notoriety, and the reporters exulted. Enter a sanitary inspector. He found a defective flue which flooded the house with a malodorous mixture of sulphurous oxide, carbon monoxide, and other ingredients. The haunted inhabitants were suffering from a chronic intoxication that affected their bodily health and their imagination.

VOL. XLI, NO. 110 TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 12, 1914 PRICE TWO CENTS

MAY NOW UPHOLD EMMERSON'S VIEWS EXPRESSED OF ROYALTY

Ottawa Citizen Thinks it Shows "Growth of Democratic Spirit--Matter Not Yet Dropped

Ottawa, May 11.—"I will likely bring up the question in the House again of the appointment of Prince Alexander of Teck as Governor-General," said Hon. H. R. Emmerson this morning. "Just in what form I am not sure. It is a delicate question, especially as the appointment has already been made, and I do not want to put the House on record. I am only voicing my own sentiments on the subject in protesting against the appointment of a member of the Royal family as Governor-General."

Mr. Emmerson said that he has been surprised at the letters and telegrams which he has received, congratulating him on his stand since he made his declaration in the House. The Ottawa Citizen this morning says:—

"The protest of Hon. Mr. Emmerson against the appointment of Prince Alexander of Teck as Governor-General of the Dominion is symptomatic of the growth of democratic spirit in this country. Mr. Emmerson rightly takes no objection to the personality of the proposed Governor and is careful to pay due and deserved respect to the distinguished occupants of the position at the present time. Nevertheless his view of the matter is one which must command itself to many. This is a country where hereditary, or any titles, must appear incongruous and utterly out of harmony with the aspirations of those who are working to build up a nation free from the meaningless and artificial distinctions implied by the bestowal or assumption of a nomenclature synonymous with the origins of an inherited superiority."

EARTHQUAKES DISASTER DEATHS RAPIDLY GROWING IN NUMBER

Believed More Than One Hundred and Fifty are Killed --Many Injured in Debris

Catania, May 11.—Army, navy and civilian authorities continued to-day their efforts to relieve the distress of the thousands of Citizens deprived of their homes and property by the earthquake which destroyed a dozen villages and caused the death or injury of hundreds of persons during the night of May 8.

Many of the peasants afflicted by the catastrophe are migrating from the district, taking all they could recover of their personal effects, and driving their farm animals with them. Others for the present refuse to move from the scene until they know the fate of their missing relatives.

The injured found among the debris of the ruined houses have been carried to the nearest hospitals after treatment by the Red Cross surgeons. The village priests are untiring in their efforts to console the stricken people, many of whom form processions to neighboring shrines.

The official returns of the dead give the number at about 150, but it is believed many more are still buried in the heaps of debris. The injured total many hundreds and from time to time the number is added to by the finding beneath the ruins of others who were unable to extricate themselves owing to fractured limbs.

COMPLAINTS NOW RAISED ABOUT INCINERATOR PLANT

Residents of the South Ward and people near the new Incinerator Plant are bitterly complaining about the stench raised by the new Incinerator Plant. They claim that, at first, whilst the Incinerator was only burning garbage, and other household refuse, there was no (to use plain English) stink. However, of late, they claim that night soil is being dumped into the plant. This, for lack of sufficient coal, raises a stink that sickens everyone within a radius of several blocks. Several citizens have offered $50 each to issue, an injunction against the city to stop this nuisance It is understood that several of the Aldermen have been approached by those objecting to the smell and the former admitted that a change must be made.

SWISS NOW LEAD

The World's Greatest Consumers of Alcoholic Drinkers

Geneva, May 11.—The Swiss government obtained from the alcohol monopoly in 1913 the sum of $1,200,000, showing that in spite of the prohibition of absinthe the consumption of alcohol is steadily increasing in this country apart from wine and beer drinking. This sum has been divided among the various cantons— except $25,000 indemnity to absinthe manufacturers—according to the population and, curiously enough, is meant principally to combat the spread of alcoholism.

Since the prohibition of absinthe in French Switzerland four years ago the German-Swiss head the list as drinkers of alcohol, which consists in their case of schnapps, which is sold as low as a penny a small glass in some places. A good deal of absinthe is still smuggled into Switzerland from France but the risk is becoming greater and the profits less. Roughly speaking, beer is drunk in the north and centre of Switzerland, and wine in the south.

SOCIETIES' DAY IS NOW AN ASSURED SUCCESS

The meeting of the Representatives of Fraternal Societies was held in the S.O.E. Hall. The gathering was honored by a deputation from the Ministerial Association. Mr. Dawson Kennedy was elected chairman and Mr. Thomas Hendry, Secretary. The Rev. F. J. Sawers stated that the proposal to hold a Fraternal Sunday evening service had his hearty approval. Rev. Jas. Rollins stated that the matters had been discussed at the Ministerial Association and assured them of their approval, support and co-operation. Mr. Rollins intimated that the Association favored a Sunday evening service in the various churches in preference to a meeting in the Armouries. Rev. J. R. Webb, also addressed the meeting and in part said that the churches and Societies had things in common. He favored having a big procession of Fraternal Men irrespective of what Society they belonged to. The Rev. J.N. Clarry also endorsed the previous speakers views regarding a Fraternal Sunday evening service. On motion, Sunday evening, June 28th, was chosen as the fixed date for the United Fraternal Procession and Service when members of these Societies will be asked to assemble at probably the Market Square

FRENCH GUNS ARE THE BEST IN WORLD

ARTILLERY OF FRANCE HAS BIG LEAD OVER OTHER NATIONS

Paris, May 11. A series of experiments have just been carried out at the camp of Mailly with the 75-millimetre field gun, and the results have been so satisfactory that the Temps announces that it may be regarded as certain that the French field artillery both is and will continue to be for many years the best in Europe

The importance of these experiments is shown by the fact that they have been carried out in the presence of the whole Conseil Superieur de la Guerre.

The quick-firing 75-millimetre gun, with its hydro-pneumatic brake, was originally designed to fire shrapnel at point blank range. A recent invention due to Captain Malandrin, made it possible to obtain a curved trajectory and, consequently, to use melinite shell. Only percussion shell, which exploded on striking the target could formerly be used. Now, however, a new discovery makes it possible to fire from the 75-millimetre gun time shell, which explodes in the air by means of fuse, with the result that there are no more dead angles, and the effect of the fire is greatly increased.

CIVIL WAR IN COLORADO.

(Supplied by New Process Electro Corp., N.Y.)

Photograph shows the scene at the railroad depot at Ludlow, Colorado, with armed strikers of the coal mines pacing back and forth. The coal mining strike in Colorado has become so acute that President Wilson, after a two hour conference with his cabinet at the White House finally ordered United States troops sent into the strike district to quell the disturbance. Troops have been rushed to Southern Colorado from Fort D.A. Russell and other troops are enroute from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for Trinidad. The total death toll in the strike region is estimated at from 130 to 175 men, including strikers, women and children, mine guards and militiamen. One of the fiercest battles raged around the Hecla Mine at Louisville where it is believed at least 20,000 shots were fired by both sides and nearly every house in Louisville was riddled. Governor Ammons of Colorado has issued a proclamation calling on "all law abiding citizens to give their moral and active support to the effort to restore peace in the strike districts." The present labor vs. capital dispute did not attract as much public attention as it should have, owing to the Mexican trouble, but the latest developments have made the whole country sit up and take notice of the greatest strike between capital and labor since the famous Pennsylvania coal mine strike.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' ASS'N HOLD SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Last night the Grand Opera House contained a large audience who gathered under auspices of the Peterboro Retail Merchants' Association. The indefatigable organizer of this movement, here as elsewhere, Mr. N. C. Cameron has paid a great deal of attention to making this function a success and his efforts were crowned by success.

The chair was very ably filled by who, in a few well chosen words, in- Mr. Thos. Barrie, the local furrier, who, in a few well chosen words, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Arthur F. Boyd of the Sheldon School, Chicago. Mr. Boyd is a fluent and convincing speaker. He strongly advocated such Associations as that which caused the raison d'etre of the present meeting. He gave the merchants and many of the clerks kindly allowed by their respective employers, many practical hints as to the better promotion of business interests. The speaker is a strong advocate in generous and judicious advertising. He thinks that "Advertising is the fire that keeps the merchants' pot boiling."

REVOLUTION OF JAIL METHODS PLANNED BY BOARD OF CONTROL

Construction of Police Administration Building is Contemplated at Cost of Between a Third and a Half a Million Dollars

Toronto, May 11.—By November, 1915, the old Toronto jail will be a thing of the past and police methods in the city will be revolutionized if the plans decided upon to-day at a private conference between the Board of Control, Dr. Bruce Smith, Provincial Inspector of Prisons, Supt. Findlay of the Industrial Farm, and Property Commissioner Chisholm are carried out.

The conference was held to discuss Dr. Bruce Smith's report upon the Toronto jail and the best policy for Toronto to pursue in the treatment of prisoners. The decision arrived at was to proceed as soon as possible, with the construction of a central Police Administration Building, to hurry construction on the new building at the Men's Industrial Farm, to remove the women now in the jail to the Women's Industrial Farm; and to remove the insane to the city's temporary Detention Home and Psychiatric Institution in the pavilion on the old General Hospital grounds

Controllers Will Visit New York.

On Friday next, Controllers Mr. Carthy and O'Neill will meet Dr Bruce Smith in New York to inspect the Police Administration building there and to prepare a report for the preparation of final plans for the city structure. It is expected that the Toronto building will be completed by November, 1915, at a cost of between three hundred and fifty thousand and five hundred thousand dollars. By next week it is hoped that the 20 insane prisoners will be removed to the city Detention Home.

Leave All Cells Unlocked.

It was also decided at the conference to leave all the cells in the Toronto Jail unlocked for the future Dr. Bruce Smith pointed out in his report on the institution that it was a fire trap and that there was no automatic system of unlocking all the cells in case of an alarm. Extra guards will be provided if necessary.

It was not decided what to do with the jail when it was abandoned in November, 1915. The property may be sold and it is expected that the price received would pay for the proposed Administration building.

THREATS OF CIVIL STRIFE ARE ABROAD IN MONTREAL

Out of Works Gather in Force Outside Municipal Buildings on the Champ de Mars, Asking for Work They Were Promised by Mayor

Montreal, May 11.—Detectives this morning were guarding Mayor Martin's House as a result of the labor situation, which has to-day reached an acute stage. Rumors have been heard of threats of violence on the part of the foreign element, who declare that civic officials have held out promises of labor to them, which have not been realized.

The Mayor is particularly blamed as it is just two weeks ago since he informed a gathering on the Champ de Mars that in a few days there would be work for all. This morning a growling crowd of out-of-works again took possession of the parade grounds, including between three and four thousand men.

From all sides were heard murmurs of discontent, and there were rumors afloat that the unemployed intended to gather in even greater numbers this afternoon, if nothing is done to appease them, and take the City Hall by storm.

STRENGTHENING THE 55th REGIMENT

Lieut. Clarence Henry, of this city has received word from Headquarters that the annual camp of the 45th Regiment will be held from the 15th to the 29th of June, this summer. Recruiting for the camp is already in progress and indications are that a large Company will be recruited from Peterborough for the camp this year. The local boys will be given an opportunity as in the past, of joining with "D" Company of the 45th Regiment. In the year 1912 the Company went to camp over 100 strong, and last year the Company was the largest Company of Militia in Canada to attend camp.

Although the whole of "D" Company is not made up of local men, there are usually about fifty Peterborough soldiers in the Company when it reaches camp, and it is expected that when the 45th lines up on the commons of Petawawa, next month, there will be at least that number representing this City. The men know from experience that they will be well looked after if they accompany the 45th to camp, and the popularity of the officers is a by word among all who know the Regiment.

Lieut. Col. F. Holmes Hopkins in command of the Regiment, Major H. H. Fee, Second in Command. These officers are the youngest Holding Commissions in Canadian Militia.

Information regarding preparations etc., may be obtained from Lieut. C. Henry, at Marlborough Club, or 187 Bethune St., Peterborough.

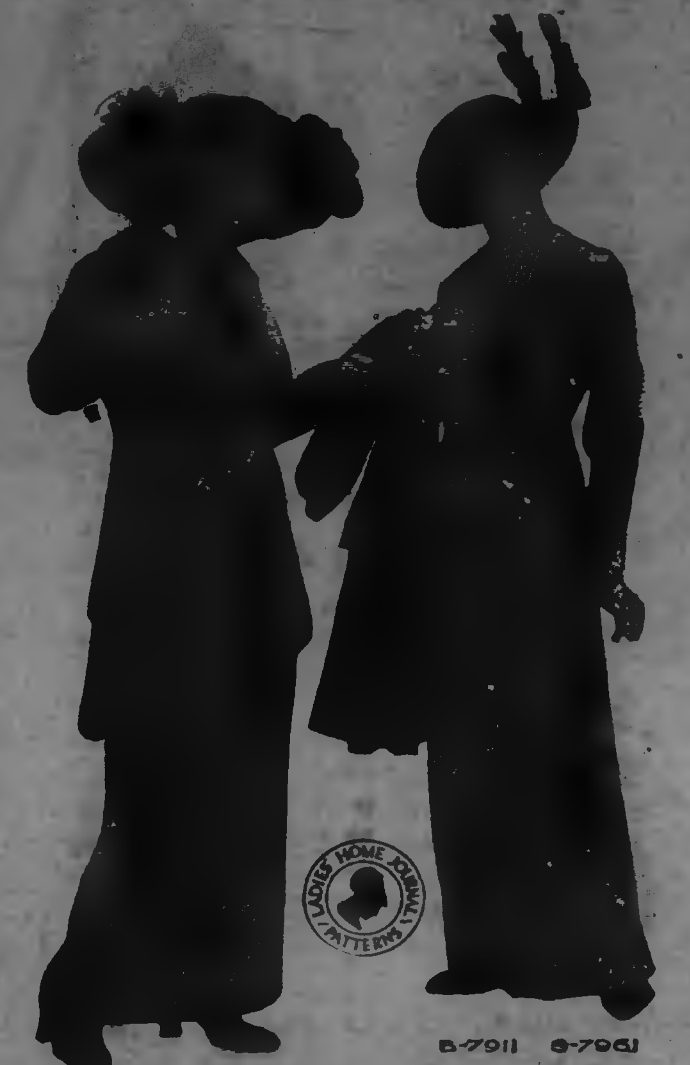
MUNICIPAL FORMS ALWAYS IN STOCK



AN AFTERNOON SUIT OF MOIRE AND A SMART TAILORED FROCK

Smart women will wear next season the tunic skirt, the peg-top and models that are draped up in back bustle fashion or caught in at the sides. There is a wide choice in each of these designs. There are single, double and triple tunics and modified Minarets. Instead of the real tunic there may be trimming bands of plaits arranged to give the same effect. Blouses and coats will follow the same general lines, variation being given by sash arrangements; novel sleeve and vest effects.

No. 7720-7861 is a costume of ochre moire. The coatee shows a set-in sleeve, an attractive collar and front closing. The skirt has a graduated tuck, which forms a tunic in front and gives the effect of drapery in back. This costume may be made in size 36 with 2¾ yards of 36 inch material for the coatee (7720) and 3 yards of 36 inch material for the skirt (7861).

A delightfully colored wool crepe is used for the other frock illustrated (7911-7961). The colors are gray and white, very silvery and delicate, and the cuffs, collar and sash are of silk in the same shades of gray and silver.

This skirt model shows a slight drapery in front effected by two dart tucks.

For size 36 this design requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material for the bodice (7911) and 2¾ yards of 42 inch material for the skirt (7961).

No. 7720—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 7861—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 7911—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7961—sizes 22 to 30.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

"STITCHES IN TIME"

Eleanor Ames Gives Some Useful Hints For the Household

The stitch in time is as applicable to matters of the house as to the wardrobe, yet many a woman who would never think of wearing a ripped glove or unmended stockings will complacently allow table linen and bed linen and curtains go to pieces for want of attention. Glass, china, bric-a-brac and furniture which needs mending should not be neglected any more than the torn gown or the krinkled sash. One frazzled bit of drapery or one crippled piece of furniture will spoil the most artistically planned home.

The plain room and the shabby room are as distinctly different as the palace and the hovel. The former may be most ideal; the latter can never be anything but uninviting.

There are many good preparations on the market for repairing china and glass pieces not hopelessly shattered. It requires care and patience to do the work, but in the case of ornaments and rare bits it repays. There is no china cement that will stand hard use and the constant washing and soaking in hot water, but one can mend china if it is worth while to preserve the broken object.

White lead made a thick paste with linseed oil will mend broken plates and platters and such articles. They should be set in upright position in a box of sand, and when the lead is applied and the pieces joined, the object should be so weighted that it will be kept under even pressure until entirely "set."

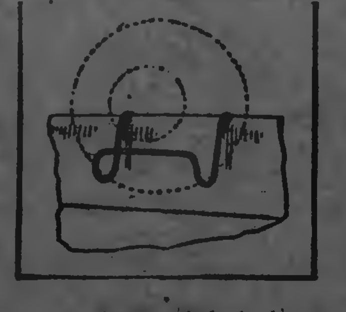
For swinging weights to place across mended objects strong cloth with the ends made into pockets and equally filled with buckshot so that balance is preserved, are the best to use. They should be left in place several days. Then the lead that shows can be removed with a file or sandpaper and the break will be hardly noticeable.

Thin china and some glass are better mended with white of egg and quicklime. Spread the stiffly beaten white of an egg on the edges of the china, dust with powdered lime and press together and fasten with rubber bands drawn tightly or string wound firmly. Two points to bear well in mind are first to have the breaks clean, dry and free from dust, and to fasten them securely after they are united.

In using the egg and lime the object should not be disturbed for at least a week. In mending a cup or bowl or any hollow ware, it is a good plan to make a mound of cloth on which it rests and fill in all the space with tissue paper. If there are cavities inside the break they are easily filled with putty, and putty on the inside of a seam will add strength. Also in the case of a broken handle which goes through, the hole should be filled with putty. Gum arabic is used successfully for mending glass.

Broken ivory may be repaired with the fish glue used by shoemakers.

There are simple breaks in furniture that the housewife can repair as well as the average man. Loosened joints should be cleaned of all old glue and pressed into place with a coating of very hot glue. If they seem to need reinforcement, a small metal hinge may be used as a brace. Or you may accomplish the same result with a strong screw. After the glue has been applied fasten the broken edges together in a vise if possible, and if there is a splintered break fill it with putty before applying the glue. When dry stain to match the rest of the wood.—Eleanor Ames.



If there is a wash basin in your kitchen the chances are you are compelled to look for it every time you want to use it. That is the way it usually is. Why not fix things so that the basin is kept in the same place—and that place right alongside the sink? Get a length of heavy wire—ordinary bale wire will do—and bend it in the shape shown in the drawing. The basin rests in that hook all the time.

Hints for the Cook

The remnants of chicken can be converted into delicious shortcake. Make the biscuit crust the same as for old fashioned shortcake. Spread the chicken between and pour gravy on the whole.

Tomato sandwiches are made with slices of tomato between buttered bread; spread mayonnaise over the tomato and be sure the sandwiches are not made until just before serving or the bread will become soggy.

When making apple pie the flavor is much improved and the apples will keep in good color if a few drops of lemon juice are squeezed over the apples just before the crust is put on.

Graham gems are made with two cups of graham flour, one tablespoonful of lard, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and salt. Mix stiff with milk.

The secret of flaky pie crust is the use of hot water (not boiling) rather than cold in mixing the dough. If this hint is followed the crust will always be flaky, tender and crisp.

The addition of a little soda mixed with a teaspoonful of corn starch to the cream before pouring it into the tomato mixture will prevent curdling in the making of creamed tomato soup.

Often when boiling eggs the white comes through the shell and spoils the taste of the egg through its appearance. This may be prevented if a teaspoonful of salt is put into the water before boiling.

No matter how much dripping is used, fish when being fried is apt to stick to the pan's bottom. If a tablespoonful of dry salt is put into the pan and rubbed over it it will be found satisfactory.

Cottage cheese makes a tasty filling for sandwiches, especially those of brown bread. Mix cheese with minced nut meats, olives and a little salad dressing.

Sandwich Paragraphs

Rye bread seems to call for a cheese as a filler, and if one will grate the cheese instead of slicing it, it will be found to work very much better.

Both Swiss and American cheese with a little mustard are also fine as fillers for rye bread sandwiches.

A sweet sandwich made with [illegible] bread is delicious with a filling of raisins and marshmallows.

Creamed cheese and currant jelly mixed makes a nice filling, particularly if put between salted wafers.

Bread and butter sandwiches are very delicate if made properly. The bread must be forty-eight hours old, the butter spread evenly on a loaf before the slices are cut and put together, after which the crusts are all cut off with a sharp knife.

A tablespoonful of canned salmon, which perhaps the mother is going to make into a loaf can be picked fine and to it added three drops of Worcestershire sauce and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of chopped sweet pepper. This will make two sandwiches, size of an ordinary loaf of white bread.

White bread can be spread with any cold fish mixed with either salad dressing or a little lemon juice.

Sardines give white bread sandwiches a relish and prove a pleasant change.

Sandwiches can be made with almost any filling, provided a little common sense is used; for instance, if you have some baked beans put them through the food chopper or collander. Mix with a little tomato catsup or chili sauce and place between thin slices of brown bread upon which is placed a little grated cheese.

Never put baked beans between white bread. The beans can be combined with cucumber, pickle or a little salad dressing, and the bread spread lightly with butter. This gives you three different kinds of sandwiches made from brown bread and baked beans.

Remember that all bread should be forty-eight hours old from which you make sandwiches. When you spread it, be sure that the butter is not hard. Spread the end of the loaf before cutting the slice. Cut very thin and after folding the slices together, trim off all crust.

These crusts need not be wasted. If they are dried in the oven and put through a chopper or rolled, they can be used to bread veal or other croquettes. Brown bread crumbs are especially nice for ham croquettes.

Never mix the white and dark meat of chicken if you are making sandwiches. They are much nicer if made separately.

A bacon sandwich is very palatable, and if one is fond of it, a piece of calf's liver chopped with the bacon makes a delectable filling for white bread sandwiches.

Soup meat with the addition of salad dressing and oftentimes a bit of carrot that has been boiled in the soup is very tasty with white bread.

All kinds of jams and jellies can be used for the sweet sandwiches with white bread.

A fried egg sandwich is looked upon by some children as a veritable goody.

If you must use hard boiled eggs, cut them in slices, sprinkle them with chopped parsley, a little lemon juice and paprika; or add a little chopped pimento. This filling should only be used with white bread.

Autographs on Guest Cloth

A women who is as clever with her needle as she is charming as a hostess has a unique reminder of many a happy reunion of friends about her hospitable board. Some years ago she decided that she would have an autograph tablecloth. She bought a cloth of handsome damask. On this she has had friends who have been her guests at dinner pencil their autographs. These she has very carefully embroidered in satin stitch in white. A casual glance does not reveal the dainty stitches but the names are disclosed on a few moments' close inspection.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

An all-Indian jury sat at Caughnawaga recently. This is getting justice qy the all-red route.

"Canadian Sailors Detained in Jail in United States." — Headline. Why not make Uncle Sam salute the flag?

A Sutton man, Mr. Grimes, just deceased, lived 85 years on the same farm. He deserves special mention in these days of rushing to the cities.

At a church meeting in London Mr. Joynson Hicks, M.P., pointed out the desirability of missionizing the people at home before endeavouring to convert savage nations. And there is considerable horse sense in that.

A Boquet for Mr. Burnham

The following comment upon The Ottawa Free Press' appreciative article on Mr. Burnham, M.P., is worth reading, coming as it does from one "nearer home:"

"The country needs as representatives, men of the Burnham type, men of broad judicial mind, capable of seeing things as they exist, and adjusting remedies without regard to any apparent contradictions. He has a free judicial logical mind, has the habit of doing his own thinking, and worst of all, is not afraid to put his thinks into words."

The Sacrifice of Ulster

A Liberal newspaper lectures the people of Ulster because they will not submit to "the majority" as expressed by a Dublin Parliament, says The News. It argues that majorities rule under British institutions. It leaves the impression that Ulster is enjoying or demanding special rights and privileges.

But Ulstermen ask only to be left undisturbed in the British citizenship which they have enjoyed for generations. It is the Nationalists who are demanding special rights and privileges within the United Kingdom. The Asquith Government does not propose to give Legislatures to Scotland, England, and Wales. In Ireland only is a separate Parliament to be established. The new body will be called the House of Commons and will have a degree of authority even over customs and the postal service. It is nothing less than a measure of separation and makes a future federation of the United Kingdom practically impossible.

We would have an exact parallel in Canada if at Confederation we had decided to have only a common Parliament and now determined to give a separate Legislature to Quebec with partial control over customs and the postoffice and with the rights of the English-speaking population dependent absolutely upon a party majority at Ottawa. We know that in Canada we have had substantially to abandon the Federal veto! Who believes that the veto of Westminster will be of any effect in Ireland? What could Nationalist politicians so greatly desire as an attempt by Westminster to veto its measures or what so useful an excuse to appeal to the majority of the south against the north?

Mr. Asquith, in order to retain office, bargained away the equal citizenship of Ulstermen in the United Kingdom. At the risk of civil war he holds to the contract. Home Rule may go into effect at Westminster, but it will never go into effect in Ulster. Who knows if the Empire will survive the bitter conflict of creeds and races which will follow any attempt to coerce Ulster and which will have its echoes in every portion of the British Dominions.

Magical Effect on Neuralgia Throbbing Pain Goes Quickly

A YEAR'S SUFFERER CURED BY "NERVILINE."

No person reading this need ever again suffer long from Neuralgia.

Nerviline will quickly cure the worst Neuralgia and Mrs. G. Evans, in her strong letter written from Russel post office, says:—"One long year, the longest of my life, was almost entirely given up to treating dreadful attacks of Neuralgia. The agony I experienced during some of the bad attacks was simply unmentionable. To use remedies by the score without permanent relief was mighty discouraging. At last I put my faith in Nerviline; I read of the wonderful pain-subduing power it possessed and made up my mind to prove it valuable or useless. Nerviline at once eased the pain and cured the headache. Continuous treatment with this magic-working remedy cured me entirely, and I have ever since stayed well."

Mrs. Evan's case is but one of hundreds that might be quoted. Nerviline is a specific for all nerve, muscular or joint pain. It quickly cures neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, lame back, neuritis and rheumatism. Forty years in use, and to-day the most widely used liniment in the Dominion. Don't take anything but "Nerviline," which any dealer anywhere can supply in large 50c. family size bottles, or in a small 25c. trial size.

Neglected a Pin Scratch--Dead!

A boy died last week in hospital from blood-poisoning, the result of a pin scratch!

Do you ever think such a fate might easily be yours? Suppose you knew that although you have had scratches cuts, burns, sores, and have escaped blood-poisoning so far, the very next time you sustained such an injury blood-poison would set in and you might die. Wouldn't you be very careful, to see that the next wound, although only slight, received prompt attention? Certainly.

Now get this further thought. You can't say that the very next cut or scratch or burn or scald you get and neglect will not turn to fatal blood-poisoning. Did it ever strike you that way? The same applies to your children.

The surest safe-guard against blood-poisoning is Zam-Buk. No single poisonous germ has yet been discovered that Zam-Buk does not kill. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a cut, burn, scratch, tear or sore place, the injury is insured against blood-poisoning from the germs in the air. Not only so, but Zam-Buk stops the smarting and pain. Healing is set up right from the first application, so that at the same time Zam-Buk is antiseptic, soothing and healing. No other salve acts so splendidly. That is why in every country in the world Zam-Buk is now the most widely used ointment. For cuts and wounds, eczema, piles, ulcers, abscesses and all skin injuries and diseases Zam-Buk is without equal. CATHERINE CALVERT

Catherine Calvert Describes Her "Seasonable Gowns"

By MADGE MARVEL

FINDING an evening gown in a patch of moonshine, choosing a blouse from the crocus bed, harmonising a street suit from the freshly spaded garden, and trimming it with new lettuce has the fantastic sound of a foolish fairy tale.

Catherine Calvert, who does it, says it is the most satisfactory and becoming scheme of costuming a woman can have. She planned her entire spring and summer wardrobe that way, going over the ground literally, with a modiste, to see that the goods matched and that the combining shades were all right.

"Long, long ago," explained Miss Calvert, in quite the tone one would use when spinning a yarn about fays and pixies and the fairy princess and the ogre, "I made up my mind that if one would be dressed with individuality and be able to express personality through raiment, she must work somewhat independently of the style makers.

"It all came to me at sunset—the way out, I mean—when I was delighted to find a wonderful reception gown spread out in the western sky, in the twilight afterglow.

"It was at the close of a fitful April day, when there had been rain one minute and sunshine the next, that the twilight brought clear weather, and there followed a marvellous sunset. There was a clear, blue sky with a band of palest yellow along the horizon and a deeper band of rose and orange, and then an exquisite soft gray cloud like a mist. And from that I evolved my gown.

"The foundation was the soft clear blue of the sky in satin. The chiffon drapery repeated the pale yellow. I caught the rose and orange in two velvet flowers which were used to hold the draping at the side of the skirt, and on one side of the bodice, which was of the blue veiled in the yellow, was the touch of gray done in silver lace, and at the girdle there was another smaller rose and orange nosegay. Since then I have chosen all the color schemes of my dress from the fields.

"My newest street suit is of moire, the exact rich loamy shade the garden showed when the first spadeful of earth was upturned this spring. There is a little vestee matched in silk to the shade of the young lettuce leaves when they peeped through that same brown earth.

"A tulip bed furnished the red and yellow and pink splendor for a house gown of lovely Oriental stuffs. One of the most alluring blouses I ever owned was in palest yellow crepe and white lace with a knot of pink. It was a direct inspiration from the crocus bed into which one pink hyacinth had strayed by mistake.

"A single red geranium standing on the porch of a little gray cottage gave me the right note of brightness for a gray charmeuse frock.

"Purple and white lilacs hanging over a weather-beaten shed with a long arm of a pink peach tree reaching in among the other posies made a stunning hat. It is of pale gray straw, the exact shade of the weather-beaten shed. A twist of ribbon repeats the green of the lilac leaves. Millinery copies of the lilac blooms are heaped on the hat, and under the brim peeks some tiny pink roses. And a famous maker of hats asked to copy the bonnet, the combination was so wonderful. Like a breath of the springtime.

"It is the most fascinating thing to watch the moods of nature and let her unfold the samples of your wardrobe.

"Nature is the greatest of all artists. Why not let her set the palette for us? Since the world began she has been mixing colors, and there is yet to be written a mistake in her judgment."

I asked Miss Calvert for practical ideas for women with the need of making a good appearance, and only a limited sum with which to accomplish it.

"First," said she, "the woman who must think twice before she opens her purse once should study her style and find out what suits her.

"Then she should build her wardrobe according to her particular requirements more than according to the vagaries of fashion.

"Take the proverbial stitch in time. Keep your clothes clean and hang them up carefully to keep the lines. Don't get tiring colors. Depend upon frills for your gayety."

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a pretty girl of 18 years, and am blessed with very beautiful feet and ankles. When at home after supper I take off my shoes and stockings and spend the evenings barefooted, as I enjoy this very much. There are times when some one will come in for a few minutes or a guest will come to spend the evening. I always remain in the room, as I feel as much at ease as if I had on the finest pumps with silk hose. I have had many to admire and congratulate me on having such nice feet.

Many girls are ashamed of their feet and censure me for my "fad." My idea is that the foot has just as good a right to appear in public as the hand, as it is formed very much the same and in most cases is more delicate. If they were intended always to appear in shoes they surely wouldn't have been created with as much care as to shape and appearance. Is it proper for me to appear before company in my bare feet? Also is it right for me to appear at a public bathing beach in short skirts and barefooted?

Miss C. B. F.

ARE you real, Miss P. B. F., or are you just a joke? Can it be possible that you really mean any of the queer things you say in your queer letter?

There's nothing distasteful about a pretty foot and ankle, but who wants to be reminded of them every minute?

If you want to go barefooted in the house or on the street, go barefooted—and enjoy yourself. But don't expect others to enjoy you.

People do not like "queer" folks; and any one who receives company in a pair of bare feet—no matter how pretty those feet may be—is "queer," and there's no use trying to get around it.

If you were my little girl you would never, no never, come into the room and receive company in your bare feet—any more than you would parade the main street of your town in a night gown.

Go on out and wade in the snowdrifts barefooted if you want to. If you can stand it, the rest of the world can.

But don't be cross when the rest of the world stops coming to see you, or laughs at you, or says that you are "queer."

As to the bathing beach—that all depends.

I never could see any harm in going in swimming without shoes and stockings. And if I were a middle-aged woman with my position in the world fully established, I'd do it—if I wanted to.

If I were a young girl and nobody else went bathing barefooted, I would buy myself the prettiest pair of bathing shoes and stockings that money could get and I would wear them and be happy.

Did you ever see a rude boy tie a red rag around a chicken's neck and set that chicken out into the barn yard with the rest of the hens and observe what happened to the chicken?

Don't tie the red rag of being "peculiar" and "different" around your neck, little girl, unless you want to run the risk of being torn to pieces.

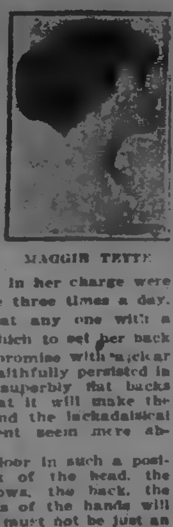
Flat Backs to Replace Slouch Pose

By Maggie Teyte

The Noted Prima Donna.



MAGGIE TEYTE

"STAND in the corner and hold up your head," is the advice the principal of a girls' boarding school used to give her pupils when she found them lacking in grace and elegance of carriage.

She had a certain exercise which carried out the idea and which the girls in her charge were required to practise three times a day. It is so simple that any one with a flat wall against which to set her back may try it. I can promise with a clear conscience that if faithfully persisted in it will give such superbly flat backs and such grace that it will make the debutante slouch and the lackadaisical pose of the moment seem mere absurdities.

Stand against a door in such a position that the back of the head, the shoulders, the elbows, the back, the heels and the palms of the hands will all touch it. And it must not be just an almost-closeness, but a real pressure, so firm there can be no doubt as to one's erectness of bearing.

Secret of Grace.

Easy? Not a bit of it! If you can hold the position a full minute after a month of daily practice, you are doing well. Doing well in more ways than one—not only succeeding in the exercise, but gaining strength and poise and muscle control.

The secret of grace is complete control of the body, and all the queer poses in the world won't make that statement any less true.

Not long ago, a noted physician was talking about the modern woman. He said: "Unless she learns how to hold up her head and keep the poise of her body, I fear for her mental future. It is a great pity that at a time when women are so capable and so prominent they should throw their entire beings out of harmony by adopting such outlandish poses as one sees on the street, in the ballroom, on the stage."

Go to the nearest art gallery and look at the "Golden Stairway," the beautiful picture of Burne-Jones, of lovely women coming down a stairway. There you will find the ideal pose in each figure. It is well worth studying—especially at this crucial moment in the pose of womankind. It is deserving of a place in every boudoir.

A Whitening Lotion.

I have had several requests for some whitening lotion for the skin which is beginning to show the effects of the spring sun.

Here is one that was given me by an English woman who at 60 had the complexion of a young girl:

Let one quart of sweet milk stand till it is thick. Then boil and strain through a cloth and add a sliced cucumber and let boil till the cucumber is a pulp. Strain again and let stand for an hour and pour off the fluid without disturbing the sediment. Add a tablespoonful of alcohol and 15 drops of benzoin and apply every night and when you come in from outdoor exercise in the sun.

Three Minute Journeys

Mongolia, the Land of Magic

By TEMPLE MANNING.

WHEN the traveller finally climbs the Tannu-ola mountains and gazes for the first time upon the bleak, wind-swept steppes of Mongolia, he is impressed first with the utter loneliness of the landscape. There is no vegetation to be seen; his glasses show no signs of human life. Only the obo, a wooden monument marking the well at the pass, about which are scattered various offerings of slain sheep, made by natives to the different gods, indicates that there is human life somewhere in the wastes which stretch 2000 miles from his feet.

Then, while this impression is fresh in his mind, there appears a galloping band of herdsmen from behind some promontory of rock. They examine the traveller's passports from Pekin, and then present theirs from the nearest khan, or chief, and take charge of the expedition. The traveller cannot imagine how word of his coming has preceded him, and he puts himself in the hands of his new guides wonderingly.

During my trip across the plateaux of this strange land each day saw some new touch of mystery. One khan would pass us on to the next, and his men would travel quickly so as to be rid of us. Relays of horses awaited us between encampments. During the night fresh men and horses and presents of sheep would mysteriously arrive from somewhere, and the following morning we trekked on without hindrance. Everything appeared as if by magic, for we saw no yurts, or herds of sheep, en route.

The people, and especially their chiefs, are most interesting. They were delighted to sit on our camp stools and sip our Russian tea, and besides their presents of blue silk handkerchiefs, they always gave us a few sheep. The Mongols have rough exteriors, their faces toughened by exposure and the bitter winds, but their hearts are warm. On the whole they are finely made men.

We found here the originals of our domesticated camels, horses and sheep. In other countries their ancestors have entirely disappeared. But in this forgotten land wild camels still tenant the depths of the Gobi, wild horses still pace the plains and within sight of them the great Ovis Ammon, wild mountain sheep, graze in seclusion on the upland meadows.

What a story this land could tell if only its deserts could speak and its mountains bear witness! Here rode Genghis, the Mongol Alexander, the most ruthless and inhuman destroyer the world has known. On these wild plateaux wandered those Mongol herdsmen who fed their flocks and moved their camps with complete content and splendid isolation, until at last the wanderlust came over them and they burst out from their fastnesses to overrun the world.

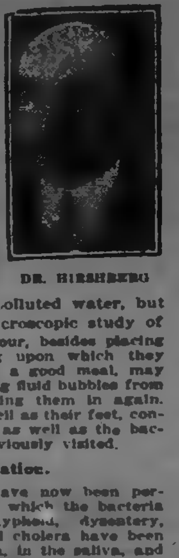
Secrets of Health and Happiness

What Flies Mean to the Home; Insect Carriers of a Plague of Ills

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

THERE are still some medical men who ridicule the "germ theory of disease." Few there were at first who examined seriously into the evident facts of the indictment of microscopic germs. Most doctors at first and laymen felt convinced that there was nothing in the world beyond their immediate sense perceptions. All of this, however, is now past. The majority, once disdainful of scoffing, have been steadily overpowered by the accumulated truths; they have succumbed to the dramatic antitoxins, the tragic inoculations of malignant germs into animals, and finally to the surgical feats of asepsis and anti-sepsis. Children in the elementary schools are now trained in methods of preventing bacterial growths, and know more about microbes than did the doctors of 25 years ago.

How these malicious micro-organisms pounced upon the human body and felled their victims was also thought to be a closed story, when the verdict of guilty was brought in against water, milk, bad air, soil and direct contagion. Suddenly, however, the higher court of new knowledge forced a reconsideration of the case. There was forced upon the pathological jury such new evidence that the whole matter had to be judged anew. For Dr. Theobald Smith, the eminent Harvard savant, who had investigated Texas cattle fever, discovered that the terribly destructive epidemic was spread, not by filthy soil, bad air, contaminated food, or polluted water, but by a tiny insect known as the cattle tick. The story of his painstaking researches and microscopic study of the blood of these ticks, how he finally and forever convicted them of harboring the malaria-like parasites of Texas fever is thrilling, but are now history. Suffice it here to say that it opened up at once, to scientists and physicians, an entirely new vista for investigation. It impelled them to recast their near-new notions and at once energetically to test every suspect in the insect world.

Winged Demons Everywhere.

Undoubtedly in not a few human as well as animal ailments the disease principle passes at once from person to person. Measles, diphtheria, scarlatina, smallpox, loathsome diseases, ringworm, the itch, and similar troubles are notable instances of this type. Quarantine and isolation usually serve to stamp such diseases out.

But Dr. Theobald Smith's finding, with that of his assistant, Kilbourne, soon led to the conviction of the anopheles mosquito as the source of malaria; the culex mosquito as the source of elephantiasis as well as bird anaemia; the stegomya mosquito as the source of yellow fever, and the tsetse fly as the reservoir for nagana and the death-dealing sleeping illness.

All of these maladies are caused by microscopic parasites of the animal type. How then are the ailments that are caused by the vegetable parasites—the bacteria—carried from the sick to the well? How are the bacilli of typhoid, dysentery, the plague, cholera and other microscopic plants of the disease-producing variety traced to their lairs? Naturally the offender at once to fall under suspicion is the housefly. Can the familiar housefly be found guilty?

While the hoary-headed, frosty winter seems at first sight to have rid the dirtiest neighborhoods in a metropolis of all the lazy, buzzing flies of midsummer, you will be amazed, if you are so industrious as to investigate, to find that the supposedly annihilated kisea domestica has lived up to its name, and is to be seen lolling comfortably amid the furnace pipes, the kitchen rafters, or in some other soothing and warm nook of your house. If I may make so bold as to say so, there is no spot or cranny that remains warm throughout a frigid winter that lacks at least one female fly.

These winged demons of filth and pestilence are evidently as eternal as the tides. Like your chickens and doves, they will surely be home to roost. Though your personal household flies may hie themselves forth upon a mild winter noon, they will again find you out at sundown.

Let us all go to the trouble of annihilating them in the winter of their discontent, at a time when they are accessible even to an anti-vivisectionist.

In the early April days, or, in the South, in the beginning of March, the female flies of yesteryear begin to arouse themselves. Like the shaggy bear after his long winter's nap, the musca begins to shake herself, flap her wings and fare forth to multiply over the face of your home and back yard. The female fly, now rousing itself from the lethargy of your clinker-clogged furnace, will soon lay from 120 to 200 eggs. If no stable or moist manure is at her service she will then lay her eggs on garbage, refuse, meat, or other exposed organic material.

How They Multiply.

Furthermore, in 10 days, every female in this new fly generation will set herself—if the weather is mild or warm—at once to lay as many eggs as her prolific mother. And with what an appalling result! The fly that produced her progeny in April will have by the first of September descendants of 10 raised to the 13th power. In one month, one fly will have a progeny of 12,000,000 of other flies. If weighed, these would measure nearly one-half a ton.

Flies allowed to feed on milk or sugar-water in which germs are placed will be found to deposit those microbes 10 times in every hour, besides placing them in everything upon which they alight. A fly, after a good meal, may often be seen blowing fluid bubbles from its trunk and sucking them in again. These bubbles, as well as their feet, contain all of the filth as well as the bacteria they have previously visited.

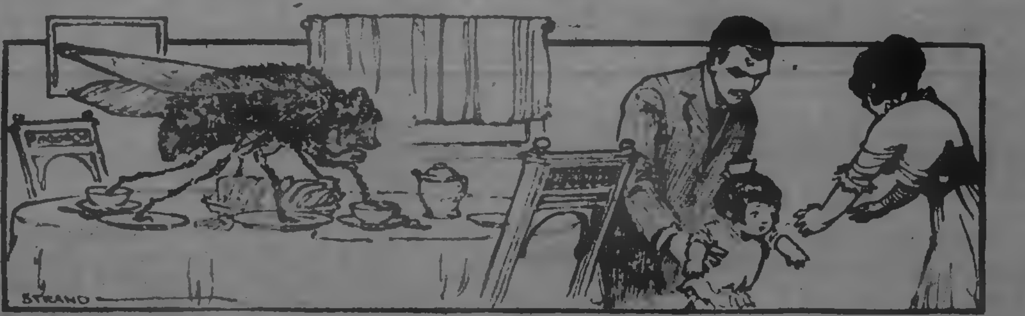
"Swat" Only Salvation.

Many instances have now been permanently proved in which the bacteria of tuberculosis, typhoid, dysentery, plague, anthrax and cholera have been found in the dejecta, in the saliva, and on the feet of the common house fly.

Epidemics of typhoid, dysentery and these other pests in military encampments have been so conclusively shown to be due to flies that the Japanese sanitarians in the Russo-Japanese war were able to maintain their immense field forces free of these troubles by directing efforts specifically against the fly. A courier of the plague, indeed. Yet many people say, "merely a harmless insect."

Every fly is the harbinger of disease and possible death. Flies will crowd each other for food and for breeding places. The garbage cans, open gutters, decaying fruits and vegetables, exposed market edibles, the mosses, ferns and decaying leaves upon the eaves of your roofs, all of these, as well as green groceries, butcher shops, thatched shingles, and all exposed liquids and foods will be quickly seized upon by the plague of flies that will have already been born before April has waned.

There is but one chance of obviating the danger and preventing the appearance of these multitudes of microbe-bearing demons. The sole means left to avoid this prospective danger is to start now at once to combat the threatened avalanche. Let every boy and girl, man and woman, resolve instanter to destroy once for all each and every fly that is now encountered. Annihilate them the moment they are seen. Do it now. Begin at once.



Every Fly in the Home Is a Harbinger of Evil.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

"SHOVELLING a man's wages out of the kitchen with a tablespoon" is an old simile which has lots of truth.

The modern woman who has domestic gumption is a good business woman.

Kitchen book-keeping is as necessary as some accounting system in any other business.

Haphazard housekeeping is passing. It is fast becoming a distinct business. It is quite as negligent in the housewife to confess ignorance of food prices as it is for the man who makes his living in the business world to acknowledge ignorance of the market prices.

After several weeks of experiment, under various conditions, the efficient housekeeper will know what it costs each week to run her table. She will keep within this sum. If there is company and extra entertaining she will strive to minimize expenditures for two or three weeks until the mean average becomes the same.

With some study of food values it is simple to plan meals that will have the requisite amount of nourishment, the delight of palatableness and a minimum of expense. "Watch the market" is excellent advice for all housekeepers to follow. It is no less admirable to be accused of being careless in expenditure than it is to be called stingy.

Many housekeepers whose husbands are on moderate salaries will let the kitchen run itself without any auditing of accounts until there is a hue and cry over bills from the head of the house, and then there will be tears and accusations.

A man who furnishes the money to run a house has a perfect right to demand a judicious handling of that money.

The wife who throws it out in waste and neglect is misappropriating funds.

If it is beneath a woman to take a personal interest in her kitchen, then it should be beneath her to accept the money to run the establishment.

In discussing a former mistress, one cook said to another: "I guess she was brought up poor. She was the most wastefullest woman I ever saw. Only folks that never had nothing throws away when they gets something."

Here are some kitchen hints that will save time and worry:

To make corks impervious to water and air, soak them in olive oil for five minutes.

If you have suspicion of the age or color of a chicken when you are cooking it and fear it will be yellow and tough, add the juice of half a lemon to the water in which it is cooked. The same recipe will whiten the flesh of fish.

A crust of dry bread thrown into the pot where cabbage is cooking will absorb the odor and keep it from permeating the house.

The odor of grease after frying can be driven out by the odor of coffee burned on top of the stove.

Domestic Service as a Career For Educated Women

At the National Gas Exhibition held in London Mrs. M. A. Cloudesley Brereton read a paper on "Domestic Service as a Career for Educated Women," referring to an idea formerly current among those who were ever a mistress' keenest critics, that a lady was not a "proper lidy" if she knew the proper way to do the simplest household service. "We want to get back to the old-fashioned ideas and ideals of the well-bred English gentlewoman from feudal times onwards, and to depart from the snobbish and parochial idea that to understand housecraft is to lose caste," said Mrs. Brereton. "Only those of us who are able to look far enough back can be cheered by the knowledge that this curious state of 'inverse servituude' was not always so, and certainly will not be so in the future. It is just a passing phase—a vulgar phase—and has never seriously affected the well-bred mistress. It is an ideal of the servants' hall, the middle-class 'lady,' and of the half-educated 'nouveaux riches,' generally of those, in short, who never see behind the scenes of the real gentlewoman's life, and who seem to imagine that a Queen eats and sleeps in full Court robes, and that a 'real lady' comes down to breakfast in the type of dress which she wears to open a grand bazaar. It is the ideal, or rather illusion, of the misinformed, of the artificially cultured. But it is not only backward that we should look if we desire to see what is truly a latter day tendency in its true perspective. Surely there are in every rank of society even, and perhaps especially in the highest, women who have never ceased to study and to understand the management of their households down to the smallest detail; women of wealth whose fine needlework would challenge comparison with that of the skilled expert; women of wide culture, whose culinary skill may be described almost as ancestral. This is especially true of the country-bred woman who, whatever her social position, knows not only the theory but the practice of every art which can be applied to kitchen, pantry, stillroom or butlery, sewingroom or nursery. A country-bred lady of the manor house is incapable of considering any household work menial. Nor would she consider it a work of aristocratic breeding, but rather of incompetence, to own that she could not truss a fowl, cook a joint, knit a stocking or cut out a skirt. Neither wealth nor rank, the claims of society, neither politics nor pleasure, exonerate a woman from the first duty which the headship of a house, large or small, imposes upon her."

This marble bust of "Edward the Peacemaker" was unveiled by Prince Arthur of Connaught at the new Middlesex Guildhall, Westminster.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, lso a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅝ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4239, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Queer Products Evolved and Made in the Prison Cell

The story recently circulated concerning the forged banknotes alleged to have been made by certain inmates of the great convict prison at Peterhead, Scotland, is not by any means unbelievable by those who know something of what goes on behind the scenes in other similar institutions in England and elsewhere.

These particular notes—although such good imitations of the genuine article that two or three of them were actually passed to unsuspecting tradesmen—seem to have been more or less in the nature of curios, such as are frequently made by convicts in their leisure hours, with, of course, the connivance of their warders, who afterwards dispose of them outside the prison, sharing the proceeds with their charges. Quite a trade is done in this way in little knick-knacks, such as, for example, carved stone tobacco boxes, wooden brackets, watch and key guards made from leather laces, photograph frames, and other similar articles beautifully fashioned and finished in iron and copper.

But other less harmless industries are also practiced in prisons by prisoners. It is not so very long ago, for instance, since a convict in one of the largest establishments of the kind was detected in the act of making counterfeit money in his cell. He was a professional counterfeiter, and while serving his term in gaol he had been employed as a plumber. This gave him the opportunity to get possession of solder, lead, silver sand, acid, and other materials used by coiners. Some women convicts are very clever at making things out of hair, which they pluck from their own heads. There is one very elaborate specimen of this kind of work in the famous Black Museum at Scotland Yard. It is a pincushion containing, it is alleged, over thirty thousand separate hairs, and the female convict who made it occupied herself for several years upon the job, using not only her own hair, but begging contributions from the other women prisoners as opportunity arose. Eventually she died in prison, and bequeathed this, her only belonging, to the gaol chaplain, who, in turn, presented it to the museum.

Boy Falls From Train

As a little boy, three-and-a-half years of age, son of William Prentice, a hatter and hosier, of Venvue street, Glasgow, was travelling with his mother on the railway to Clarkston, he fell from the train. According to his mother he just touched the handle when the door flew open. He sustained concussion of the brain.

To Save the Coal

A double grate has been brought out in Europe for the economical consumption of low grade coals, the hot air from the upper grate driving the smoke and gases down into the fire on the lower, so that they are almost completely consumed.

No Sulphur Matches

The importation of sulphur matches has been prohibited by the government of India.

A department report shows the Indians in Canada to be increasing at the rate of 2,000 a year. In 1912 there were 104,956; to-day there are 106,490. Nearly all of them live in good dwellings; they have 326 schools enrolling 11,144 pupils; while in spite of their supposed susceptibility to disease, the death-rate has been cut to 21 per thousand in the most populous communities. They earn wages amounting to $6,000,000 yearly, and cultivate 60,000 acres.

London, May 12.—The Unionists of Leinster, Munster and Connaught, three of the four Irish Provinces, the other being Ulster, have sent a petition to the King against the passage of the Home Rule Bill by Parliament. They declare it to be their conviction that if the bill is forced through the House of Commons without an appeal to the country it will produce a rankling sense of injustice, create grave difficulties, bitter animosity and civil war. They express the hope that the bill will be submitted to the electorate before it is passed.

OF INTEREST TO LOCAL FENIAN RAID VOLUNTEERS

An act introduced by Hon Col. Sam Hughes, called, "Fenian Raid Volunteer Bounty Act," contains clauses of interest to several local citizens. Sections 3 and 4, respectively say:

The Governor in Council may at any time before the thirty-first day of December, one thousand nine hundred and fourteen, grant the sum of one hundred dollars to every volunteer who is living on the date of the passing of this Act.

The Governor in Council may at any time before the thirty-first day of December, one thousand nine hundred and fourteen, grant the sum of one hundred dollars to the widow or there being no widow, then to the legal representative, of every volunteer who was living on the first day of April one thousand nine hundred and twelve, and to whom or on account of whose services as a volunteer no grant had previously been made under the authority of this Act or under the authority of the Fenian Raid Volunteer Bounty Act.

This Frees The Skin
Of Hair Or Fuzz.

(Beauty Topics.)

A simple paste made with some powdered delatone and water and applied to superfluous hair on the lip, cheek or chin for about two minutes, then rubbed off, banishes every trace, and when the skin is washed to remove the remaining delatone it will be left smooth, firm and entirely free from spot or blemish. This method of getting rid of objectionable hair or fuzz is unfailing and entirely devoid of pain. Be careful to see that you get real delatone.

WOMAN'S FACE BLACKENED

St. Petersburg, May 12.—A young woman appeared in a public park at Grosnyi, in South Russia. Half her face was blackened. The color was not due to the little accidents of grate cleaning. The woman was not "the first woman chimney sweep." Neither had she embarked on the ardous career of a coal-heaver.

The "black" blacking, perhaps, or black-head—had been deliberately applied. Moreover, it had been polished apparently with tender care, until it shone like a grate in a well regulated household or the boots of an officer in the Guards.

But the result was not "a joy forever," The plebeians in the park were not impressed. They jeered, and before their jeers the pioneer of the new fashion in faces and to retreat.

The woman was a futurist, who wished to go one better than a colored wig and violet face powder.

BRITISH WOMEN IN KILTS; NEWEST OF FASHIONS

Color Schemes Are Reminiscent of Various Hues of the Balkan States

London, May 12.—To be clad in kilts is quite the newest fashion craze.

From the adoption of plaids and multi-colored tartans and checks the transition to the garment in which they are shown to the best advantage is natural and fitting. The only modification of the kilt proper, when worn by the smart woman, is added length and a slight restriction in the number of pleats. This does not however, eliminate a certain voluminous effect towards which there is a perceptible trend in current modes.

As regards the jacket, this is in black satin preferably to black velvet which is somewhat heavy for the spring season.

The tartan skirts are by no means confined to Highland patterns, and the color schemes are reminiscent of vivid Balkan hues, the intermixture of gold threads being decidedly original.

The correct headgear for the kilt costume is a flat black straw tam-o'-shanter-shaped hat or a straw Glengarry with velvet streamers. The fashion is most becoming if the wearer selects her proper co [illegible] is no suggestion of mannish hardness in a well-combined kilt toilette.

THE EXCLUSION OF ULSTER ALONE CAN AVERT CIVIL WAR

Mr. Balfour Points Out Disastrous Consequences of Any Coercion

Toronto, May 12.—During the continued debate on the second reading of the Home Rule Bill, Mr. Balfour discussed the disastrous results of civil war which must come if the Government persisted in its plan to force Home Rule on Ulster.

It is clear to everybody that there are two questions which have to be considered in the grave position in which the Government now finds itself. I cannot exaggerate my sense of the gravity of the position, and I believe that it is shared by many who differ profoundly from me in general opinion, and perhaps by some who are offended at what I have said this afternoon. I do not think that anybody can doubt it. I am not going to discuss the ethics of civil war. The right hon. gentleman appears to hold a view, which, so far as I know, has never been held by responsible British statesmen, at any rate not for centuries, that there are no circumstances in which it is justifiable for a population to resist the Government. They must be most rare. Such circumstances in any reasonable community must be of a kind which could only occur once in two or three centuries without shattering the whole fabric of society. But they may occur, they have occurred, and there has never been any question with regard to some of us, on this side of the House, that the coercion of Ulster, in the sense of compelling Ulster to leave the free Government under which she is happy, and putting her under a Government which she detests is one of those cases. (Cheers.) I hold now, and I held almost alone nearly 30 years ago, that if Home Rule was forced upon Ulster, Ulster would fight and Ulster would be right. (Cheers.) I have held the same view consistently ever since and have never wavered from it, but because I never wavered from it does anybody in the House suppose that I do not think it one of the most appalling and terrible calamities that could ever happen to any great nation?

LOCAL BAKERS OBJECT TO PROPOSED CIVIC BY-LAW

At the regular meeting of the Board of Health held yesterday morning, Messrs. H. W. Stock and T. Lush waited on the Board to protest against the proposed new by-law, which would compel bakers to wrap their loaves in paper. The gentlemen were present on their own behalf.

Mr. Lush stated that the proposed regulations seemed to presage a great deal of inconvenience. The men, he said, have to get out early in the morning and have their ordinary routine work to attend to, and to comply with the by-law men would have to be employed to do the wrapping.

A Greater Cost.

"It cannot be wrapped when it is warm," said Mr. Lush, "as it has to stand a while. In regard to expense I hardly know what the wrapping part would cost, but when you reckon on paper, and labor, it would be a considerable amount. That, however, will have to be ascertained later. Then, when the men fill the carts, it would hardly be possible for them to do that without tearing the wrappers that would be a contravention of the by-law. Some customers want soft, and some hard baked bread, and you all know it is hard to please the ladies. The bread cannot be wrapped by machine, because of the different shapes of the loaves that are made."

He believed heartily in having places kept clean. "People at the present are complaining about the high cost of living, and if the bread is wrapped someone will have to pay for it, and I know it will not be the bakers," concluded Mr. Lush.

Mr. Stock said he agreed with all that Mr. Lush had said. "I think," he said, "that the men will hold the employers as liable, in a matter of a prosecution of this sort, if they do not comply with the by-law. He asked that the Board consider the fact that men in bakeshops have to work in a temperature of 90 degrees, and any encumbrance whatever on their arms, etc., would greatly inconvenience them.

Bakers Want Cleanliness.

"We heartily endorse any efforts that the Board might make in this direction, and would be most willing to comply at all times with any regulations made in that respect, for instance, such matters as painting and white-washing. Our men are compelled to clean out their rigs, and if there is any moisture which accumulates and causes dirt, we provide them with scrapers, and they are supposed to scrape out the carts.

A Public Hold-up.

"As far as the wrapping is concerned, I think it is somewhat of an injustice to the general public. It was stated in the paper that it would only cost one-tenth of a cent to wrap a loaf. How it got there, I don't know and whoever gave the information was mistaken. The wrappers cost one-third of a cent each, besides the labor. We would have to quit making all these fancy loaves. A machine that wraps, costs in the neighborhood of $2,000, and even then, only one size of loaf can be wrapped."

Sanitary Inspector Spence said that a large fork in operation elsewhere had proved a success.

Dr. McPherson asked that the gentlemen who had come to interview the Board would converse with the other bakers and try and devise some means by which handling the bread would be done away with, and then report back to the Board at the next meeting.

FLATIRON TIED TO WOMAN DEAD IN RESERVOIR

Victim About 35 and of Refined Appear Once—Description Sent Broadcast

Boston, May 12.—Wich a seven-pound flatiron fastened to the lapel of her coat, the body af an unidentified woman was found in shallow water in the old Boston reservoir off Boylston street, Brookline, by Percival Lombard of Hillside road, at noon yesterday. The police were notified and recovered the body.

No tags or labels on the clothes, and nothing worn by the woman gave any clue to her identity. Her clothing is of fine quality, and her hands indicate that she was unaccustomed to labor. Her features are refined.

The Brookline police at once sent broadcast this description of the woman. Age, about 35 years; height 4 feet 11 inches; weight, 110 pounds; slightly receding chin, medium complexion, black hair, slightly gray at the temples, light gray eyes, small mole on the left cheek near the ear, considerable gold fillin— in the teeth.

The body was dressed in a one-piece blue serge suit with blue ruching at the sleeves and neck, black stockings and black low cut shoes, a black straw hat with a black band and trimmed with a wreath of pink flowers, and a mixed gray coat. The hat was found on the bank.

It was the glint of the flowers in the sun that attracted the attention of Mr. Lombard to the scene. In response to his telephone message to Lieut. Stitt, Sergt. Gleason, Patrolman Daniel Lynch and Medical Examiner Barry M. Cutts went to the scene, and took the body to a local undertaking room.

Dr. Cutts, after his examination, said that he believed it to be a case of suicide in spite of the flatiron attached to the coat. The body had been in the water but a short time, he said, probably only since early in the morning.

The hands were ringless, but Dr. Cutts declared that the fingers showed no indications that the woman had been accustomed to wear articles of jewelry and had taken them off prior to drowning herself.

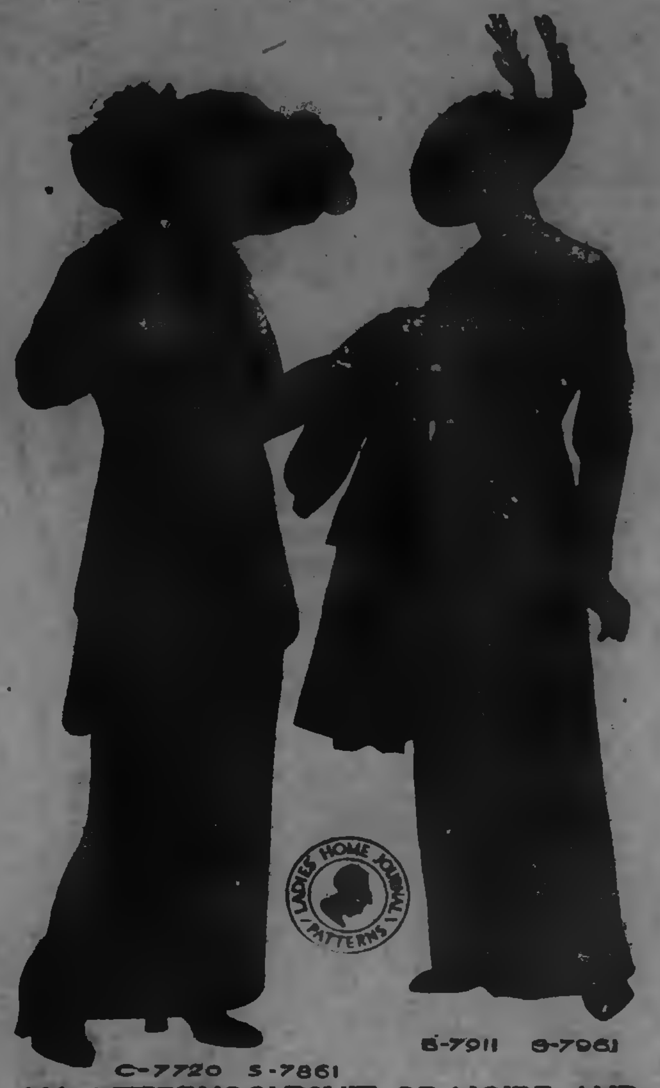
MUNICIPAL FORMS ALWAYS IN STOCK



AN AFTERNOON SUIT OF MOIRE AND A SMART TAILORED FROCK

Smart women will wear next season the tunic skirt, the peg-top and models that are draped up in back bustle fashion or caught in at the sides. There is a wide choice in each of these designs. There are single, double and triple tunics and modified Minarets. Instead of the real tunic there may be trimming bands of plaits arranged to give the same effect. Blouses and coats will follow the same general lines, variation being given by sash arrangements; novel sleeve and vest effects.

No. 7720-7861 is a costume of ochre moire. The coatee shows a set-in sleeve, an attractive collar and front closing. The skirt has a graduated tuck, which forms a tunic in front and gives the effect of drapery in back. This costume may be made in size 36 with 2¾ yards of 36 inch material for the coatee (7720) and 3 yards of 36 inch material for the skirt (7861).

A delightfully colored wool crepe is used for the other frock illustrated (7911-7961). The colors are gray and white, very silvery and delicate, and the cuffs, collar and sash are of silk in the same shades of gray and silver. This skirt model shows a slight drapery in front effected by two dart tucks.

For size 36 this design requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material for the bodice (7911) and 2¾ yards of 42 inch material for the skirt (7961).

No. 7720—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 7861—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 7911—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7961—sizes 22 to 30.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

COMMON OBSTACLES TO HOUSEHOLD WORK

Ways in Which the Average Housekeeper Loses Time and Wastes Strength

An authority on domestic science has been investigating the ways of the average housekeeper with a view to determining in what ways she loses time and wastes strength, and has grouped the hindrances under six heads.

First is the loss of time in bringing and carrying materials and utensils in cooking. Closets are too many and too scattered, the refrigerator too far from the kitchen table. This difficulty is easily remedied by the use of the kitchen cabinet and by putting the refrigerator in the space set free by the installation of the cabinet. Many people find a kitchen cabinet too expensive, but at the Teachers' College in New York, they have improvised one from packing boxes which, at a nominal cost, answers every purpose.

Second, is the fatigue caused by tables and sinks, either too high or too low. One great advantage of the gas range is that one can cook on the level. The vacuum washer, which has often been mentioned in these pages, is a utensil which obviates stooping over a tub or washboard, and which saves many an aching back. People who live in rented houses cannot regulate matters of this sort for themselves, but every woman who has anything to say about building a house should insist upon sink, range and set tubs being at a convenient height. When no modification is possible, something may be done by supplying the kitchen with one or more high stools so that ironing and dish washing can be done in a sitting posture.

The third difficulty is working with the wrong tool or with tools in poor condition. Most kitchens are well equipped, but no care is taken to keep tools in good condition. A whetstone and an oil can should be at hand and each utensil should have its own nail at a convenient height, over table or sink according to its special use.

A fourth cause of waste is the loss of time in shifting from one process to another, this applying principally to cleaning. It is always best to clean several rooms at a time, sweeping each in turn, then washing the windows of all, lastly doing all the dusting, "getting your hand in" with each process.

The fifth difficulty applies to the purchasing of supplies. Much delay is caused by the running out of one article or another. Sugar, flour, or eggs are not at hand and cooking must be delayed while the purchase is made and the whole day's work is thrown out. There should be a regular system of purchasing supplies and of checking off each article as it is used up. In this same line time can be saved by planning the bill of fare for a few days ahead.

The sixth hindrance is one which would only occur to a trained observer, that is the inconvenience resulting from the use of movable utensils. The coffee mill attached to the wall involves much less exertion than the sort which is held in the lap. To have a chopping bowl or the receptacle of an egg beater clamped to the table is a simple matter and a substantial saving of labor.

Other hindrances than these will probably suggest themselves to individual housekeepers, but careful analysis of existing conditions will show the importance of this classification.

Famous Mathematician Dead

The death has occurred at Reigate at the age of eighty-five, of Colonel A. R. Clarke, C.B., F.R.S., who was famous for his determinations of the figure of the earth. His calculations, for which he received the Royal Medal of the Royal Society in 1887, involved an enormous amount of mathematical labor.

A Fenian Veteran

Mr. T. Duggan, whose death has been reported from Subiaco, was one of the sixty Fenian prisoners who arrived in West Australia in January, 1868, the only survivor of the party now being Mr. Reilly, of North Perth. Born in County Cork in 1822, Mr. Duggan entered the teaching profession, and was engaged in Ballincollig School, when arrested in 1866 for his connection with the I.R.B. VARIATIONS IN MILK FAT

They Show That Cows Should be Tested at Frequent Intervals

Frequent experiments have shown that one single test of a cow's milk is not reliable as an indication of what percentage of fat her milk normally contains. A great many well known causes affect the test, also some causes that are unknown at present even by the closest students. This "variation in the test" is one of the puzzles of the cow's individuality, and because of these puzzling variations it is advisable to take composite samples at intervals so as to ascertain the average test.

Some painstaking investigations at one of the dairy research stations in England, with seven cows for [illegible] days, even covering such details as a separate test of eleven such [illegible] pints, three times a day, from the four quarters of the udder, show that while thirty pounds of milk per [illegible] was 3.6 per cent., the variation was all the way from only six-tenths of one per cent. up to nine and [illegible] per cent. of fat.

This is clear proof of how misleading one single test may be. If the real earning capacity of each individual cow is to be computed, it must be on the basis of her annual production of milk and fat less the cost of feed; regular weighing and testing give that knowledge which every factory patron should have of each cow he keeps.

KELLY-SPRINGFIELD TIRES

AN UP-TO-DATE NURSERY RHYME.

There was a man in our town,
And he was wondrous wise.
He bought a second-hand old car,
With inferior supplies.
He then acquired some cheap skate tires,
They claimed them good, though cheap;
What happened to that poor old slob
Would make an angel weep.
He started on a tour one day
With the manners of a prince.
His tires blew higher than a kite,
He's ne'er been heard of since.

The Sheep Pays

Money invested in sheep will nearly double itself in one year, since the fleece will pay for the feed and care of the sheep, and the lambs, often two per ewe, are the profit. It is estimated that ten sheep may be kept where one cow may, and the risk is much less. It may be said that the sheep always carries her pocketbook with her. If she dies, her pelt or fleece pays her funeral expenses. If she lives, her wool in the spring and her lambs in the fall pay double revenue. No other stock pays as large a percentage of clear profit on the money invested. Nothing else will build up a rundown farm as quickly as a flock of sheep. While pasturing, the sheep's manure is distributed about so evenly that no manure spreader could equal the sheep in its work.

Blood is Thicker than Water

In the early fifties a half manned British warship was attacked by an overwhelming force of Chinese and her commander, seeing an American warship at anchor some distance away, asked if it could give any assistance. Commodore Tattnall signalled back, "Yes, Blood is thicker than water," and sent some of his crew to man the guns of the distressed Britisher. The other day in the harbor of Vera Cruz, when Uncle Sam's marines and bluejackets were being sent ashore in whaleboats the crew of the British cruiser Essex stood on the rails and cheered the Americans heartily. And in London after the incident a member of Parliament said in a public speech, "Who hits the United States hits Great Britain." So it does seem, as Tattnall said, that "Blood is thicker than water."

Dangerous Throat Troubles Prevented by Nerviline

IT ENDS MISERY OF COLDS QUICKLY.

Don't wait till night.

Get after your cold now,—this very minute, before it grow[illegible]rous you should apply old-time "Nerviline."

Rub your chest and throat, rub them thoroughly with Nerviline. Relief will be immediate.

Nerviline will save you from lying awake to-night, coughing, choking, and suffering from congestion in the chest and acute pain in the throat.

Nerviline will break up that dull neuralgic headache—will kill the cold and chill at its very beginning—will save you from perhaps a serious illness.

To take away hoarseness, to break up a grippy cold, to cure a sore throat or bad cold in the chest, you can use nothing so speedy and effective as Nerviline. For forty years it has been the most largely used family remedy in the Dominion. Time has proved its merit, so can you by keeping handy on the shelf the large 50c. family size bottle; small trial size, 25c., sold by any dealer anywhere.

It is the Pace that Kills

It is always the pace that kills.

The bent form of age on his morning way to work, dinner pail in hand, is the pictured result of a life of heavy labor and hardship.

But there is life, and strength and ambition, no matter how exacting have been the years of his toil.

A few days ago a young man, scarcely over 40, the pampered son of a millionaire; through all his years unknown to restraint and unshod of employment, shot his aged father. The young man is now in a cell—a victim of the pace that kills. He has never known anything but the high spots of life. His college life, instead of a foundation for usefulness to his fellowmen, was an investment in profligacy.

He followed the usual course of a pampered son. Late hours, late suppers, and the latest habits. A brief married life; the destruction of the ideals of a devoted woman, and then divorce.

Still going the pace, recently this young man, with a weakened mind from years of abuse, walked in upon his sleeping father and shot him to death. And to a prison or the madhouse this young man must go, and what might have been a very useful career ends in shame and crime.

Surely it is the pace that kills!

Notice is hereby given that the Court of Revision, of the Township of Chandos, will hold its first sitting at Post's School House, on Saturday May 16, 1914, to hear and determine the appeals made against the Assessment Roll of year 1914.

LEVI P. BULLIED, Clerk.
Dated this 6th day of May, 1914.

Not a Religious Issue

The agitators behind the movement to establish equality between French and English in the Public Schools of Ontario have sought to give the issue a religious character. There is an answer to this contention in the address just issued by the English section of the Ottawa Separate School Board. It is said:

> "The French . . . . make religion a cloak for their nationalism, and defied the inspectors on religious grounds. We will have nothing to do with this religious hypocrisy. If the chief inspector, who is a Protestant, should care to visit the English Separate Schools at Ottawa, he will be very welcome. We know that he has authority to inspect our schools, and we know that he would not interfere in the slighest with our religious rights There are none of our schools that we are afraid to have inspected."

Irish Catholics in communities where the French predominate are the chief sufferers by excessive French teaching, says The News. As Roman Catholics the Irish attend Separate Schools with the French. If English is neglected they cannot secure a decent education. Hence they resist the attempt to give French a preference over English, which means for thousands of Irish Catholics almost a denial of educational privileges.

The Department of Education has no desire to humiliate French Canadians or to confer favours upon English-speaking Catholics. It believes that it is in the interests alike of French and Irish that English shall be the language of the schools. Only through adequate knowledge of English can every element of the population have a fair chance for industrial success in an English speaking continent.

Sporting Column

THE TIMES invites the use of this column by its readers who may wish to make any announcements or publish reports of sporting events.

St. Thomas, May 12.—The weather man stepped in to-day and prevented the Saints and the Bloumtmen from trying conclusions and at the best the teams will get through one game of the three scheduled as it will be impossible to play a double-header to-morrow owing to the Petes having to take an early train for the East to reach home in time for the opening.

It is reported that a new trick for the manipulation of the tantalizing spit ball is being tried out by Louie Schettler this season. "Louie's" favorite is the spit ball and he carries a bar of soap in his pocket from which he lathers the ball instead of taxing his salivary glands in the usual fashion. Pitchers heretofore have been known to make use of slippery elm and kindred aids to a free flow of saliva, but Shettler has a brand new scheme.

It is thought that Catcher Miller will be sufficiently recovered from his injury to do the receiving work in the game against London here on Thursday.

"Maty" Calhoun, first baseman of the Mobile Club, in the Southern League is the first victim of the "bean ball" reported this year. He was hit by pitcher Black and knocked unconscious. Because of repeated attacks of dizziness and headaches the doctor has advised Calhoun to quit the game for a year.

Every evening, and afternoons after four o'clock, Central Park is the mecca of a large number of ball enthusiasts, getting ready for the opening of the Mercantile League. Quite a number of lacrosse players are daily seen in action there also.

Toronto Beavers will play their home games this season at the new Motordrome field, in the heart of the city. Besides doing away with the trips across the Bay and the inconvenience experienced at the Island, the grounds at the motor track are much larger and the seating arrangements much better than at the Island Stadium. It is almost impossible to hit a ball "over the fence" or outside the grounds, so home runs will be scarcit— in the Queen City this season. The Ottawa Senators open the season in Toronto on M— 28.

Western States. Miss Whittaker will attempt to swim from the Brooklyn Harbor to Altantic City in June—a distance of some 27 miles.

Indications point to a big day at the opening of the League in Peterborough to-morrow, and Riverside Park is going to see the biggest crowd in its history. All the "big 'uns" will be there, and Rupert Gliddon and his band of musicians will liven up the proceedings.

Like the small boy on Saturday afternoons, we say for Thursday:
"Rain, rain, go away,
And come some other day."

The fans are eagerly looking forward to the 25th of May, when the Petes will have an opportunity of getting even with Erie for the "three straight" they received from the sailors. Our Yankee friends will be here for a double header on the holiday and two more on the following Tuesday and Wednesday—four games in all. Nothing short of a clean-up of that series will satisfy the Blountmen.

While we won't have any aeroplanes to drop the ball or any presentation of Kew-pies, the opening ceremonies at Riverside Park on Thursday give promise of exceeding all expectations. Everybody come along!

London on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, and then we will entertain "Shag's" Ottawa Senators for three days. The team from the Capital are a strong aggregation and give promise of making the Petes go the limit to win the biggest half of the series.

Riverside Park will be at its best by Thursday. The outer grounds are in fine shape, and the infield like a bowling green.

Oh, great was the fun when the Prodigal Son,
Returned with his staff and his pack,
But that won't be in it, not even a minute,
When "Peggy" and his big stick come back.

Monday was a Jonah day for the Canadian League. Every game was postponed. We won't mind that, however, if the weather man dishes up a nice brand for Thursday.

St. Louis and Chicago Nationals battled for 13 innings Monday to a tie 5—5. St. Louis used 16 players and Chicago 15 in an effort to score, but the marvellous fieldin— of both teams kept the score the same and the game had to be called on account of darkness.

With a win in the final game at Toronto on Saturday by a score of 10—3, the Providence Grays journeyed to Montreal, and on Monday batted four pitchers out of the box, secured two home runs and four triples and ran up a total of 17 runs. The Royals secured 2.

HOME RULE SPEECHES

Toronto, May 12.—Following the remarkable proposal of Mr. Winston Churchill in the British House of Commons, for a compromise of the Home Rule issue, by exclusion of Ulster, pending development of the Federation scheme, Mr. Balfour and Sir Edward Carson delivered speeches of very great importance.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the New Novel, "Diane of the Green Van," Awarded a Prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as Judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

The Virtue of Primness.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

OF COURSE it was inevitable, I suppose, that the pendulum should swing quite to the other side with Mary's intense passion for orderly housekeeping, but why—oh, why don't women learn the true value of things? Mary in a wild spasm of enthusiasm has abandoned her clubs and every other form of social life. Now she works and works and works in a fever of atoning energy from morning to night. She's thinner, but she's better for that. Mary was getting a little too heavy merely from an inert method of life and eating too much cake and ice cream late in the afternoon. But I feel that she ought to go out occasionally and go out with me.

Yet—I might as well confess it—there's a flaw in this tremendously wifely passion for neatness. After prating of Mary's carelessness and rejoicing so when her belated phase of neatness struck her, I feel a little guilty in the appalling discovery I have made.

Whenever I want Mary—she's busy. She's either going to cook, has just been cooking —or wants to cook. She talks exhaustively of dust and housecleaning every night at dinner, though she detests the uninteresting details of my business. Dust colors her views on everything, and particularly architecture. Just yesterday I described an attractive nook in the house of a friend, and immediately Mary exclaimed with matronly primness:

"But what a place to catch the dust, Peter and how hard to keep clean!"

And the passion isn't waning! That's the singular thing about it. It grows—all the result again of a woman's club. For now that Mary has abandoned card and social clubs she belongs to the sort that discuss fireless cookers and vacuum cleaners, and she talks shop to me incessantly.

I know very well that I shall be put down as a husband very hard indeed to suit since, after grumbling about my wife's slip-shod ways I am still finding fault—and now about a wholly commendable habit of neatness—but——

Well—these facts stand pitilessly forth in my resume of Mary's neatness. If I sit down on the sofa and rise a few minutes after, Mary flies to the couch and reproachfully fluffs up the cushions I've crushed. If I leave my papers on the table they're pounced upon and folded up. Every letter disappears from the mantel as soon as I've read it. Oftimes I'd like to read it again and can't find it—and even when I'm desperately planning to order my disturbed den myself, Mary is ahead of me in a fever of zeal.

My cigar ashes drive her crazy; my hat is never hung in the right spot—in fact, I'm beginning to slink around in a mighty guilty way with furtive looks behind me to see if I've left anything undone.

"Mary," I suggested one night, "don't you think there's a happy medium?"

"To what?" asked Mary, reasonably enough.

"To housekeeping," I ventured. "At first you know you used to let everything slide—now you're so—so darned orderly that I'm uncomfortable."

"Peter!" exclaimed Mary tragically. "Will I ever be able to suit you?"

"You do suit me," I hastened to assure her. "You—er—suit me too much. That's the trouble. Why, sweetheart, you've simply gone to the other extreme. Listen, Mary. I always figure that a man's house is the one spot where he may be absolutely comfortable and disregard convention now and then, muss up the sofa cushions, for instance, if he's so minded. But lately I have to sit up very straight and think ahead constantly for fear I'm going to violate some powerful new canon of neatness. There's a certain charming disorder you know, Mary, that has cleanliness and a basic order at the root of it just as there is an order that has—er—stiffness and discomfort for its fundamental principles. I want to be happy and comfortable."

Oh, the unexpected catastrophes of marriage! Mary and I quarrelled horribly over a conspicuous virtue—neatness.

No—not neatness—primness!

Decorating the Country House

By MAY ELDRIDGE

THERE is a strong Chinese note in the newest cretonnes and chintzes which are offered in such varieties for the adornment of the country house. Also the pattern is repeated in the table china. Queer birds with wondrous plumage cling to the straggly branches of twisted and flower-laden trees above the turrets of some fantastic house, and they riot on the china as well as the draperies and funiture coverings.

There is also much liking manifest for the black-and white combination for interior decoration. Many of the new chintzes have the black background which has been noted for the past two or three seasons but the pattern is printed in white. Sometimes it is in checker-board effect or it consists of impossible fruits growing on improbable trees, and sometimes landscapes, pagodas and foliage all in white stand out in bold relief on the sombre background. Again, on some of the newest materials the black figures, usually lightly sketched so the appearance of shadows is given, are shown on white.

Black velvet carpets are used a good deal more than the uninitiated would believe. Many half-worn or faded carpets have been dyed black and been utilized to excellent effect in redecorating according to modernist art.

However, the lovely soft grays and blues and greens with now and then a touch of rose will be the favorite color scheme for the summer house. In looking for outdoor furniture I was struck by the quantity of pale green that is used. Settees, chairs, tables for the porch or lawn show the cool, dainty color which [illegible] so beautifully with the hues of [illegible]

Wonderful Flower Designs.

There are also wonderful flower designs executed on high backed chairs in German or Austrian style. There will be a bed of red roses in the centre of the back and the middle of the seat, and conventionalized tulips in blue or yellow framed for a border, while a grotesque parrot swings at the point where the garlands join just above the rose bed on the back of the chair.

It seems a comparatively simple matter for the woman with skill in using patterns and paints to do over one or two old chairs in this manner. After they are painted a coat of waterproof varnish is applied, and the chair has the appearance of being something entirely new.

Of course, judgment must be used to have the chair the right shape for the decoration. The old slat back chairs have the same single roses and vine design painted on them that they did in the days when they made part of the "best set" in grandmother's "spare room."

There is apparently the same favor shown the enamelled bedroom furniture with the little flower design wandering over the foot and headboards of the bed and the front of the dressing table and dressers. The draperies match. On a pale gray set there was a design of buttercups and bluebells, and the pale gray cretonne which formed the hangings had the same colors and design, while the woven rugs of gray had borders of blue.

For Window Curtains.

Flower pots are most ornate and easily made so. The ordinary glazed pot which has a rim at the top is used and is painted in dull green with the band in a contrasting shade, sometimes striped with lines of lighter color. On the sides are blossoms, a single flower, a stiffly painted tulip or a rose or a buttercup done in the crude style in which the child would set a row of flowers in the picture of a garden which he might make on the blackboard.

The ordinary tins in which the real oatmeal comes or which hold tea or coffee are utilized for tea caddies and cracker jars de luxe.

Sometimes they are treated to a coat of paint to match the scheme of the room and have the patterns of the draperies repeated on them.

Or they are covered neatly in chintz and finished with a narrow guimpe.

They are decidedly useful and most attractive. For the woman who has one of the modern kitchenette apartments there is nothing more useful, for no matter how practical their contents they are an addition to the room wherever they may be placed.

Black net has been introduced for window curtains, but with the exception of some special apartment, such as a room done in the gold and black lacquer of Japanese art, they are not received with great favor.

On the contrary, the average curtain for the country house is of white net, either striped or dotted, or in one of the delightful plain or bordered scrims in the soft cream tones. Some of these have borders of other materials, but the wise woman tries to keep the summer home light and cool looking, and the hand hemstitching makes a far more attractive finish.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie [illegible]:

I have [illegible] who is very handsome and I [illegible] simply crazy about [illegible] fault. I [illegible] like evening [illegible] flirted with every girl [illegible] Please tell me if I should [illegible] right to take it as an insult or as [illegible] whims.

A SCHOOLGIRL.

A WHIM [illegible] Well I'd make it a whim [illegible] never to go anywhere with [illegible] again as long as I lived.

Any man who will flirt with girls on the street, especially when he has one girl with him, is a cad of the lowest type.

He's a vain, silly, ill-mannered boor, and how you can be "simply crazy about him" or any one like him makes me think you must be just a wee bit crazy to begin with.

Handsome—suppose he is handsome—don't you know any one who is decent as well as good-looking?

Find some real man to take you out or else stay at home.

At any rate, do not lower yourself by going out with an ogling, simpering fool who makes sheep's eyes at every girl he sees.

Keep away from him, Schoolgirl, and make him keep away from you.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

A SHREWD person, this Cupid fellow! Knows just when to talk and just when to keep mum. Knows just how to keep a secret, and just when to TELL. Never tells at the wrong time or to the wrong person. He is never so pleased as when he can get ALL of a person's attention, and can feel free to tell what he knows in a way that will do the most good—the most good to HIM.

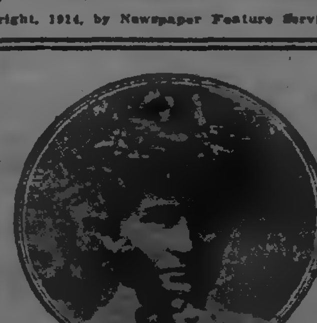
He has his game to play. And so plausible! It all sounds so easy, so RIGHT. When it is just what you ~~want to hear~~, just what you have ALWAYS believed, it is sweet as the sweetest music.

Of course, there is no objection to your swapping secrets with him, to telling HIM a thing or two. He'll pretend that it's all news. The joke is that he KNOWS already.

How Figures Can Lie

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

FIGURES can't lie—do you believe that? I don't. I know it isn't true. Figures can lie, and lie harder and faster and more deceitfully than anything else on earth. Pick up that book of statistics for a minute.

Turn to the page on labor. How many hundred thousand women are there employed in the United States as farm laborers? If you should ask me, I'd say, at a rough guess, just about 100 women in all. The book says over 70,000.

Oh, yes, it's a fact all right; but don't emigrate to the South Seas with the idea that the country is going to the "dogs"—or to the women—on that account.

Those women farm laborers are cotton pickers. Ah, yes—now you see, don't you?

Look at the reports from that orphan asylum. It's been running for forty years and in the last thirty years not one single child has died there and not one has been seriously ill within the gates.

Don't grab your own delicate children and send them to that asylum for protection. Wait a minute—look into those figures a bit, and you will find that it is perfectly true that no child has died at the asylum within thirty years or has been seriously ill there. The moment a child is taken ill somebody rings for the ambulance and that child goes to the hospital—either to get well, or to die, but in any case to be kept off the asylum record as very ill or dead. Simple enough, isn't it—when you get the clew?

I heard about a day home for children that fed 10,000 children a year, and when I went to see it it was a little place that wouldn't hold more than 500 children at once even if its walls bulged.

They fed the 10,000 children all right—but they counted each child every time that child had a meal.

Figures won't lie—but how about your bankbook? The figures are there all right—but what about that check that you forgot?

Figures won't lie; and yet the people who deceive themselves the oftenest are the people who believe most firmly in the utter reliability of figures.

If I wanted to fool any one in the world with a wildcat mining scheme, I'd never pick out a poet or a dreamer for my victim. I'd choose a good "practical" man who's been taught that figures won't lie—and who believes it.

Facts, figures, statistics—why, they are the most misleading things in the world.

The biggest fool I know is a man who couldn't make a mistake in addition to save his life—when the account is on his side; and he'll cheat and twist figures and manipulate accounts and come so near to fooling himself that he thinks he has fooled every one else.

One, two, three, four, five, six, seven.
All good children go to heaven.

So they do, my child, so they do—if they count right, and don't rely too confidently on the old saying that figures can't lie.

Interesting Facts About Famous Rivers

The river Platte during the summer is dry along the greater portion of its course. The water runs underground, only an occasional pool appearing on the surface. By digging almost anywhere in its course a supply of fresh, cool water may be obtained.

The river Euphrates flowed through the city of Babylon, and on each side of its banks the walls of the city were carried up to a height as great as at any other point, so that even during a siege the city was as formidably defended on the river as on the land side.

Before the coming of the whites to America the Mississippi river was known by a different name every few miles in its course. Each tribe that dwelt along its banks gave it a name, and more than 20 of these local designations are preserved in the narratives of the early travellers.

Over one-third the territory of Africa, the Sahara district, does not contain a single river. The greatest river in the world is the Gulf Stream. It is from 150 to 200 miles wide, and over 3000 miles long, extending from the strait between Florida and Cuba to the northern coast of Norway.

The Jordan is the "Descender." During its course it falls over 1700 feet. At no point is it navigable, even by a small craft, to any considerable distance, and presents the unique spectacle of a river which has never been navigated flowing into a sea which contains not one living creature.

The Yellow river is styled the "Sorrow of China." During the last century it has changed its course 12 times, and now flows into the sea through a mouth 300 miles distant from that of 100 years ago. It is estimated that its floods in the present century have cost China 11,000,000 of lives.

In Algeria there is a river of ink. In the upper part of its course it flows through beds of decaying moss, in the lower part through strata of iron ore, and thus, through the combination of the two, its waters acquire very nearly the color and something of the taste of black ink.

The marshy ground of the Ganges delta, with its vast masses of vegetation, decaying under a tropical sun, is the native home of the cholera. In that pestilential region the cholera and plague are found every year and all the year round. Every cholera epidemic which has desolated Europe, every visitation of the plague, is believed to have started from the mouth of the Ganges.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

When You "Kill Time" You Only Harm Yourself

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

TIME is the emperor of man and beast. Therefore gather your rosebuds while ye may, old time is still a-flying. The very flower that smiles today tomorrow will be dying.

Time, forever haltless, hurries to seize the everlasting. To fetter the seven-leagued and booted jade is to be the conqueror in life.

Time is actually you. Unlike space, which is outside you and your life, time is the passage of life, the passing of the glory of activity in vital tissues. Savants call this a relative thing—something dependent on other things. It is, of course, measured by events, or rather the sequence of events.

Suppose, for instance, that it takes a man one second to raise and lower his hand. If there are other creatures that can perform the same action in a hundredth of a second, that period will be a second to them, for, after all, we measure time by the number of physical actions we can perform. This being the case, certain insects that live only a week have really lived several years.

Imagine human life on an electron, the smallest of real things, 1800 times smaller than an atom. One second of your time would be, then, about 20,000,000,000 years. On the other hand, if you can imagine that suns and stars have life, one of their seconds would be about 20,000,000,000 of your years.

A great many things depend upon this idea of time. A learned sceptic explains the miracle of turning water into wine by saying it means simply that the time of growth of the grape was shortened. The reason a quick, active man accomplishes so much more in the same time than a slow one is that he lives by a different system of time than the other.

Baxter wrote his "Saint's Everlasting Rest" in the 17th century on a sick bed. Benjamin Franklin, while at work as a journeyman printer, produced his "Dissertation on Pleasure and Pain and Liberty and Necessity."

Paul worked as a tent maker in intervals of travel and exhortation. "Pilgrim's Progress" was written when Bunyan was in close confinement at Bedford jail.

While plying his trade as a village blacksmith, Elihu Burritt made himself acquainted with 10 languages. Before this he had stopped school after only six months' education.

The lazy, lolling sort unseen at church, at athletic play, at busy work, the ever listless loiterers that attend to almost nothing productive have no measure of time or space.

An idler is not only a sick man; a watch that wants both hands is as useless when it goes as when it stops.

Time is the greatest of miracles. It is mystery of movement. It is the quiet, unlimited, ever-rolling, hurrying, scurrying silence of the all-embracing ebb and flow of breath. It is the "are" and the "are not" of now and tomorrow.

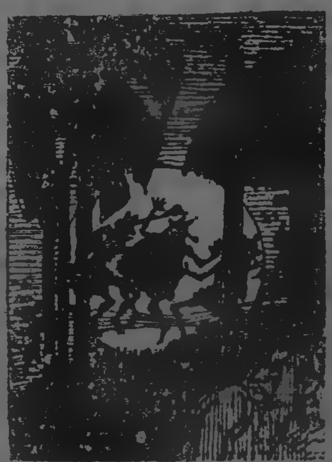
Three Minute Journeys

In the Land of the Ju-Ju

By TEMPLE MANNING



OUT of the mysterious silence of the "bush," in the little known regions of West Africa, the first intimation that this is indeed the land of witchcraft comes to the traveller when his guide stops before a large tree, to be seen in the centre of each village, and adds an offering of some sort to others in the roots. If pressed for an explanation you may finally induce him to tell of the "Isinn" tree, where "the good spirits dwell who guard the people from the dreaded ju-ju demons."

In the vast forests, which press so closely around the little clearings, great trees are to be seen supposedly inhabited by malignant spirits ever ready "to seize on the passer-by and imprison him within their rugged arms." Of these the cotton trees are not only the largest, but the most dreaded. By means of offerings hung around the buttress-like roots the spirit of such a tree may be won over to wreak vengeance on an enemy or grant wealth and power to petitioners.

The blacks of the Ekoi settlements believe that for those too poor to provide the usual offerings there remains a more terrible way to enlist the aid of the demons. A man may offer himself as a sacrifice, and, after enjoying the results of his prayer for a few years, must go, when the spirit calls him, and suffer imprisonment so long as the tree shall endure.

Despite the missionary influence of both the English and German governments, the blacks apparently have not given up a single item of their long list of superstitions. What the white man has tried to teach has fallen on deaf ears. Their whole life is witch-ridden, from birth until death.

In the bush, with its green twilight, its dark shadows and quivering lights, "ojjee," (witchcraft) reigns supreme. Mother, sister or sweetheart may be a witch in disguise. A bird or a bat, or any small beast—all may be wizards, ready to do you hurt.

Should witches wish to kill a man the people believe, they gather at night in the air over his town and dance. Perhaps their most terrible power is that of "sucking out the heart" of a man. A sufferer with beri-beri is usually thought to have been bewitched in this way.

When the "pang-pang" of the giant bat, the messenger of the demons, is heard at night it is a matter of faith that at dawn there will be one dweller the less in the village.

The southern United States negro obtained most of his superstitions straight from this region. But while he has practically outlived his heritage, the land of his forefathers is as dark today as it ever was.

Peculiar Superstitions of Animals

In all lands ravens and crows have been considered birds of evil omen.

In Dalmatia it is [illegible] auspicious omen for a cat to sneeze [illegible] a bride enters her new home.

WHY FISHES LEAP

Usually They Have a Good Reason—Not Done in Play

If an angler were asked point-blank why he calls salmon and trout "game fishes" rather than carp and roach, I imagine that he would quote their habit of jumping out of the water when hooked as one of the reasons for which, affording finer sport, they are more game than the coarse fish, writes F. G. Aflalo, in The London Morning Post. It cannot be merely the fact of their taking an artificial fly, for the dace is also commonly caught on it. No, the power of leaping clear of the service, adding, as it does to the glorious uncertainty of bringing them to book, undoubtedly sets these members of the salmon family higher in the sportsman's estimation than the ground-hugging carp tribe. If this be definitely accepted, then the salt water fisherman has a wider purview of game fishes, since the [illegible] tarpon, the fierce swordfish, the delicate little ladyfish, and many other denizens of seas fulfill the conditions and give far more exciting sport on the rod than those which merely [illegible] or sulk.

There are [illegible] reasons why fishes jump [illegible] water. They certainly do [illegible] lambs in a meadow, [illegible] of life. If you see small fry jumping in a lake, as likely as not some old pike or trout is on their track. Such larger fishes as attract the angler do not jump to escape their enemies, but are either jumping af[illegible] flies or some other natural food, or shaking off parasites. The tarpon, to the best of my belief, jumps only when in trouble of this kind, and then, if not too tired, it will jump every time the rod is jerked after it has been hooked. The fish that gives the most striking displays of leaping in the Gulf of Mexico is the gigantic whipray, and its object is quite evident, for I have seen these great fish [illegible] three or four remoras in th[illegible]. The remora, or sucking-fish, is frequently found adhering to sharks and rays, and to carry a number of these about must be weary work. And so the whipray jumps to shake off its remoras as a dog might try to shake itself free of fleas.

Now and again both salmon and trout are known to jump into boats. In one case I knew of, a fifteen-pound salmon jumped clean into the lap of a lady fishing in the Duke of Richmond's water on the Spey. Porpoises are also notorious acrobats, jumping more continuously than any fish, and one of these marine mammals once jumped into the skiff of a sportsman and knocked him overboard. The only fish known deliberately to charge its captor's boat when hooked is the tremendous swordfish, caught on the rod on both sides of America, and the effect of a swordfish careering along, as it were, on its tail, seemingly erect, is alarming to anyone unaccustomed to such demonstrations. The others, tarpon and the rest, come in collision with the boat only by accident, and the rarity with which such accidents occur must often have struck those of us who have watched huge tarpon repeatedly fall back in the water within a foot or so of the gunwale.

TYRUS HAS BRAINS

Might Have Developed Into a Star Football Player

In the opinion of Dan McGugin, the famous Michigan football player, Ty Cobb would have made just as great a name for himself as a football player as a diamond star had he stuck to the gridiron game. The reason why Cobb became a baseball star, says McGugin, is because he made a careful study of the game. Some years ago Ty was at Nashville, Tenn., and tried out his hand at football. The first couple of weeks he was a joke. But later, after he had learned something, he was drop kicking better than any man there. Ty wasn't a natural footballer, but he used his brains. And that is what made him the great ball player he is to-day, says McGugin.

Girl Climbs Church Spire

Miss Dorothy Willink, daughter of Canon Willink, rector of St. Martin's Church, Birmingham, climbed to the top of the church spire, 200 feet high, and scratched her name on the cap to which the weathercock is fixed. She climbed as far as possible by the steps inside the church, and ended the journey on the steeplejack's ladders, the spire being at present under repair.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is [illegible]. This parasite is a creature [illegible] female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They [illegible] and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a usher or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water [illegible] apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

M. Philouse, a French statistician, calculates that the war in the Balkans cost the belligerent countries $500,000,000. The money went for ammunition that was fired away, arms that were largely lost or broken, for soldiers' clothing that was worn out, food, etc. There is nothing material to show for it. The situation is as if a fire had swept over the land and destroyed so much property. The countries as a whole and the people individually are poorer than they were when the war began. Their case illustrates what the waste of war means.—Montreal Gazette.

BATHING IN EARLY DAYS

Almost Unknown Until the Time of the Crusades

Most barbarians, judged by modern standards, were anything but cleanly in their personal habits. In England, France and Germany bathing was an almost unknown custom until after the Crusades. The pilgrims from the East brought home with them ideas of the bath as a help in the treatment of disease, and bathrooms were gradually introduced into the hospitals. From the hospitals the ideas of bathing spread generally. People who had been treated there saw the value of keeping the body clean in order to resist disease. The great plague that swept over Europe in the early years of the fourteenth century helped to teach this lesson. By the fifteenth century there was scarcely a large city that did not possess well-patronized public bathing establishments, although it was not until the seventeenth century that the Turkish bath was introduced, and not until the eighteenth century that sea bathing so common among the American Indians, was tried experimentally. Saturday was chosen as bathing time, and the reason is not difficult to imagine. On Sunday everybody was compelled to go to church, whether he would or not. As the Moslem in the East bathed before entering the mosque, so did the mediæval man before entering his church, only he must take his bath on Saturday afternoon in order to be clean the following day. There was even a distribution of bath money to the children whose parents were unable to pay for their baths.

White of egg is excellent for renovating leather chairs. Remove all the dust and dirt from the leather, then rub with a cloth dipped in the white of egg, which should first of all be well beaten. When dry, rub with soft, clean cloths, and the chairs will be like new.

Brightening Tiles

If the red tiles of the kitchen porch become dull, try rubbing them with lemon dipped in salt. After half an hour wash in the usual way. The tiles will be perceptibly brightened.

Polish With Paraffin

Try rubbing off a window or a mirror with a piece of crumpled newspaper dipped in paraffin. You will be surprised to see how well this does the cleaning.

Three Mutiny Veterans

General William Bannerman, who served in six campaigns and forty fights, died at Cheltenham in his eighty-sixth year. He was over forty years in India, and served in the Indian Mutiny and in the Afghan War. Two other Indian Mutiny veterans have also just died at Cheltenham—Private E. Hobbs, of the old 64th Foot, who was at the relief of Delhi and Lucknow, and Private James Herbert, of the 60th Rifles.

A BRONCHIAL COUGH, PERHAPS WEAK THROAT USE "CATARRHOZONE"--DEAD SURE CURE

Wonderful Success Reported in Thousands of Bad Cases.

How many thousands are there who would gladly pay any sum to be cured of bronchitis or catarrh. Many could be cured if they would just use common sense in selecting their remedy.

Bronchitis of course is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes which are made for the passage of air alone and neither the moisture of an atomizer nor the liquid of a cough syrup can get where the trouble is. The diseased parts can only be reached by a remedy that can force its way through all the breathing organs. Doctors who have used "Catarrhozone" say it is the only rational cure for bronchitis. It cures by inhalation.

You breathe in its healing balsams, inhale its soothing antiseptic vapor and relief is immediate.

Simple to use, delightful and pleasant nothing compares with Catarrhozone which is the cure of the day for all bronchial and throat troubles.

Mrs. H. B. McLaughlan, the well-known representative of Parke and Blackwell, Toronto says: "I have used Catarrhozone for years and can honestly say it is the only remedy that relieves me from a painful attack of Bronchial Catarrh. The inhaler for Catarrhozone is always in my pocket and I simply couldn't get along without it. I firmly believe Catarrhozone is a wonderful remedy."

Large size sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed, $1.00; small size 50c; sample or trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

WHAT TO DO FOR SORE THROAT

SOME GOOD ADVICE BY A SPECIALIST.

As there seems to be a regular epidemic of Sore Throats this winter the following valuable recipe will be welcomed by many. A sore throat is a dangerous complaint to trifle with, as the bronchial tubes lead directly to the lungs and the disease often travels along these tubes into the lungs and there sets up an inflammation that invariably results in a serious lung trouble.

At the first sign of soreness in the throat or around the nostrils you should secure from your chemist 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist sugar. Stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will give instant relief and will usually cure the worst throat within 48 hours. The healing and soothing qualities of this formula are unequalled, and every person suffering with a bad throat should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c. to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, P. Q., who make a speciality of it.
